A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

SEPTEMBER 2, 1993

VOL. X NO. 1

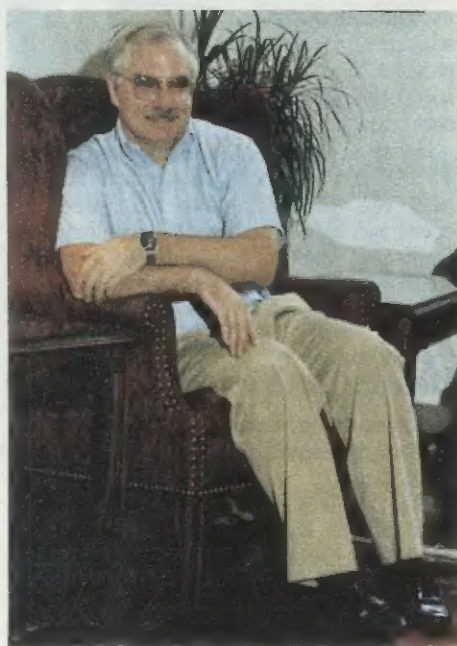

Volunteerism Is Focus of Convocation Address

Students at the University will be urged to look beyond their own needs and get involved in the community through volunteerism when Dr. George Whitehead delivers the address at this year's Fall Convocation.

Convocation will be held at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, September 15, in Holloway Hall Auditorium on the SSU campus. The public is invited to attend.

Whitehead, who is chair of the Psychology Department at SSU, serves on the Academic Long Range Plan Committee which recently agreed to add community service as an initiative in the University's plan.

The initiative has four objectives: to develop a mechanism for coordinating and monitoring community service activities; to assist faculty in incorporating a community service philosophy into new and existing courses; to encourage University community involvement in extracurricular community service activities; and to actively participate as a community of scholars in the solution of community problems.

Dr. George Whitehead

"It's appropriate to have community service as part of the Academic Long Range Plan," Whitehead said. "The University has been involved in many community service projects over the years, particularly with Habitat for Humanity, but now it's officially part of our mission."

Last fall, 995 SSU students gave a total of 11,375 community service hours. In addition to Habitat, students also volunteered in a wide range of activities such as tutoring, the Maryland Wheelchair Games, Maryland Food Bank drives and Special Olympics. Last spring, the University chapter of Habitat initiated a fund drive to raise $34,000 to finance the building of a home for a local needy family.

Studies of high school and college students show that those who participate in community service generally have a heightened sense of personal and social responsibility, enhanced self-esteem, more positive attitudes toward adults and others, growth in moral and ego

SSU Selected as NASA Joint Venture Facility—Only One in State

Salisbury State has been selected as the only institution in Maryland to participate in the NASA Joint Venture Initiative (JOVE), allowing three faculty members the opportunity to study at NASA facilities to further their research.

The three-year program begins this summer, with faculty members spending up to 10 weeks at a National Aeronautics and Space Administration facility where they will have access to data from active space science missions. When they return to the University, electronic links will be established with the NASA facilities, allowing for continued joint research.

NASA has agreed to provide about $110,000 in equipment, summer stipends and travel costs to SSU, while the University has agreed to provide research time for the faculty members, consider curriculum development in the space sciences and conduct outreach to secondary and/or elementary schools about space science. Included in the award is $20,000 for student scholarships and undergraduates to work with the faculty at SSU.

"This joint venture is an excellent way to get the most out of our space program," said

'Love Letters' Opens Theatre Season

Salisbury State opens its fall theater season with the presentation of A.R. Gurney's award-winning play, "Love Letters," on Thursday, September 16, in Fulton Hall Theatre. Directed by Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer, with set design and lighting by Gerry Palt, the play will feature Dr. R.J. Wesley and Kelley Rouse as the main characters.

Correspondence, a seemingly unconventional subject for which to center an entire play, is the basis of "Love Letters." It features the passionate, touching and often comical letters of Andy Ladd and Melissa Gardner and according to Pfeiffer the production promises to be both amusing and inspiring.

Wesley, a professor of communication arts in the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts at SSU, has previously performed in the SSU stage production of "Mark Twain." Rouse, portraying Melissa Gardner, is anchor woman for the local television station, WMDT, channel 47.

Performances will be held Thursday-Saturday, September 16-18, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, September 19, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $5 general admission and $3 for students and senior citizens. For more information call the theater box office at 543-6228.

'Love Letters' features Kelley Rouse and Dr. R.J. Wesley

Seniors: Graduation Application Deadline

All undergraduate students who plan to complete degree requirements in May 1994 or August 1994 must complete an Application for Diploma by Monday, October 4, in the Office of the Registrar. The University no longer requires a graduation fee.

All applications must be approved by the chair of the student's major department. The purpose of the early application deadline is to allow time for each senior's records to be reviewed in detail prior to the last semester of attendance at the University. This ensures that students are aware of their academic status early enough to make any last minute adjustments in their plan of study.

Please return the completed Application for Diploma to the Office of the Registrar, Holloway Hall, room 145, or mail it to the Office of the Registrar, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Educational Rights And Privacy Act

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 gives students the right to inspect and review educational records maintained by the University. Additionally, a student may request the amendment of a record that the student believes to be inaccurate, misleading or otherwise in violation of the student's privacy.

Students maintain the right of consent to disclosures of personally identifiable information contained in the records of the student. SSU will assume the right, under the provisions of the act, to provide student directory information found in a student's educational record without prior consent of the student.

For such purposes, directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of the athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information. In the event a student desires more or less directory information released, the student should notify the Office of the Dean of Students in room 212 of the Guerrieri University Center.

Students have the right to file any complaints about alleged failure to comply with Privacy Act requirements with the U.S. Department of Education. Copies of the SSU policy can be obtained in the Dean of Students Office.

Student Handbook Published

The Office of the Dean of Students has published a Student Handbook for the 1993-94 academic year. The handbook includes information on campus programs and services, student organizations and community resources. The handbook also features a 1993-94 calendar which includes intramural sign-up deadlines, athletic events, special events on campus and important academic deadlines. Handbooks are available at the Dean of Students Office and Guerrieri University Center information desk during the year.

Student Health Insurance

Evidence of health insurance is not required in order to enroll for classes at Salisbury State. Staff in the University Health Center recommend that students have health insurance coverage by obtaining coverage on their parent's/family's policy or by contacting an insurance company of choice for information and possible enrollment in a plan. There is no health insurance policy available through the University.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Art Gallery Director

SSU seeks three-quarter time director with related advanced degree and broad experience in all aspects of art gallery administration including: fundraising, exhibitions planning and scheduling, facilities management, educational programming and installations. This represents an opportunity to essentially establish and develop new gallery and director's position.

Salary is $20,000 plus opportunity for $3,000 teaching in Art Department. Forward letter, vita, transcripts and two to three letters of reference to: Gallery Search Committee, c/o Dr. James C. Lackie, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Appropriations Board Has Paid Openings

The Student Government Appropriations Board is accepting resumes for open positions from September 7-15.

Students interested in becoming more involved with student government and in gaining experience in budgeting and finance can learn valuable job skills and earn money at the same time. Appropriations is that part of SGA that appropriates and monitors all funded student organizations on campus.

Qualifications are: a cumulative GPA of 2.5; good communication and organizational skills; ability to work a minimum of eight hours per week; ability to get along well with others; a full-time matriculated student working on a degree in any major; and computer literate with a basic knowledge of Lotus 1/2/3 and Word Perfect software.

Send resumes as soon as possible to: Ben Luongo, SGA Appropriations Chair, Guerrieri University Center, Room 227 or Box 3056.

Automatic Teller Machine (ATM)

A Maryland National Bank Automatic Teller Machine (ATM) is located on campus at the north entrance of the Guerrieri University Center. The ATM will accept MOST, CIRRUS PLUS, VISA, MasterCard, American Express and Discover Cards. The ATM does not accept deposits. Checks are not cashed anywhere on campus.

If students have a college account at Maryland National Bank, their ATM transactions will be free of charge.

For information on how to get a Maryland National Bank ATM card and how to open a college account with unlimited ATM use, please contact Patricia Parker at the South Salisbury branch at 742-8671.

If banking with a financial institution other than Maryland National Bank, that institution requires a charge for using the ATM.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Personnel Office Update

Welcome new employees (non-faculty): Timothy Shiles in the Public Safety Office; and Susan Wheatley of Blackwell Library.

Transferred employees include Anthony Carter of custodial services and Ophelia Moses in University Dining Services to ECI in Princess Anne.

Reminder: Please submit address changes to the Personnel Office (many employees were issued new house numbers due to the 911 program for emergencies.) Call 543-6035 or 548-4755 to obtain the three forms necessary to make the change.

A two-day retirement seminar conducted by State of Maryland Retirement System will be held November 4 and 5 in the Guerrieri University Center. The seminar is designed for state employees who are within five years of retiring. More information will follow.

Personnel News

Mrs. Nancy Culver retired from Salisbury State on August 27 after 18 years of dedicated state service. The Office of Academic Affairs and Special Academic Programs welcome Judy Young who will now be working in the Academic Affairs Office with primary responsibility for special academic programs.

Health Program News, Reminders and Updates

Employees who participate in health care or dependent care spending account programs should submit receipts to obtain reimbursements. Forms for submitting the receipts are available from the Personnel Office.

The annual Health Risk Screening program is scheduled for Thursday, November 18. Employees can call the Personnel Office, 548-4755, to schedule an appointment. Members of Blue Cross/Blue Shield Preferred Provider program have minimal (or no) cost for the process. Those employees in one of the HMOs (Delmarva and MDIPA) would have to pay the full cost since the HMOs do not participate in the program.

Open enrollment for all health insurance programs offered to state employees will be from mid October through mid November again this year. Employees should receive a mailing in the middle of October about changes and rates for next year. Further details about new or discontinued offerings will be distributed as soon as they are received.

SECU Has Lower Auto Loan Rates

On September 1, the State Employees Credit Union of Maryland (SECU) introduced a new auto loan program which included lower rates, new down payments, and free consumer information and roadside service. Under the new programs, employees of the State of Maryland or SECU's special payroll groups may still enjoy payroll deduction payments on auto loans.

The Credit Union has also joined forces with an independent company, AutoVantage GOLD, which members can call for free price summaries and road test reports on new autos as well as used car pricing information.

In addition, when members finance new or used autos at SECU, they'll now receive a complimentary year-long membership in AutoVantage GOLD (normally a $69 annual fee) which includes 24-hour emergency road assistance and a trip routing service, as well as a coupon book for hundreds of dollars in savings on automotive maintenance and other services.

For more information about membership or SECU's new auto loan program, call (410) 296-SECU or 1-800-TRY-SECU.

Chesapeake Photographs in Atrium Gallery

Renowned Maryland photographer Marion E. Warren will present photographs of the Chesapeake Bay and selections from oral history interviews when he comes to Salisbury State.

The photographs will be on display in the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center Wednesday, September 8, through Friday, October 1.

Warren will discuss his more than 40 years of photographing the Chesapeake at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, September 22, in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri Center. Warren's daughter, Mame, will also be on hand to discuss her experiences gathering interviews and matching them with her father's photographs.

Both the exhibit and the lecture will provide a sneak preview of Warren's forthcoming book, tentatively titled "Bringing Back the Bay: Visions of the Chesapeake through the Lens of Marion E. Warren and the Voices of Those Who Live by Her Shores."

The title was inspired by an interview with

Jennings Evans, a Smith Island native and local historian.

Mame Warren conducted more than 30 interviews in both Maryland and Virginia with individuals who live and work on or near the Chesapeake. Watermen, scientists, farmers, environmentalists, developers, politicians, a boatbuilder, an artist and historians have all shared their opinions about the Bay's past, present and future. The diversity among their views helps to explain why it is difficult to find easy answers to the challenges facing the Bay and her people.

The Johns Hopkins University Press will publish "Bringing Back the Bay" in September 1994. The Warrens are co-authors of four previous books including "Maryland Time Exposures, 1840-1940."

Hours for the Atrium Gallery are 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon-4 p.m. on Sunday. For more information call 543-6428.

Faculty Awarded Grants by SSU Foundation

A total of $2,375 was recently awarded to five University faculty by the grants committee of the SSU Foundation Inc.

An award of $475 was made to Thomas W. Dillon of the Department of Information and Decision Sciences in the Perdue School of Business to assist with expenses during the fifth International Conference on Human-Computer Interaction held in Orlando, FL, in August. Dillon presented a paper which researched the efficiency and acceptability of spoken language interaction with computers.

Dr. Ben Fusaro of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Sciences in the Henson School of Science and Technology was awarded a $475 grant to help with expenses at both the meeting of the Society for Industrial and Applied Math in Philadelphia in July and the joint meetings of the American Math Society and Math Association of America in Vancouver, British Columbia in August. Fusaro presented a workshop on environmental math while at the conference in Vancouver.

An award of $475 was made to H. Reed Muller of the Department of Management and Marketing in the Perdue School of Business to assist with expenses in connection with his research project involving the economic and historical development and operation of the early American iron industry. Muller intends to submit his research to the Economic and Historical Society as well as to other professional journals and outlets.

Dr. Carla N. Schultes of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Sciences received a grant of $475 to assist with expenses as she develops an experimental course in complex analysis which entails the use of computers and technology-based small group projects. Schultes' course will be offered as a special topics course by her department in spring 1994.

James M. Welsh of the English Department in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts was given a grant of $475 as support toward expenses at the 1993 Congress of the International Association for Audio-Visual Media in Historical Research and Education which was held at the University of Amsterdam in July. Welsh will be presented his paper titled, "The Great War and the War Film."

The SSU Foundation is a nonprofit organization which raises private funding for numerous academic and cultural activities at the University not covered by state funds. Donations made through the Foundation have endowed schools, provided scholarships and grants for research, and funded the University Gallery, visiting lecturers, cultural events and field trips. Since 1983, Foundation assets have grown from $50,000 to $13.5 million.

Alumni Office Seeks SSU Memorabilia

Are your old Salisbury State yearbooks gathering dust on your bookshelves or in your attic? If so, the Office of Alumni Relations may have a solution.

The Alumni Office is currently seeking donations of yearbooks, photographs and other memorabilia, particularly from earlier years, for its archives.

The collection will eventually be housed in the new Alumni House scheduled to be built later this year.

"We're looking for anything that will add to the history of Salisbury State," said Nancy Wagner, director of alumni relations. "That includes scrapbooks, old snapshots or anything else that alumni and former faculty and staff have saved over the years."

Since Salisbury State has undergone several name changes since its founding in 1925, Wagner said the archives will include items from Maryland State Normal School, Salisbury State Teachers College and Salisbury State College, as well as Salisbury State University.

For more information, call the Office of Alumni Relations at 543-6042.

Mariner, Towers On Foundation Board

Ann Showell Mariner of Berlin and F. Wayne Towers of Baltimore have been appointed to three-year terms on the Salisbury State University Foundation Inc. board of directors.

Mariner is co-manager with her brother, Adam Showell, of the Castle In the Sand and the Barefoot Mailman, two family-owned hotels in Ocean City.

Born in Ocean City, Mariner attended Stephen Decatur High School and graduated from the Hannah More Academy in Reisterstown, MD. She received a bachelor's degree in hotel/restaurant management from Florida International University in Miami.

She and her husband, A. Reggie Mariner II, live on a farm outside Berlin.

Towers is a national account manager with the Towson, MD office of the Xerox Corp. Prior to being hired by Xerox in 1967, he was a teacher for three years.

A native of Cambridge, Towers graduated from Cambridge High School and received a bachelor's degree from SSU. He also has done postgraduate study at SSU and the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

Towers serves on the Pastor Parish Relations Committee at Timonium United Methodist Church and served on the Appalachian Services Project. He also served on the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business accreditation advisory committee at SSU.

He is married to the former Donna Sheets, also a Salisbury State graduate. Their daughter, Kara Michelle, is a senior at SSU.

The SSU Foundation is a nonprofit organization which raises private funding for numerous academic and cultural activities at the University not provided by state funds. Donations made through the Foundation have endowed schools, provided scholarships and grants for research, and funded the University Gallery, visiting lecturers, cultural events and field trips.

Watson Completes Course

Nancy Watson, buyer for the Salisbury State bookstore, the Book Rack, recently completed a college store retail management course. She received a certificate in recognition of the successful completion of the course from the National Association of College Stores.

Freshmen Present Showcase of the Arts

The Freshman Arts Orientation class presents the first (informal) Showcase of the Arts on Saturday, September 11. Students who are participating in the event will be presenting either a dramatic monologue, musical presentation and/or an art portfolio illustrating their area of study. Students will display their talents in and near the lobby area of Fulton Hall from 7-9 p.m.

This will be the first time that the freshmen students majoring in music, art and theatre will have an opportunity to meet their teachers and fellow students.

The campus community is invited to attend and enjoy the talents displayed by the incoming freshmen students. Refreshments will be served.

Modern Languages Advanced Placement

Students who previously studied French, German or Spanish are urged to take the advanced placement examination offered by the Department of Modern Languages. Students may be eligible for University credit if the results of the examination indicate a high level of achievement.

Credits will be awarded on the following basis: two semesters of study (Placement in French/Greek/Spanish 201), three hours; three semesters of study (Placement in French/Greek/Spanish 202), six hours; and four semesters of study (Placement in French/Greek/Spanish 310 or 312), nine hours.

Students may claim the credits awarded on the basis of the examination by completing one semester of language study with a grade of C or better, by paying a fee of $20 and by bringing the receipt to the chair of modern languages, Holloway Hall.

The advanced placement examination will be given on Wednesday, September 8, and again on Thursday, September 9, from 4-5 p.m. in the following rooms: French, Caruthers Hall, room 109; German, Caruthers Hall, room 107; and Spanish, Caruthers Hall, room 114.

Credits acquired through the advanced placement examination may be used to fulfill the requirements for a minor in French, Spanish or German.

Native speakers are not eligible for this exam. Please see the chair for further information.

Cavallaro Chair Of Art Department

Marie Cavallaro has been appointed Art Department chair in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

Cavallaro has been a member of the faculty at SSU since 1973. She holds an associate's degree from Corning (NY) Community College, a bachelor's degree from the State University College at Buffalo (NY) and a Master of Arts from East Tennessee State University. She also attended Siena University in Italy and the University of Delaware.

A three-dimensional artist, Cavallaro's primary media is clay with multi-media additions of fiber, feathers and drawing materials to create more painterly sculptures.

She has exhibited and lectured widely both nationally and internationally. Cavallaro also has created and produced two videos, "Pottery of the Eastern Shore" in 1983 and "Reproduction Stencilling in Color" with artist Jerry Caplan in 1990.

Loyola Federal Sponsors Math Contest

Loyola Federal Savings Bank is this year's sponsor for the University's High School Mathematics Contest scheduled for the fall. Cindy McEarchern, Loyola's assistant vice president and banking center manager, recently presented a $1,200 check to Dr. Robert Tardiff, chair of the Mathematics and Computer Science Department, and Dr. Phillip Creighton, dean of the Henson School of Science and Technology.

The Math Contest, designed to enhance mathematical activity in the secondary schools on the Eastern Shore, originated in 1984 and has been held continuously each year since that time. Last year's contest attracted 45 students from 15 high schools from counties in Maryland, Delaware and Virginia.

The goal of the contest is to give high school math teachers and their students an opportunity to test their skills against each other, to allow students to become acquainted with the SSU campus, particularly the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science, and to make the latest developments in math available to both students and teachers.

Four separate experiences are provided during the contest: students take an exam designed to challenge their mathematical abilities; teachers are invited to attend a mini-workshop in which new and stimulating ideas are presented; students and teachers attend a presentation by an SSU faculty member on a current math topic; and accomplishments of students and teachers are formally recognized during the awards luncheon.

Kellam To Network With School Nurses

Dr. Barbara Kellam, associate professor of nursing and director of the University's graduate program in nursing, has been participating in Project SHARE, a nationwide faculty development program intended to create a network of nurse educators interested in school health. Project SHARE is a fellowship program at the University of Colorado School of Nursing which offers selected nursing school faculty from around the nation special training in contemporary school nurse issues.

As a Project SHARE Fellow, Kellam hopes to serve as a resource person for local school nurses and others who are responsible for the planning of school health programs.

Armstrong Earns Ed.D. From NYU

Not everyone gets to see direct evidence of the importance of their work. Through his own research, Dr. Grady Armstrong established the positive impact that health and fitness have on individual attitudes. The study not only reinforced his only beliefs, it also enabled him to earn his doctorate. Armstrong has been awarded his Ed.D. degree by New York University.

Armstrong surveyed students' attitudes about exercise and their own self-images before and after they completed a health and fitness course. "We knew that cardiovascular health improved with exercise," Armstrong said, "but unless you change the attitude of people who don't like to exercise, taking one phys ed class doesn't really help them in the future."

According to Armstrong's research, the benefits of health and fitness education are almost guaranteed. "Attitudes did change significantly," he said. "In some cases you may not see the impact until four or five years later; but more often the change is immediate. The course does that for a number of people. Three months after completing the course, attitudes will still be changing, self-image improving."

While he acknowledges that his results may have been skewed by the responses to his survey—those who had not improved their body image may have opted not to return the questionnaire—Armstrong says his research is encouraging.

The success of Armstrong's doctoral study has been somewhat bittersweet. Having participated in the founding of SSU's leisure studies program, he was "disheartened" to see the University forced by budget cuts to discontinue the major.

His recent promotion to assistant professor in the SSU's School of Education and Professional Studies is just one indication, however, of the importance of the work Armstrong does at SSU. While the major may have been discontinued, the University will continue to offer classes in leisure studies.

Armstrong arrived at SSU in 1974 and has seen a lot of growth and many changes. Now that three years of commuting to NYU and hours and hours of work on his dissertation are behind him, he says SSU feels very much like home.

Armstrong was one of six members of the SSU faculty who earned doctorates this year. The others are Drs. Sharon Clark and Susan Muller, also from the School of Education and Professional Studies, Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer of the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts and Drs. Barbara Wainwright and Theodore Wiberg of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology.

Of SSU's 236 faculty members, 80 percent hold the highest degrees available in their fields: from Ph.D. to J.D. SSU's vice president of academic affairs, Dr. K. Nelson Butler, noted that in recent years this percentage has risen along with the University's academic reputation.

"In the early 1970s, the percentage of faculty with doctorates was in the low 70s," he said. "We have progressed nicely. The high percentage of doctorates speaks well of the University and helps us attract better faculty and better students."

CLEP Test

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) test will be given on Wednesday, October 20. The registration deadline for the test is September 20. For further information contact the Admissions Office at 543-6161.

Faculty Promotions Are Announced

The University has 13 faculty members who recently were promoted.

In the School of Education and Professional Studies, there are three new professors. Drs. Keith J. Connors, Charles K. Long and Geraldine N. Rossi were promoted to the rank of full professor at the close of the spring semester.

Drs. Pamela L. Alreck, Memo Diriker, Zakri Y. Bello and George C. Rubenson of the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business and Drs. Sheila Rodgers and Theodore Wiberg of the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology have all been promoted to associate professor.

Four members of the SSU faculty have been promoted to assistant professorships. They are Dr. Grady Armstrong, School of Education and Professional Studies, Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer, Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts, and Diane Hayes and Dr. Barbara Wainwright, both of the Henson School of Science and Technology.

Honors Convocation Seeks Alumni Speaker

The 1994 Honors Convocation will have as its speaker a graduate of Salisbury State.

The committee is seeking nominations of prospective alumni speakers who could serve as appropriate role models and who will be selected based upon the following criteria: must have graduated at least five or more years ago from SSU in an approved program of study; must currently be successfully employed in a career or business which reflects the standards and goals of SSU; should be active in community activities; should have been active in campus events as a student at SSU; should possess skills in public speaking; and should be an advocate and supporter of academic excellence and student involvement.

If you know of such an individual, please complete a nomination form. A form may be obtained in the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. Deadline for nominations is November 1.

Pre-Nursing Students Application Deadline

The application deadline for enrollment in the nursing major for spring semester is October 1. This applies to those pre-nursing students anticipating registered for NURS 300 for spring, as well as other students interested in the major.

The application form may be obtained from the Department of Nursing in Power Professional Building and must be submitted no later than October 1. Applications received after that date will be considered on a space-available basis.

Seeking Career In Health Professions?

All students applying to health professions schools (medical, dental, veterinary, dentistry, optometry, podiatry, physical therapy, etc.) in the 1993-94 academic year must contact Dr. Harry Womack (PO 135, 543-6492) as soon as possible to arrange for Pre-health Committee interviews.

Interviews will be conducted in early to mid September, and arrangements and preparations must be made as soon as possible. Remember, these interviews are vital to the admissions process and arrangements must be made now.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Friday, September 10	Football at Trenton State	7:30 p.m.
	Volleyball at Gettysburg Tournament	5 p.m.
Saturday, September 11	Soccer at Mary Washington Time	TBA
	Cross Country at Lebanon Valley	10 a.m.
	Volleyball at Gettysburg Tournament	10 a.m.
Sunday, September 12	Soccer at Lynchburg or Bloomfield	1 p.m.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

With the start of the fall semester upon us once again, the Sea Gull football team also inches closer to the start of the '93 season. The Gulls have been on campus since August 22 in preparation for the upcoming year, which opens officially on Friday night, September 10, under the lights at Trenton State. A quick preview of the '93 gridiron squad:

Head Coach Joe Rotellini welcomes back 50 lettermen and 17 starters as he begins his fourth season. The return of multi-dimensional wideout Charlie Whalen (63 rec. 547 yards, 5 TDs) and senior QB Len Annetta (3,690 career yds, 20 TDs) should spark the multiple pro-style offense. That combination helped the Sea Gulls average 174 yds/game through the air last year, despite finishing 2-7 overall.

If healthy after a season-ending knee injury, Ron Stump (156 yds in two games) could serve as the top rushing threat. He continues to work hard in rehabilitation, but may not be quite ready for the Trenton game. Damon Fayall (315 yds, 1 TD), last year's leading rusher, is likely to start the year as the featured running back. Jim Cave, Colin Joseph and John Alessandrini are the returning starters on the line.

Seven of last season's top 10 tackle leaders return on defense, helping to offset the loss of two-time defensive MVP Rick Helton. Greg Parkins, Kevin Bradford, Brian Gallavan and Scott Woehrl highlight an experienced linebacking corps. Linemen Dan Quinn and Don Brady will anchor the frontline. Senior Henry Fehlman is back for his fourth year as a starter in the secondary. He is joined by last year's interception leader James McCormick at strong safety.

Salisbury State plays its first home game on September 18, hosting the Methodist Monarchs at 1 p.m.

PA Announcer Needed

The Sea Gulls are looking for one or more voices interested in serving as the public address announcer for the football season. Individuals would work from the stadium press box during SSU's four home games this fall. Faculty and staff members are encouraged to apply. Contact Paul Ohanian at 543-6016.

Book Buy Back Benefits Habitat

During its May end of semester Book Buy Back, the Book Rack, the University's bookstore, donated all of its "no value" books to the SSU Chapter of Habitat for Humanity.

The books are normally discarded in one of several ways; this year, however, they were sold by the campus chapter of Habitat to help in the current project to raise $33,000 to build a Habitat home. The Book Rack also contributed sales help and promotional materials for the sale.

Habitat raised almost $300 from the sale bringing the total collected to $10,000 or 33 percent of its goal.

It's Back! Monster Book Sale

Blackwell Library will have its annual Monster Book Sale on Wednesday, September 22, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. on the terrace in front of the library.

Books will be sold for the ridiculous price of 50 cents each, while phonograph records will be offered at $1.

There will also be special items priced a bit higher as well as free stuff for those who would rather not spend their money on books.

This is a once-a-year opportunity to fill the gaps on your bookshelves. Rain date is Thursday, September 23.

Physical Plant Stages Benefit Softball Game

Full-time employees and student workers in the Physical Plant Department are going to bat for Jerry's Kids during a series of benefit softball games over the upcoming Labor Day weekend.

Starting 6 p.m. Friday, September 3, the games and a street fair will be held at the SSU athletics complex off Bateman Street to raise money for the Muscular Dystrophy Association during the "MDA 1993 Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon."

The event will continue 8 a.m.-8 p.m. on Saturday, September 4, and Sunday, September 5, and 8 a.m.-4 p.m. on Monday, September 6.

The softball tournament got its start last year as a challenge between SSU's full-time and student physical plant employees, with both teams agreeing to donate the $320 in proceeds to MDA, according to organizer Bob Meigel.

So far this year, 23 softball games are scheduled for the weekend and include matches between WSBY-Y99 FM and WMDT-TV, Wicomico County Sheriff's Department and Salisbury City Police, Walmart and Boscov's, Glidden Paint and Duron Paint, and SSU full-time and student staff members. Each player will be donating a minimum of $5 to MDA.

Ference Attends Schubert Conference

Dr. Gregory C. Ference, assistant professor of history, recently attended the XI Aston Magna Cross-Disciplinary Academy "Schubert's World: Viennese Culture in the Reign of Francis I (1792-1835)."

The three-week program took place at the Mason Gross School of the Arts at Rutgers University. Out of over 200 applications, Ference was one of 15 non-musician scholars chosen for the program.

Inspired by the model of renaissance academies, Aston Magna offered a core series of lectures by experts examining political and social aspects of Schubert's world, among them events leading to and following the Congress of Vienna (1814-1815) and the roles played by Emperor Francis I and his chief minister, Prince Metternich.

It examined the intellectual and social significance of the salons; architecture, and the inhibiting effects of censorship; the world of poetry and literature so central to Schubert's creative life, from the pan-German figure of Goethe to lesser figures in the composer's immediate circle; the movements of Austrian painting and the emergence of Biedermeier style in the decorative arts; the rise and enormous popularity of the waltz in the realm of dance; the many facets of the Viennese theater, from magic plays to opera at a time of supreme achievement; and the development of Romanticism in music generally and in Vienna in particular.

The artist-faculty also offered a similar series of lecture-demonstrations and master classes focusing on the music of the period and associated problems of historical performance practice, highlighted by concerts with period instruments. In addition there were sessions on interpreting Schubert's life by specialist scholars.

The academy was funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Austrian Cultural Institute in New York City.

Tryouts Sept. 7 For Choral Society

Rehearsals for the Salisbury Choral Society's 1993-94 season begin Tuesday, September 7, from 7:30-9:30 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 130. Interested singers are welcome to attend this first rehearsal to learn more about the choral organization and the upcoming season.

No audition is necessary, although members are expected to have prior choral experience. Male singers (tenors, baritones and basses) are particularly needed this year. Those with questions may contact the music director, Dr. Duane R. Kama, at the Department of Music at 543-6385.

Concert performances are scheduled for Tuesday, December 14, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, May 15, at 2 p.m. Both concerts will be in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The fall holiday concert features choral music accompanied by harp while the spring performance combines the SCS with the SSU Wind Sinfonia, Dr. Richard Johnson, conductor.

Chamber Choir Rehearsals Are Set

Auditions for the SSU Chamber Choir will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, September 6-8, 10 a.m.-noon each day. All interested singers should sign up for an audition time on the door of Fulton Hall, room 130.

The Chamber Choir is planning to travel to Germany and Austria during the 1994 winter term for a two-week travel/study choir tour. If interested see Dr. Duane R. Kama at the auditions.

Voice Lessons, Classes At Fulton Hall

Students interested in studying private voice lessons should contact Dr. Duane R. Kama in Fulton Hall, room 240 or room 130, to sign up. Weekly half-hour lessons are one credit with an additional applied music fee of $150.

Weekly hour lessons are two credits with an additional applied music fee of $300.

If you have questions, speak with Kama during scheduled choir auditions on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, September 6-8 from 10 a.m.-noon in Fulton Hall, room 130.

Other possibilities for exploring voice study are: Class Voice I (two credits), Tuesday and Thursday 2-3 p.m. (no additional fee); Chamber Choir (one credit) Monday, Tuesday and Thursday, (by audition only); and University Chorale (one credit), Tuesday, 7:30-9:30 p.m., singing with the Salisbury Choral Society.

Students interested in choral participation should plan to sing both fall and spring semesters and are required to purchase a choral dress or formal tuxedo. Music is provided by the University. Kama can be reached at 543-6385.

Fusaro Lectures At Two Conferences

Dr. Bernard A. Fusaro, professor of mathematics and computer science, recently lectured at two conferences in California.

Fusaro was invited to be part of a panel at an international conference on mathematical and computer modeling held in Berkeley, CA, on July 26. During the conference, Fusaro suggested to the group that environmental problems provided a good opportunity for mathematicians to work in other disciplines.

He was also invited to make a presentation on environmental mathematics at the University of California, Davis, on July 28, during a month-long summer program for California's high school math teachers.

Three are 1st Graduates in Environmental Sciences

The first three graduates have just gotten their diplomas, and already a new program at SSU is swimming in new students. More than 50 have enrolled as freshmen in the new environmental marine sciences/biology dual-degree program.

In partnership with the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, SSU offers students the chance to earn two degrees at once, so that their studies not only include a solid foundation in biology and environmental marine sciences, but also diplomas from both universities.

The first three dual-degree graduates have already begun their careers as scientists. While two are taking a year to work in laboratories before heading to graduate school, the third, Brian Sturgis, has begun work on his master's degree at the University of Maryland's Center for Environmental and Estuarine Study (CEES).

"I did things as an undergraduate I didn't expect to get to do," said Sturgis, who just last summer joined a research project at CEES. Right now he is studying the impact of fertilizers and nutrient loading on sea grasses and other submerged aquatic vegetation. "This is definitely not an office job," he added. "There are a lot of unforeseen difficulties, the wind, the rain, mud up to your waist, that kind of thing."

"But I've also done lab work and learned about instrumentation and techniques that are really important. And many of the things I've already learned are new to most of the other graduate students."

Dr. Thomas W. Jones, a member of the SSU biology faculty, worked with his colleagues at both universities to develop the program, which began three years ago. Today, he coordinates

SSU's program, advising students and teaching classes that take place in the field as much as they do in the classroom.

"We have just about every kind of aquatic setting in this area," he said. "The classes are heavily field oriented. We take students out into the Chesapeake Bay on the research vessel Aquarius, to Assateague Island to study the Atlantic shore and to the ponds and marshes inland."

While the program has proven to be immensely popular—seven percent of this fall's enrolled freshmen have signed up for it—Jones and others are careful to ensure that each environmental marine sciences student continues to receive the individual attention that was so valuable to Sturgis and his classmates.

"This is something I've always wanted to do," Sturgis said. "I originally planned just to study biology; I thought I'd have to wait until grad school to focus on marine sciences. Now, I've already operated as a scientist."

Undergraduate programs in environmental marine sciences are rare—Jones estimates that there are only a handful in the country. And while SSU and UMES have long been careful not to duplicate programs, the spirit of cooperation that gave rise to the dual-degree program has inspired faculty at both universities. Dr. Gian Gupta, chair of the Natural Sciences Department at UMES, said that he and his colleagues are "very excited about this program" and the partnership that the schools share.

To learn more about the dual-degree environmental marine sciences program, contact Jones at the Biology Department at 543-6490 or the Admissions Office at 543-6160.

Parker Receives M.S. from UMES

Dr. David Parker, an associate professor in the Henson School of Science and Technology, has been awarded a Master of Science in computer science from the University of Maryland Eastern Shore. Parker earned his Ph.D. in mathematics from Indiana University in 1973 and joined Salisbury State that same year. His master's project, "Creating Multi-Year Student Schedules Using Artificial Intelligence," has already been put to use in the SSU Department of Mathematics and Computer Science.

Parker's project deals with a perennial problem at most universities today. They cannot afford to offer every course in their catalogs every semester. Consequently, students must have a carefully planned course of study over several years, if they are to graduate on time. In the past, this has been a tedious process subject to error. With Parker's program, faculty now can help students plan such courses of study accurately and rapidly.

Parker presented a paper on the program in Orlando, FL, in late June.

Daddieh Is Selected To DuPont Scholars' Program

A political science professor from SSU has been tapped to participate in the prestigious DuPont Scholars' Program. Dr. Cyril K. Daddieh will spend the next year as a visiting professor at Mary Baldwin College in Staunton, VA, where he will teach, lecture and conduct research on African politics and international relations.

The Jessie Ball DuPont Visiting Scholars' Program was begun by the Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges to bring black scholars of national distinction to member campuses. Visiting scholars will teach a relatively light load of undergraduate courses and will conduct faculty seminars and present public lectures.

In addition to the courses he will teach, Daddieh said he is looking forward to having time to continue his research. He and a colleague are currently at work on an edited volume of articles about student political activism in Africa. In addition, Daddieh is studying the latest economic reform programs in his native Ghana, working as a consultant to the International Development Research Center (IDRC). Daddieh frequently consults for the IDRC, the World Bank and the U.S. Agency for International Development (U.S. AID).

While this appointment means that Daddieh will not be teaching at SSU next year, Dr. Michael O'Loughlin, who chairs the Political Science Department, points out that the students at the University will benefit in the long run. "Because his teaching workload will be lighter, Dr. Daddieh will have more time for research and thinking," he said. "Our students will benefit from that when he returns."

Invitations for visiting professorships are relatively rare; but at Salisbury State, they are becoming more frequent. "We are very proud of Dr. Daddieh," said Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs. "These appointments are important to the individual and to the University." In recent years, Dr. Bernard A. Fusaro of the Math/Computer Science Department was invited to teach at West Point and English professor Dr. Michael Waters served as a visiting professor at Sweet Briar College.

"It reflects the caliber of our faculty and the quality of the University," said Butler.

Dr. Robert Spivey, president of the Virginia Foundation for Independent Colleges, explained that after they have completed their teaching duties, the DuPont Scholars will be asked to help guide the foundation toward its ultimate goal: better integrating the faculties of the member colleges. At Mary Baldwin College, for example, Daddieh will be one of only two African-American professors.

Through the visiting scholars, the foundation hopes to build a network of black faculty members who know its colleges and who can help recruit more permanent black faculty members. Spivey said that the DuPont Scholars will participate in a conference on fostering racial inclusiveness in liberal arts colleges.

For his part, Daddieh is looking to the experience. "This will give scholars like me a chance to hear the views of colleagues in predominantly white schools," he said, "to look at things from the other side and to compare notes."

"We may find that our views are not that radically different after all."

Congressman Wayne T. Gilchrest. "And it's way to inspire not only University students but students all over the community about the importance of scientific research through the program's outreach efforts."

"This is a tremendous achievement for our University," said Dr. Phil Creighton, dean of the Henson School of Science and Technology at SSU. "We are the only JOVE location in the state of Maryland, and it will provide our faculty and students an opportunity to work on the most current space-related research, with frontier information."

The three SSU faculty members are: Dr. Steven Hetzler, a mathematician, who will work in collaboration with Dr. Alex Klimas at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, MD, will be developing a mathematical model of the solar wind and Earth's magnetosphere coupling; Dr. Andrew Pica, a physicist, who will collaborate with Dr. Susan Neff at the Goddard Space Flight Center, will be working with the ultraviolet imaging telescope; and Dr. John Tyvoll, a chemist, who will work in partnership with Dr. Arnold Torres at the Goddard Space Flight Center's Wallops Island facility, will be conducting upper atmosphere ozone analysis.

The goal of the JOVE program is to make the excitement, challenges and the research opportunities of NASA's space science missions available to a broader spectrum of colleges and universities while at the same time providing opportunities for outreach programs to grade schools and high schools in local communities.

The program is in its fifth year, and 21 universities including Salisbury State were selected this year to participate. There are already 53 universities participating in the program.

In Memoriam

Tam Doyle, a 12-year-employee in the Motor Pool, died July 22 from congestive heart failure. Our condolences go out to his family and friends.

Student Dies In Motorcycle Accident

Michael Kenneth Allen, a junior at SSU, died Friday, August 13, as a result of a motorcycle accident that day near his home in Arnold, MD. Contributions may be made to the following: Boy Scout Troop #83, C/O Paul Bowker, 840 Blue Heron Court, Arnold, MD 21012; or Michael K. Allen Memorial Scholarship, C/O Cathy Booker, (410) 974-0675.

Expressions of sympathy may be sent to: Dr. Michael H. Allen, 879 Mallard Circle, Arnold, MD 21012.

Middle School Teachers Attend Workshop

Teams of middle level educators from all over Maryland met at Salisbury State this summer to improve instruction in their schools.

Teams of educators from Calvert, Caroline, Dorchester, Harford, Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester counties participated.

They were instructed and led by Dr. George White, a specialist in middle level education and assistant professor of educational leadership in the Lehigh University College of Education.

All-day sessions included such topics as: the nature of an effective middle level curriculum and program, the nature of the middle level student, and the skills of participating and working in interdisciplinary teams. Nationally-recognized consultants, William Ekker and Gail Meister, assisted teams in problem solving and developing a program related to a school's special needs.

The Middle School Committee in the Department of Education, the Eastern Shore of Maryland Educational Consortium, and the Research for Better Schools organization co-sponsored the workshop.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

development and more active exploration of careers. According to Whitehead, Salisbury State has a responsibility to provide students with an education that includes community service.

Whitehead will also talk about his own volunteer involvement with the Red Cross, the PTAs at his children's schools and Maple Shade Homes, a facility for troubled children.

"Along the way I have met and worked with some terrific people, hopefully solved a problem or two, increased my knowledge about a number of issues, and helped make the community a better place," he said.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

Symphony Orchestra Selected To Kickoff Maryland ArtSalute

Dr. Bellavance recently announced that the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University has been chosen to open ArtSalute '93. The SSO will appear in concert at the Joseph Meyerhoff Symphony Hall in Baltimore at 7:30 p.m. Monday, October 4. The appearance by the SSO, the only symphony orchestra on the program for the evening, kicks off a month-long multicultural celebration of the arts in Maryland. President Clinton is expected to declare October 1993 "National Arts and Humanities Month."

The Maryland Citizens for the Arts, sponsors of ArtSalute '93, noted in their invitation to the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra that "narrowing the huge field of Maryland arts organizations was a most difficult task...the SSO rose to the top."

"Every musician dreams of playing in Symphony Hall and I know our players will rise to the occasion of a performance in the Baltimore Symphony's Meyerhoff Hall," said SSO's music director and conductor, Dr. Thomas G. Elliot.

"This is a proud moment for the University," said Bellavance. "Since it was founded in 1986, the SSO has enjoyed a meteoric rise and is now earning the honors it deserves."

ArtSalute '93 is the second in a planned series of biennial celebrations of "some of the best arts and artists in Maryland" according to the Maryland Citizens for the Arts. The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University will be the only artists from outside the Baltimore-Washington area to perform October 4.

After the opening concert by the SSO, the program for the Meyerhoff event features an eclectic array of performances. These include Sankofa, an African Dance Troupe based in Baltimore; nationally-known jazz musician Gary Bartz; singers Natasha Hassan and Ruby Glover, who have previously performed as The Divas; the Baltimore American Indian Dancers, the Baltimore Choral Arts Society; and Shizumi Dance Theatre, an internationally-known performer whose work combines mime, modern and traditional Japanese dance.

In addition, Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer, honorary chair of ArtSalute '93, will present the Maryland Medici Awards to businesses, individuals and foundations selected for their unique contributions to the arts.

"It is indeed gratifying to learn that our Orchestra has been selected to give the opening performance for ArtSalute '93," Elliot said. "I am so very proud of our members and the dedication that has kept us together and growing these past eight years."

"I am indebted to the Maryland Citizens for the Arts and the Maryland State Arts Council for their continued support and, of course, our own Salisbury State University and President Bellavance."

Admission to ArtSalute '93 is free, but tickets are required. For ticket information, please contact Maryland Citizens for the Arts in Baltimore at 244-3ART.

Fall Lecture Series Looks Back at the '60s

The sights, sounds and political and cultural upheaval of the 1960s will come back to life when Salisbury State presents its 1993 Fall Lecture Series, "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s."

The lecture series, which includes a total of 11 presentations, will be highlighted by a performance by 1960s singing group The Mamas and the Papas.

The series starts September 27 and concludes November 17. All presentations, unless otherwise indicated, will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrier University Center on the SSU campus.

"American Popular Music Traditions in Contemporary and Documentary Films" by Dr. David Sanjek, archives director of Broadcast Music Inc., begins the series on Monday, September 27, at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Auditorium. Sanjek will lecture and show film clips on Chuck Berry and other musicians associated with the period.

Next in the series will be "Homeward Bound in the 1950s: The Roots of the Sixties in the Early Cold War Era" by Dr. Elaine Tyler May of the University of Minnesota on Wednesday, September 29. May will examine the domestic culture of the Cold War that encouraged Americans to be "homeward bound" in the 1950s and prompted them to take to the streets in the 1960s.

"Reflections on the '60s and the '90s" by Thomas W. Jones, president and chief operating officer of Teachers Insurance and Annuity Association-College Retirement Equities Fund, is scheduled for Wednesday, October 6. Jones will discuss the past, present and future of American society as reflected in his own life experience. He also will offer his views on how to rekindle a spirit of national purpose and optimism.

The series continues on Wednesday, October 13, with "The Civil Rights Movement" by Parren J. Mitchell, chairman of the board of the Minority Business Enterprise Legal Defense and Education Fund, Inc. In 1950, Mitchell

Sea Gull Century Rated Top Ride by National Magazine

In its latest issue, Bicycling magazine has ranked the Sea Gull Century, a 100-mile tour of the Eastern Shore sponsored by the SSU Bicycle Club, among "America's Best Centuries." The top-10 list, in the August issue of the "world's #1 cycling magazine," praises the Sea Gull Century's "devotion to giving you a memorable century experience."

It has to be. The century, which was first run in 1989 and is set for Saturday, October 9, this year, matches a finely tuned event with an environment that has long been inviting to cyclists. Two years ago, the Sea Gull Century won the League of American Wheelmen's Century award. In its assessment, Bicycling magazine sums up the ride:

"This ride on Maryland's delightful Eastern Shore is proof that dead flat doesn't have to mean lethally boring. After leaving Salisbury...you head to the first of three watery rest stops, a state park on the Pocomoke River where a string quartet plays (naturally) Handel's 'Water Music.' Rest stop No. 2 is on Assateague Island where a bluegrass fiddler and banjo player jam while you check out the famous ponies and dunes. Stop No. 3 is a freshwater pond lined with cedar and cypress, where you're serenaded by a brass quintet."

The century is the focal point of a weekend that introduces cyclists from across the country to the natural and manmade wonders of the Eastern Shore. Shorter rides on Friday and Sunday take in the Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art, the historic Nassawango Iron Furnace and and old-fashioned crab feast. Like many other Dates and times for the training classes are: Monday, September 20, 2-3:30 p.m.; Tuesday, September 21, 7-8:30 p.m.; Wednesday, September 22, 2-3:30 p.m.; Wednesday, September 22, 7-8:30 p.m.; Thursday, September 23, 2-3:30 p.m.; Thursday, September 23, 7-8:30 p.m.; Monday, September 27, 7-8:30 p.m.; and Tuesday, September 28, 2-3:30 p.m.

Training is free to all students, staff and faculty.

Education Club Meets Twice Monthly

The SNEA (education club) holds meetings on the second and fourth Tuesdays of every month. The first meeting is on Tuesday, September 14, at 5:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall, room 201/202. All education majors are welcome. Bring a friend.

Art Gallery Director

The University is seeking an art gallery director, three-quarter time position with flexible schedule, 11-month contract, salary in low 20s, that includes teaching one course per semester with no paid benefits. This is an outstanding opportunity for an energetic, highly-motivated individual to define both the directorship and the place of the gallery within the institution and surrounding community. The University Gallery is a new, 2,000 square foot facility with additional storage/receiving area and office.

Responsibilities include planning the exhibition schedule and coordinating related educational outreach programs; overseeing student and faculty shows; handling installations; and conducting all other gallery-related activities, including budget and fundraising and working with an advisory board. The position is open until filled.

Send a letter, vita, transcripts, two to three letters of reference to Dr. James C. Lackie, Director of Special Academic Programs, Gallery Search Committee, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Office Secretary III

The History Department is seeking in-house candidates from both permanent and contractual University employees for the position of Office Secretary III (Grade 9).

This person will provide secretarial support to the History/Anthropology Department and the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture. Minimum qualifications include graduation from high school, four years of office experience (Graduation from an accredited secretarial program or possession of an Associate of Arts in secretarial science may be substituted for one to two years of experience.) and the ability to type 40 wpm.

Experience with Wordperfect 5.1 Windows is essential; the ability to handle multiple priorities efficiently in a busy office setting is a must. This is a permanent state position with benefits. If interested in being considered for the position, please submit resume, along with an application, to the Personnel Office by September 15.

Maintenance Mechanic

The Motor Pool is seeking in-house candidates from both permanent and contractual employees for the position of Maintenance Mechanic (Grade 7).

Duties of the position include: making necessary repairs to and performing routine maintenance on fleet vehicles and grounds equipment, tire changing and balancing, and some minor body repairs. Minimum qualifications include graduation from eighth grade and three years experience in the maintenance trades, preferably in automotive maintenance. Training in automotive computer technology is highly desired. This is a permanent state position with benefits.

If interested in being considered for the position, submit an application to the Personnel Office by September 22.

Models Needed

Models are needed for both drawing and painting classes in the Art Department. If you would like to model for pay, please call the Art Department at 543-6270 and leave your name and telephone number.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Radio Announcer

WSCL-FM seeks a part-time announcer to work 20 to 30 hours a week, chiefly weekends, and as a holiday and vacation substitute.

Applicants must have previous broadcast experience and be capable of control room operation. Knowledge of classical music and news reporting is helpful. An audition tape will be required. The position is available immediately. Salary is negotiable.

Resumes may be sent to Fred Marino, General Manager, WSCL-FM, P.O. Box 2596, Salisbury, MD 21802-2596 until September 15. WSCL-FM is licensed to the Salisbury State University Foundation, Inc.

Appropriations Board Has Paid Openings

The Student Government Appropriations Board is accepting resumes for open positions from September 7-15.

Students interested in becoming more involved with student government and in gaining experience in budgeting and finance can learn valuable job skills and earn money at the same time. Appropriations is that part of SGA that appropriates and monitors all funded student organizations on campus.

Qualifications are: a cumulative GPA of 2.5; good communication and organizational skills; ability to work a minimum of eight hours per week; ability to get along well with others; a full-time matriculated student working on a degree in any major; and computer literate with a basic knowledge of Lotus 1/2/3 and Word Perfect software.

Send resumes as soon as possible to: Ben Luongo, SGA Appropriations Chair, Guerrieri University Center, Room 227 or Box 3056.

Volunteers Needed For Sea Gull Century

Would you like to be a part of one of the USA's most prestigious (and fun!) biking events, but don't want to push pedals for 100 miles? Then be a Sea Gull Century volunteer.

Rated one of the "Top 10 Centuries" in the country by Bicycling magazine, this year's event, which is sponsored by the SSU Cycling Club, is on Saturday, October 9, beginning at 8 a.m. Some 2,500 cyclists from throughout the country are anticipated for the ride that starts in front of Maggs Gym and travels country roads along scenic ponds and rivers, through small town Main Streets and past cornfields and produce stands to Assateague Island. Then it's back to campus for a lasagna dinner followed by a dance with music from the '50s and '60s.

Volunteers are needed to assist with many facets of the day-long event including staffing the registration tables in early morning and mid-afternoon and at the three refreshment stations (SAG stops) located on the course.

In addition to Saturday's ride, Friday and Sunday feature shorter rides to area tourist attractions which also offer volunteer opportunities.

To be part of one of the Shore's premier recreational events, call Joe Gilbert at 543-6012.

Smokers Take Note

Anyone ready to stop smoking but in need of some help, the Wicomico County Health Department at 300 W. Carroll St. in Salisbury will be holding group meetings on September 9, 14 and 16 from 5-6 p.m. These sessions are especially designed for busy state employees and their families.

Williamsburg Troupe Presents Lively Farce

Colonial Williamsburg's theatrical troupe, the Hallem Society, is returning to Salisbury State for performances and a mini-conference on 18th century theater.

Hosted by the SSU Theatre, the mini-conference is scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday, September 24, and Saturday, September 25. A matinee performance will be held 2 p.m. Sunday, September 26.

The centerpiece of the conference will be the production of "A Miss in Her Teens," a riotous farce which is a typical example of the entertainment provided by travelling acting troupes in the American colonies.

"A Miss in Her Teens" is a lively satire on youth and romance written by David Garrick, manager of the Drury Lane Theater in London and considered one of the greatest actors of the English stage.

Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer, director of theatre at SSU, whose expertise is centered on the theatrical history of the 18th century, will give an introductory talk on 18th century theatre prior to each performance. He will also preside over panel discussions afterward. As a central part of the panel discussions, the audience will have the opportunity to meet the actors and to question them about their performances as well as life in 18th century America.

Performances will be in Caruthers Hall Auditorium on the SSU campus. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens. Due to limited seating, reservations are suggested. For tickets, call the box office at 543-6228. For more information, call 543-6229.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Coming off a record-setting 13-2-1 record last season, the soccer team is anxious to begin the 1993 campaign. The question that faces Coach Gerry DiBartolo's team is "what can it do to better the most successful season in its history."

The Sea Gulls were a perfect 4-0 in conference games as they claimed the Eastern States Athletic Conference's final soccer championship. They enjoyed a seven-game winning streak during the season, and finished the year on an eight-game unbeaten streak. SSU looks to extend that mark in its season-opener against Mary Washington this Saturday.

Optimism is high as the Gulls approach the '93 season. Eighteen lettermen are back from last year's squad, including eight of last year's top 10 scorers. Senior Mike Connors, last year's top scorer with seven goals and six assists, will pace the offense once again. Sophomore Willie Morris (four goals, one assist in '92) should also play a bigger role on the frontline.

Keith Wehr, Matt Roberts, Soon-Jae Kloper and Anthony Menegatti are among the veterans who head a deep and experienced midfield unit. The defense is anchored by Steve Mazzola, Eric Strumsky and Jason Fearn. DiBartolo's primary task in the preseason has been selecting a goalie from among the seven who reported to camp. Junior Joe Herman is the only one of the seven who saw any game action last year, posting a 0.25 goals against average in four games.

The volleyball team, under new leadership, begins its season this weekend as well in the Gettysburg College Tournament. Deanna Parks, a former player and coach at Kent State University, takes over as the new Sea Gull head coach. Shannon Cianelli, Jodi Boast and Jen Bowman are among the veterans who will lead the squad.

Coach Jerry Thomas takes a roster loaded with newcomers into the first cross country meet of the year this Saturday at Howard. Matt Piotrowski and Dorothy Deam are among the top returnees.

Chesapeake Photographs in Atrium Gallery

Renowned Maryland photographer Marion E. Warren will present photographs of the Chesapeake Bay and selections from oral history interviews when he comes to Salisbury State.

The photographs will be on display in the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center Wednesday, September 8, through Friday, October 1.

Warren will discuss his more than 40 years of photographing the Chesapeake at 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, September 22, in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri Center. Warren's daughter, Mame, will also be on hand to discuss her experiences gathering interviews and matching them with her father's photographs.

Hours for the Atrium Gallery are 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon-4 p.m. on Sunday. For more information call 543-6428.

Freshmen Present Showcase of the Arts

The Freshman Arts Orientation class presents the first (informal) Showcase of the Arts on Saturday, September 11. Students who are participating in the event will be presenting either a dramatic monologue, musical presentation and/or an art portfolio illustrating their area of study. Students will display their talents in and near the lobby area of Fulton Hall from 7-9 p.m.

This will be the first time that the freshmen students majoring in music, art and theatre will have an opportunity to meet their teachers and fellow students.

The campus community is invited to attend and enjoy the talents displayed by the incoming freshmen students. Refreshments will be served.

PEELERS

These Deal Island watermen will be included in an exhibit of Chesapeake Bay scenes by renowned Maryland photographer Marion E. Warren. The photographs will be on display in the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center from Wednesday, September 8, through Friday, October 1. Gallery hours are 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon-4 p.m. on Sunday. For more information call 543-6428.

Theatre Auditions For 'Miracle Worker'

Salisbury State Theatre is holding open auditions for "The Miracle Worker" on September 9-11 from 7-10 p.m. in the Fulton Hall Blackbox Theatre. The show, directed by Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer, director of theatre, will be the second production of this, SSU's 60th season of theatre. The Theatre Department will host a Welcome Back—General Interest social prior to the auditions on Thursday, September 9, at 6 p.m. in the Blackbox.

Anyone interested in learning more about SSU Theatre is welcome to attend. For more information please call the Theatre Department at 543-6229.

'Love Letters' Opens Theatre Season

Salisbury State opens its fall theater season with the presentation of A.R. Gurney's award-winning play, "Love Letters," on Thursday, September 16, in Fulton Hall Theatre. Directed by Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer, with set design and lighting by Gerry Patt, the play will feature Dr. R.J. Wesley and Kelley Rouse as the main characters.

Correspondence, a seemingly unconventional subject for which to center an entire play, is the basis of "Love Letters." It features the passionate, touching and often comical letters of Andy Ladd and Melissa Gardner and according to Pfeiffer the production promises to be both amusing and inspiring.

Wesley, a professor of communication arts in the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts at SSU, has previously performed in the SSU stage production of "Mark Twain." Rouse, portraying Melissa Gardner, is anchor woman for the local television station, WMDT, channel 47.

Performances will be held Thursday-Saturday, September 16-18, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, September 19, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $5 general admission and $3 for students and senior citizens. For more information call the theater box office at 543-6228.

Students Invited To Career Day 1993

The sixth annual Career Day, sponsored by the SSU Alumni Association, will be held Tuesday, November 2, from 3:30-5 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center.

This is a chance for all students, from freshmen to seniors, to gain first-hand insights into a variety of vocations, often discovering job tips that aren't in textbooks. Frequently cited surveys reflect a continuing soft job market. Exposure to the experiences of other Salisbury State graduates, many of them alumni from the '80s and '90s, can give today's students an edge in pursuit of an entry-level position in a career field.

Additionally, many of the alumni in attendance can offer interested students paid summer internship opportunities.

Panels of four to seven alumni will discuss their on-the-job experiences in the following career fields: "Science, Medicine and Technology," "Business, Finance and Commerce," "Community Service, Politics and Law," "Culture Arts, Media, Public Relations and Global Communications" and "Education and Development of Today's Youth."

Students and faculty alike are urged to take advantage of this unique opportunity to gain a personal glimpse into a wide variety of career fields.

For more information call the Alumni Office at 543-6042.

Volunteerism Is Focus Of Convocation Address

Students at the University will be urged to look beyond their own needs and get involved in the community through volunteerism when Dr. George Whitehead delivers the address at this year's Fall Convocation.

Convocation will be held at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, September 15, in Holloway Hall Auditorium on the SSU campus. The public is invited to attend.

Seniors: Graduation Application Deadline

All undergraduate students who plan to complete degree requirements in May 1994 or August 1994 must complete an Application for Diploma by Monday, October 4, in the Office of the Registrar. The University no longer requires a graduation fee.

All applications must be approved by the chair of the student's major department. The purpose of the early application deadline is to allow time for each senior's records to be reviewed in detail prior to the last semester of attendance at the University. This ensures that students are aware of their academic status early enough to make any last minute adjustments in their plan of study.

Please return the completed Application for Diploma to the Office of the Registrar, Holloway Hall, room 145, or mail it to the Office of the Registrar, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Student Handbook Published

The Office of the Dean of Students has published a Student Handbook for the 1993-94 academic year. The handbook includes information on campus programs and services, student organizations and community resources. The handbook also features a 1993-94 calendar which includes intramural sign-up deadlines, athletic events, special events on campus and important academic deadlines. Handbooks are available at the Dean of Students Office and Guerrieri University Center information desk during the year.

Salisbury State's bookstore, the Book Rack, returned some $150,000 to students for their used books during its annual Spring Buy Back sale. Students sell back the books they feel they no longer need, and the books are then available to other students the following semester at prices below new books. To create a festive atmosphere, the Book Rack gave away random prizes from local merchants valued at over $800 during the Buy Back week (May 24-28). Businesses making donations were the Paddock Nite Club/Big Kahuna Surf Club, Hooper's Crab House, Russell Athletic, Pizza Hut, Dunes Manor Hotel, Asian Arts Training Center, Seacrets, WKHI-FM, WLWV-AM and WQHQ-FM, WOCQ-FM, Storer Cable, the Baltimore Orioles and the Book Rack. Participating in the Buy Back were Book Rack employees (pictured left to right) Denise Wikander, Sue Byrd, Will Zak and Kaaren Kundell.

Educational Rights And Privacy Act

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 gives students the right to inspect and review educational records maintained by the University. Additionally, a student may request the amendment of a record that the student believes to be inaccurate, misleading or otherwise in violation of the student's privacy.

Students maintain the right of consent to disclosures of personally identifiable information contained in the records of the student. SSU will assume the right, under the provisions of the act, to provide student directory information found in a student's educational record without prior consent of the student.

For such purposes, directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of the athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information. In the event a student desires more or less directory information released, the student should notify the Office of the Dean of Students in room 212 of the Guerrieri University Center.

Students have the right to file any complaints about alleged failure to comply with Privacy Act requirements with the U.S. Department of Education. Copies of the SSU policy can be obtained in the Dean of Students Office.

Student Health Insurance

Evidence of health insurance is not required in order to enroll for classes at Salisbury State. Staff in the University Health Center recommend that students have health insurance coverage by obtaining coverage on their parent's/family's policy or by contacting an insurance company of choice for information and possible enrollment in a plan. There is no health insurance policy available through the University.

If you have an article you would like included in the SSU News either send it or bring it by the Public Relations Office located on the second floor of Holloway Hall (HH-265). The deadline for the newsletter is Friday at noon.

Automatic Teller Machine (ATM)

A Maryland National Bank Automatic Teller Machine (ATM) is located on campus at the north entrance of the Guerrieri University Center. The ATM will accept MOST, CIRRUS PLUS, VISA, MasterCard, American Express and Discover Cards. The ATM does not accept deposits. Checks are not cashed anywhere on campus.

If students have a college account at Maryland National Bank, their ATM transactions will be free of charge.

For information on how to get a Maryland National Bank ATM card and how to open a college account with unlimited ATM use, please contact Patricia Parker at the South Salisbury branch at 742-8671.

If banking with a financial institution other than Maryland National Bank, that institution requires a charge for using the ATM.

CLEP Test

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) test will be given on Wednesday, October 20. The registration deadline for the test is September 20. For further information contact the Admissions Office at 543-6161.

Honors Convocation Seeks Alumni Speaker

The 1994 Honors Convocation will have as its speaker a graduate of Salisbury State.

The committee is seeking nominations of prospective alumni speakers who could serve as appropriate role models and who will be selected based upon the following criteria: must have graduated at least five or more years ago from SSU in an approved program of study; must currently be successfully employed in a career or business which reflects the standards and goals of SSU; should be active in community activities; should have been active in campus events as a student at SSU; should possess skills in public speaking; and should be an advocate and supporter of academic excellence and student involvement.

If you know of such an individual, please complete a nomination form. A form may be obtained in the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. Deadline for nominations is November 1.

Robert W. and Josephine P. Sterling of Salisbury State have become the first members of the Heritage Society at Salisbury State by establishing a scholarship fund in their names. The deferred trust will enable SSU, after the Sterlings' deaths, to award four $1,000-per-year academic scholarships on an annual basis to students from Somerset and Wicomico counties.

Sterlings 1st Members Of New Heritage Society

The SSU Foundation Inc. has announced that Robert W. and Josephine P. Sterling of Salisbury State have become the first members of the Heritage Society at SSU by establishing a scholarship fund in their names.

The deferred trust will enable Salisbury State, after the Sterlings' deaths, to award four $1,000-per-year academic scholarships on an annual basis to students from Somerset and Wicomico counties.

Under the terms of the agreement, eligibility for the Sterling Scholarships will be based primarily on scholastic ability, but financial need will be considered as well. The recipients will be known as Sterling Scholars. One scholar will represent each class year for a total of four Sterling Scholars at any one time.

The Sterlings chose to establish the scholarship fund at SSU for several reasons.

"The University has so much to offer this community," Josephine Sterling said. "We've enjoyed the lectures, concerts and other events and programs there for many years."

"And no place has better young people than our school," said Robert Sterling. "I think they're wonderful. That's one reason why we decided to put our investment in the Salisbury State Foundation because that's where it will benefit the students the most."

Although neither of the Sterlings attended Salisbury State, they have had many connections with the campus over the years, first as longtime residents of the Camden Ave. neighborhood and later as the parents of a student. And since 1984, Robert Sterling has served as a member of the SSU Foundation board of directors.

A native of Crisfield, Robert Sterling is the former owner of M.C. Horsey & Co. in Salisbury, publishers of The Stock Picture. He was treasurer of the board of trustees of Asbury United Methodist Church for 29 years. Josephine Sterling is originally from upstate New York.

Married for 57 years, the couple has two children, Ellen Jo Litsinger and SSU alumnus W. Jerome Sterling III (class of 1976), and five grandchildren.

Dr. Bellavance praised the Sterlings for their philanthropic support of the University. "Bob and Jo Sterling's deferred gift will enhance the quality of education at Salisbury State in perpetuity," he said. "Their commitment is especially meaningful and important to us because they are neighbors of the University and they fully appreciate the cultural and academic role the school plays in the community."

The Sterlings' deferred gift made them the first members of the newly established Heritage Society at SSU. "The Heritage Society is open to individuals who make a conscious decision to remember Salisbury State in their wills and inform us of their plans during their lifetime," said Foundation executive director Robert Gearhart. "We hope the Sterlings' gift will encourage other friends and alumni to inform us ahead of time if they have made a planned gift to the University."

Anyone who has provided for Salisbury State after their deaths through charitable trusts, life insurance, the SSU pooled income fund or a charitable gift annuity is eligible for membership in the Heritage Society, Gearhart said. Donors of both large and small gifts are eligible for membership. Members will have their names added to a plaque that will be on permanent display at the University.

The SSU Foundation is a nonprofit organization which raises private funding for numerous academic and cultural activities at the University not provided by state funds. Donations made through the Foundation have endowed schools, provided scholarships and grants for research, and funded the University Gallery, visiting lecturers, cultural events and field trips.

Art Institute Has Fall Art Classes

Fall art classes and workshops begin in mid September at the Art Institute & Gallery in Salisbury. Classes and workshops for beginners through advanced are available for children, teens and adults. Studio and lecture classes are short term and are available on weekdays, weekends and evenings.

New offerings for the fall include a one-day "Speed Packet" workshop for children, taught by Oxford artist Kevin Adams, a weekend oils workshop taught by Annapolis painter Duane Lutsko, and a night-time watercolor class taught by Willie Crockett.

The AIG will continue its popular Lunchtime Art Appreciation series on Fridays at 12:30 p.m. Participants can bring their lunch and learn more about art. This fall presentations will be given by Christine Richardson, formerly with the Philadelphia Museum of Art (on impressionism); Sharon Gude, a professional painter (on light and color); Barbara Petterson, a professional painter and former art teacher for Gallaudet University (on geometry); Jim Striby, former dean of the Moore College of Art in Philadelphia (on surface conditions); and Sharon Himes, a professional painter who will give a watercolor demonstration.

For a schedule of fall classes call Monday, Wednesday and Fridays 546-4748 or Tuesday and Thursday evenings 641-8918.

Fusaro Organizes Mathematics Seminar

Mathematics professor Dr. Bernard A. Fusaro recently organized a professional development seminar for teachers of college-level mathematics held on campus in June.

Sponsored by the Maryland-District of Columbia-Virginia section of the Mathematical Association of America (MAA), the workshop featured Dr. H.T. Odum, a research professor at the University of Florida, who has invented the field of systems ecology—a method of applying math to environmental problems. Additionally, Tom Horton, the award-winning author of several books on the Chesapeake Bay, was the guest speaker.

Private Donations To Fund Alumni House

As the $500,000 fund-raising campaign for the new SSU Alumni House kicks off, excitement among alumni and friends of the University is growing. Planned for a three-acre site on Camden Ave. opposite Holloway Hall, the new building will be the center of reunions and alumni meetings as well as headquarters for the Alumni Association, the Office of Alumni Relations and the SSU Foundation Inc.

All funds for the new building will come from private donations by alumni and friends. No state monies are involved in the project.

Although an architect's drawing of the new building won't be completed until October, the new 7,500-square-foot facility is expected to have reception and meeting rooms, an alumni library and archives, and much-needed office space. The house will bear a resemblance to Holloway Hall, while at the same time blending comfortably into the surrounding residential neighborhood.

Outside, landscaping plans will include formal gardens, a covered pavilion and recreation areas suitable for summer reunions and receptions.

The present Alumni Office in Holloway Hall has less than 400 square feet of space, is difficult to find, and is not handicapped accessible. For those reasons, everything from Alumni Association business meetings to reunions must be held at other locations on campus.

The SSU Alumni Association maintains ties with some 16,000 alumni in all 50 states and several foreign countries. Many of these alumni are vigorous supporters of the University through the association. As Salisbury State nears its 75th anniversary, financial and volunteer support by its alumni is very high and continues to grow. A house dedicated to SSU alumni is expected to provide a permanent location for all alumni activities and to strengthen the bonds between the University and its alumni.

The Alumni House Campaign is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Foundation Inc., a tax-exempt organization which raises private funds for scholarships, grants, cultural events, alumni activities, field trips for students and other items not covered by state funding.

In order that contributions go specifically to support the Alumni House, it is important to make checks payable to: SSU FOUNDATION, INC.—ALUMNI HOUSE CAMPAIGN.

Gifts will be administered by the SSU Foundation Inc. to benefit the educational mission of Salisbury State University and restricted for the Alumni House Campaign.

Information concerning the SSU Foundation Inc., SRN 6032, may be obtained by writing to the SSU Foundation Inc., P.O. Box 2655, Salisbury, MD, 21802 or from the Maryland Secretary of State.

Seeking Career In Health Professions?

All students applying to health professions schools (medical, dental, veterinary, dentistry, optometry, podiatry, physical therapy, etc.) in the 1993-94 academic year must contact Dr. Harry Womack (PO 135, 543-6492) as soon as possible to arrange for Pre-health Committee interviews.

Interviews will be conducted in early to mid September, and arrangements and preparations must be made as soon as possible. Remember, these interviews are vital to the admissions process and arrangements must be made now.

Staff Advisory Council Established By President

Dr. Bellavance recently established the President's Staff Advisory Council. The council will advise the president on personnel and other issues of concern to staff members. The group will also work with the Chancellor's Council for University System Staff (CUSS).

The President's Council and CUSS monitor UMS personnel policies and legislation which effects staff. Some of the issues of concern for the 1993-94 year include: the Mercer Pay Study and implementation, the UMS Family Leave Policy, the privatization of staff functions and "Achieving the Vision III."

The staff appointed to the council by Bellavance include: Dennis Bradford, Public Safety Office; Lesley Dayton, Blackwell Library and MCEA president; Robert Meigel, Administrative Services Office; Barry King, Dean of Students Office; Jackie Eberts, Financial Services Office; Jeanette Wolinski, Computer Services Office; Linda Abresch, Math Department and Chancellor's Council; and Jerry Waldron, Registrar's Office and Chancellor's Council.

The President's Staff Advisory Council will meet monthly to discuss state and SSU issues. Any staff member with a question or concern for the council is urged to contact any of the new members.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Pre-Nursing Students Application Deadline

The application deadline for enrollment in the nursing major for spring semester is October 1. This applies to those pre-nursing students anticipating registered for NURS 300 for spring, as well as other students interested in the major.

The application form may be obtained from the Department of Nursing in Power Professional Building and must be submitted no later than October 1. Applications received after that date will be considered on a space-available basis.

won a lawsuit which forced the University of Maryland to admit him as its first black graduate student. During the 1960s he headed Baltimore's anti-poverty program and served as executive secretary for the Maryland Human Relations Commission. He was elected Maryland's first black congressman in 1970.

The film, "Who'll Stop the Rain?," starring Nick Nolte and based on the book, "Dog Soldiers" by Robert Stone, will be shown on Monday, October 18, in anticipation of the Robert Stone reading at SSU on the 28th. "Peacemaking in the Clinton Era" will be the subject of a lecture by former Catonsville 9 member Philip Berrigan on Wednesday, October 20. In 1968, Berrigan, his brother the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, and seven others, known collectively as the Catonsville 9, burned draft records they had taken forcibly from the offices of the U.S. Selective Service as a protest against the Vietnam War. Today, Berrigan lives and works in a pacifist community in Baltimore and continues his commitment to pacifism through radical civil disobedience.

Continuing the series on Wednesday, October 27, will be a panel discussion led by Ina Mae Gaskin and Stephen Gaskin. The Gaskins, self-proclaimed hippies and beatniks in the 1960s, are the founding members of The Farm in Summertown, TN, at one time the largest hippie cooperative community in the world. Ina Mae Gaskin is a midwife who has lectured widely and the author of several books and articles, including the best-selling "Spiritual Midwifery" in 1975.

Robert Stone, author of "Dog Stories," "A Flag for Sunrise" and "Outer Bridge Reach," will read from his fiction on Thursday, October 28, at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Stone currently lives in Baltimore and teaches at Johns Hopkins University.

The Mamas and the Papas will perform at 8 p.m. Monday, November 8, in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The group exploded on the music scene in 1966 with the smash hit "California Dreaming," which was quickly followed during the next 18 months by other chart successes such as "Monday, Monday." Joining original lead singer Denny Doyne for this SSU concert are Scott McKenzie, Spanky McFarlane and Melanie Doane. "American Feminism: What Went Right, What Went Wrong" will be the subject of a talk on Monday, November 15, by Dr. Ruth Rosen of the University of California, Davis. Asked by a feminist sociologist in Prague what she could learn from the mistakes made by American feminists, Rosen wrote an essay in response to the question. Her answer compares the different political cultures out of which American and Eastern European feminism have emerged.

Concluding the series on Wednesday, November 17, is "More Than 20 Years Ago Today: Construction of 1960s Images" by Dr. Barbara L. Tischler of Columbia University. Tischler will discuss images of the '60s and will offer some analytical approaches to understanding the legacies of that decade. All events, with the exception of the Mamas and the Papas concert, are free and the public is invited to attend. For more information or a lecture series schedule, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

returning riders, Paul Najarian, of Arlington, VA, has had experience organizing century rides and has high praise for Salisbury's event.

"Planning the whole thing is probably a logistical nightmare, but things run so smoothly, it's a flawless weekend," he said.

And while the benefits of all that work may be subtle, the advantages of the terrain itself are an obvious draw. "We recommend it for riders who are looking for their first century," he continued. "It's probably the most do-able on the East Coast: it's flat, and it's well staffed and well attended, so there are always people around and you never feel isolated. This is a comfortable century to do." The number of riders has grown rapidly: nearly 2,000 cyclists participated last year; two years earlier, even a passing hurricane couldn't keep away 500 dedicated riders.

The Sea Gull Century may not be 100 miles of hills, but riders like Tom Hartley of Dover, DE, like it because each rider can set his or her own pace. "You can crave pain and still get a lot out of this century," he said. Hartley has found one or two "disincentives" to grinding away the 100 miles. "They have some really nice food stops, especially at Assateague," he added, confessing, "it's tempting to just relax and enjoy the ride."

When Bob Piper and his wife make the trip from Washington, D.C., only one of them is headed for the century. They both spend Saturday "taking in nature," one on a bike, the other driving and walking. Sunday, they spend the day birding together. He rides in 5-10 centuries each year, but this is the only one they drive to together. "Some centuries seem to be all work," he said. "You get up, ride the damn thing and go home. This one is different. This is a very pleasant, social day."

Registration for the Sea Gull Century is still open, but the Bicycling article has spread the word quickly and more than 700 riders have already registered seven weeks before the event and have booked most, if not all, of the available hotel rooms in Salisbury. For more information, call the SSU Bicycle Club at 548-2772.

Taylor's Write Review For New Publication

Drs. Brennan and Ann Taylor were recently chosen to review articles in environmental cognition in the Encyclopedia of Human Behavior, a first time publication by Academic Press. Forthcoming in the spring, it is an effort to compile the best expertise on human behavior by a community of scholars. The Taylors were chosen because of their serial publications which continue to enable severe mentally ill people's wayfinding abilities for deinstitutionalization.

One of the articles reviewed was Professor Christopher Spencer's of the Department of Psychology at the University of Sheffield, England. A synthesis of his article suggests that the Encyclopedia of Human Behavior should devote a section to discussing environmental cognition.

Beyond the reviewed article, the authors made two suggestions for future consideration. Somewhere in the Encyclopedia of Human Behavior the issue of environmental cognition of cognitively impaired people should be addressed. In addition, there is a need for a journal of environmental cognition.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

SEPTEMBER 16, 1993

VOL. X NO. 3

Archivist To Lecture, Part of '60s Series

Dr. David Sanjek, the archivist for Broadcast Music Inc. in New York City, will present a lecture and demonstration on Monday, September 27.

The presentation is part of the Fall Lecture Series titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The lecture will begin at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall Auditorium.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

The lecture, which Sanjek also gave at Vanderbilt University last spring, is titled "I Tell Stories Sad and True. I Sing the Blues and Play Harmonica, Too. It is Very Funky: American Popular Music Traditions in Contemporary Documentary Films." The first part of the lecture title is also the title of the final album of Herman "Little Junior" Parker. The lecture will include film clips of Chuck Berry, Robert Johnson, Thomas Dorsey, the Delta blues and gospel traditions that helped shape American popular music during the 1960s.

Sanjek, a graduate of Washington University in St. Louis, is the co-author with his late father, Russell Sanjek, of American Popular Music Business in the 20th Century, published by Oxford University Press in 1991 and considered to be the definitive work on the subject.

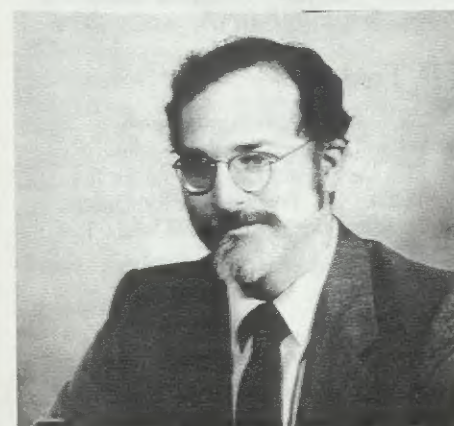

He has taught in New York University's Music Business and Technology program and has also taught English and American studies at Fordham University. Most recently he taught a course titled Fanzine Culture and Contemporary Exploitation Film at the New School for Social Research in New York.

Sanjek has published widely on both film and music in Literature/Film Quarterly, Post Script, Film Criticism and American Quarterly, as well as in the collection Sights on the Sixties, published in 1992 by Rutgers University Press, and in two forthcoming anthologies.

He has participated frequently in the Literature/Film conferences held at SSU, Towson State University and the University of Rhode Island.

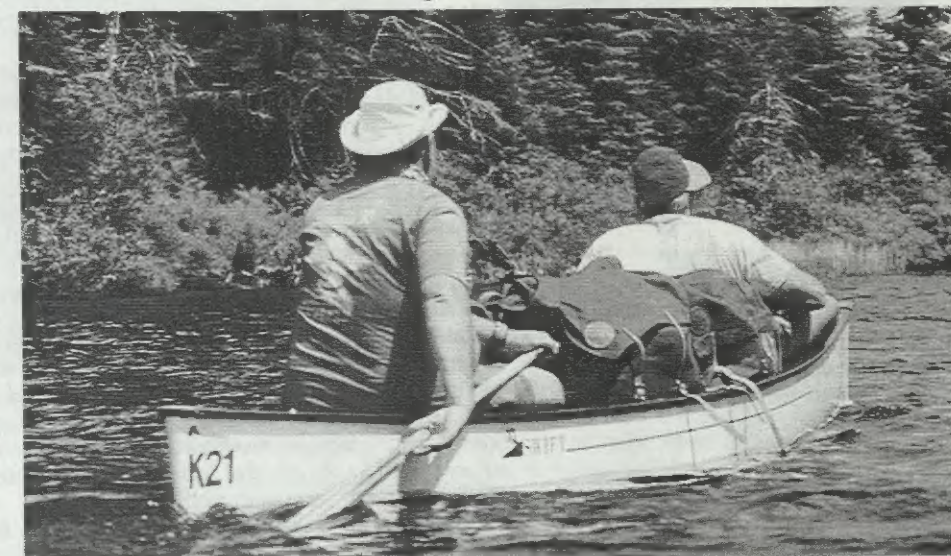

The Fall Lecture Series includes nine lectures plus a film screening and a performance by 1960s singing group The Mamas and the Papas. It is a presentation of the SSU Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

For more information or a lecture series schedule, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Orientation Options Aplenty For Incoming Students at SSU

Canoeing in Algonquin Provincial Park in Canada

To say that new students need help adjusting to university life would be an understatement. Almost as much of an understatement as it would be to say that at Salisbury State, new students have a variety of orientation alternatives.

This year, SSU offers a dozen orientation options in addition to the traditional five-week class. Interested in community service? The STARS program, for Students Taking Action and Responsibility on the Shore, has expanded to five different groups. In addition to the fall and summer Habitat programs and the head start offered to nursing students, STARS: TEACH pairs education majors with mentor teachers and brings them into elementary school classrooms during their first semester at SSU. This new program draws its name from its mission: Tomorrow's Educators Assisting Children.

All new student orientation options take up the subject of cultural and ethnic differences and appreciation; but students who opted for STARS:

Cultural Diversity got a closer look—at other races and at themselves. Each day, the group of students, representing a rainbow of ethnic backgrounds themselves, was immersed in the contributions of a different culture.

The 13 students visited the Native American Museum in Millsboro, DE, and the Blacks in Wax Museum in Baltimore. They learned about Hispanic culture and history. They prepared foods they'd probably never tasted before: buffalo stew, sopapillas, chitlins, pig's feet.

The students weren't the only ones to learn something, either. "It confirmed our belief that most students know very little about the contributions African Americans, for example, have made to American history," said coordinator John Fields. Fields is SSU's associate dean for minority affairs and, like the students who participated, he believes that the program should be continued next year.

Faculty Art Show in Fulton Gallery

The University faculty art exhibit, the first show of the 1993-94 gallery season, opens Saturday, September 18, and runs through Thursday, October 14.

The exhibit, which includes work by Art Department faculty as well as art work from their own collections, will be in the University Gallery in Fulton Hall.

Titled "Creative Minds Perceive Creative Minds," the exhibit will include work by SSU faculty members Jim Burgess, Marie Cavallaro, John Cleary, Jeanne Anderton, Kent Kimmel, Dean Peterson, Lucy Rabine, Gary Weber, Madeline Shinn, Don Harter, Fred Rapko, Pat Barrett, John Gencel, Kent English and Robin English.

The exhibit will also feature art work from faculty collections which includes work by nationally recognized artists, former students and colleagues. This portion of the exhibit is intended to show what creative individuals select for their own homes.

A variety of mediums will be represented including aluminum sculpture, stoneware, ceramics, painting, drawings, prints, photographs and handmade paper. The work also spans several decades of styles and trends.

An opening reception will be held from 7-9 p.m. Saturday, September 18, in the gallery. Hours for the University Gallery are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Tuesday; noon-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday; and closed Friday.

The public is invited and there is no admission charge.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Art Gallery Director

The University is seeking an art gallery director, three-quarter time position with flexible schedule, 11-month contract, salary in low 20s, that includes teaching one course per semester with no paid benefits. This is an outstanding opportunity for an energetic, highly-motivated individual to define both the directorship and the place of the gallery within the institution and surrounding community. The University Gallery is a new, 2,000 square foot facility with additional storage/receiving area and office.

Responsibilities include planning the exhibition schedule and coordinating related educational outreach programs; overseeing student and faculty shows; handling installations; and conducting all other gallery-related activities, including budget and fundraising and working with an advisory board. The position is open until filled.

Send a letter, vita, transcripts, two to three letters of reference to Dr. James C. Lackie, Director of Special Academic Programs, Gallery Search Committee, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Models Needed

Models are needed for both drawing and painting classes in the Art Department. If you would like to model for pay, please call the Art Department at 543-6270 and leave your name and telephone number.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Maintenance Mechanic

The Motor Pool is seeking in-house candidates from both permanent and contractual employees for the position of Maintenance Mechanic (Grade 7).

Duties of the position include: making necessary repairs to and performing routine maintenance on fleet vehicles and grounds equipment, tire changing and balancing, and some minor body repairs. Minimum qualifications include graduation from eighth grade and three years experience in the maintenance trades, preferably in automotive maintenance. Training in automotive computer technology is highly desired. This is a permanent state position with benefits.

If interested in being considered for the position, submit an application to the Personnel Office by September 22.

Volunteers Needed For Sea Gull Century

Would you like to be a part of one of the USA's most prestigious (and fun!) biking events, but don't want to push pedals for 100 miles? Then be a Sea Gull Century volunteer.

Rated one of the "Top 10 Centuries" in the country by Bicycling magazine, this year's event, which is sponsored by the SSU Cycling Club, is on Saturday, October 9, beginning at 8 a.m. Some 2,500 cyclists from throughout the country are anticipated for the ride that starts in front of Maggs Gym and travels country roads along scenic ponds and rivers, through small town Main Streets and past cornfields and produce stands to Assateague Island. Then it's back to campus for a lasagna dinner followed by a dance with music from the '50s and '60s.

Volunteers are needed to assist with many facets of the day-long event including staffing the registration tables in early morning and mid-afternoon and at the three refreshment stations (SAG stops) located on the course.

In addition to Saturday's ride, Friday and Sunday feature shorter rides to area tourist attractions which also offer volunteer opportunities.

To be part of one of the Shore's premier recreational events, call Joe Gilbert at 543-6012.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is 4 p.m. Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Pre-Nursing Students Application Deadline

The application deadline for enrollment in the nursing major for spring semester is October 1. This applies to those pre-nursing students anticipating registered for NURS 300 for spring, as well as other students interested in the major.

The application form may be obtained from the Department of Nursing in Power Professional Building and must be submitted no later than October 1. Applications received after that date will be considered on a space-available basis.

Physical Plant Position

The Physical Plant is seeking a semi-skilled worker to perform routine preventive maintenance and minor repair work on mechanical equipment, fixtures and various building components, read and interpret pressure and temperature gauges and maintain a written log of activities. Knowledge of hot water boilers is desired.

The schedule is a five-day, 40-hour work week to include evenings, nights and weekends as dictated by a rotating shift. Current University employees who have any interest in this type of work can make an appointment with the Personnel Office to complete an application and discuss qualifications as they relate to the position.

Applications will be accepted until September 28. If a selection is made from the current staff, the individual may be required to remain in his or her present classifications until certain minimum qualifications are met.

'Love Letters' Opens Theatre Season

Salisbury State opens its fall theater season with the presentation of A.R. Gurney's award-winning play, "Love Letters," on Thursday, September 16, in Fulton Hall Theatre. Directed by Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer, with set design and lighting by Gerry Patt, the play will feature Dr. R.J. Wesley and Kelley Rouse as the main characters.

Correspondence, a seemingly unconventional subject for which to center an entire play, is the basis of "Love Letters." It features the passionate, touching and often comical letters of Andy Ladd and Melissa Gardner and according to Pfeiffer the production promises to be both amusing and inspiring.

Wesley, a professor of communication arts in the Charles R. and Martha N. Fulton School of Liberal Arts at SSU, has previously performed in the SSU stage production of "Mark Twain." Rouse, portraying Melissa Gardner, is anchor woman for the local television station, WMDT, channel 47.

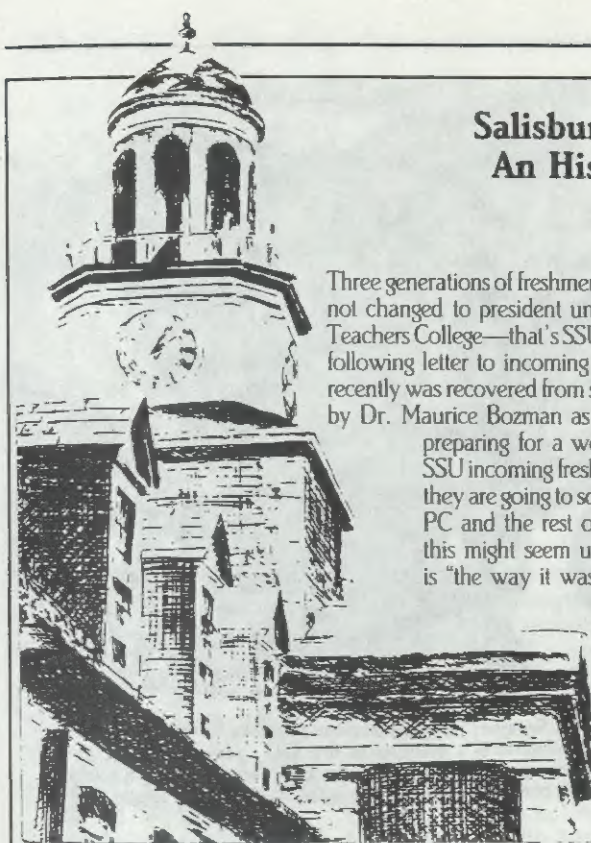

Performances will be held Thursday-Saturday, September 16-18, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, September 19, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $5 general admission and $3 for students and senior citizens. For more information call the theater box office at 543-6228.

CLEP Test

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) test will be given on Wednesday, October 20. The registration deadline for the test is September 20. For further information contact the Admissions Office at 543-6161.

Salisbury State University: An Historical Perspective

"Welcome Freshmen"
by Sylvia Bradley

Three generations of freshmen ago the principal (the title was not changed to president until later) of Salisbury State Teachers College—that's SSU to today's readers—wrote the following letter to incoming resident students. The letter recently was recovered from some long hidden storage place by Dr. Maurice Bozman as he was packing up his office, preparing for a well-earned retirement. To those SSU incoming freshmen of 1993, wondering how they are going to squeeze a microwave, CD, VCR, PC and the rest of the alphabet into their rooms, this might seem unbelievable, but, yes, this really is "the way it was!" We print the letter exactly as Principal William Holloway wrote it. Read, wonder and enjoy.

September 4, 1934

To the Incoming Resident Students:

Teachers will open for the registration of students on Monday, September

10, 1934. Registration may be made at any time from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The dormitory will be ready for the reception of roomers on Sunday afternoon, and supper will be served at the school at 5:00 o'clock. Regular school work on full schedule will be in operation on Tuesday, beginning at 8:30 a.m. The schedule for the first semester will be posted on the bulletin board on Monday.

Every student must bring for personal use the following:

Bedroom slippers
Toilet soaps, bureau scarfs, blotter or cover for study table
One pair of extra blankets (the school provides one pair of blankets)
A cover or spread for the bed
Two laundry bags
Two tumblers, two teaspoons, six all-white table napkins
A pair of galoshes

All sheets, towels and pillow cases are furnished by the school. Women students are allowed to have laundered six pieces of underwear each week, total not to exceed thirty-six cents, according to the schedule or prices in the contract with a commercial laundry. They may without charge do extra washing and pressing in the kitchenette located on each floor.

Going away to school is to some a trying experience, to the student herself as well as oftentimes to her family. Some find it more difficult than others to accustom themselves to new living conditions in a different environment. Realizing all of this, we endeavor at this school to make conditions as attractive and home-like as possible. The students' rooms are as comfortable as can be had anywhere, and our enrollment is not so large but that personal relationships between the students on the one hand, and between the faculty and students on the other, are quickly formed, with the result that the interests of each individual student are carefully fostered, you need not have the slightest hesitancy in taking up your life for the school year at this college. The remarkably fine spirit developed here in nine years is evidence of the fact that this school offers opportunities for happy living and enjoyable school work.

We shall be pleased to have your family and friends visit us at any time.

Sylvia Bradley is an assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture located in the Power Building. She is the author of a book chronicling the history of Salisbury State and an alumnus of the institution. Throughout the academic year she will write about SSU's history and heritage.

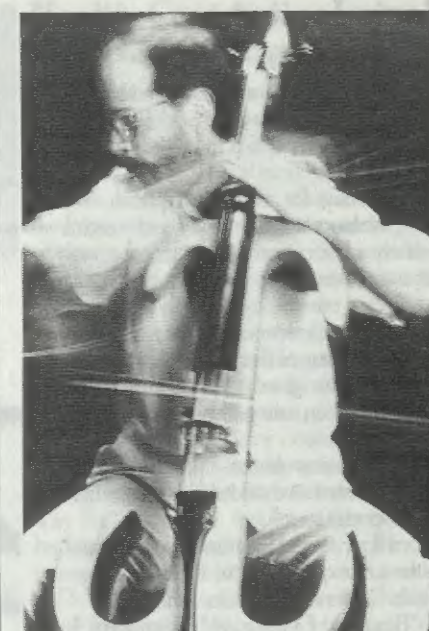

Classical Music's Relevance Examined

According to some observers of the American scene, classical music is in trouble—orchestras facing huge debts, few young people or people of color attending concerts, and major classical music publications folding. Performance Today, broadcast on WSCL-FM 89.5 Monday through Friday from 9-11 a.m., will explore classical music's relevance to contemporary American culture in a five-part series from September 27-October 1.

The series, "Classical Music at the Crossroads," will air during the second hour of Performance Today. It will examine the obstacles and issues classical music advocates face: Why does the music fail to attract younger, more culturally diverse audiences? What does old music have to say to today's society? Why are so few people excited about contemporary music in the classical vein? How can music education make up ground lost in public school cutbacks?

The series is made possible by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Jeffrey Krieger

Electronic Cello Concert, Workshop Set

Jeffrey Krieger, a specialist in the performance of new music, will play the electronic cello in a concert set for 2 p.m. on Sunday, September 26. Krieger will also hold a workshop at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, September 27.

Both events will be held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. They are free and open to the public.

Krieger is principal cellist with the Hartford Symphony Orchestra and a cello instructor at Trinity College in Hartford, CT, Miss Porter's School in Farmington, CT, and the Loomis Chaffee School in Windsor, CT.

Recently, Krieger performed on stage with the New York City Ballet in a new work titled I Have My Own Room for electronic cello and sampled sounds by Eve Beglarian, choreographed by Robert LaFosse at Lincoln Center's New York State Theater and at the Saratoga Festival.

He holds a Master's of Music from the Yale School of Music.

For more information, call Public Relations at 543-6030.

Community Service Fair Has COOL Connections

On Thursday, September 23, a community service fair will be held from 11:30 a.m.-3 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Sponsored by the SSU chapter of the Campus Outreach Opportunity League, COOL CONNECTIONS II has attracted approximately 50 representatives from community organizations who will be on hand to provide information, answer questions and recruit students to participate in local volunteer opportunities. Linda Benson, placement coordinator in the Center for Personal and Professional Development, will also be on hand to help students match themselves with volunteer experiences which connect with career interests.

Faculty and staff who use service/learning activities or advise a student organization which includes service in its mission will find COOL CONNECTIONS II provides a convenient opportunity for students to learn about volunteer opportunities in the local community.

Call the Dean of Students Office at 543-6080 for details.

Students Invited To Career Day 1993

The sixth annual Career Day, sponsored by the SSU Alumni Association, will be held Tuesday, November 2, from 3:30-5 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center.

This is a chance for all students, from freshmen to seniors, to gain first-hand insights into a variety of vocations, often discovering job tips that aren't in textbooks. Frequently cited surveys reflect a continuing soft job market. Exposure to the experiences of other Salisbury State graduates, many of them alumni from the '80s and '90s, can give today's students an edge in pursuit of an entry-level position in a career field.

Additionally, many of the alumni in attendance can offer interested students paid summer internship opportunities.

Panels of four to seven alumni will discuss their on-the-job experiences in the following career fields: "Science, Medicine and Technology," "Business, Finance and Commerce," "Community Service, Politics and Law," "Culture Arts, Media, Public Relations and Global Communications" and "Education and Development of Today's Youth."

Students and faculty alike are urged to take advantage of this unique opportunity to gain a personal glimpse into a wide variety of career fields.

For more information call the Alumni Office at 543-6042.

Personal Safety Tips

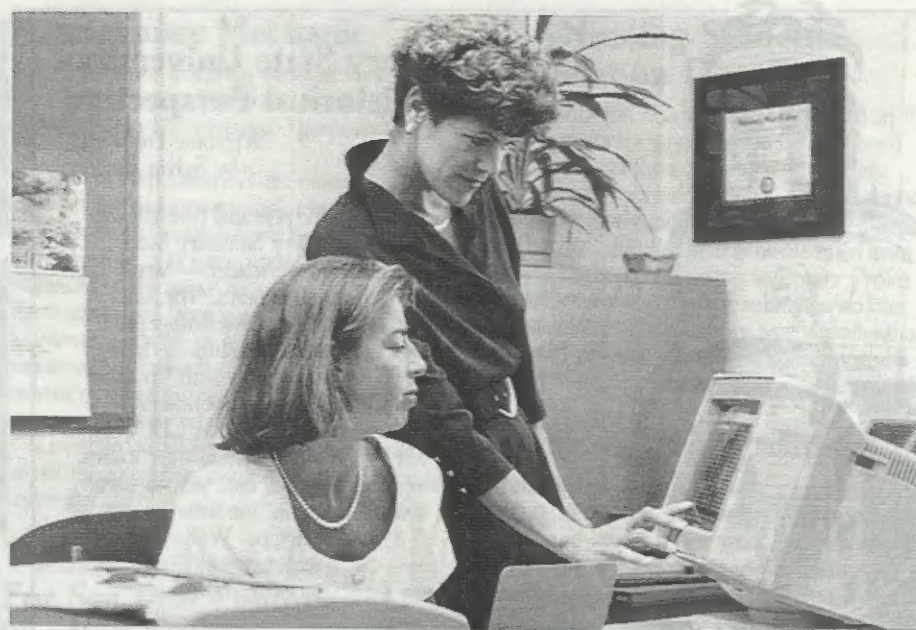

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Wanda Wagner (standing) of the Computer Services Office is shown assisting Kathy Pusey of the Public Relations Office with her IBM-PC. Wagner is a member of the SSU Speakers Bureau and shares her knowledge of computers with area organizations. Faculty and staff who would like to share their knowledge and expertise with area community and civic organizations please contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Speakers Bureau a Community Service

Parshall Watts knew she was nervous about something at work, but she didn't know what it was. Then she listened to Wanda Wagner of the Computer Services Department. Wagner came to her rescue with a presentation on "Computer Anxiety."

"I learned more about computers in one afternoon," Watts exclaimed. "I learned about different hang-ups that I didn't realize I had. For instance, this fear that with one little mistake, I'd erase everything in the computer's memory."

Wagner is a member of SSU's Speakers Bureau. Tapping into her wealth of information is as easy as—well, as reaching experts on local history, lecturers with up-to-the-minute knowledge of foreign affairs, musicians and even a ventriloquist. All it takes is a phone call.

Parshall Watts found a copy of the Speakers Bureau brochure in the file when she took over as president of Wor-Wic Community College's support staff. Realizing that her predecessors had been onto a good thing, Watts called on SSU when planning Wor-Wic's annual Support Staff Day.

"It's a day we spend out of the office, learning about something that relates to what we do," she said.

Gene Picasso is making plans to pass a copy of the SSU Speakers Bureau brochure on to other Kiwanis clubs. His Ocean Pines Kiwanis club makes frequent use of the Speakers Bureau. "We notice a boost in attendance when we have interesting speakers," he said. Picasso says he tries to give members some variety. And he finds it at SSU. Presentations by SSU faculty last fall included Dean Defino on "The Art of Ventriloquism" and Dr. Robert Berry on "Changes in Eastern Europe."

As University president, Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance is pleased to see so many organizations in the community taking advantage of the SSU Speakers Bureau. "This is one of the many ways we reach out to the community," he said. "We have an abundance of knowledgeable, talented speakers here. We're only too happy to share the wealth."

As a faculty member who participates in the Speakers Bureau, Dr. Polly Stewart has found, "the experience is always very rewarding." Stewart is a professor of English and is often called on to speak about folklore.

"I have a great deal of respect for community service," she added. "And there is the tremendous reward of having people come up after to talk about stuff from their childhoods. It's wonderful to be able to activate fond memories."

Paul Dial is equally interested in activating and motivating the department heads at the Ocean Pines Department of Recreation and Parks. Dial has turned to the Speakers Bureau when planning staff meetings and has been able to find experts to give talks on staff motivation, time management and handling stress. "I find it's good to have people coming from a different angle than the one we operate on day-to-day," he said. "We've always been able to count on a very professional, well-organized presentation."

And like Picasso and Watts, Dial was relieved to find no fee is charged for the service. Like Bellavance, Stewart sees the Speakers Bureau as a resource that the University provides as part of its mission.

"People love this college. Many still call it STC and it hasn't been a teachers college for 30 years," she said.

"Everything we can do to enhance the closeness between the University and the community, to keep that fond feeling alive, we are pleased to do."

For more information on the Speakers Bureau, contact the Office of Public Relations at 543-6030.

Seniors: Graduation Application Deadline

All undergraduate students who plan to complete degree requirements in May 1994 or August 1994 must complete an Application for Diploma by Monday, October 4, in the Office of the Registrar. The University no longer requires a graduation fee.

All applications must be approved by the chair of the student's major department. The purpose of the early application deadline is to allow time for each senior's records to be reviewed in detail prior to the last semester of attendance at the University. This ensures that students are aware of their academic status early enough to make any last minute adjustments in their plan of study.

Please return the completed Application for Diploma to the Office of the Registrar, Holloway Hall, room 145, or mail it to the Office of the Registrar, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Fall Golf Classic Tees Off Oct. 15

A 1994 Buick Regal has been provided by Price-Buick Pontiac in Salisbury for the golfer making a hole-in-one on the par-3 fourth hole during Salisbury State's annual Fall Golf Classic on Friday, October 15, at Green Hill Yacht and Country Club. Shown with the 1994 Buick Regal are (front to back) Ray Mason, Golf Classic committee member; Steve Norton, Price-Buick general manager; Dick Young, co-chair of the Golf Classic committee; Roy Beauchamp, co-chair of Golf Classic committee; and Bob Gearhart, executive director of the SSU Foundation.

Some 144 golf enthusiasts are expected to tee off at the 10th annual SSU Foundation Fall Golf Classic on Friday, October 15, at Green Hill Yacht and Country Club.

Roy Beauchamp, of AHM/Long and Foster and co-chair of this year's tournament, anticipates the field to fill quickly.

"I am very pleased with the community support given the tourney last year and expect it to be even better this time, both through participation and sponsorship," said Beauchamp. Dick Young, president of Salisbury Brick Co., is the other co-chair.

The purpose of the event is to raise support for special programs. Some programs that benefit from the event are faculty research and development, cultural enrichment, the Salisbury State University Honors Program and campus beautification.

A general sponsorship is $200. The entry fee is $50 per player, entitling the participant to greens fees, golf cart, refreshments throughout the day, two bar tickets for after-the-round use, a buffet dinner that evening and complimentary gifts.

The golfers with the low team score in the scramble format will have their names placed on the President's Cup which is on permanent display in the Social Room of Holloway Hall.

Awards will be given to the teams with the lowest scores for four flights, including mixed teams. Cash and merchandise prizes will be awarded for other low teams and to individuals for long drive on various holes and closest ball to the hole on par-3 holes.

The biggest individual prize will go to the golfer who scores a hole-in-one on the par-3 fourth hole. Price-Buick will provide the hole-in-one golfer with a 1994 Buick Regal.

An added competition, now in its third year, will reward players who are most adept on the greens. The "Peninsula's Purest Putter Contest" will feature 36 golfers, one representative from each foursome, vying for over $300 in prize money. The putting contest will immediately precede the regular tournament.

Bob Gearhart, executive director of the SSU Foundation which sponsors the tournament, views the success of the event as a great benefit to the Foundation.

Gearhart said, "Not only does the tournament help to continue our close ties with the community, but it provides needed funds for worthwhile University purposes."

The SSU Foundation, established for the encouragement and enrichment of education at the University, is incorporated as a voluntary association of community leaders solely for education, charitable and scientific purposes.

For more information on the Golf Classic call the Office of Institutional Advancement at 543-6175.

Health Center Has Name Change

Student Health Services (formerly the Health Center) has some exciting changes.

In July the Health Center and the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center were merged. Jennifer Berkman, former director of the Prevention Center, has assumed the position of director of Student Health Services. Brenda Hooks, R.N., will serve as clinical director of SHS.

Primary health care services include treatment for injuries, illnesses, immunizations, allergy injections, self-care cold station, treatment for sexually transmitted diseases, referral for contraception and pregnancy counseling—as well as health promotion and educational programs.

Student Health Services is located in Holloway Hall, south side, first floor (the side of the building nearest Blackwell Library). The phone number for Student Health Services remains 543-6262. The offices of the Alcohol and Drug Prevention Resource Center are located in the rear of Holloway Hall (in the former Public Safety Office).

The Alcohol and Drug Prevention Center houses a video lending library and materials related to alcohol and other drug issues.

Students, faculty and staff as well as community users can access the AOD Center to obtain resource and referral information. The AOD Center phone number remains 543-6309.

Student Health Services hours are: Monday-Wednesday, 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m., after 4 p.m. by appointment; Thursday, 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m., after 4 p.m. by appointment; Friday, 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m., after 4 p.m. by appointment.

A nurse is "on call" on weekends and may be reached by calling 543-6263 (for urgent problems that can't wait until SHS hours). During weekdays, after the SHS is closed, students may contact their RA, RD or AD or call the Public Safety Office at 543-6222.

Join Winter Study Tour, Become a Millionaire

Yes, you can become a millionaire! Just join the History Department for its annual winter study tour and find out how. This year's tour goes to the Central Europe of Prague, Budapest and Krakow, three of the most beautiful and vibrant cities in Europe.

Learn about the history, culture and peoples of the Czech Republic, Hungary and Poland by seeing them firsthand.

The History Department offers a comprehensive tour, combining experienced leadership and knowledge of the area with a program of top quality sites, meals and hotels, providing an unforgettable experience. The tour departs on January 7, after an intensive on-campus program and returns January 17. In addition to the cities, participants will see the countryside by bus and take a trip to Auschwitz. Special dinners and entertainment add to the flavor of each city, and there is the opportunity to go off on one's own and shop for specialties of the country. All this, including airfare is just $1,550.

The emerging democracies of Central Europe are the place to be and see. For further information, come to the interest meeting on Monday, September 20, at 7:30 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the Guerrieri University Center, or call Dr. Robert Berry in the History Department at 543-6251. You can also learn the secret to becoming a millionaire.

Kaaren Kundell, left, textbook manager of the Book Rack, the University bookstore, presents a $140 gift certificate to be used for textbooks to Kimberly Brock of Salisbury. Brock, a teacher at Beaver Run Elementary School in Salisbury, is working toward a Master's of Education at SSU. She won the gift certificate in a drawing held during the summer school book buy-back July 29 and 30. The drawing was sponsored by the Book Rack with money supplied by the Wallace Book Co.

Dr. Elaine Tyler May

Cold War Culture Analyzed in Lecture

The domestic culture of the Cold War that encouraged Americans to be homeward bound in the 1950s and take to the streets a decade later will be the subject of a lecture by Dr. Elaine Tyler May on Wednesday, September 29.

The presentation is part of the Fall Lecture Series titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

"Many people think that the rebellious culture normally associated with the 1960s emerged with the coming of age of the 'baby boomers' who rejected the values and lifestyles of their white, middle-class, suburban parents," May said. "There is some truth to this notion, but it is only partially accurate."

"To really understand the roots of the 1960s, it is important to examine the culture of the Cold War that permeated the 1950s, the restlessness that afflicted the white suburbanites who lived within the Cold War consensus, and the people excluded from those placid suburbs."

May is chairman of the American studies program at the University of Minnesota and the author of four books: Homeward Bound: American Families in the Cold War Era, Great Expectations: Marriage and Divorce in Post-Victorian America, Pushing the Limits: American Women in the 1940s and 1950s and Barren in the Promised Land: Childless Americans and the Politics of Procreation.

The Fall Lecture Series includes nine lectures plus a film screening and a performance by 1960s singing group The Mamas and the Papas. It is a presentation of the SSU Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

For more information or a lecture series schedule, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Bible Study, Everyone Is Invited

A weekly Bible study begins Thursday, September 16. This semester, Rev. Vaughn Johnson of Salisbury will lead the study of God's Word. Students, faculty and staff are invited to join the group for fellowship, lunch and study of the scriptures.

Bible study meets Thursdays from noon-1 p.m. in the Computer Services Conference Center on the second floor, south wing of Fulton Hall (enter through room 280).

Bring a bag lunch and Bible.

If any questions, please contact Ed Senkbeil at 543-6482.

Senior Psych Major Bound for Arm Wrestling Championship

Garrett Stepsis, a senior psychology major from Seaford, DE, is training for the 1993 Coors World Amateur Arm Wrestling Championships to be held October 17 in Buena Park, CA.

The 6-foot, 263-pounder is the current Delaware State and Eastern Shore champion. His past titles include Cape Cod champion (1988), Connecticut State champion (1989) and Northeastern United States champion (1989).

He has over nine years of weight training experience and has been arm wrestling competitively on and off since February 1988. He has been a pro since November 1989.

Winning, however, hasn't always been easy. "At my first competition (the New England Championships in Chicopee, MA) I went 0 for 2. I then watched in astonishment as the guys who beat me were easily put away by more experienced competitors."

Arm wrestling, he said, is not necessarily where the strongest competitors win. "It's basically a combination of three factors: strength, speed and technique. After the first 10 seconds or so, the fourth factor comes into play: endurance"

Stepsis plans to get his master's degree or attend law school upon graduation.

He is a senator with the Student Government Association. It was through the SGA that he was able to help SSU get a state-of-the-art free weight facility.

"I just wrote a proposal and tried to make a clear and convincing argument for it and (the administration) passed it."

Stepsis trains and works weekends at Mike Hall's Fitness Club in Seaford. Knowing the "World's Strongest Drug-Free Man" has been a beneficial experience.

"Mike, by his example, has shown me that you can be the best in the world at something and yet still be humble enough to give credit to those who helped you along the way."

The only thing holding Stepsis back from competing in the World Amateurs is finding a sponsor to cover travel and boarding expenses to California.

"I'd be more than honored, if I could have the opportunity to represent the Eastern Shore at the World Amateur Championships," he said.

Dr. Ben Fusaro

T'ai-chi Ch'uan Course Is Offered

You've seen David Carradine do t'ai-chi ch'uan on TV. Now it's time to take the next step and begin doing this low-impact, low-stress form of Chinese physical culture. The Office of Continuing Education will sponsor two t'ai-chi ch'uan courses this fall.

A beginners class will be held on Tuesdays, starting September 21. An intermediate class will be held on Thursdays, starting September 23. The classes, which will meet for 10 sessions, will be held from 7:30-8:30 p.m. in the dance studio of Maggs Physical Activities Center. Tuition and fees are $37.

The courses will be taught by Dr. Ben Fusaro, who has been teaching it on the Eastern Shore since 1976. Fusaro has studied t'ai-chi in Taiwan and in the United States. His 90-minute instructional videotape is currently being produced for release later this year.

For more information, call the Office of Continuing Education at 543-6172 or Fusaro at 742-9170.

Country Dances Featured at Workshop

A "Country Western Line and Square Dance Workshop" will be held Thursday, September 23, from 7-9 p.m. in the Maggs Gym.

Returning by popular demand is caller and teacher Larry Kanniard of Dover, DE. He is a member of the international Association of Square Dance Callers and a caller for the Delmarva Square Dance Federation. With nearly 20 years of experience, he has traveled widely in the United States to present workshops and is extremely popular among dance fans. Kanniard taught a similar dance workshop at SSU two years ago and over 170 people of all ages participated. Kanniard said, "Square dance is a great opportunity for people to socialize and have fun."

During the two-hour workshop, participants will learn some of today's popular country western line dances, traditional square dances like the Virginia Reel and Cotton-eyed Joe, and modern western square dance.

The event is sponsored by the Department of Physical Education. General admission is $1. Admission is free with an SSU ID. The SSU Dance Company will sponsor a bake sale. Everyone is encouraged to wear their best western gear. For further information, please call the dance program at 543-6353.

Bus Trip Set For O's Vs. Yankees

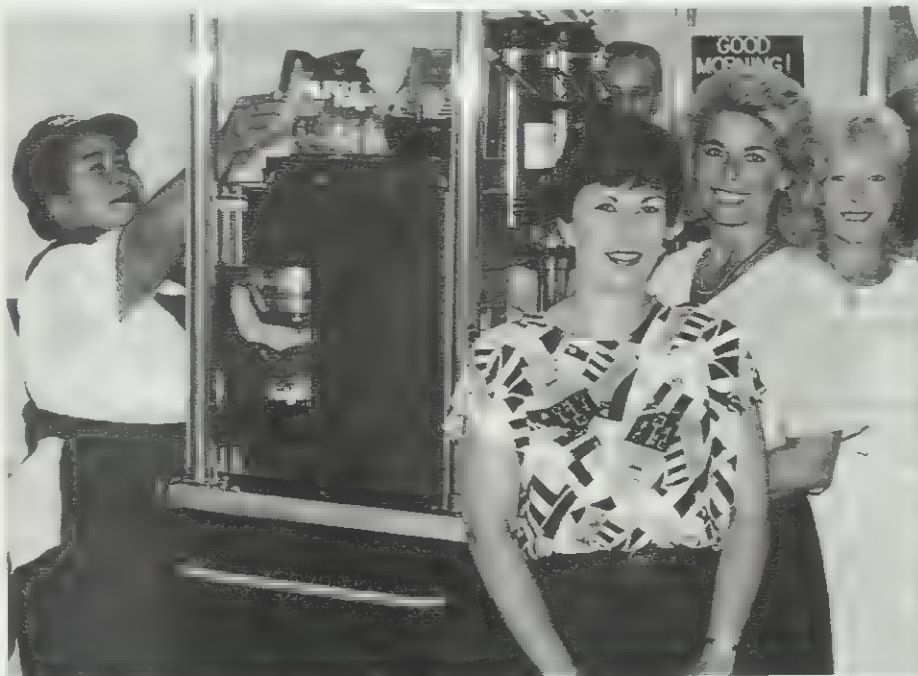

The University is sponsoring a trip to Oriole Park at Camden Yards to see the Orioles play the New York Yankees on Monday, September 27.

The bus leaves the Guerrieri University Center parking lot promptly at 4 p.m. and returns after the game (estimated return time 1:30 a.m.).

No food or beverages will be permitted on the bus.

Tickets are $10 for students with I.D., faculty and staff, Alumni or guests tickets are $12.

Tickets go on sale at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center beginning Thursday, September 16, at 8 a.m. for students. Faculty, staff and alumni may purchase tickets beginning Monday, September 20.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Week number one yielded a mixed bag of results as most of the fall sports teams began their seasons. The football team inaugurated Coach Joe Rotellini's fourth year with a rare night game at Trenton State last Friday. The Gulls were unable to pull the upset however, falling to the Lions, 24-0. QB Len Annetta threw for 168 yards in a losing effort, while H-Back Charlie Whalen had five receptions for 95 yards and moved into third place on SSU's all-time receiving list with 82 career catches. Bright spots on the defense included senior LB Tim Ammon, who made his first start and led the Gulls with 18 tackles. Salisbury opens its home schedule this Saturday against Methodist.

The soccer team entered last weekend's season-opening tournament at Lynchburg carrying an eight-match unbeaten string from 1992. That was promptly halted however as the Gulls fell twice in two days, losing 4-2 in double-overtime to Mary Washington and falling 1-0 to host Lynchburg. The Sea Gulls hope to regroup in time for this weekend's twin-set at home. SSU hosts Greensboro on Saturday and Shepherd on Sunday.

The volleyball team began its season under new Head Coach Deanna Parks with a promising effort in the Gettysburg College Tournament. Following losses to Gettysburg and Western Maryland to start the tournament, SSU rebounded to win two of its final three matches and capture fourth place. Senior Shannon Cianelli paced the Gulls with 38 kills in the five matches. Sophomore setter Jen Bowman had 61 assists.

Nikki Lee and Kelly Carey combined to win the number two doubles match, but the Gulls dropped an overall 8-1 decision to Catholic in the first tennis match of the season. SSU hosts Washington, UMBC and York in a two-day tournament beginning this Friday.

The cross country teams placed ninth and 17th in their opening meet last Saturday. Paced by Mary Puderbaugh's 29th place individual finish, the SSU women were ninth out of 34 teams. Kelly Delp (40th) and Vicki Huchko (49th) were SSU's other top finishers. Jeff Hankins led the SSU men with a 36th place individual effort as the team finished 17th of 34 squads. Matt Piotrowski (46th) and Andrew Younkin (91st) rounded out Salisbury's top three.

The field hockey team begins its season this week with games against Catholic and Messiah before hosting the Hampton Inn Sunfest Tournament on Saturday and Sunday.

Williamsburg Troupe Presents Lively Farce

Colonial Williamsburg's theatrical troupe, the Hallem Society, is returning to Salisbury State for performances and a mini-conference on 18th century theater.

Hosted by the SSU Theatre, the mini-conference is scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday, September 24, and Saturday, September 25. A matinee performance will be held 2 p.m. Sunday, September 26.

The centerpiece of the conference will be the production of "A Miss in Her Teens," a riotous farce which is a typical example of the entertainment provided by travelling acting troupes in the American colonies.

"A Miss in Her Teens" is a lively satire on youth and romance written by David Garrick, manager of the Drury Lane Theater in London and considered one of the greatest actors of the English stage.

Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer, director of theatre at SSU, whose expertise is centered on the theatrical history of the 18th century, will give an introductory talk on 18th century theatre prior to each performance. He will also preside over panel discussions afterward. As a central part of the panel discussions, the audience will have the opportunity to meet the actors and to question them about their performances as well as life in 18th century America.

Performances will be in Caruthers Hall Auditorium on the SSU campus. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens. Due to limited seating, reservations are suggested. For tickets, call the box office at 543-6228. For more information, call 543-6229.

MCEA Luncheon

There will be a quarterly Maryland Classified Employees Association meeting on Tuesday, September 21, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

A luncheon meeting, RSVP by Friday, September 17, by 4 p.m. to the people listed on respective notices. MCEA members pay $2 and the chapter picks up the remainder. Lunch begins at 11:30 a.m., the meeting begins at noon.

The meeting will encompass election of officers for SSU's MCEA chapter which has 200 members. Anyone interested in joining, please call Barbara Keene at 543-6125.

In the introductory session, one student spoke candidly about the racist attitudes that were part of his upbringing. For him, STARS: Cultural Diversity offered a way to begin to remove blinders that made him uncomfortable with who he was becoming.

But the most eye-opening experience for this group was the day they spent working in the community: at either the Maryland Food Bank, Joseph House Village or the Joseph House Food Center. "Most of these students had never been face-to-face with someone who lived in poverty," Fields said. In their evaluations of the program, according to Fields, all 13 students gave the experience high marks.

The additions to STARS are just a few of the new orientation options that began this year. Five of the choices are academic, focusing on the arts, Eastern Shore ecology, "Natures Design," wildlife biology and one that offers new students a chance to join the small, close-knit "Learning Community". The group of 25 freshmen and three faculty will work together closely through the semester, especially on three General Education courses: English composition, world civilization and interpersonal communication.

The Learning Community may develop into a support system for the new students who join. That was one goal of the Algonquin canoeing trips: one that students say they've realized. After 11 years, the wilderness options—a cycling trip to Maine's Acadia National Park and the canoe trip to Algonquin Provincial Park in Ontario—are more popular than ever. A second Algonquin trip was added to accommodate the 68 students who signed up this year.

Peer Counselor Claudine Roussel isn't surprised. Roussel had never slept in a tent before and may not have signed up three years ago, had a close friend not recommended it so highly. "I had heard that I'd make a lot of friends that it would make the transition into college easier," she said. "But I didn't expect that I would form such close relationships." Now a junior, Roussel has just returned from her third trip, her second as a peer counselor. "The people from my Algonquin orientation are still my closest friends."

Senior Mike Baker agreed. An avid camper, he chose this option because he expected he would like it. "But I didn't expect that I'd have such a head start the first week of classes," he said. "I already had 50 friends, knew 16 upperclassmen and 10 or more professors and administrators. I think I probably went through every problem freshmen go through, and I knew I could go to my peer counselor, or (Algonquin coordinator and Guerrieri University Center Director) Dave Gano or my faculty advisor Linda Benson for help."

While orientation programs are nothing new, there is little doubt that SSU's many options put the University at the head of the class. "I think we are the cutting edge," said orientation co-chair Dr. Gene White. A member of the psychology faculty, White represents SSU at several national conferences on new student orientation. "I don't know of any other school that devotes this much energy to providing so many different programs," he said.

VOL. X NO. 4

The '60s Impact On '90s Discussed

"Reflections on the '60s and the '90s" will be the subject of a lecture by Thomas W. Jones on Wednesday, October 6.

The presentation is part of the Fall Lecture Series at SSU titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The lecture begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

Jones is president and chief operating officer of TIAA-CREF, the teachers' pension fund that is the world's largest private retirement plan with $113 billion in assets.

But while Jones today stands out as an example of traditional corporate success, he is remembered by fellow Cornell University alumni as one of the angry young men who participated in the 1969 takeover of Willard Straight Hall.

He will discuss the past, present and future of American society as reflected in his own life experiences. He will offer his views on how to rekindle a spirit of national purpose and optimism about America's future.

Jones holds both bachelor's and master's degrees from Cornell, and a M.B.A. from Boston University. He is a certified public accountant with a background in insurance, public accounting and management consulting.

Construction Begins on Habitat Home

Work began last weekend on the University's Habitat home as students and staff began construction at the site at the corner of Wayne and Power sts. near Sea Gull Stadium. Volunteers can sign up at the Guerrieri University Center to assist with the construction.

Salisbury State's chapter of Habitat for Humanity began construction of the Johnson home on Saturday, September 18. The house will be initially constructed adjacent to the football stadium and later moved to its permanent location. Volunteers may sign up for either the a.m. or p.m. shifts at the Guerrieri University Center.

The first two weeks are already filled through the Habitat STARS orientation program. Sign-up sheets are posted on the Habitat bulletin board. A schedule of the work days and the expected activity will also be posted. Any questions regarding the construction process can be directed to Richard Yobst, director of administrative services (543-6219).

SSU's Habitat chapter's goal is to complete the building of the home prior to April 15. That can only be accomplished if the remaining funds are raised prior to the end of March. Two committees are now being formed to continue fund-raising efforts. One committee will work with student organizations and the other committee will work with the planning of an auction to be held in the spring. If you are interested in working with either of the groups, please contact the Dean of Students Office (543-6080) or Gains Hawkins, public relations (543-6030), respectively.

Kendall Examines TV Job Market For Women Up Close and Personal

How did you spend your summer vacation? For Dr. Frances Kendall, a gourmet chef and triathlete, the summer of '93 presented a new challenge: to find out how women can make it to the top of the broadcast industry.

An assistant professor of communication arts who teaches television production at Salisbury State, Kendall was one of three "outstanding academics" from across the country honored with a National Association of Television Programming Executives (NATPE) grant from the NATPE Educational Foundation.

Along with a $3,000 stipend the college professors were allowed to pick a television station anywhere in the nation and participate in its day-to-day operation. Kendall's choice: ABC affiliate WTNH in New Haven, CT. WTNH is in the 23rd largest market nationally. (In comparison Salisbury is 163.) The number one station in Connecticut, WTNH's signal reaches some of the most prestigious suburbs on the East Coast.

The ABC affiliate has another distinction. According to Kendall women hold many executive positions there. "About 50 percent of the department heads are women," she said. "That's unusual."

During her nine weeks in New Haven, the thirtysomething college professor dropped the title of "Doctor" and worked a news room teleprompter ("Just like my students do in their internships," Kendall said), carried production cables, even acted in an "infomercial" for a local Greek diner. She worked in public affairs, sales and engineering. In the Creative Services department she wrote and produced promotional announcements for the Special Olympics and The Home Show. "Do anything you want, they told me. They had the money, and I had fun."

As Kendall came to know the staff on a first name basis, she heard the histories of its women. "Cynics might think that they were promoted to executives because they'll work for lower salaries. But I don't think that was the case at a station like this," Kendall said. "Besides in this industry women are prized for their creativity and resourcefulness."

Each female executive had a different story.

It's Back! Monster Book Sale

Blackwell Library will have its annual Monster Book Sale on Wednesday, September 22, from 9 a.m.-3 p.m. on the terrace in front of the library.

Books will be sold for the ridiculous price of 50 cents each, while phonograph records will be offered at $1.

There will also be special items priced a bit higher as well as free stuff for those who would rather not spend their money on books.

This is a once-a-year opportunity to fill the gaps on your bookshelves.

Rain date is Thursday, September 23.

LEADS Mentors Sought

The LEADS (Letting Education and Discipline Succeed) program returns to campus this semester. The program matches SSU students who volunteer to serve as mentors with elementary school students in the community.

Mentors spend a minimum of one hour each week working one-on-one with a child. Program goals include helping children increase their self-esteem and academic performance. Eighty SSU student mentors from many different academic disciplines logged hundreds of hours last year.

Students interested in serving as a LEADS mentor may pick up an application at the Office of the Dean of Students, room 212, Guerrieri University Center. All mentors, including those who are experienced, must re-apply and attend a training session.

Electronic Cello Concert, Workshop Set

Jeffrey Krieger, a specialist in the performance of new music, will play the electronic cello in a concert set for 2 p.m. on Sunday, September 26. Krieger will also hold a workshop at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, September 27.

Both events will be held in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. They are free and open to the public.

Krieger is principal cellist with the Hartford Symphony Orchestra and a cello instructor at Trinity College in Hartford, CT, Miss Porter's School in Farmington, CT, and the Loomis Chaffee School in Windsor, CT.

Recently, Krieger performed on stage with the New York City Ballet in a new work titled I Have My Own Room for electronic cello and sampled sounds by Eve Beglarian, choreographed by Robert LaFosse at Lincoln Center's New York State Theater and at the Saratoga Festival.

He holds a Master's of Music from the Yale School of Music.

For more information, call Public Relations at 543-6030.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Photographs Needed By Yearbook Staff

The Evergreen yearbook is accepting submissions of photographs from all student clubs and organizations. Photos can be any size and in color or black and white.

All photos become property of the yearbook and will be published at the discretion of the staff. Please indicate the names of the people in the photo, the club name, the event and the photographer's name on the back of the photo. Photos should be mailed to the Evergreen, SSU, Box 3061. They also may be slid under the Evergreen Office door (Guerrieri University Center, second floor, room 229 A).

The Evergreen yearbook is not just for seniors; it is for everyone. For more information call 546-3210 between 2-5 p.m. on Tuesdays or Thursdays.

Archivist To Lecture, Part of '60s Series

Dr. David Sanjek, the archivist for Broadcast Music Inc. in New York City, will present a lecture and demonstration on Monday, September 27.

The presentation is part of the Fall Lecture Series titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The lecture will begin at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall Auditorium. The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

The lecture, which Sanjek also gave at Vanderbilt University last spring, is titled "I Tell Stories Sad and True. I Sing the Blues and Play Harmonica, Too. It is Very Funky: American Popular Music Traditions in Contemporary Documentary Films." The first part of the lecture title is also the title of the final album of Herman "Little Junior" Parker. The lecture will include film clips of Chuck Berry, Robert Johnson, Thomas Dorsey, the Delta blues and gospel traditions that helped shape American popular music during the 1960s.

For more information or a lecture series schedule, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Faculty Art Show In Fulton Gallery

The University faculty art exhibit, the first show of the 1993-94 gallery season, opens Saturday, September 18, and runs through Thursday, October 14.

The exhibit, which includes work by Art Department faculty as well as art work from their own collections, will be in the University Gallery in Fulton Hall.

The exhibit will also feature art work from faculty collections which includes work by nationally recognized artists, former students and colleagues. This portion of the exhibit is intended to show what creative individuals select for their own homes.

A variety of mediums will be represented including aluminum sculpture, stoneware, ceramics, painting, drawings, prints, photographs and handmade paper. The work also spans several decades of styles and trends.

An opening reception will be held from 7-9 p.m. Saturday, September 18, in the gallery.

Hours for the University Gallery are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Tuesday; noon-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday; and closed Friday.

The public is invited and there is no admission charge.

For more information, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Seniors: Graduation Application Deadline

All undergraduate students who plan to complete degree requirements in May 1994 or August 1994 must complete an Application for Diploma by Monday, October 4, in the Office of the Registrar. The University no longer requires a graduation fee.

All applications must be approved by the chair of the student's major department. The purpose of the early application deadline is to allow time for each senior's records to be reviewed in detail prior to the last semester of attendance at the University. This ensures that students are aware of their academic status early enough to make any last minute adjustments in their plan of study.

Please return the completed Application for Diploma to the Office of the Registrar, Holloway Hall, room 145, or mail it to the Office of the Registrar, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Cold War Culture Analyzed in Lecture

The domestic culture of the Cold War that encouraged Americans to be homeward bound in the 1950s and take to the streets a decade later will be the subject of a lecture by Dr. Elaine Tyler May on Wednesday, September 29.

The presentation is part of the Fall Lecture Series titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

"Many people think that the rebellious culture normally associated with the 1960s emerged with the coming of age of the 'baby boomers' who rejected the values and lifestyles of their white, middle-class, suburban parents," May said. "There is some truth to this notion, but it is only partially accurate."

"To really understand the roots of the 1960s, it is important to examine the culture of the Cold War that permeated the 1950s, the restlessness that afflicted the white suburbanites who lived within the Cold War consensus, and the people excluded from those placid suburbs."

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Endgame Auditions Set for Sept. 27, 28

Salisbury State Theatre holds auditions for Samuel Beckett's Endgame on Monday, September 27, and Tuesday, September 28, from 7-10 p.m. in the Rehearsal Room (201) of Fulton Hall. No prepared piece is necessary to audition; all are welcome.

Endgame is slated for a mid-November run in the Blackbox Theatre of Fulton Hall. Any questions about auditions may be directed to the Communication Arts Office at 543-6229.

Director Robert Smith, of the Communication Arts Department faculty, said that while Waiting for Godot was Beckett's most famous play, Endgame remained the author's favorite. The play is a provocative study of the lives of four people who, due to one malady or another, are forced to be completely dependent upon each other for survival.

Positions also are open on technical crew (including stage manager, sound and lighting technicians and others).

Faculty Development Funds Are Doubled

The Faculty Development Committee announces funds are still available for 1993-94. Funds are given to support faculty attending national or regional conferences, or for other professional activities.

The committee's budget for this year has been doubled thanks to Dr. Bellavance and Dr. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs. However, because the process of allocating this year's funds began in June, the committee also hastens to point out that over 80 percent of the budget is already encumbered (as of September 15.)

The committee has increased "award" amounts per trip. The sum of $150 will be given to approved requests if the total cost of the project is less than or equal to $500. The sum of $350 will be given to approved requests if the total cost of the project is greater than $500. An additional $150 will be given to faculty who are making presentations at conferences. Therefore, the maximum individual award is $500. (The previous maximum was $350.)

Requests are handled on a first-come, first-served basis. It is vital that applications be made as soon as possible—even if a conference is next May.

Please use the committee's form to make requests. Forms are available from and should be submitted to: Frances Kendall, Communication Arts (543-6205.)

Please limit requests to one per year. If there are still funds available on December 1, an announcement will be made at the University Forum. (And faculty who wish to submit a second request will be allowed to do so.)

In order to collect awards, out-of-state travel and expense account forms should be routed through Kendall's office. See the faculty handbook for guidelines regarding the completion of these forms. Please remember the expense account should be filed within three days after returning.

Finally, those who have already requested funds for this fiscal year: the amount of the award has been increased. Faculty will receive official confirmation of this within the next two weeks. Faculty who have already submitted expense accounts have two options. Contact Kendall for details.

Substance Abuse Drama Offered in October

Halfway There, a professional theatre presentation about five teenagers from differing backgrounds who are caught up in alcohol and drug abuse, will be performed Caruthers Hall Auditorium on Tuesday, October 5, at 7:30 p.m.

Using music, mime, drama, humor and hope, Halfway There deals powerfully with the underlying feelings that lead to substance abuse.

The play is based on the writings of young recovering addicts.

Presented by Periwinkle Productions, Halfway There is sponsored by the Wicomico County Prevention Coordinator's Office and SSU's Student Health Services. The performance is free and open to the public.

For more information call 543-6309.

Heritage Weekend At Snow Hill

The eighth annual Antique Show and Sale during Snow Hill's Heritage Weekend, September 24-26, features 30 dealers in quality furniture, jewelry and collectibles.

The Antique Show and Sale is in the Snow Hill Middle School on Colbourne Lane. On Saturday the sale is open from 10 a.m.-6 p.m. and on Sunday from 11 a.m.-5 p.m. Admission is $2.50 at the door, with discount coupons available from local merchants and antique dealers.

The Antique Show and Sale is one of many activities taking place during Heritage Weekend, sponsored by the Snow Hill Area Chamber of Commerce. Again featured this year is the Maryland Main Street Special, a vintage train excursion experience. Three trips between Berlin and Snow Hill is offered on Saturday. The trips are planned to allow time for sightseeing and browsing in each village, as well as a stop at the Queponco Railroad Station in Newark, MD.

The Maryland Lady and Tillie the Tug, docked in Sturgis Park at the Riverfront, offer sightseeing excursions. The Maryland Lady requires reservations for the lunch and dinner cruises. Call 543-2466 for information. To reserve seating on Tillie the Tug call 632-0680.

Snow Hill is located 18 miles southeast of Salisbury via Route 12. For more information about Heritage Weekend activities, call 632-0809 or 632-2950.

Country Dances Featured at Workshop

A "Country Western Line and Square Dance Workshop" will be held Thursday, September 23, from 7-9 p.m. in the Maggs Gym.

Returning by popular demand is caller and teacher Larry Kanniard of Dover, DE. He is a member of the international Association of Square Dance Callers and a caller for the Delmarva Square Dance Federation. With nearly 20 years of experience, he has traveled widely in the United States to present workshops and is extremely popular among dance fans. Kanniard taught a similar dance workshop at SSU two years ago and over 170 people of all ages participated. Kanniard said, "Square dance is a great opportunity for people to socialize and have fun."

During the two-hour workshop, participants will learn some of today's popular country western line dances, traditional square dances like the Virginia Reel and Cotton-eyed Joe, and modern western square dance.

The event is sponsored by the Department of Physical Education. General admission is $1. Admission is free with an SSU ID. The SSU Dance Company will sponsor a bake sale. Everyone is encouraged to wear their best western gear. For further information, please call the dance program at 543-6353.

MTV Lip Service Auditions Are Oct. 5

On Tuesday, October 5, the Salisbury State Program Board sponsors MTV Lip Service auditions taking place at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room, Guernsey University Center. All contestants must be SSU students, between 18-25 years old.

Teams of three or five people should prepare a three-minute lip-synched/choreographed routine of an up-beat song, currently played on MTV. Sign-up sheets and complete sets of rules are available at the information desk in the Guernsey Center.

The last day to sign up is Friday, October 1, at 7 p.m. For more information, please call 543-6197 (SSPB) or 543-6125 (Student Activities Office).

Perdue School Professors Published

Several professors in the Perdue School of Business have published articles and participated in other professional activities over the summer.

Dr. John E. Dillard Jr. is the author of "Strategy Implementation Hurdles: A Diagnostic Paradigm" published in the spring edition of Journal of Management Consulting.

Dr. Hindupur V. Ramakrishna is the author of "Disaster Preparedness of Small Business with Micro-Computer Based Information Systems" published in the June issue of Journal of Systems Management, and "What Accounting Professionals Should Know About Information Systems Downsizing" published in the June issue of the Ohio CPA Journal.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The football team (1-1 overall) took advantage of six Methodist turnovers and benefited from a 127-yard rushing performance by sophomore Byron Pugh to beat the Monarchs 33-19 last Saturday. SSU recovered four fumbles and intercepted two passes on the wet and rainy afternoon to post its first win of the year. QB Len Annetta passed for 224 yards and three touchdowns to complement Pugh's rushing. H-Back Charlie Whalen was on the receiving end of 10 passes, totalling 132 yards. SSU hosts cross-state rival Frostburg State this Saturday at 1 p.m.

The field hockey team (4-1 overall) won two of three games last weekend to capture second place in the Hampton Inn Sunfest Tournament. The Gulls thumped Wooster 5-1 and downed Oneonta State 3-1 before losing 1-0 to Mary Washington in the championship game. Freshman Susan Fatz tallied three goals in the three games, while Kim Bloodworth added two goals and two assists.

Paced by sophomore Jen Bowman and freshman Courtney Moore, both named to the all-tournament team, SSU won three of four matches to place second at the Mary Washington Volleyball Invitational. Bowman collected 78 assists in the four matches while Moore registered 36 kills. The Gulls (6-4 overall) have a busy weekend of home action this Friday and Saturday as they host the six-team Gull Classic at the Maggs Center.

The men's and women's cross country squads enjoyed strong outings at last Saturday's Howard Express Invitational. Led by Mary Puderbaugh (fourth place, 22:13), the women took first place honors in the nine-team event. Six other Gulls finished among the top 19. A fourth-place individual finish by Jeff Hankins (29:18) helped the men capture third place in the 11-team men's division. Both squads run in the Christopher Newport Invitational this weekend.

The soccer team (0-4 overall) will be looking for its first win this week in home games against Wesley and N.C. Wesleyan. The Gulls dropped a pair of home contests last weekend, losing 4-0 to Greensboro and falling 4-1 to Shepherd. Ryan Harbaugh netted Salisbury's only goal on an assist from Anthony Menegatti.

Kris Dodson and Nikki Lee won the number two and number four singles flight championships, respectively, to highlight the SSU Invitational last weekend. Dodson and Lee also combined for the number two doubles crown, while Susan Douglas and Kathy Castelli teamed to win the number three doubles title.

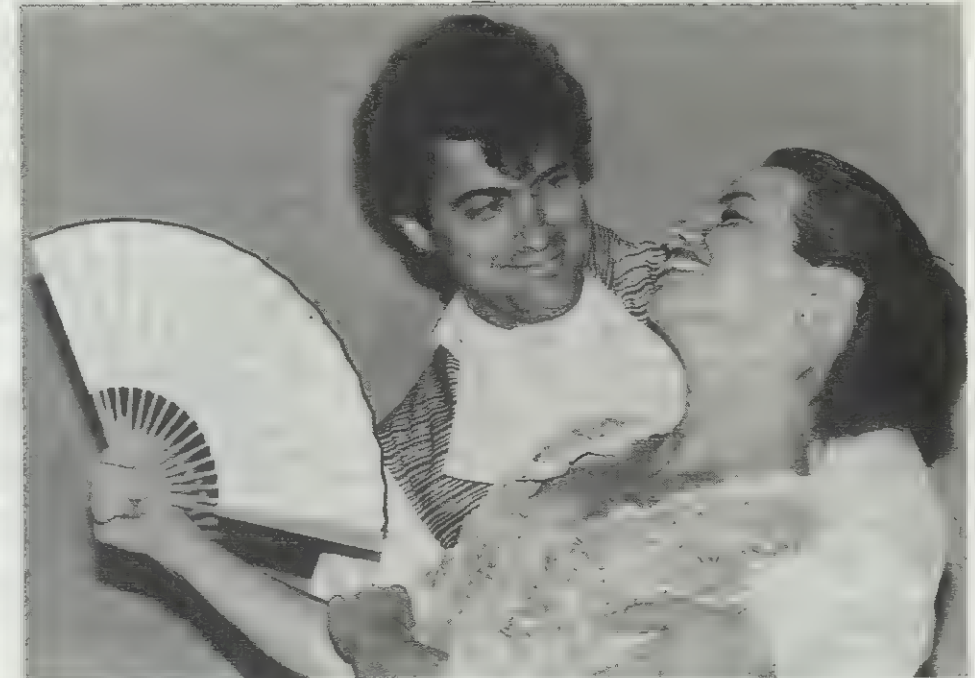

Classical Recordings Available at WSCL

WSCL-FM is offering a new service for music lovers who want their own recordings of the music they hear on Delmarva's classical music station.

Since September 1, WSCL listeners have been able to order by telephone compact discs or cassette recordings of any piece played on WSCL. In an arrangement with the Public Radio Music Source, a company operated by a branch of Minnesota Public Radio, listeners can call 1 (800) 75 MUSIC and order their selections.

"A lot of the music we broadcast is difficult to obtain in many parts of Delmarva," said Fred Marino, general manager of WSCL. "We became involved with the Public Radio Music Source because so many listeners call for information on how to find a recording. This service allows easy access to an extraordinarily wide variety of music that we believe fills an important listener need," Marino said.

For more information about the Public Radio Music Source call WSCL-FM at 543-6895.

Williamsburg Troupe At SSU Sept. 24 and 25. Innocence and laughter conquer all in the Colonial Williamsburg theatre troupe's production of A Miss in her Teens, September 24 and 25 at Salisbury State. This lively 18th century satire by David Garrick with its famed duel scene, is typical of the entertainment provided by traveling acting companies in the American Colonies. Pictured are Ed Whittaker and Abigail Schumann of Williamsburg's Hallem Society. Performances are Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. One hour prior to each performance a brief talk on 18th century theatre will be given by Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer, director of SSU Theatre; after the performance the audience will have a chance to meet the cast. Tickets are $3 and $5. For reservations call 543-6228. For more information call 543-6229.

Medicine Assessments Available Statewide

Gov. William Donald Schaefer recently announced a new program that enables individuals to have their medicines evaluated by a professional, knowledgeable pharmacist, thanks to Giant Discount Drug and the Governor's Drug and Alcohol Abuse Commission. The free, medicine evaluation program called "Medicine Check" is available in all Giant Food stores with Giant Discount Pharmacies throughout Maryland, the District of Columbia and Northern Virginia.

According to Schaefer, "Similar programs have been available sporadically throughout the year and primarily aimed at seniors. Medicine Check is available whenever the Giant Discount pharmacy is open and can be used by anyone who has questions about the medications they are taking."

Persons wishing to use the program need only to take home a brown bag available on the sign at their local Giant Pharmacy and bring the bag back with all their medicines, including over-the-counter medicines, to the Giant Discount Drug pharmacist.

If time allows, the pharmacist will complete the evaluation while the customer waits or shops. If there are too many medications or the pharmacist is busy, he or she will record the names of all medications, take the customer's name and telephone number, and schedule an appointment within 48 hours. During the evaluation, the pharmacist will answer any questions customers may have regarding their medications.

Fine Arts Exhibit Is at Art Institute

The third annual Juried Fine Art Exhibition, representing works by artists from across the states of Maryland, Delaware and Virginia, is at the Art Institute and Gallery at Salisbury through October 15.

The public is invited to a free opening reception at the AIG on Friday, September 24, from 5-8 p.m. to meet the artists and hear Barbara Vogt, this year's juror, speak on her views concerning the works she selected for the exhibit.

Thirty-one artworks were selected for display. Cash awards totaling $850 will be awarded.

Many artists have not been seen locally before, and new expressions from different environments will be seen in watercolors, oils, photographs, sculpture and mixed media artworks.

Artists represented in the show will be: Phillip Gallo, Kevin Fitzgerald, Paula Hepburn, Martha Hudson, Doug McConnell, Effen Chavez, A. Guthrie Gudas, Pamela Jacques, Ann Dawson, Frederick Green, Susan Mannion, Fred McGann, Isobel Troubman, Ann B. McKay, Chuck Scalin, Nicky Schleider, Laura Era, Angela Herbert Hodges, Joy Daniel, and Gloria Young Smith.

The Art Institute and Gallery, located at Route 50 and Lemmon Hill Lane in downtown Salisbury, is open from noon-4 p.m., Monday through Saturday. Extended hours are available for groups. For further information call 546-4748.

'Access to Success' Is Women's Forum Theme

"Access to Success" is the theme for the 193 University of Maryland Women's Forum annual conference. The conference will be held on Friday, October 29, at the University of Maryland University College Conference Center. Dr. Catherine Gira, president of Frostburg State University, will be the keynote speaker. Chancellor Donald Langenberg will participate in a panel presentation titled, "Workplace 2000."

Morning and afternoon workshops will be offered on topics such as "Intercultural Communication," "Women as Agents of Social Change," "Gender Differences in Career Development," "Credits for Experiential Life," "Curriculum Transformation," "Eldercare," "Keeping Life in Balance," "Empowering Others" and "How to Speak So Your Audience Will Listen." Registration forms will be mailed later.

Students Invited To Career Day 1993

Office Secretary III

The search for a secretary for the Perdue School of Business is being reopened due to a recent review of the current and projected duties of the position.

Applications are now being accepted from both permanent and contractual University employees for the position of Office Secretary III (Grade 9). This person will assist an administrative aide in providing secretarial support to the dean and his staff.

Minimum qualifications include graduation from high school, four years of office experience (graduation from an accredited secretarial program or possession of an Associate of Arts in secretarial science may be substituted for one to two-years of experience) and the ability to type 40 wpm. Experience with wordperfect 5.1 is essential; the ability to handle multiple priorities efficiently in a busy office setting is a must. This is a permanent state position with benefits.

If interested in being considered for the position, please submit resume, along with application, to the Personnel Office by September 30.

Cook

University Dining Services is seeking a cook to support its dining hall and catering operations.

Qualified applicants must have had full-time employment, preferably for at least two years, that involved the cooking of meats and vegetables and the preparation of salads and beverages. Starting salary is $6.59 per hour. This is a contractual position with no paid benefits.

Interested persons may apply by completing an application in the Personnel Office, room 222, Holloway Hall. Closing date for applications is September 29.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Gourmet Dinner Series—A new showcase of culinary expertise, the Gourmet Dinner Series features an educational array of select foods emphasizing ethnic cuisines from around the globe. All of the student waitstaff experience information sessions instructing them in the featured region, its foods and special traditions. In addition a complimentary wine-tasting reception and explanation of the featured wines occurs prior to dinner. Throughout the courses, beverages (including wines, teas and gourmet coffees) are available per glass, and videos visually display culinary technique.

Served in the Gull's Nest of the Guerrieri University Center, prices are $10.95 per person including six courses. Reservations are suggested by calling 543-6167. A one-time seating of 7:30 p.m. occurs on the following selected Fridays: October 15 Southwestern; November 5 Cajun; December 3 Holiday—Native American Tent Services—Outdoor meeting facilities, reception and cocktail areas, and additional locations for student group activities are now available through renting various sized tents. Vinyl waterproof (maroon and gold striped) canopies in sizes of 15'x15', 15'x20' and 20'x40' offer optional siding, free-standing capabilities and thousands of uses.

The new additions to campus add atmosphere to any gathering, as well as providing a festive impression. Contact David Hooper (543-6167) for reservations, pricing and creative suggestions.

Brunch on the Hill—In 1991 University Dining Services was awarded first place in a contest of "Creative Cash Operations" in NACUFS (National Association of College and University Food Services) for Brunch on the Hill. Featured on family weekends and Homecoming as a service to the campus and its guests, the brunch offers a display of creative foods.

Served in the Gull's Nest, prices for adults are $7.95 and children (under 12) $3.95. Reservations are suggested by calling 543-6167. Hours of operation are 11 a.m.-2 p.m. on the following weekends: Saturday, October 23; Sunday, October 31; Sunday, November 14; Saturday, November 20; Saturday, December 11.

Buck Nite—For the most active aspect of student entertainment, Buck Nite provides music, dancing, food and beverage service, socialization with friends, and a monotony breaker. Hours are 9 p.m.-12:30 a.m. in the Gull's Nest on select Wednesdays: October 13 Las Vegas Night; October 20 Halloween Costume Ball; November 3 Talent Night; November 17 Wing-It!; December 8 Christmas Party.

BBQ/Bash and Bingo Party—Thursday is the day for relaxation, excitement and a chance to win a trip to the Bahamas. Beginning on the Gull's Nest patio, 5-7:30 p.m., the all new BBQ Bash features fresh barbecued beef on the grill and beverage sales. Then, from 7:30-9 p.m., the party moves indoors for the "Burn the Bingo Boards Party" as students play eight free games of bingo while jamming around the new compact-disc juke box, taking advantage of extended meal card hours in the Gull's Nest. Each Thursday, the eight winners receive prizes and enter the December drawing for a free trip for two to the Bahamas. Student groups are encouraged to bring meetings to the bingo party for added interest.

Concessions at Athletic Events—UDS offers a variety menu at home football, soccer and basketball games this fall. Come out and support SSU teams while enjoying fresh Italian sausages, quarter-pound hot dogs, Bavarian pretzels, buttered popcorn, hamburgers and cheeseburgers, roasted peanuts, cotton candy and Pepsi products.

Nursing Students Assist Health Center

Participants in the STARS (Students Taking Action and Responsibility on the Shore) nursing option of the New Student Seminar recently volunteered their services at the Health Center to prepare the facility for the fall semester. Under the guidance of Jennifer Berkman, Health Center director, the nursing students created bulletin boards with health education messages and sorted and arranged informational pamphlets for the waiting room area. In addition, they unpacked the Drug and Alcohol Resource Prevention Center after its move from the Guerrieri University Center to the Health Center in Holloway Hall.

Students electing this New Student Seminar option arrived on campus prior to the beginning of fall classes. Students spent several days working with registered nurses in various health care settings including Peninsula Regional Medical Center, caring for people in the hospital and in their homes. Through this experience, students learned about the health care needs of people in the greater Salisbury area and how they differed from the health care needs of students at Salisbury State.

Furnace Town Auction October 24

Auction '93, an annual benefit for Furnace Town Foundation, Inc., will be held on Sunday, October 24, at 2 p.m. beneath the pavilion at Furnace Town Historic Site.

All of the items for the auction are donated by area businesses and individuals, and include dinners in private homes and fine restaurants; weekends for two at area bed and breakfast inns, hotels and motels; sports packages; gift certificates; and other services. An assortment of collectibles, antiques, prints and original artwork, tools, toys and sports equipment is available. Bidding is lively for special baskets of homemade jams and relishes, and made-to-order cakes, pies and sweetrolls.

Items will be divided into those placed on silent auction and those to be sold at the live auction. All items will be on display beginning at 11 a.m.

There will be no site admission to Furnace Town Historic Site during the auction. Bids on items up for Silent Auction may be placed from 11 a.m.-2 p.m.

Volunteers Needed For Sea Gull Century

Would you like to be a part of one of the USA's most prestigious (and fun!) biking events, but don't want to push pedals for 100 miles? Then be a Sea Gull Century volunteer.

Rated one of the "Top 10 Centuries" in the country by Bicycling magazine, this year's event, which is sponsored by the SSU Cycling Club, is on Saturday, October 9, beginning at 8 a.m.

To be part of one of the Shore's premier recreational events, call Joe Gilbert at 543-6012.

University Dining Services' first in its Gourmet Dinner Series on Friday, September 18, was a resounding success. Pictured here are some of the 100 dinner patrons (left to right) James Thrash, director of Blackwell Library; Don Bomhardt; Mary Gene Jenkins, director of personnel; and Sally Thrash. The dinner theme was "Pacific Rim." Reservations are now being taken for the next dinner in the series on October 15 in the Gull's Nest. The theme that night will be "Southern Country."

Honors Convocation Award Forms Available

Nomination forms and award application packets for Achievement Key, Campus Life and Who's Who are now available in the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. Students, faculty, staff, or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his or her own name for consideration.

Criteria for nominations for each of the awards are described below. Nomination forms are due in the Dean of Students Office no later than November 1, 1993.

Achievement Key Award—The Achievement Key is awarded to full-time juniors and seniors on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus service. Students become eligible for nomination upon receiving a 3.6 academic average for the two preceding semesters.

Campus Life Award—The Campus Life Award is granted to full-time undergraduates on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Sophomores, juniors and seniors with a 2.6 cumulative average are eligible to apply.

Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges—Nominees for this award are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, service to the University and potential for future achievement. Full-time juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point are eligible to apply.

The director of programming, for example, does not have a college degree. But her father had been a broadcaster and she grew up in television. Renown for her knowledge and competence while working as a secretary in programming, she was offered the directorship when her boss was appointed station manager.

WTNH's news director started her career as an intern there. She loved the area, but left to work at stations across the continent before returning with the experience and depth needed for her directorship.

A female TV engineer had to work a second job at a pharmacy for some three years to supplement her low pay at a nearby cable station. Then she landed a union job in the engineering department at WTNH with its more lucrative salary and benefits.

Another woman called the station each week inquiring about positions. Ultimately her persistence paid off when a job opened. For Kendall these experiences reinforced the need of her Salisbury State students, particularly women, to do internships. "They need to get their foot in the door and prove themselves," she said, "even if it means starting in the mail room, which by the way, is how several camera operators at WTNH got started."

The SSU professor who has swum the Chesapeake Bay, published a cookbook and worked in the Bahamas with famed activist and nutritionist Dick Gregory, impresses upon her students the need to be self-starters. And they are listening. SSU students have interned at CNN and WUSA in Washington, D.C., production companies in both New York and Los Angeles, and with Universal Studios in Orlando, FL, to name a few.

"It's better that things not be handed to you," Kendall said. "Sweat is good."

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

SEPTEMBER 30, 1993

VOL. X NO. 5

Dotterer, New Fulton Dean, Joins SSU Community

At a glance at his bookshelves gives you a quick read into his academic orientation: Chaplin, Emerson, The Color Purple, Moby Dick, Casablanca, the Norton Anthology of Poetry, Film as Art.

We're definitely in the liberal arts arena. But those same bookshelves tells us this is not the office of someone who simply reads books; he thinks about what he reads, and watches, and writes about those observations. The following volumes, published by Susquehanna University Studies, carry his byline: Gender, Culture, and the Arts: Women, the Arts, and Society, Shakespeare: Text, Subtext, and Context, and Jewish Settlement and Community in the Modern Western World.

Dr. Ronald Dotterer's credentials as the new dean of the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and professor of English only start with that sampling of his publications.

A member of the English faculty at Susquehanna (PA) University for 21 years, he is an ACE (American Council on Education) Fellow and an active member of the National Collegiate Honors Council since 1982. He's been chair of NCHC's publication board for five years, an executive committee member for four years and a former president of the Northeast Region.

Ron's background and academic experiences put him in good stead with his peers on the search committee looking for a new dean," said Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs. "From an administration standpoint, he'll be able to continue to improve upon the Fulton

University Send Off For SSO Sunday Evening

Rehearsals have been intense, to say the least. But dress rehearsal will be something special.

As the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University prepares to open ArtSalute '93, and to take its place among Maryland's best artists, the University is preparing a special send off.

The SSO will be playing at Maryland's premier symphony hall, the Meyerhoff in Baltimore, on Monday, October 4, at 7:30 p.m. In the words of Sue Hess, president of Maryland Citizens for the Arts, sponsor of the event, the SSO "rose to the top" of a selection process that included other symphonies from across the state. The SSO will be the only symphony orchestra on the ArtSalute '93 program and the only ArtSalute '93 artists from outside the Washington/Baltimore metropolitan area.

Dr. Bellavance has invited members of the University community to join him in celebrating the occasion. Sunday, October 3, at 7 p.m., there will be an open rehearsal in Holloway Hall Auditorium. During the 7:30 p.m. intermission, there will be an informal reception in the Social Room and the Great Hall "to honor their achievement in being selected for this statewide recognition," according to Bellavance.

With the performance at the Meyerhoff, the SSO can be said to have truly "arrived." It's one of many accomplishments that have been part of the orchestra's meteoric rise. Having begun with just 23 musicians, meeting in the old music annex (now the home of the Administrative Services Office) in 1986, the SSO has grown to 63 musicians, an increasing number of whom are SSU students.

SSO Music Director Thomas Elliot said that it is unusual for a small, community orchestra to last as long as the SSO has, much less to have grown in size and notoriety. "We simply could not have done it without the University's support," he said.

The SSO is beginning its 1993-94 season with a bang, but it will soon be time to begin rehearsal for the rest of the season. The orchestra's holiday concerts are set for Saturday, December 11, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, December 12, at 2 p.m. The spring concert is on Saturday, May 21, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, May 22, at 2 p.m.

University Gallery Offers Varied Exhibits

An East Coast water colorist who relaxes by writing a book, a popular Arkansas professor whose pastels garner national acclaim and a Maryland lawyer who is gaining recognition for his large canvases—the three leapfrog the barriers between art and other professions.

Area residents can judge how successful these huddlers are when their works are exhibited at the University Gallery this season.

The Gallery, building on the success of its recent Hopper exhibit and new home in Fulton Hall, opened this fall with the annual University Art Faculty Show, which runs through October 14.

The artists who met at the Maryland Institute, College of Art, (MI) Baltimore, collaborate on "Elemental Abstractions," a collection of large, sometimes irregularly-shaped canvases. Timothy App, professor of painting and chair of the foundation program at MI, has exhibited nationally including Santa Fe, Dallas, Chicago, Los Angeles and New York. He co-exhibits with

William Brooke Rogers and Kevin Wolff

Rogers, originally from Ocean City, is adjunct professor at MI. Wolff is a 1978 graduate of Vanderbilt Law School. He studied art part time for six years at the Corcoran School of Art, before enrolling full time in MI's Master of Fine Arts program. Now he is a "free-lance" lawyer and full time artist. "Elemental Abstractions" runs October 21-November 17.

Kathleen Holder's pastels have captured the attention of Grace Glueck and John Canaday, art critics for The New York Times. Art-Talk magazine compared Holder to Mark Rothko, the famed 20th century artist. Charlotta Kotik, curator of contemporary art at The Brooklyn Museum calls Holder's work "monumental statements...of color and light." Holder's impressive resume includes The National

The LEADS (Letting Education and Discipline Succeed) program returns to campus this semester. The program matches SSU students who volunteer to serve as mentors with elementary school students in the community.

Mentors spend a minimum of one hour each week working one-on-one with a child. Program goals include helping children increase their self-esteem and academic performance. Eighty SSU student mentors from many different academic disciplines logged hundreds of hours last year.

Students interested in serving as a LEADS mentor may pick up an application at the Office of the Dean of Students, room 212, Guerrieri University Center. All mentors, including those who are experienced, must re-apply and attend a training session.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
 2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
 3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
 4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
 5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
 6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
 7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
 8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
 9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
 10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.
- For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Seniors: Graduation Application Deadline

All undergraduate students who plan to complete degree requirements in May 1994 or August 1994 must complete an Application for Diploma by Monday, October 4, in the Office of the Registrar. The University no longer requires a graduation fee.

All applications must be approved by the chair of the student's major department. The purpose of the early application deadline is to allow time for each senior's records to be reviewed in detail prior to the last semester of attendance at the University. This ensures that students are aware of their academic status early enough to make any last minute adjustments in their plan of study.

Please return the completed Application for Diploma to the Office of the Registrar, Holloway Hall, room 145, or mail it to the Office of the Registrar, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801.

MTV Lip Service Auditions Are Oct. 5

On Tuesday, October 5, the Salisbury State Program Board sponsors MTV Lip Service auditions taking place at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room, Guerrieri University Center. All contestants must be SSU students, between 18-25 years old.

Teams of three or five people should prepare a three-minute lip-synched/choreographed routine of an up-beat song, currently played on MTV. Sign-up sheets and complete sets of rules are available at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center.

The last day to sign up is Friday, October 1, at 7 p.m. For more information, please call 543-6197 (SSPB) or 543-6125 (Student Activities Office).

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Honors Convocation Award Forms Available

Nomination forms and award application packets for Achievement Key, Campus Life and Who's Who are now available in the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. Students, faculty, staff, or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his or her own name for consideration.

Criteria for nominations for each of the awards are described below. Nomination forms are due in the Dean of Students Office no later than November 1, 1993.

Achievement Key Award—The Achievement Key is awarded to full-time juniors and seniors on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus service. Students become eligible for nomination upon receiving a 3.6 academic average for the two preceding semesters.

Campus Life Award—The Campus Life Award is granted to full-time undergraduates on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Sophomores, juniors and seniors with a 2.6 cumulative average are eligible to apply.

Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges—Nominees for this award are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, service to the University and potential for future achievement. Full-time juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point are eligible to apply.

'Access to Success' Is Women's Forum Theme

"Access to Success" is the theme for the 193 University of Maryland Women's Forum annual conference. The conference will be held on Friday, October 29, at the University of Maryland University College Conference Center.

Dr. Catherine Gira, president of Frostburg State University, will be the keynote speaker. Chancellor Donald Langenberg will participate in a panel presentation titled, "Workplace 2000."

Morning and afternoon workshops will be offered on topics such as "Intercultural Communication," "Women as Agents of Social Change," "Gender Differences in Career Development," "Credits for Experiential Life," "Curriculum Transformation," "Eldercare," "Keeping Life in Balance," "Empowering Others" and "How to Speak So Your Audience Will Listen." Registration forms will be mailed later.

Marketing Association Holds Interest Meeting

The American Marketing Association is a national organization that is a respected, career-oriented and open to everyone. College life is short. Students have four years to create the perfect resumé.

For students whose extracurricular section is a bit empty, AMA is a great opportunity to start filling it up. All majors are welcome. The next meeting is on Tuesday, October 12, at 3:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall, room 114.

UAS Meeting Is On October 6

The Union of African-American Students holds its next meeting on Wednesday, October 6. The meeting begins at 7 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. For more information call Lakeeta Young at 548-2404.

Advertise Meetings At Guerrieri Center

Does your student organization need a place to advertise its meeting or activity? The Guerrieri University Center calendar, located near the post office, lists meeting times, dates and locations. Pick up forms at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center and mail to SGA's box 3063. The calendar is maintained by the Student Government Association. For more details call 548-4757.

This fall 28 new faculty members joined the University.

Four faculty members join the School of Education and Professional Studies. Joining the Education Department is Dr. Debra Panian and Samuel Brannock. Panian received her Ph.D. and M.Ed. from the University of South Carolina and her B.A. from the University of Wyoming. While performing her doctorate work she worked as an instructor at the University of South Carolina where she taught graduate and undergraduate classes in education.

Brannock comes to SSU after 32 years of experience in public education, having retired in 1991 as director of the Dorchester County Board of Education. His responsibilities included directing personnel and administrative functions of a public school system. He received his B.A. and M.Ed. from Salisbury State.

Dr. Susan Muller and Steven Meyer join the Department of Physical Education. Muller received her undergraduate degree from Edinboro State College and her M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Maryland College Park. Prior to joining the SSU faculty she worked as a health and physical education teacher for St. Michael School in Silver Spring.

Meyer, an athletic trainer for the Vermont Sports Medicine Center, received his B.S. from Castleton State College and his M.Ed. from Salisbury State.

Nine faculty join the Fulton School of Liberal Arts. Ann R. Allen and Dr. Judith Pike joined the Department of English. Allen received her B.A. from Millsaps College in Jackson, MS, and her M.A. from the University of Arkansas.

Pike has worked previously as a lecturer and teaching associate in the Department of English at the University of California at Irvine. She received her B.A. from Hobart & William Smith Colleges and her Ph.D. from the University of California at Irvine.

New faculty in the Department of History are Dean J. Fafoutis, Dr. Timothy S. Roach, Dr. Christopher Robbins and Marianne Scarborough.

Fafoutis received his B.A. from the City College of New York, his M.A. from the University of Arizona and his Ph.D. from Indiana University. While at Indiana University he was a course assistant, associate instructor and visiting lecturer in the Department of History. Roach received his A.B. from Princeton University and his M.A. and Ph.D. from Duke University. While pursuing his education he held positions in the retail industry and as a middle school substitute teacher. Robbins' prior experience includes working as a history instructor in Dutchess Community College (NY) and as a reporter/managing editor for the Rockland County Times (NY) and was a speech writer for the Rockland County Supervisors Office. Robbins received his B.A. from Manhattanville College (NY), his M.A. from the University of Wisconsin and his Ph.D. from the University of Maryland College Park.

Marianne Scarborough, a resident of Accomac, VA, received her B.A. in 1991 and her M.A. in 1993 from Salisbury State. Carmen Figueroa will be joining the Department of Modern Languages. She obtained her B.A. and B.S. from the Universidad De Concepcion (Chile) and her M.A. and Ed.D. from West Virginia University. While pursuing her graduate degree she worked as a teaching assistant at West Virginia.

The Department of Philosophy has one new member, Dr. Grace Clement. She received her B.A. from the College of William and Mary and Ph.D. from Northwestern University. Prior positions include being a part-time lecturer at the School of the Art Institute of Chicago and at Northwestern University.

Dr. Robert Bookmiller joins the Department of Political Science. He received his B.A. from Indiana University of Pennsylvania and his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Virginia. Prior to coming to Salisbury State he was an adjunct assistant professor at Millersville University (PA) and Lebanon Valley College (PA) and visiting assistant professor at the University of Virginia.

Woodwind Quintet Plays Classics, Jazz

Prevailing Winds, a woodwind quintet whose repertoire features special arrangements of classical and jazz favorites, perform at Salisbury State on Sunday, October 10, at 2 p.m.

The concert, free and open to the public, is in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Since its inception in 1985, Prevailing Winds has combined wit, charm and instrumental virtuosity into critically acclaimed performances. The group creates, "a wide-ranging concert that at once delighted and relaxed the crowd," wrote the Washington Post. The Evening Capital of Annapolis observed, Prevailing Winds "takes the stuffiness right out of the classics...enough punch and energy to enthrall any music enthusiast. Don't miss their next performance."

And, according to Annapolitan Magazine, "When it comes to creative, inventive programming, no one can top Prevailing Winds."

Members of Prevailing Winds are Nan Raphael, flute and piccolo, Kerry Willingham, oboe, Tom Puwalski, clarinet, Cathy Miller, horn, and Roy Carson, bassoon. All are featured soloists with the U.S. Army Field Band.

Raphael has performed with the Kennedy Center Opera House and six years ago formed the R&R flute and guitar duo to perform around the Washington, D.C. area. Willingham has been featured as a soloist with the San Antonio Symphony and on National Public Radio.

Puwalski has performed with various groups such as the Baltimore Symphony, the Baltimore Opera, the Merrylanders (polka band), Kol Chaim (Jezmer band) and the bands of Liberace, Tiny Tim, Barry Manilow, the Electric Light Orchestra and Lionel Ritchie.

Miller won the prestigious American Horn Competition, collegiate division, in 1984 and has performed with the Detroit Metropolitan Orchestra and the Saginaw and Plymouth symphonies. Carson has performed with the National Symphony of Mexico and the National Symphony of Washington, D.C., and on numerous film scores and recordings.

The Prevailing Winds concert is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee. For more information, contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Poet Robert Dana Reads from His Work

Dana was born in Boston in 1929 and has lived in Iowa for many years, where he is poet-in-residence at Cornell College. The author of eight books of poetry, including "Some Versions of Silence" (Norton, 1967), "The Power of the Visible" (Swallow, 1971), "In a Fugitive Season" (Swallow/Ohio University Press, 1980) and "Starting Out for the Difficult World" (Harper & Row, 1987), he has served as distinguished visiting poet at four universities and was awarded a fellowship in creative writing from the National Endowment for the Arts in 1985.

Dana's work won The Delmore Schwartz Memorial Award for Poetry in 1989. His recent work appears in Poetry, The American Poetry Review and The Georgia Review. His most recent book is "What I Think I Know: New and Selected Poems" (Another Chicago Press, 1992).

Dana's visit inaugurates the 1993-94 Writers-on-the-Shore series, sponsored by the SSU Department of English. His reading is free and the public is invited. A reception will follow. For more information call 543-6030.

January Study-Tour To Eastern Europe

During January you can learn about the history, culture and peoples of Poland, Hungary and the Czech Republic. Then you can follow this up with a first-hand visit with a Salisbury State study tour to Prague, Budapest and Cracow to see how these countries are making the transition from communism.

A comprehensive study tour, combining experienced leadership and knowledge of the area with a top quality program of sightseeing, accommodations and cultural experiences, the tour departs January 7 and returns January 17. In addition to visiting the cities, special arrangements have been made to provide special meals, an excursion to Auschwitz and time to wander around some of the most beautiful cities of Europe, taking in the sights and getting souvenirs exclusive to the countries.

For further information come to an interest meeting on Tuesday, October 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the Choptank Room of the Guerrieri University Center, or call Dr. Robert Berry in the History Department at 543-6251.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

The '60s Impact On '90s Discussed

"Reflections on the '60s and the '90s" will be the subject of a lecture by Thomas W. Jones on Wednesday, October 6.

The presentation is part of the Fall Lecture Series at SSU titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The lecture begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge. For more information or a lecture series schedule, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Night Golf Tournament Supports Habitat Project

The SSU Golf Club is sponsoring a nine-hole night golf tournament at Nutters Crossing on Saturday, October 23, to help raise funds for the University's Habitat for Humanity project. The format is four-person team scramble.

Details on the tournament and registration packets are available at the Campus Recreation Office in Maggs Center. Deadline for registration of teams is October 13. Nutters Crossing is donating use of the course for the event to benefit the Habitat project.

American Heart Walk This Saturday at Centre

The second annual American Heart Walk, coordinated in Salisbury by the Wicomico County chapter of the American Heart Association, is Saturday, October 2, at 9 a.m. at the Centre at Salisbury.

Walkers can earn great prizes such as American Heart Walk T-shirts, sweatshirts, sports watches and portable CD players. Everyone who raises a minimum of $25 receives a prize, and all participants are eligible for random prizes at the conclusion of the event. Last year's Heart Walk in Salisbury attracted some 300 walkers and raised over $8,000 for heart research and community education programs. This year's goal is for 500 walkers and American Heart Association volunteers to raise $15,000, according to the Heart Walk chairman, Richard Johnson.

Last year the Heart Walk in Wicomico County was one of the most successful in the state, rivaling the amount raised by Prince George's and Montgomery counties. The local walk topped the state in terms of exceeding its monetary goal.

Lederle Laboratories is sponsoring the 5-mile Heart Walk nationwide, while local sponsors include the Centre at Salisbury, Delmarva Power and radio stations WOHQ, WLWV and WSBY. For more information call Pat McGlothlin, SSU's American Heart Walk team captain, at 543-6063.

The Spotlight Cafe Features Kristen Hall

The Salisbury State Program Board Spotlight Cafe presents a live acoustical jam. Singer and songwriter Kristen Hall performs on Friday, October 1, at 8:30 p.m. in the Gull's Nest.

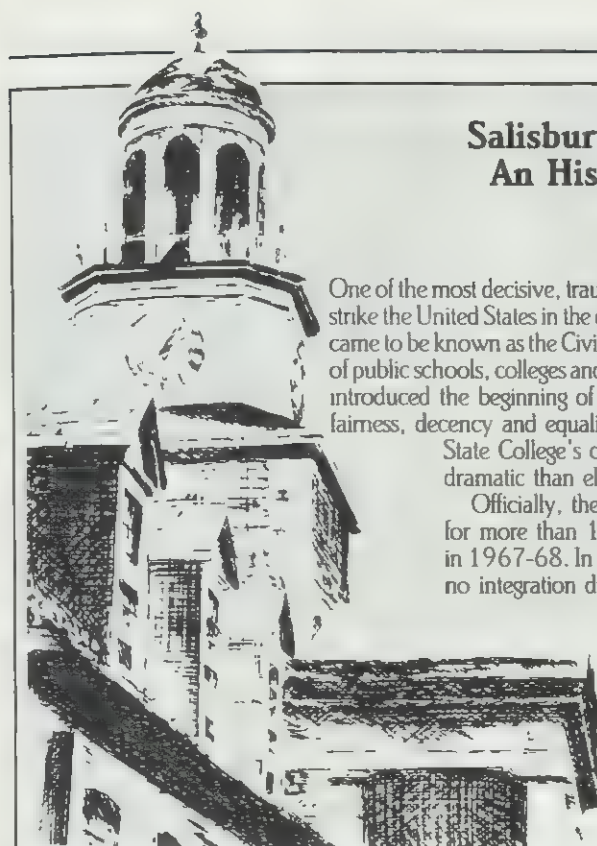

Hall has opened for musical groups such as Concrete Blond and the Indigo Girls. On her latest effort, "Fact and Fiction," Hall worked with a band and guest artists including Indigo Girls' Emily Saliers, Sara Lee from the Gang of Four, The Psychedelic Furs and John Ashton and Cindy Wilson from the B-52's.

"Blessed with a rich and husky voice, her singing lends an intimacy to lyrics already suffused with introspection and vulnerability," wrote the Washington Post. "She has a flair for writing songs with catchy choruses and often underscores them with a bright, percussive acoustic guitar, so that nearly everything she sings has distinctly bittersweet flavor."

Admission to the show is free with SSU I.D. Refreshments are provided.

Salisbury State University: An Historical Perspective

"Desegregating a Campus" by Sylvia Bradley

One of the most decisive, traumatic and challenging issues to strike the United States in the decade of the 1960s was what came to be known as the Civil Rights struggle. Desegregation of public schools, colleges and universities all over the nation introduced the beginning of long overdue efforts to achieve fairness, decency and equality of opportunity. On Salisbury State College's campus the issue was no less dramatic than elsewhere in the country.

Officially, the college had been desegregated for more than 10 years when this issue "broke" in 1967-68. In reality, there had been virtually no integration during that time. The attitudes of the community had not, in fact, encouraged it.

When Dr. Ralph Bunche, Nobel Prize winner in 1950, Under-Secretary of the United Nations, and black, appeared as the main speaker at SSC's Mid-winter Convocation, he was warmly received by students, faculty and administration. But many in the community were incensed that the college had invited a black man to speak at a "white" college. Students, in turn, were incensed by the public's protests.

The community was not alone in bearing responsibility for the lagging efforts to integrate the campus. There had been little or no urging from state authorities for SSC to encourage enrollment by blacks. Nor had the college administration assumed any independent initiative in the matter. The existence of all-black UMES only 12 miles to the south only complicated the situation. However, in 1967, this all began to change. Two able, widely respected and outspoken black members were appointed to the Board of Trustees, and Morgan State College, an essentially all-black college, was brought under the authority of the board. So in November of 1967 the trustees directed each state college to submit by the end of the academic year a plan for "meaningful integration." Two state senators introduced a resolution calling for a study of the possibility of a merger of Salisbury and Maryland State College at Princess Anne (UMES) under the University of Maryland. The resolution, however, never got out of committee.

Almost everyone, it seemed, had an answer. A Baltimore Sun editorial proposed having each state college specialize in some one thing, and thereby attract students on the basis of interests rather than race. Salisbury, it suggested, usually had few or no blacks during the regular academic year, but had a heavy black enrollment in summer graduate courses, while Bowie, usually with no whites enrolled, drew many white students to its evening courses. Officials at Salisbury and Maryland State at Princess Anne, meanwhile, began exploring means of cooperating on faculty appointments and student exchanges.

It was the assassination of Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. in April 1968 and the subsequent civil right riots around the nation which brought many to a shocked awareness of the full scope of the dilemma.

In an unprecedented move for SSC, President Wilbur Devilbiss announced the main auditorium would be open at 11 a.m. on April 8, 1968 for anyone in the college who wanted to assemble for silent meditation in tribute to the memory of Dr. King. Further, any class absences that day were to be considered excused absences, and faculty members were told they might dismiss classes if they wished. Students who feared riots might occur in their hometowns were given permission to leave before the regular closing of college for Easter on the following Wednesday, and could leave with the assurance they would be excused for classes missed. Several days of protest marches and minor rioting in Salisbury in mid-May impressed on everyone the need for positive action.

Meanwhile, the federal government had entered the picture. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare required each state college president to submit a plan within 120 days which would "lead to a representative racial balance in (the) student body"; failure to do so might result in loss of all federal aid. The Board of Trustees was requested to present a plan for future desegregation within one year. At SSC a meeting of 14 faculty members and administrators and five students was called. After two hours deliberation, they recommended a collegewide meeting be called. Thus, for one hour on March 19, classes were cancelled and the entire college community met in three simultaneous seminars, grouped alphabetically, and each presided over by some of the faculty and students present at the original meeting. A general report from these seminars was to be prepared and eventually presented to faculty and students.

Out of these meetings came plans to allow cross-over registration at Salisbury and UMES, and there were even speculative whispers of "merger," but many felt confused and at a loss for a real solution. By the early 1970s more practical steps were taken. Black faculty members and administrators were hired. Black students were encouraged to develop activities and groups which would give them a feeling of college identity and visibility. A Black Student Union was started by several freshmen in the fall of 1972. All those efforts bore results. The enrollment of only three blacks in 1969 jumped to 14 percent of the student body in 1970. In 1971 34 black students were registered, 70 in 1972, and finally 275 or 10 percent of the college population in 1974-75.

This was not the end of the issue, of course, but the problems reluctantly verbalized in the '60s were no doubt eased at least somewhat in the '70s.

Employees Art Exhibit Opens in Atrium Gallery

Eleven University employees will join together for an Employees Art Exhibit to open in the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center on Thursday, October 7.

The unique exhibit kicks off at 4 p.m. with an artist's reception. The reception is open to all and is a good time to meet and talk with the artists. The exhibit is open daily from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. and Sundays from noon-4 p.m. through October 26.

The exhibit features painting, photography, wood work and textiles as well as a display of creative lighting techniques by Tony Broadbent, the campus expert on lighting. Excepting Broadbent, the art works displayed were created apart from the artist's campus occupation and often as a hobby, source of relaxation and outlet for creative impulses. Many campus occupations and departments are represented.

Dolores Powell, administrative aide in the Henson School of Science and Technology, Mary Gene Jenkins, director of personnel, Dr. Ellen Lawler, Biology Department faculty member, and Paula Hepburn, secretary in the Political Science and Sociology departments, will be displaying watercolors.

Jenkins received early informal instructions from her mother and has taken classes with John Cleary of the SSU Art Department, and many watercolor teachers who taught from time to time in the Art Institute and Gallery. She is a past winner of "Best Amateur Watercolor" in the AIG Annual Spring Show. Lawler has also taken classes at AIG, the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts and the University of Minnesota. Many of the subjects of her paintings reflect her interest in nature and wildlife.

A graduate of the Art Department at SSU, Powell has participated in many Salisbury area art exhibits including AIG shows, "Art in the Park" sponsored by the Wicomico Arts Council, the Pemberton Fair and The Gallery, located in the Clairmont Shopping Center in Salisbury. She paints primarily landscapes and waterfowl.

The other watercolor artist, Hepburn, is well-known to all Eastern Shore persons interested in art. She has been a well-respected artist in local arts organizations for some time. Dean Burroughs of the Physical Education Department, Elaine Patterson, administrative aide in the Dean of Students Office, and Kathy Pusey, secretary in the Public Relations Office, are displaying their photographs.

Burroughs specializes in landscape, nature and sports photography with an eye toward composition, image control and film characteristics. He is currently an active member of the Eastern Shore Camera Club in which he has won awards. Pusey, an SSU Art Department alumna, experiments with different darkroom techniques in her Eastern Shore black and white landscapes. Patterson has also taken photography lessons and rounds out the exhibit with her award-winning work.

To lend the exhibit diversity, Bob Brown of the Public Safety Office is displaying his woodwork which is both functional and original in design. Pat Killian, English Department faculty member, and Cathy Broderson, a Biology Department instructor, are exhibiting their handmade textile pieces. Broderson is a member of the Chesapeake Chapter of the Embroiderer's Guild of America and the American Needlepoint Guild. She has exhibited at local, regional and national levels. Killian creates her own design knitting fishermen sweaters and includes a unique wallhanging of her own design.

The Atrium Gallery plans to make this exhibit an annual event and encourages other University employees to participate in the future.

For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

SSU Theatre Trip Set for Richard II

The Guerrieri University Center Office has scheduled a student bus trip to the Shakespeare Theatre in Washington, D.C. on Thursday, October 21. Actor Richard Thomas will be making his first Shakespeare Theatre appearance in the title role of the powerful tragedy, Richard II.

Richard II was written probably in 1595 and portrays Richard II of England as he faces a crisis of identity that threatens to destroy not only him but his nation's confidence in the Royal Office.

Remembered as "John-Boy" on the Emmy Award-winning TV series, The Waltons, Thomas is well-known for his accomplishments in classical theatre. He has been acting since he was six-years-old and made his professional Broadway debut at seven. His career has included acting and directing on stage, television and film, in modern and classical pieces, with traditional and avant-garde approach. Richard

II will only be Thomas' second major Shakespearean role.

The cost for full-time students is $15 and sign up begins at 8 a.m. on Wednesday, October 6, at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center. (An SSU I.D. is necessary.) Part-time students, faculty, staff and guests may sign up on Friday, October 8; the cost is $20.

The bus leaves the Dogwood Dr. entrance of the Guerrieri Center at 2:30 p.m. on October 21. Time will be allowed before the play for dinner on your own at a restaurant near the theatre. The bus returns to SSU directly after the play, at approximately 1 a.m. No food or beverages are allowed on the bus. No refunds are given for those who cancel unless someone is found to take the seat. For more information about this and other bus trips, call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6006.

Museum of Women in the Arts in Washington, D.C. Before gaining such attention, she was a public school teacher in Milwaukee for nearly a decade. Moving to Little Rock in 1981, she joined the Art Department faculty of the University of Arkansas. Holder's exhibit runs November 18-December 16.

Pointillism, a technique of painting with dots of color, is usually associated with 19th century artist George Seurat. But this technique has fascinated David Richards for 15 years. The Pennsylvania water colorist who has garnered awards from the American Watercolor Society, the National Watercolor Society and Allied Artists of America, among others, is a signature member of each and exhibits at the Goforth Rittenhouse Gallery in Philadelphia. Pointillism is a time-consuming and intense technique, and Richards shifts gears by writing about art. A contributor to The Artist's Magazine, his book, "Self-Expression in Painting," is being published by North Light Books of Cincinnati, which specializes in art publishing. The Richards exhibit is February 10-March 3.

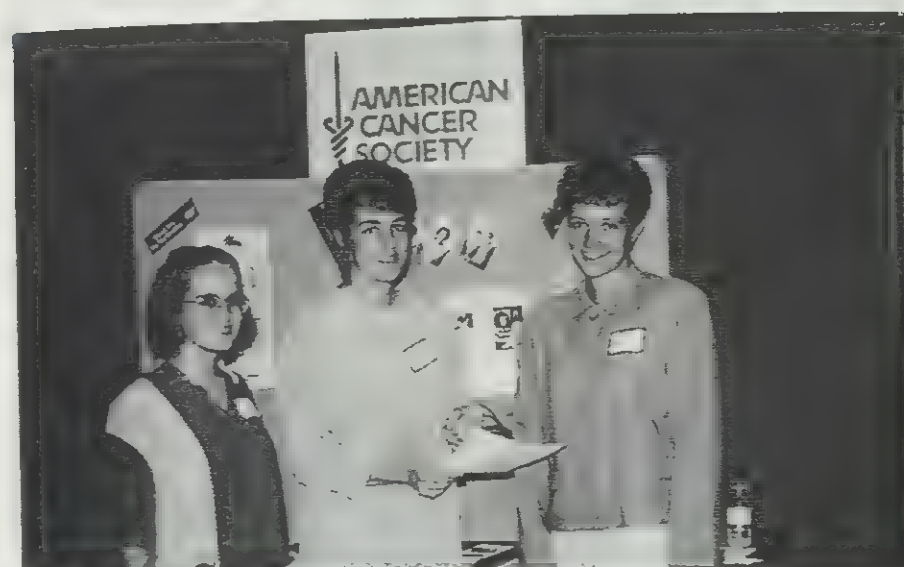

The University Gallery currently is negotiating with the National Gallery to display works from the famed Tamarind Lithography Workshop, founded in 1960 in Los Angeles. The Tamarind exhibit is tentatively schedule for March 10-April 14.

The gallery then closes its season with the 21st University Art Students' Show, April 23-May 19.

At SSU's smaller Atrium Gallery, located in the Guerrieri University Center, students continue to be introduced to the visual arts through exhibits and programs which often feature local artists. Highlights of the coming season include a sculpture and functional pottery exhibit by University of Maryland Eastern Shore art professor Ernest Satchell, February 7-March 4; pen and ink drawings by William Bunting, a Maryland Arts Council grant honoree, March 10-25; and abstract and semi-abstract landscapes of the Eastern Shore by Dr. David Scott, former director of the Corcoran Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. who has retired near Salisbury.

A fun exhibit that Atrium Gallery director Donna Forgash hopes will become a tradition is a University staff exhibit. Much of this work is done by employees in their off-hours as a hobby. It runs October 7-26.

Admission to all exhibits is free. For more information, including gallery hours, call 543-6030.

COOL Meetings

The Campus Outreach Opportunity League (COOL) Connections fair held on campus last week attracted many students who took advantage of the volunteer opportunities available with the 42 area non-profit organizations in attendance. Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Led by tournament MVP Jen Bowman, the volleyball team won the championship of the six-team Sea Gull Classic last weekend. Following a 3-2 round-robin record, the Gulls (12-7 overall) topped Catholic two games to one in the semifinal round and blanked Stockton State 2-0 in the championship match.

Bowman tallied 25 assists, eight blocks and seven aces in the semifinal win, then followed with 16 assists and eight aces against Stockton. Freshman Courtney Moore, who contributed 19 kills in the final two matches, was also named to the all-tournament team.

For the second straight week, the women's cross country team raced home with first place honors. Led by Kelly Delp (7th overall) and Mary Puderbaugh (9th), the Gulls won last Saturday's seven-team Christopher Newport Classic. Jen Binford (11th) and Jeannette Hubley (12th) also placed among the individual leaders.

On the men's side, SSU placed fourth of nine squads. Jeff Hankins (13th) and Matt Piotrowski (16th) led the Maroon and Gold charge. Both Sea Gull squads compete in the Franklin & Marshall Invitational this Saturday.

The football team (1-2 overall) held a seven-point lead early in the third quarter but fell victim to a second-half Frostburg State rally in losing 34-21 last Saturday. Senior Charlie Whalen had six catches and broke the school's all-time receptions record with his 98th career catch. Len Annetta passed for 252 yards, including scoring passes of 58 yards to Randall Owens and 11 yards to Todd Burrell. The Gulls are off this week before resuming play on October 9 with a visit to Rowan (NJ) College.

The soccer team (2-4) recorded its first two wins of the season over Wesley (3-0) and N.C. Wesleyan (2-1) last week. Mike Connors had one goal and two assists in the two games, and Soon-Jae Klover added one goal and one assist during the week. Junior goalie Joe Herman recorded his first career shutout with nine saves against Wesley.

The women's tennis team (4-1 overall) continued their strong early-season showing with wins at Rowan (7-2) and Allentown (7-2). Kris Dodson, Nikki Lee and Kelly Carey posted singles wins in both matches, and all three doubles tandems swept their matches against both opponents.

The field hockey squad (5-3) routed Wesley (7-0) but fell to Ithaca (4-0) and Cortland State (4-1) during a 1-2 week. Freshman Susan Fatz had four goals in the three games, while Kim Bloodsworth scored twice and Jen Stone added one goal and three assists.

AT&T Investment Challenge Offers $100,000 in Prizes

All set to dazzle the big guns on Wall Street with your savvy investment strategy? You are if you're playing the sixth annual AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge this year. College students can use this exciting stock market simulation to practice investing on Wall Street, win prizes, get real-world resume experience and have fun at the same time. Registration is open now through Monday, October 11. (Late registration accepted until October 31).

The event is a "user-friendly" interactive investment competition that gives students a hands-on, risk-free opportunity to manage a stock portfolio. This year's Challenge begins October 11 and closes on December 10 at a reduced rate of $39.95. Over 15,000 college students and educators from all over the country will hit Wall Street armed with a fictional $500,000 cash budget and lots of ideas. The goal? Buy and sell real stocks in an effort to turn that half million into the highest portfolio value.

Produced and managed by Replica Corporation of Dedham, MA, the AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge simulates every aspect of live stock trading. SSU students and educators start with a fictional $500,000 on account and 30 trades at their disposal. They buy, sell and short stocks by calling "real" brokers using toll-free AT&T 800 Service; trade over 8,000 stocks on the major exchanges using up-to-the-minute prices; incur brokerage commission; and borrow on margin.

Some will make millions, others will lose it all. "I strongly believe that every student is a winner regardless of whether they end up bankrupt or drive the 1994 Pontiac Firebird," Dr. Kashi Khazeh, associate professor of finance in the Perdue School of Business and SSU Challenge coordinator. The AT&T Challenge helps students sharpen valuable skills. They learn to do much more than execute trades and research companies; they gain broad financial knowledge, get to explore career paths and get involved in world events. Everyone who plays gets something back.

"I truly believe that this exciting competition gives the students the practical experience that they otherwise likely would not receive," said Khazeh. In the past five Investment Challenges the Financial Management Association at SSU and the Perdue School along with Peninsula Bank sponsored the event to reduce the registration fee to students.

Brett Earl Hadlock, a senior majoring in management, was SSU's top ranked participant. The competition awards more than $100,000 in cash and merchandise prizes including a top prize valued at more than $25,000. The top performer will receive a 1994 Pontiac Firebird Formula (estimated value: $20,000), $5,000 in cash and $1,200 in AT&T Long Distance Certificates. Other prizes include Texas Instrument calculators, various cash awards to the top 20 performers, certificates and plaques. There are over 600 prizes in total.

Educators and students in the Investment Challenge should call Khazeh at 543-6328, or Replica Corporation at 1 (800) 545-1975, ext. 12, for further details about participating.

members in the Department of Biology are Dr. Mark A. Holland, Dr. Barbara J. Pollock, Charles H. Neal, Jr., Betty L. Smith, Elchia A. Venso and Ami Wilbur.

Holland received his B.S. from Muhlenberg College (PA), his M.A. from Wake Forest University and his Ph.D. from Rutgers University. His prior teaching experience includes working in the Biochemistry Department of the University of Missouri, teaching science (K 12) at the Forsyth Country Day School in North Carolina and working as a graduate assistant at Rutgers University while pursuing his Ph.D.

Pollock, a post doctoral research fellow in the Department of Genetics at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland, received her B.A. from Wittenberg University (OH) and her M.S. and Ph.D. from Ohio State University.

Having received his B.S. from West Virginia University, Neal, has previously worked for the Wicomico County Board of Education as a evening high school science teacher.

Smith, received her B.S. from Cabrini College (PA), her Medical Technology degree from the University of Delaware and her M.Ed. from SSU. Her previous employment includes working in kidney dialysis research in New Haven, CT, and as a medical technology supervisor in Arizona. She plans to pursue her Ph.D. in the future.

Venso's prior experience includes working as an exploration geologist for Texaco USA and as a teaching/research assistant for the School of Public Health at the University of Texas-Houston. She obtained her A.S. from Midland College (TX), her B.S. from Texas A&I University, her M.S. from the University of Texas-Houston and is in the progress of completing her Ph.D. at the University of Texas-Houston.

Having received her B.S. from the University of North Carolina-Wilmington and her M.S. from South Carolina, Wilbur is pursuing her Ph.D. in marine science at the University of Delaware. While pursuing her graduate degrees she has worked as a research assistant in the biology departments at both the University of Delaware and South Carolina.

The Chemistry and Physics Department has three new faculty. Dr. Linda C. Bush, Douglas L. Hemmick and Karen J. Paulus.

Bush joins the Chemistry Department. She obtained her A.B. from Bryn Mawr College (PA) and M.S. from Yale University, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences. She is in the process of completing her doctoral work at Yale.

Hemmick joins the physics faculty. He received his B.S. from Towson State University, his M.S. at Rutgers University and is completing his Ph.D. at Rutgers. While pursuing his graduate degrees he worked as a teaching assistant at Rutgers.

Having received her B.S. in chemistry from SSU in 1993, Paulus has worked previously as a laboratory technician at NASA-Wallops Flight Facility and as a phlebotomist at Peninsula Regional Medical Center.

Joining the Department of Nursing are Phyllis Brodsky and Dorothea McDowell. Brodsky received her A.D. in education from Montgomery College, B.S. in nursing from the University of Maryland at Baltimore, her M.S. in education from the University of Maryland at Baltimore and her R.N. from Albert Einstein Medical Center (PA)-School of Nursing. She has served in the position of staff nurse at Shady Grove Adventist Hospital, and worked in clinical education at Providence Hospital (D.C.) and at George Washington University Medical Center (D.C.).

McDowell received her B.S.N. from the University of Virginia and her M.S. from the University of Maryland at Baltimore, School of Nursing. She has worked previously as a staff nurse at Methodist Hospital (TX) and Peninsula Regional Medical Center. She was also an instructor for the Bebee Hospital School of Nursing. Joining the Perdue School of Business are

Dillard is director of the Small Business Development Center as well as professor of entrepreneurship. Prior to coming to SSU he was founding partner of the Center for Strategic Management and Marketing in Tulsa, OK. He received his B.A. from Wilmington College (OH) and his M.S. and Ph.D. from University of Arkansas.

Hoffman received his B.A. in history from Trinity College (CT), M.B.A. in management from the University of Pennsylvania, Wharton School and his Ph.D. in management and administrative policy from the Indiana University School of Business. Prior to his employment at SSU he worked as an assistant professor in the Department of Business Administration at the University of Delaware and as assistant professor in the School of Business Administration at the College of William and Mary. While completing his dissertation he was employed as a lecturer in the School of Business at Indiana University.

Having completed her graduate studies at George Mason University (VA), Poyer received her B.A. in economics from the University of Virginia. While a graduate student she was employed by George Mason as a tutor/instructor and held a fellowship position.

Upadhyaya's prior experience includes working as an assistant research officer/lecturer in the Centre for Economic Development and Administration at Tribhuvan University, Katmandu, Nepal and as a program assistant/program officer for the United Nations Development Program at UNDP, Dar Es Salaam, Tanzania. While completing his studies he worked as a graduate teaching assistant at Auburn University. He received his B.A. in economics from Tribhuvan University, Katmandu, Nepal, his M.A. in economics from Thammasat University, Bangkok, Thailand and his Ph.D. in economics from Auburn University.

School, both in its General Education offerings and its liberal arts disciplines.

"He's got breadth and depth in the liberal arts," said Butler, "which gives him significant credence as the new dean." While his credentials give him instant credibility as the new liberal arts dean, Dotterer counts himself as fortunate to have joined the SSU community.

"Coming from a small college environment (Susquehanna's enrollment is 1,720), I was looking for an academic community which was both intellectually stimulating and caring," said Dotterer. "The people here at Salisbury State are doing interesting things and are very friendly. I feel very welcomed."

"This is a community that is genuine," said Dotterer. "When some people (at other campuses) talk about that, it's simply wishful thinking. This campus has it!"

The faculty and course offerings in the Fulton School are top quality as well in Dotterer's estimation.

"The faculty here is first-rate," said Dotterer. "(Former) Dean (Sharon) Rubin did a superb job at creating interesting curricular innovation—Global Seminars, the Learning Community, an emphasis on diversity—and I want to continue those programs and concerns.

"I would like for the school to see itself as a cohesive, interconnected unit," he added.

The Fulton School is composed of three areas: fine arts, which includes art, music and communication arts; humanities, which includes English, history, philosophy and modern languages; and social studies, which includes political science, sociology and psychology.

"We don't know what the future holds technologically but we must be ready," said Dotterer explaining the importance for all students, whether majors or non-majors, to gain a solid liberal arts education.

"We have to teach our students, our future leaders and decision-makers, to reason in unforeseen circumstances," said Dotterer. To attain that goal, "We must teach them to think critically, write effectively, communicate clearly and understand something about our culture and other cultures. Our liberal arts disciplines focus on those four areas."

Dotterer feels the new Fulton School facility and its endowed status give it a distinct advantage over other colleges, both private and public.

"Walking into Fulton Hall, one has the feeling that this is a place of quality and concern for learning," said Dotterer. "And, the Fultons have been very generous and supportive in helping with student and faculty growth. (Charles and Martha Fulton of Snow Hill endowed the liberal arts school in 1989 with a $2.5 million gift.)

"Most schools and universities in the current economic climate find that covering the basics eats up all the money," said Dotterer. "The Fulton endowment allows us at Salisbury State to fund special projects concerned with faculty and development and research, to encourage excellence in teaching and to support undergraduate research and travel. It additionally allows us to recruit top-flight students who might otherwise choose another college or university."

Dotterer's decision to choose Salisbury State makes more sense to him everyday.

"Salisbury State University is bigger than it once was," said Dotterer, "but it still prides itself on the interaction that takes place among faculty, staff and students. Caring and achieving common goals are sincere commitments here."

"This is a place where there is a legitimate concern for one another," he said, "and a desire to build real community."

Parren Mitchell Discusses Civil Rights

"The Civil Rights Movement" will be the subject of a lecture by former U.S. Rep. Parren J. Mitchell on Wednesday, October 13, at Salisbury State.

The presentation is part of the Fall Lecture Series at SSU titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

Mitchell currently is chairman of the board of The Minority Business Enterprise Legal Defense and Education Fund, Inc.

In 1950, Mitchell won a lawsuit which forced the University of Maryland to admit him as its first black graduate student. There, he completed his master's degree in sociology and was admitted to the University's honor society. He returned to his alma mater, Morgan State College (now University), to teach.

During the 1960s, Mitchell headed Baltimore's anti-poverty program and served as executive secretary for the Maryland Human Relations Commission where he played an important role in the enactment and implementation of Maryland's Public Accommodations Law.

Mitchell was elected Maryland's first black congressman in 1970 and helped lead the legislative battle in Washington to help get the minority segment of the population into the economic mainstream.

The Fall Lecture Series includes nine lectures plus a film screening and a performance by 1960s singing group The Mamas and the Papas. It is a presentation of the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

For more information or a lecture series schedule, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

The Miracle Worker Comes to SSU Stage

A Mother's Pain. Kate Keller, played by Jennifer Carlson, never gives up hoping the walls of silence and darkness surrounding her daughter, Helen, blind and deaf since infancy, can be breached, in William Gibson's moving drama, The Miracle Worker. Performances are Friday-Saturday, October 15-16, and Thursday-Saturday, October 20-23, at 8 p.m., and Sundays, October 17 and 24, at 2 p.m. at Salisbury State Theatre in Fulton Hall. Tickets are $6 general admission; students and senior citizens $4. Tickets are free for SSU faculty and staff. For reservations call 543-6228.

The story of Helen Keller, one of the most remarkable women in American history who challenged the way the handicapped were perceived, comes to the stage in Salisbury State Theatre's revival of the acclaimed drama, The Miracle Worker.

Stricken as an infant with an illness that left her blind, deaf and mute, "Keller would become...through her triumph over crushing adversity and shattering affliction...a font of strength to hundreds of millions," The New York Times wrote.

Despite traveling the world, visiting with presidents and crowned heads as an advocate for the blind and deaf, Keller would write in her autobiography, "The most important day I remember in all my life is the one on which my teacher came to me." The devotion and skill of that teacher, Anne Sullivan, in surmounting the walls of silence and darkness which imprisoned Keller as a child is the focus of William Gibson's Tony Award-winning The Miracle Worker.

This powerful drama played for 702 performances on Broadway and went on to garner Oscar and Emmy awards as television and film movies, moving a younger generation unfamiliar with Keller's struggle. "Gibson's play is family entertainment at its finest," said Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer, director of theatre.

The theatre box office is now open for reservations and ticket sales. Performances are Friday and Saturday, October 15-16, and Thursday through Saturday, October 20-23, at 8 p.m., with matinees Sundays, October 17 and 24, at 2 p.m. General admission is $6; students and senior citizens $4. Tickets are free for faculty, staff and students. Because of anticipated demand for all performances, the box office urges patrons to make reservations as soon as possible.

For further information including reservations call 543-6228.

Night Light Golf Benefits Habitat Project

The SSU Golf Club is sponsoring a Night Light Tournament at Nutters Crossing Golf Club in Salisbury on Saturday, October 23. Proceeds from the event, which begins at dusk, benefit the SSU chapter of Habitat for Humanity.

A nine-hole, four-person scramble with a shotgun start, registration fees are $15 for students and $20 for faculty, staff and guests. Low team score wins. A special putting contest begins at 4:15 p.m.; the entry fee for the putting contest is $1.

Individuals may register without a team. The tournament director will form teams from such entries.

Golfers must check in by 5 p.m. A pre-tournament meeting will be held at 5:15 p.m. after which golfers will proceed to their tees for the start. Each golfer will be issued one night light golf ball and tee. Only those balls may be used during play. Additional balls may be purchased during the tournament for $5 each.

Each team must carry a flashlight which may be used only to line up putts. Flashlights may not be turned on when a player puts or is hitting the ball.

All golfers must walk; hand carts are permissible. Red tees will be used. Luminaries will be placed at tee boxes, around greens and water hazards at 150 yards and 75 yards from greens.

All lies may be improved. The ball may be teed up anywhere except on the greens.

No alcoholic beverages are to be brought on the course. Refreshments will be on sale at the tournament.

Registration forms are available at the Campus Recreation Office in the Maggs Center. For more information call 543-6080.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Marketing Association Holds Interest Meeting

The American Marketing Association is a national organization that is a respected, career-oriented and open to everyone. College life is short. Students have four years to create the perfect resume.

For students whose extracurricular section is a bit empty, AMA is a great opportunity to start filling it up. All majors are welcome. The next meeting is on Tuesday, October 12, at 3:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall, room 114.

Advertise Meetings At Guerrieri Center

Does your student organization need a place to advertise its meeting or activity? The Guerrieri University Center calendar, located near the post office, lists meeting times, dates and locations. Pick up forms at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center and mail to SGA's box 3063. The calendar is maintained by the Student Government Association. For more details call 548-4757.

Joining the Physical Plant as a services specialist is Timothy M. Jones. Jones previous experience includes being manager for the Salisbury Bonanza Restaurant, general manager for Ocean City's Bay View Steak and Seafood Restaurant and director of field operations for East Coast Management. He received his B.S. in business administration from Towson State University in 1985.

Five new staff members join University Dining Services. They are David Hooper, Sidney Lee, Roy McLalin, Renee Ricciardi and Elizabeth Selzer.

Hooper received his B.S. from Salisbury State this year and will be working in the capacity as assistant manager for special services.

Lee joins University Dining Services as the assistant director. He also received his bachelor's degree from SSU.

McLalin, special events manager, received his B.S. from Florida State University in hotel and restaurant management. He also attended Michigan State University where he pursued his degree in hotel and restaurant management. He has worked previously in the Ocean Club and Marina Deck restaurants in Ocean City.

Ricciardi received her B.A. from SSU and will be serving in the capacity as student coordinator/supervisor.

Also an SSU graduate, Selzer, will be the new assistant manager for the Gull's Nest.

Winter Arts Calendar Deadline Approaching

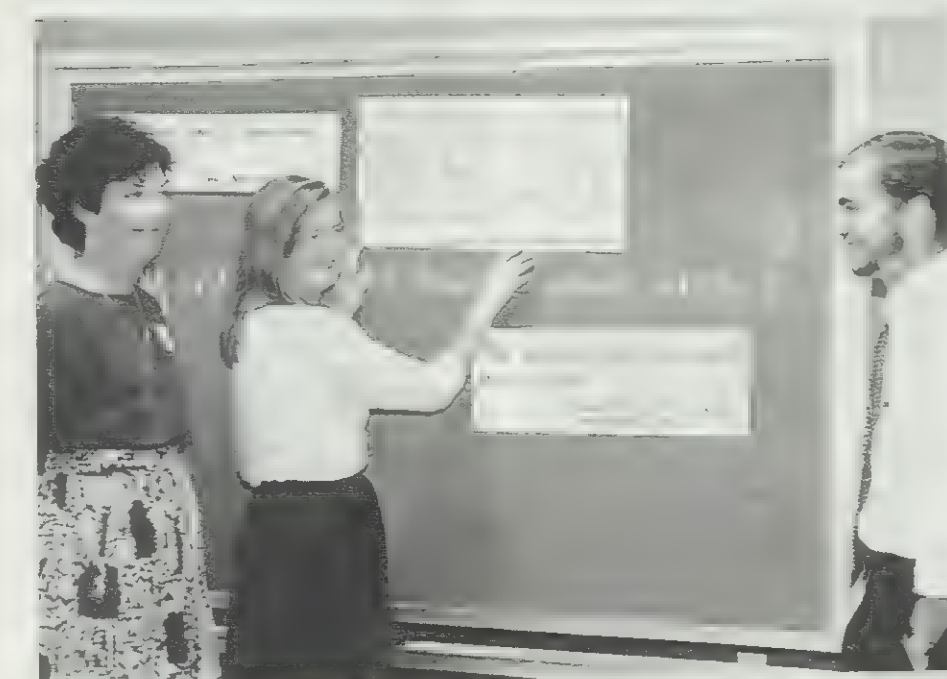

The deadline for the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council's quarterly publication, Accent on the Arts, the winter issue which covers the months of November, December and January, is upcoming. Any organization wishing to have listings or articles included in the upcoming issue should have the information in SWAC's office no later than 5 p.m. on Monday, October 4.

Information required for the listing include event name, location, date, time, sponsors, contact name and daytime phone number. The information must be in writing and complete. Incomplete listings will not be included.

Accent on the Arts showcases the cultural offerings of a three-county region, encompassing Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset counties. The Southern Eastern Shore Calendar, the listing of cultural activities in the region, is the centerpiece of the publication. The listings portion is made possible by a grant from the Department of Economic and Employment Development, through the Wicomico County Department of Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Wicomico County Council.

Accent on the Arts is published four times a year and is distributed directly to 1,000 members and affiliates of SWAC. About 3,000 copies are also distributed to restaurants, hotels and business offices for area visitors and tourists.

For more information call SWAC at 543-ARTS.

Dr. Elizabeth Curtin, left, co-director of the Maryland Writing Project at Salisbury State, looks on as SSU graduate student Kim Finlayson, center, and Laurel High School teacher Michael Blaine, right, prepare for a presentation at Visitor's Day for the Writing Project's Summer Institute. The Maryland Writing Project is a program that trains teachers to improve their writing skills in order to teach more effectively. After completing the program, participants become teacher-consultants by passing along what they've learned to other teachers in their schools. This is the fourth year the Maryland Writing Project's Summer Institute has been held at SSU.

Employees Art Exhibit Opens in Atrium Gallery

Eleven University employees will join together for an Employees Art Exhibit to open in the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center on Thursday, October 7.

The unique exhibit kicks off at 4 p.m. with an artist's reception. The reception is open to all and is a good time to meet and talk with the artists. The exhibit is open daily from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. and Sundays from noon-4 p.m. through October 26.

The exhibit features painting, photography, wood work and textiles as well as a display of creative lighting techniques.

The Atrium Gallery plans to make this exhibit an annual event and encourages other University employees to participate in the future.

For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

SSU Theatre Trip Set for Richard II

The Guerrieri University Center Office has scheduled a student bus trip to the Shakespeare Theatre in Washington, D.C. on Thursday, October 21. Actor Richard Thomas will be making his first Shakespeare Theatre appearance in the title role of the powerful tragedy, Richard II.

Richard II was written probably in 1595 and portrays Richard II of England as he faces a crisis of identity that threatens to destroy not only him but his nation's confidence in the Royal Office.

Remembered as "John-Boy" on the Emmy Award-winning TV series, The Waltons, Thomas is well-known for his accomplishments in classical theatre. He has been acting since he was six-years-old and made his professional Broadway debut at seven. His career has included acting and directing on stage, television and film, in modern and classical pieces, with traditional and avant-garde approach. Richard II will only be Thomas' second major Shakespearean role.

The cost for full-time students is $15 and sign up begins at 8 a.m. on Wednesday, October 6, at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center. (An SSU I.D. is necessary.) Part-time students, faculty, staff and guests may sign up on Friday, October 8; the cost is $20.

The bus leaves the Dogwood Dr. entrance of the Guerrieri Center at 2:30 p.m. on October 21. Time will be allowed before the play for dinner on your own at a restaurant near the theatre. The bus returns to SSU directly after the play, at approximately 1 a.m. No food or beverages are allowed on the bus. No refunds are given for those who cancel unless someone is found to take the seat. For more information about this and other bus trips, call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6006.

Equestrian Club Forms on Campus

The Equestrian Club, a new SSU club recently approved, is open for any student or faculty member interested in horses.

The club offers educational, recreational and competitive opportunities as well as discount rates at a local riding academy, Unicorn Stables. Upcoming events include a beach ride, the Washington International, a jumping clinic and a tour of the New Bolton Veterinary Center in Unionville, PA.

If interested in joining contact the club by writing to SSU Box 3011, or by calling Sharon Miner at 546-2941, evenings.

Cool Clearinghouse

Cool Clearinghouse serves as an information network to help individuals and groups interested in community service opportunities match themselves with community organizations which use volunteers. The project is sponsored by COOL-SSU, a student organization affiliated with the Campus Outreach Opportunity League. Organizations using the service are solely responsible for the conduct of sponsored service activities, including training and supervision. Volunteers assume sole responsibility for their conduct and for any risks associated with service activities. Call Cool Clearinghouse at 543-6080.

Honors Convocation Award Forms Available

Nomination forms and award application packets for Achievement Key, Campus Life and Who's Who are now available in the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. Students, faculty, staff or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his or her own name for consideration.

Criteria for nominations for each of the awards are described below. Nomination forms are due in the Dean of Students Office no later than October 20. Students are eligible for the following awards provided they have completed at least 18 credit hours total for fall 1992 and spring 1993 semesters.

The Achievement Key is awarded on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus and/or community service. Students become eligible for nomination upon receiving a 3.6 academic average for each of the two preceding semesters. Undergraduate students may receive the award a total of two times.

Students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards.

The Campus Life Award is granted to undergraduates by the University Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Students are eligible for nominations on the basis of a 2.6 cumulative average. Students are eligible to receive the award more than once. Sophomores, juniors and seniors are encouraged to apply.

Nominees for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, service to the University and potential for future achievement. Eligibility for the award is open to juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point average. Students are not eligible to receive the award more than once.

The English Department plans to offer another winter term course in London from January 10-24 and, according to Associate Professor Jim Welsh, it is the best bargain tour that has been offered in several years.

Hall's Tidewater Travel of Salisbury submitted the lowest bid for the 1994 London Tour—$795 for the transcontinental flight, bus transfers and two weeks in a good London hotel, including breakfast. Tuition for the course, which will focus on British literature and culture, is additional to the basic tour cost, but the travel costs are $250 lower than when the London course was last offered in 1992. In 1993 professors Welsh and Patricia Killian accompanied a group of students to London and

Keillor Revives Prairie Home Companion

One of America's foremost humorists, Garrison Keillor, returns to the air this fall on WSCL-FM, 89.5, with 32 new live broadcasts of A Prairie Home Companion, his two-hour Saturday night musical variety show broadcast at 6 p.m. on Saturdays. A Prairie Home Companion begins its season on October 2 with a live broadcast from the World Theater in St. Paul, MN. Guitar virtuoso Leo Kottke and latino songwriter Tish Hinojosa join Keillor for the season's premiere.

After a season in which Keillor's program played to sold-out audiences from coast to coast and added more than 40 new public radio affiliate stations Keillor decided it was time to resume broadcasting under his program's popular, original title, A Prairie Home Companion, first used in 1974.

Keillor has been rethinking the show's its content and purpose: "I imagine the show as a weekly two-hour festival for people who are cooking or driving or are wondering why nobody invited them out. We'll present more music, and we'll present more folk music."

"Our copyright on the name was expiring. In broadcasting, if you don't use it, you lose it, and the thought of somebody else taking the name Prairie Home Companion for a program or a line of performers or anything else made me feel so bad I decided we should renew the copyright and start using the name ourselves. It's the same show it ever was except better," said Keillor.

For more information call 543-6895.

Dublin. Welsh has taken 11 groups to England since 1984.

The hotel for the 1994 trip is the White House, located in central London near Regent's Park, and is rated first class. The $795 travel fee, payable to Tidewater Travel, covers a shared room, though private rooms are also available for an additional fee.

Dr. John Molenda of the SSU Biology Department is also offering another travel course at the same time in January keyed to biology and the history of science that will be more expensive because it includes overnight accommodations in Scotland. Jeanne Anderton of the SSU Art Department is also proposing a course that plans to use the same hotel and flights (Virgin Atlantic, out of Newark, NJ).

The English course will include optional side-trips to the English countryside by coach or train, visiting, as in the past, Bath, Salisbury and Stonehenge, Stratford-upon-Avon, Warwick and Oxford, Cambridge and Ely, all within easy driving distance from London. For the first-time visitor the course is structured so that students may see as much of the country as possible in a two-week span.

"On previous trips," Welsh said, "we have covered most of the major cathedrals in eight cities outside London, and many of us still managed to take in as many as eight London plays besides seeing the major sites of London. With careful planning a lot of territory can be covered in a few weeks."

Interest meetings will be held on campus, in Devilbiss Auditorium, on Tuesday, October 12, at 9 p.m. and on Thursday, October 21, at 8:30 p.m. Any students interested in the trip and course may call the English Department at 543-6446 or Welsh at 749-4190.

"You'll never find a cheaper passage to England or as much value for the money," Welsh said.

'87 Grad Gets Chiropractic Degree

Maria-Luisa Carey, a 1987 graduate of SSU, was conferred with a Doctor of Chiropractic degree, summa cum laude, during New York Chiropractic College's August commencement ceremony. Named valedictorian, Carey was inducted to the Phi Chi Omega International Chiropractic Honor Society for maintaining an average GPA of 3.5 or more for at least three consecutive trimesters.

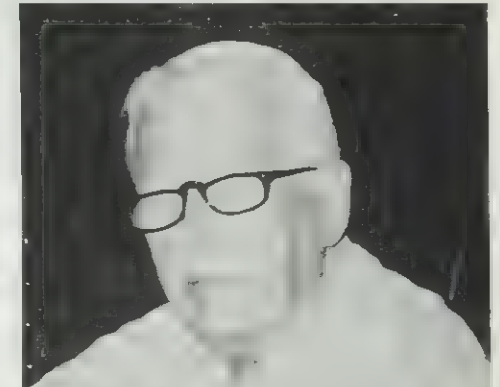

During commencement Carey was presented the Distinguished Service Award. The award is presented to members of the graduating class who have assisted in institutional development. Candidates have represented the college at career days, health fairs, conventions or other functions which benefit the college.

The officers and board of directors of the Alumni Association chose Carey as recipient of their Alumni Award in recognition of her leadership abilities. Carey was presented the Chiropractic Technique Award as well.

The B.J. Palmer Memorial Award was also presented to Carey. The award is presented to a member of the graduating class who has a minimum of one article published in a professional journal or magazine.

Carey also received the Levittown Clinic Award. Appointed as director's assistant, Carey performed at a high level of excellence during her clinic tour in the area of patient evaluation and adjustment procedures. In addition to her personal development of these skills, she demonstrated an aptitude for assistance in the development of similar skills in other interns.

Philip Berrigan To Speak

Philip Berrigan

"Peacemaking in the Clinton Era" is the subject of a lecture by former Catonsville 9 member Philip Berrigan on Wednesday, October 20.

The presentation is part of the Fall Lecture Series titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

In 1968, Berrigan, his brother, the Rev. Daniel Berrigan, and seven others, known collectively as the Catonsville 9, burned draft records they had taken forcibly from the offices of the U.S. Selective Service in Catonsville, MD, as a protest against the Vietnam War. Labeled an anarchist group, they each served time in federal prison.

A former Catholic priest, Berrigan was also a member of the Baltimore 4, the Plowshares 8 and other Plowshares actions. He has spent more than six years in prison for his various activities.

Today, Berrigan lives and works with his wife, Elizabeth McAllister, and three children in a nonviolent resistance community in Baltimore called Jonah House. He continues his commitment to pacifism through radical civil disobedience.

The Fall Lecture Series includes nine lectures plus a film screening and performance by 1960s singing group The Mamas and the Papas. It is a presentation of the SSU Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

For more information or a lecture series schedule, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

'Blacks in Media' Subject of Lecture

MTV personality Kevin Powell presents a lecture on "The Portrayal of Blacks In the Media" on Tuesday, October 19, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Featured on MTV's The Real World and host of the MTV documentary, Straight from the Hood, Powell is also an award-winning poet, staff writer for VIBE Magazine and co-editor of the new book, In the Tradition: An Anthology of Young Black Writers (Harlem River Press). Other publications he has contributed to include Essence, Rolling Stone, The Source, The New York Times and Volume.

Powell is a graduate of Rutgers University with degrees in English and political science. This event is sponsored by the Union of African American Students at SSU. Admission is a donation to the SSU chapter of Habitat for Humanity.

Please call 548-4503 for further information.

Art Department Sponsors Workshop

The Art Department is sponsoring three workshops on image transferring, a photographic technique that is increasingly popular in both fine art and advertising. The workshops, conducted by Gordon Grow, a representative from Polaroid, Inc., are on Wednesday, October 20, at noon, 2:30 p.m. and 5 p.m.

According to Jeanne Anderton, Art Department professor, the technique involves transfer of an exposed Polaroid film image onto other materials, typically paper or fabric.

The public is invited to participate in the workshops at no charge, but because space is limited reservations are required. They may be made by calling the Art Department between 8 a.m.-3 p.m. Monday through Thursday at 543-6270 by Wednesday, October 13.

Participants should bring at least one 35 mm slide image to use in the workshop.

For more information contact Anderton at the Art Department.

Environmental Group Meets on Campus

The next meeting of the Community Environmental Organization (CEO) is on Wednesday, October 6, at 7 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Rai Sharma, director of public works for Wicomico County, will update CEO members on the status of recycling in the county.

CEO members recently participated in Salisbury Zoo Appreciation Day and distributed literature about recycling and composting.

President Kathleen Otway said that among the goals of CEO this year are to establish a recycling education presentation for area schools, continue the recycling poster contest and co-sponsor the third annual Delmarva Recycling Conference.

Persons interested in recycling are encouraged to attend the meeting and become aware of the recycling efforts currently going on in Wicomico County.

For more information contact CEO at 742-3153.

Prevailing Winds, a woodwind quintet whose repertoire features special arrangements of classical and jazz favorites, perform on Sunday, October 10, at 2 p.m. The concert, free and open to the public, is in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The concert is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee. For more information, contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Faculty Grants Workshop

There is a grants workshop coming on Friday, November 19, from 12:30-3:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center for those who would like to know more about the grants process. The purpose of the workshop is to review funding sources in general and specifics about grant writing. Some of the resources of the Grants Office will be available to peruse.

For more information call Sandy Ramses, Grants and Sponsored Research Office, at 548-5395 by November 5.

Wenke Short Story In Cimarron Review

Dr. John Wenke, associate professor of English, published works of fiction and criticism over the summer.

His short story, House Arrest, appeared in the July issue of Cimarron Review.

In American Literary Scholarship 1991: An Annual, published this year by Duke University Press, Wenke reported on and evaluated the year's significant published work on Herman Melville. This is the second year the SSU professor, a nationally recognized Melville authority, has reviewed Melville scholarship for the annual. Wenke also is contracted for the 1992 annual edition.

Outdoor Club Plans Pair of Trips

The next two Outdoor Club trips for the fall are backpacking and horsepacking. The dates for the backpacking trip are October 23-25. The horsepacking trip is October 24-25.

Sign up at the Outdoor Club Monday meetings on October 11 and 18 in the Nanticoke Room B of the Guerrieri University Center.

There is a rock climbing trip to Great Falls, VA, on Saturday, November 6, with a rain date on November 7. For additional information contact Wendy Rosen at 546-4392 or Mike Bank at 860-1532.

Xerox Prime Sponsor of Fall Golf Classic

The 10th annual SSU Foundation Fall Golf Classic's prime sponsor this year is Xerox Corporation. Pictured (clockwise from bottom left) are Roy Beauchamp, co-chair of the Golf Classic; Tom White, account executive for Xerox Corporation; Robert Gearhart, director of the SSU Foundation; Wayne Towers, national account manager with the Towson (MD) office of Xerox Corporation; and Dick Young, co-chair of the Golf Classic Committee. The Golf Classic is Friday, October 15, at Green Hill Yacht and Country Club. For more information call the Office of Institutional Advancement at 543-6175.

The Xerox Corporation is this year's prime sponsor of the 10th annual SSU Foundation Fall Golf Classic on Friday, October 15, at Green Hill Yacht and Country Club.

"It's competitive, it's well run, it's for an excellent cause, but, mostly, it's a real good time," said Tom White an SSU alumnus and account executive for the Xerox Corporation.

who has played in the tournament several times.

"Xerox is thrilled to be in partnership with such a first class institution as Salisbury State University," said Wayne Towers, national account manager with the Towson (MD) office of Xerox Corporation. "The University makes such an invaluable contribution to the community—economically, socially, culturally—that we at Xerox are proud to be a part of the SSU team."

The purpose of the event is to raise support for special programs. Some programs that benefit from the event are faculty research and development, cultural enrichment, the Salisbury State University Honors House and student scholarships.

A general sponsorship is $200. The entry fee is $50 per player, entitling the participant to greens fees, golf cart, refreshments throughout the day, two bar tickets for after-the-round use, a roast beef and chicken buffet that evening and complimentary gifts.

The golfers with the low team score in the scramble format will have their names placed on the President's Cup which is on permanent display in the Social Room of Holloway Hall.

Awards will be given to the teams with the lowest scores for four flights, including mixed teams. Cash and merchandise prizes will be awarded for other low teams and to individuals for long drive on various holes and closet ball to the hole on par-3 holes.

The biggest individual prize will go to the golfer who scores a hole-in-one on the par 3 fourth hole. Price-Buick will provide the hole-in-one golfer with a Buick Regal.

An added competition, now in its third year, will reward players who are most adept on the greens. The "Peninsula's Purest Putter Contest" will feature 36 golfers, one representative from each foursome, vying for over $300 in prize money. The putting contest will immediately precede the regular tournament.

The SSU Foundation, established for the encouragement and enrichment of education at the University, is incorporated as a voluntary association of community leaders solely for education, charitable and scientific purposes.

For more information on the Golf Classic call the Office of Institutional Advancement at 543-6175.

AT&T Investment Challenge Offers $100,000 in Prizes

All set to dazzle the big guns on Wall Street with your savvy investment strategy? You are if you're playing the sixth annual AT&T Collegiate Investment Challenge this year. College students can use this exciting stock market simulation to practice investing on Wall Street, win prizes, get real-world resume experience and have fun at the same time. Registration is open now through Monday, October 11. (Late registration accepted until October 31).

The event is a "user-friendly" interactive investment competition that gives students a hands-on, risk-free opportunity to manage a stock portfolio. This year's Challenge begins October 11 and closes on December 10 at a reduced rate of $39.95. Over 15,000 college students and educators from all over the country will hit Wall Street armed with a fictional $500,000 cash budget and lots of ideas. The goal? Buy and sell real stocks in an effort to turn that half million into the highest portfolio value.

Educators and students in the Investment Challenge should call Dr. Kashi Khazeh at 543-6328, or Replica Corporation at 1 (800) 545-1975, ext. 12, for further details about participating.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Freshman Eric Viggiano's second goal of the game, with just 1.1 seconds remaining in the second overtime, enabled the Sea Gulls (3-4-1) to tie the 11th-ranked Rowan 2-2 last weekend. Viggiano's dramatic goal extended SSU's unbeaten streak to four straight games. Just three days earlier, it was fellow freshman Matt Tirschman who provided the heroics, scoring two goals in a 3-2 win at Johns Hopkins.

The volleyball team brought home its second tournament championship in as many weeks by winning the Washington College Invitational in Chestertown last Saturday. SSU (17-7 overall) won all five of its matches to claim the title. Individual standouts included Shannon Cianelli (52 kills and 21 digs); Courtney Moore (47 kills, 17 digs and nine aces); Laurie Waters (22 kills, 56 blocks); and Jen Bowman (117 assists, 26 blocks). The Gulls will go for three in a row this weekend at the Gallaudet College Tournament in Washington, D.C.

The women's tennis team improved to 5-1 on the season with a pair of 9-0 victories. The Gulls defeated both Virginia Wesleyan and Trinity with perfect singles and doubles play. Through the first month, Kris Dodson, Nikki Lee and Kelly Carey share the team lead with six singles victories apiece. Since a season-opening loss to Catholic, SSU has won its last five matches by a combined 41-4 count.

The field hockey squad faces perhaps its stiffest challenge of the season this Thursday with a visit to perennial powerhouse Trenton State. The Gulls (6-5) are coming off a 1-1 weekend which saw them fall 3-2 to Eastern Mennonite and defeat Frostburg State 3-1. Freshman Susan Falz continued her torrid scoring pace with three goals in the two games. Falz has 14 goals through the first 11 games. Jen Stone and Liz DiLullo also tallied markers against Frostburg.

The men's and women's cross country teams compete at the Maryland State Championship in College Park this Saturday. Both squads are coming off strong third-place finishes at last week's Franklin & Marshall Invitational. Kelly Delp (17th) and Vicki Huchko (22nd) were SSU's top women finishers, while Jeff Hankins (11th) and Matt Piotrowski (29th) paced the Sea Gull men.

After a week off, the football team returns to action this Saturday with a visit to Rowan. The Sea Gulls (1-2) look to rebound from a 34-21 loss to Frostburg State two weeks ago, while Rowan improved to 3-1 with a 14-13 win over Trenton State last Saturday.

Bus Trip Scheduled To Large Outlet Mall

There is a bus trip to Franklin Mills Mall (outside of Philadelphia) on Saturday, November 13.

The bus leaves at 6 a.m. from the Guerrieri University Center parking lot and returns at 10 p.m. that evening. Franklin Mills Mall is a huge outlet shopping mall, on one floor under one roof.

The stores are top quality outlet stores. This is an opportunity to do some holiday shopping and save money plus have a nice day.

Sponsored by chapter 72, SSU of Maryland Classified Employees Association, the price is $12 for non-members of MCEA and $8 for members. Please give money to Judy Lowe in the Registrar's Office or Barbara Keene in Student Activities and Minority Affairs Office. Deadline to pay is Friday, October 22.

Get Flu Vaccine At Health Services

Flu season is rapidly approaching. The U.S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta predicts that this year will be more severe than last year, especially for Type A Virus.

The SSU community experienced epidemics of both Type A and Type B virus during the last flu season, which at its peak required treatment for in excess of 150 students per day for a consecutive three-week period.

Vaccines have been shown to be effective in reducing the incidence and severity of influenza infections.

Student Health Services will have flu vaccine available in mid October at a cost of $5 for students, faculty and staff.

Please call SHS for details on dates and locations at 543-6263.

Open Enrollment For Health Insurance

Open Enrollment for health insurance is from October 25 to November 19.

Representatives of the various health programs will be on campus to assist employees who have questions about their insurance coverage on Thursday, October 28. The Wicomico Room in the Guerrieri University Center is the site of the annual benefits fair from 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m.

In addition to the insurance representatives, there will be free screenings of blood pressure, eye tests, body fat measurements and informational literature on how to maintain a healthy life style. Free refreshments and give-aways will be available as well as a raffle for free tickets to Brunch on the Hill.

Maryland National CEO Great Leader Lecturer

On the heels of an historic merger in the banking industry, Frank P. Bramble, chairman of NationsBank, Maryland and chairman, president and chief executive officer of Maryland National Bank, will be the first speaker in the Great Leader Lecture Series at SSU on Tuesday, October 26. The series is sponsored by the Perdue School of Business.

MNC Financial, Inc., which had been Maryland's largest bank, merged with the country's fourth largest, NationsBank and has accepted the challenge of improving the company's profitability nationwide.

With banking operations in nine states and the District of Columbia, NationsBank now has about $140 billion in assets and projects that the recent merger will save the company about $100 million in annual operating costs.

Bramble's 25-year career in banking began in the Finance Division of Maryland National Bank. Having joined the bank as an accounting clerk, Bramble rose through the ranks of assistant controller and deputy controller before being named vice president of strategic planning in 1978.

The following year Bramble joined Danielson Associates (consultants) as an associate director, then left there to found his own consulting company. Bramble Associates provided strategic planning and financial analysis services for approximately 35 bank and thrift clients.

When Bramble returned to Maryland National in 1983, he became a vice president in the bank's International Division. Since that time he has served as senior vice president and chief financial officer of Maryland National Bank, executive vice president of MNC Financial in charge of the Equitable/MNC merger, and president, chief executive officer and director of MNC Financial, Inc. Bramble was MNC Financial's president and CEO prior to the NationsBank merger.

The Great Leader Lecture Series is designed to offer Perdue School students and faculty and members of the local business community the opportunity to learn from the leaders of some of the country's largest and most successful corporations. In connection with Bramble's visit on Tuesday, October 26, there is a coffee from 10:30-11 a.m. in the lounge of the Guerrieri University Center. Bramble's lecture in the Wicomico Room begins at 11 a.m. Both are open to the public.

25 Years Later, Philip Berrigan Still Preaching, Practicing Civil Disobedience

By Glenn Tolbert

"They shall beat their swords into plowshares..."
Proverbs 21:9

His resume reads like a graduate cum laude of the criminal world with time earned in the hard knock schools of Lewisburg Penitentiary and the Baltimore County Jail.

This is the man who did time for beating the heads of nuclear missiles with a hammer. His record includes pleading guilty to pouring his own blood on draft cards. He and his brother, Daniel, and Martin Luther King permanently pounded the words "civil disobedience" into the lingo of the '60s.

The passing of time of which 6 1/2 years has been spent behind bars has given him the face of a 70-year-old but with a gentle defiance that still twinkles in the eyes. Beneath the full shock of gray hair lies a brain still fermenting another reason to go back to jail. All for the cause of peace. All under the banner of nonviolent, civil disobedience.

"If I don't oppose them, I join them," said the quintessential protestor. Surely many wish these ideals he still launches had died with the era that spawned them. But he's still at it.

"I just got out of jail for my actions against the Johns Hopkins Applied Physics Laboratories. They're doing some really nasty stuff there."

Guidance systems for the submarine launched Trident missile and the Tomahawk Cruise missile. Stuff like that. First strike capability in the nuclear realm. Nasty stuff.

His abhorrence of "nasty stuff" manifested in 1960s with actions against the government that made his and his brother's names synonymous with social protest. Philip and Daniel Berrigan, two Catholic priests, were busy doing the Lord's work in what struck many newspaper readers of the time as mysterious ways.

Their leap from quietly practicing Catholic theology to appearing in the national media began 25 years ago in Catonsville, MD, when they burned draft records. They got prison time for that as well as headline news and credit for changing the face of the mounting movement against the Vietnam War.

That war in Southeast Asia has long ended. But Philip Berrigan's own private battles continue. His headquarters is a rundown rowhouse on a street in Baltimore where police helicopters keep steady surveillance on a neighborhood of random violence.

"People are desperate nowadays. They've turned against each other in a last ditch effort

Lauded Vietnamese Filmmaker Shows Her Documentary Oct. 18

Tiana could be mistaken for a typical Asian American in search of the American Dream, but she has reinvented herself several times from a budding starlet of karate movies, a Queen of the B's, to Tiana Banana, the rock video star, to a serious documentary filmmaker in search of her roots.

Born Thi Thanh Nga in Vietnam ("Tiana" is an Americanization of her name), she came to the United States with her family in 1965, leaving behind a beloved Uncle and other relatives. Against the advice of her father, she decided to return to Vietnam to restore family ties. The film she made documenting that journey, From Hollywood to Hanoi, was nominated for Best Nonfiction Film at the 1993 Sundance Film Festival and was praised by Roger Ebert in the Chicago Sun-Times ("a powerful, gutsy film") and by Oliver Stone ("a bold, new and long overdue film").

Tiana will appear with her new film on Monday, October 18, at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Auditorium in a screening funded by the Guerrieri University Center and the English Department. The film recently had its Washington D.C. premiere at the Key Theatre

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times.
3. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
4. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
5. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
6. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
7. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
8. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
9. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
10. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
11. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Night Light Golf Benefits Habitat Project

The SSU Golf Club is sponsoring a Night Light Tournament at Nutters Crossing Golf Club in Salisbury on Saturday, October 23. Proceeds from the event, which begins at dusk, benefit the SSU chapter of Habitat for Humanity.

A nine-hole, four-person scramble with a shotgun start, registration fees are $15 for students and $20 for faculty, staff and guests. Low team score wins. A special putting contest begins at 4:15 p.m.; the entry fee for the putting contest is $1.

Individuals may register without a team. The tournament director will form teams from such entries.

Golfers must check in by 5 p.m. A pre-tournament meeting will be held at 5:15 p.m. after which golfers will proceed to their tees for the start.

Each golfer will be issued one night light golf ball and tee. Only those balls may be used during play. Additional balls may be purchased during the tournament for $5 each.

Registration forms are available at the Campus Recreation Office in the Maggs Center. For more information call 543-6080.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Office Automation Specialist

SSU has an opening for an office automation specialist in the Office of Computer Services.

Duties include: provide PC support throughout the campus to units configured as both stand alone and networks (using Digital's PATHWORKS); developing and conducting training classes for staff and faculty; evaluating software and hardware; and installing software.

Qualifications include a Bachelor's degree (preferred), extensive experience with DOS, WordPerfect and Windows, and working knowledge of LOTUS 1-2-3, Quattro Pro, Presentations, Harvard Graphics, DataPerfect, dBase, Paradox, Reflection and Kermit. Applicants must be self-motivated, able to work with minimal supervision and have a desire to keep abreast of the latest technology. The position requires good oral and written communication skills and the ability to work as a team member. The position reports to the director of computer services. A permanent state position with an excellent benefits package, the starting salary range is $25,000-$30,000, based on experience. Interested applicants may submit a letter of application, resume and a list of at least three references, with addresses and telephone numbers, to the Personnel Office. Applications will be reviewed starting October 18 and will continue until the position is filled.

Codependents Anonymous Meets on Saturdays

Codependents Anonymous is now meeting on Saturdays at 8 p.m. in the Choptank Room in the Guerrieri University Center. Text for the meeting is the daybook, The Language of Letting Go by Melody Beattie. Members of Al-ANON and ACOA are encouraged to attend.

SSU Theatre Trip Set for Richard II

The Guerrieri University Center Office has scheduled a student bus trip to the Shakespeare Theatre in Washington, D.C. on Thursday, October 21. Actor Richard Thomas will be making his first Shakespeare Theatre appearance in the title role of the powerful tragedy, Richard II.

Richard II was written probably in 1595 and portrays Richard II of England as he faces a crisis of identity that threatens to destroy not only him but his nation's confidence in the Royal Office.

Remembered as "John-Boy" on the Emmy Award-winning TV series, The Waltons, Thomas is well-known for his accomplishments in classical theatre. He has been acting since he was six-years-old and made his professional Broadway debut at seven. His career has included acting and directing on stage, television and film, in modern and classical pieces, with traditional and avant-garde approach. Richard II will only be Thomas' second major Shakespearean role.

The cost for full-time students is $15 and sign up is at the information desk in the Guerrieri Center. (An SSU I.D. is necessary.) Part-time students, faculty, staff and guests may sign up; the cost is $20.

For more information about this and other bus trips, call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6006.

Equestrian Club Forms on Campus

The Equestrian Club, a new SSU club recently approved, is open for any student or faculty member interested in horses.

The club offers educational, recreational and competitive opportunities as well as discount rates at a local riding academy, Unicorn Stables. Upcoming events include a beach ride, the Washington International, a jumping clinic and a tour of the New Bolton Veterinary Center in Unionville, PA.

If interested in joining contact the club by writing to SSU Box 3011, or by calling Sharon Miner at 546-2941, evenings.

Maintenance Mechanic

Salisbury State has an immediate opening for a maintenance mechanic to perform semi-skilled work in general building maintenance and equipment monitoring. This is full-time contractual position (no paid benefits) paying $15,704-$16,562 per year depending on experience.

The schedule is a five-day/40-hour work week to include nights and weekends as dictated by rotating shift. The employee will perform routine preventive maintenance and minor repair work on mechanical equipment, fixtures and various building components. The ability to read and interpret pressure and temperature gauges and maintain a written log of activities is required. Knowledge of hot water boilers is desired.

Applications will be accepted in the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall until October 22.

25+ Student Union Sponsors Reception

The 25+ Student Union is sponsoring a pre-theater reception prior to the matinee performance of the Miracle Worker on Sunday, October 17. The reception is from 12:30-1:30 p.m. in the Social Room of Holloway Hall.

All full-time 25+ students should have received a registration form in the mail. Please return the completed forms to P.O. Box 3074 or call Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313. Anyone else wishing to register can pick up a registration form in Liszkowska's office.

Wildlife Photographer Discusses Great Apes

Gerry Ellis, one of the premier nature and wildlife photographers in the world, discusses "The Great Apes" during a lecture and slide program on Monday, October 25, at 7:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the SSU Outdoor Club and Wilderness Orientation Program, Ellis' presentation is in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center and is free and open to the public.

Ellis is internationally acclaimed for his photography of chimpanzees, gorillas and orangutans—the great apes. He is the foremost photographer of endangered primates in the history of photography; notoriety which has led to the label "The ape man of photography." His stunning, heart-wrenching and arresting images of great apes in the wild, as well as their plight in captivity, have afforded the world an intimate perspective on nature's most fascinating creatures and our sometimes less-than-humane treatment of them.

Ellis' travels to document nature have led him to every continent on the globe, including Antarctica. His photographs of the rarest and most beautiful of the earth's wilds are regularly featured on the pages and covers of such prestigious international books and magazines as BBC Wildlife, National Geographic publications, Terre Sauvage, Natural History, Smithsonian and World Wildlife Fund. To date, he has had six books published including America's Rain Forest, Gorilla, Penguins, The Outdoor Traveler's Guides to the Caribbean and Australia and Safari.

Ellis' photographic career began 15 years ago behind the lens of underwater and microscopic cameras. From an overwhelmingly technical introduction to photography, his aesthetic eye

'Elemental Abstractions' at University Gallery

The work of three artists who met at the Maryland Institute College of Art in Baltimore are featured in an upcoming exhibit at the University.

Titled "Elemental Abstractions," the show features a collection of large, sometimes irregularly shaped canvases by Timothy App, William Brooke Rogers and Kevin Wolff. The exhibit is in the University Gallery October 21-November 17.

App, who teaches painting and is chair of the foundation program at the Maryland Institute, has exhibited nationally including shows in Santa Fe, NM, Dallas, Chicago, Los Angeles and New York. A graduate of Kent State University, App received a Master of Fine Arts from the Tyler School of Art of Temple University in Philadelphia.

Rogers, who is originally from Ocean City, quickly emerged with great influence. In recent years his artistry with the camera has been acknowledged with awards from the British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC) and an ADDY award in his native Pacific Northwest.

His solid background in natural history and environmental studies combined with an uncompromising love for wild things has led Ellis to focus his lens and energies on photographing animals, cultures and wild places. With the fall 1991 release of America's Rain Forest, a book chronicling the beauty and complexity of the greatest temperate rainforest on earth, Ellis has become recognized as one of the top rain forest photographers working today.

Ellis backs up his beliefs with time, earnings and photographs contributed to many of the organizations associated with his photographic subjects: the Jane Goodall Foundation (chimpanzees), Digit Fund (mountain gorillas), International Snow Leopard Trust, Rain Forest Alliance, Ngare Sergo Rhino Sanctuary and the Central American rainforest program, "Adopt-An Acre." The international conservation organization World Wildlife Fund (WWF) has relied on his photographic talents year after year. In fact, Ellis is the only photographer to have appeared on three consecutive covers of WWF's celebrated wildlife calendar.

An engaging and articulate spokesperson for the wilds, Ellis and his photography have been the subject of numerous magazine articles and featured on television programs such as CBS Sunday Morning, PBS's Living with Animals and One Norway Street (Monitor Television).

received a B.A. from Judson College in Elgin, IL, and a M.F.A. in 1992 from the Hofferger School of Painting at the Maryland Institute. He has exhibited in Baltimore, Washington, D.C., and Illinois.

Wolff graduated from Denison University and Vanderbilt University Law School before studying art on a part-time basis for six years at the Corcoran School of Art in Washington, D.C. He received a M.F.A. from the Maryland Institute this year and is now a "free-lance lawyer" and a full-time artist.

The University Gallery is located in Fulton Hall. Gallery hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Tuesday; noon-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday; and closed Friday.

Who'll Stop the Rain Shown Here Oct. 18

The film Who'll Stop the Rain?, starring Nick Nolte and based on the book Dog Soldiers by Robert Stone, will be shown on Monday, October 18, in anticipation of the Robert Stone reading at SSU on Thursday, October 28.

Both presentations are part of the Fall Lecture Series at SSU titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The film will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center and the Robert Stone reading will be at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge for either event.

Stone is the author of five novels: A Hall of Mirrors (1967), Dog Soldiers (1974), A Flag for Sunrise (1981), Children of the Light (1986) and Outerbridge Reach (1993).

Born in Brooklyn, NY, Stone was raised in New York City. He served in the Navy from 1955 to 1958 before attending New York University and Stanford University. He has taught at Amherst College, Princeton University, Harvard University, the University of California, New York University and the University of Hawaii. Currently, he teaches at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore.

For more information or a lecture series schedule, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

MTV personality Kevin Powell presents a lecture on "The Portrayal of Blacks in the Media" on Tuesday, October 19, at 7:30 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

Cleary Painting Sale Benefits Art Gallery

Art professor John Cleary is offering the public a chance to own one of his paintings and help out the new University Gallery in Fulton Hall at the same time.

The untitled red, white and black abstract painting, currently on display at Salisbury Art & Framing, is listed at $550. If the painting is sold during the next two months, Cleary will equally split the percentage he receives with the University Gallery's exhibition program.

The state-of-the-art University Gallery opened one year ago with an exhibit of prints by Spanish surrealist Joan Miro. In May, the gallery was the setting for an exhibition of drawings by 20th century American painter Edward Hopper. The gallery's special climate control and security systems have enabled the University to feature high-caliber work that, in the past, would never have been seen on the Eastern Shore.

However, state budget cuts over the past year have severely threatened the University Gallery's operations. The University's Gala for the Gallery in May succeeded in raising funds to cover expenses over the next year.

Cleary, who has offered his work before to the University's annual Art Scholarship Sale, said this is the first time he has agreed to donate a portion of his sales proceeds to the University Gallery.

In his painting, Cleary tries to simplify color by using it straight from the tube with little or no mixing. His work tends to be shape oriented and creates a rhythm of its own. "It's akin to a poet with a certain measure in mind, or a composer creating a certain beat," he said.

Cleary is a former member of the Gallery Committee at SSU and has been on the faculty since 1975. His work has been exhibited widely throughout Maryland and Delaware, as well as in shows in Pennsylvania, Ohio, North Carolina, West Virginia, Texas and New York. He holds a Bachelor of Fine Arts from Pennsylvania State University and a Master of Fine Arts from Washington University in St. Louis.

For more information, call Salisbury Art & Framing at 742-9522.

Dana was born in Boston in 1929 and has lived in Iowa for many years, where he is poet-in-residence at Cornell College. The author of eight books of poetry, including "Some Versions of Silence" (Norton, 1967), "The Power of the Visible" (Swallow, 1971), "In a Fugitive Season" (Swallow/Ohio University Press, 1980) and "Starting Out for the Difficult World" (Harper & Row, 1987), he has served as distinguished visiting poet at four universities and was awarded a fellowship in creative writing from the National Endowment for the Arts in 1985.

Dana's work won The Delmore Schwartz Memorial Award for Poetry in 1989. His recent work appears in Poetry, The American Poetry Review and The Georgia Review. His most recent book is "What I Think I Know: New and Selected Poems" (Another Chicago Press, 1992).

Dana's visit inaugurates the 1993-94 Writers-on-the-Shore series, sponsored by the SSU Department of English. His reading is free and the public is invited. A reception will follow. For more information call 543-6030.

January Courses Taught in London

The English Department plans to offer another winter term course in London from January 10-24 and, according to Associate Professor Jim Welsh, it is the best bargain tour that has been offered in several years.

Hall's Tidewater Travel of Salisbury submitted the lowest bid for the 1994 London Tour—$795 for the transcontinental flight, bus transfers and two weeks in a good London hotel, including breakfast. Tuition for the course, which will focus on British literature and culture, is additional to the basic tour cost, but the travel costs are $250 lower than when the London course was last offered in 1992. In 1993 professors Welsh and Patricia Killian accompanied a group of students to London and Dublin. Welsh has taken 11 groups to England since 1984.

An interest meetings will be held in Devilbiss Auditorium on Thursday, October 21, at 8:30 p.m. Any students interested in the trip and course may call the English Department at 543-6446 or Welsh at 749-4190.

"You'll never find a cheaper passage to England or as much value for the money," Welsh said.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Honors Convocation Award Forms Available

Nomination forms and award application packets for Achievement Key, Campus Life and Who's Who are now available in the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, room 212. Students, faculty, staff or student organizations may nominate students to receive awards, or a student may propose his or her own name for consideration.

Criteria for nominations for each of the awards are described below. Nomination forms are due in the Dean of Students Office no later than October 20. Students are eligible for the following awards provided they have completed at least 18 credit hours total for fall 1992 and spring 1993 semesters.

The Achievement Key is awarded on the basis of outstanding scholarship and outstanding campus and/or community service. Students become eligible for nomination upon receiving a 3.6 academic average for each of the two preceding semesters. Undergraduate students may receive the award a total of two times. Students may be nominated for both Campus Life and Achievement Key awards.

The Campus Life Award is granted to undergraduates by the University Honors Convocation Committee of the faculty on the basis of outstanding contributions to campus life. Students are eligible for nominations on the basis of a 2.6 cumulative average. Students are eligible to receive the award more than once. Sophomores, juniors and seniors are encouraged to apply.

Nominees for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges are evaluated on the basis of scholarship, participation and leadership in academic and extracurricular activities, service to the University and potential for future achievement. Eligibility for the award is open to juniors, seniors and graduate students with a 3.0 overall grade point average. Students are not eligible to receive the award more than once.

Bus Trip Scheduled To Large Outlet Mall

There is a bus trip to Franklin Mills Mall (outside of Philadelphia) on Saturday, November 13.

The bus leaves at 6 a.m. from the Guerrieri University Center parking lot and returns at 10 p.m. that evening. Franklin Mills Mall is a huge outlet shopping mall, on one floor under one roof.

The stores are top quality outlet stores. This is an opportunity to do some holiday shopping and save money plus have a nice day.

Sponsored by chapter 72, SSU of Maryland Classified Employees Association, the price is $12 for non-members of MCEA and $8 for members. Please give money to Judy Lowe in the Registrar's Office or Barbara Keene in Student Activities and Minority Affairs Office. Deadline to pay is Friday, October 22.

Outdoor Club Has Pair of Trips

The next two Outdoor Club trips for the fall are backpacking and horsepacking. The dates for the backpacking trip are October 23-25. The horsepacking trip is the same weekend, October 24-25.

Sign up at the meeting on Monday, October 18, in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center.

There is a rock-climbing trip to Great Falls, VA, on November 6 with a rain date of November 7. For additional information contact Wendy Rosen at 546-4392 or Mike Bank at 860-1532.

Tickets for Graduation Required at Commencement

Because of the increasing number of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and is implemented for each succeeding ceremony.

Each December graduate is provided 15 guest tickets.

Please note the following dates and deadlines: November 17-19, pick up caps, gowns, announcements and 15 tickets at the Graduation Center in the Book Rack (please return any tickets not needed to the Guerrieri University Center information desk); and December 15-18, pick up extra guest tickets as they become available at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first come, first served basis.

More commencement information will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the SSU News, Flyer and MAX for details.

Spring Student Teaching Orientation Meeting Set

Education majors who wish to student teach during spring semester and have completed or are in the process of completing their professional education (methods) classes are requested to attend an orientation meeting on Friday, October 29, from 10 a.m.-noon in Nanticoke Rooms A, B and C of the Guerrieri University Center.

Sharon Clark, director of field experiences in the Education Department, will explain the student teaching program and the application process.

Also, Linda Benson of the Center for Personal and Professional Development will present information on how to begin preparing for a job search.

Application forms are available from the Education Department. Completed student teaching applications must be submitted to Clark by November 1. Student teaching applications received after the deadline will not be accepted.

Campus Recreation Has Fitness Week

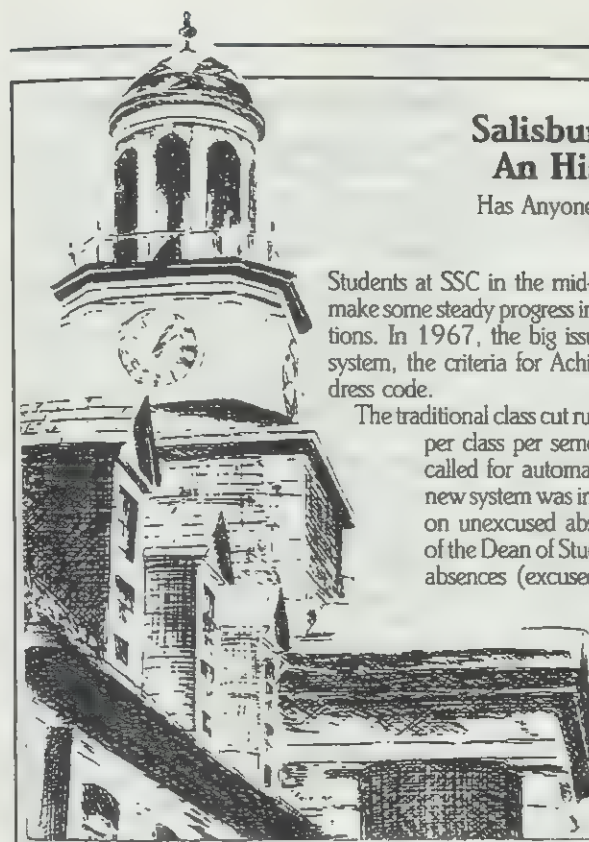

In an effort to improve the exercise habits of American college students, SSU is one of 300 schools participating in the fifth annual Timex Fitness Week Presented by Ocean Spray. The event, held during the week of October 18-25, is endorsed by the National Intramural-Recreational Sports Association (NIRSA).

During the week of fitness, each school's recreation department will showcase a variety of running, swimming, cycling and aerobics activities ranging from introductory clinics to triathlons. All of the schools will stage the Timex Condition Competition, testing students' fitness against national standards.

"The World's Largest Aerobics Class," a free aerobics class is on Thursday, October 21, in conjunction with all 300 schools. Last year an estimated 25,000 students participated in the aerobics marathon.

For information about local Timex Fitness Week events contact Wayne Gorrow in the Campus Recreation Office in Maggs Gym.

Timex watches and T-shirts will be awarded as prizes, and free samples of Ocean Spray and Cool Mint Listerine will be distributed at selected events.

Salisbury State University: An Historical Perspective

Has Anyone Seen My Tie-Dyes and Beads?
by Sylvia Bradley

Students at SSC in the mid-60s, if not exactly radicals, did make some steady progress in relaxing old codes and restrictions. In 1967, the big issues seemed to be the class cut system, the criteria for Achievement Key Awards and the dress code.

The traditional class cut rules allowed three unexcused cuts per class per semester. Any absences above that called for automatic reduction of grade. In '67 a new system was introduced, placing no actual limit on unexcused absences, but requiring notification of the Dean of Students when the total number of absences (excused and unexcused) exceeded one-quarter the total number of class meetings each semester. Students had no quarrel with the new policy but protested that some professors modified it to suit themselves without explaining exactly what their policy was, perhaps thinking students would be too afraid to ever cut. Shortly afterward, faculty members were instructed to announce their policy on absences in all classes.

The SGA also appointed a committee of students charged with preparing a faculty evaluation form to be used by professors on a voluntary basis. President Wilbur Devilbiss, surprisingly to some, not only approved it, but suggested that it be distributed from his office rather than from the SGA. That way, he explained, it might have "more acceptance and success among the faculty." It was used, and administration, faculty and students agreed it was beneficial!

Students in 1967 also protested the awarding of what they considered too many Achievement Keys. The Key, they claimed, was supposed to recognize outstanding leadership as well as scholastic achievement, but had come to be synonymous only with the latter. A definitive list of criteria for the awarding of this honor should be published, together with a list of all students considered eligible, before it was granted. Although this demand was not met and the faculty alone continued to select the recipients, there were fewer Keys granted in the next years.

Perhaps most "foreign" to today's students of 1993 were the "relaxed" dress codes which those 1967 students fought for and won. The new code defined three categories of dress and when and where they should or could be worn. "Sunday dress" for women meant a nice dress and dress shoes and for men, coat, tie, long slacks, socks and dress shoes. This was to be worn at convocations and formal affairs, cultural affairs, Sunday dinner in the dining hall and the president's reception. "School dress," required at all classes in classrooms, all assemblies and all administrative offices, was defined as dress or skirt and blouse and shoes for women and long slacks, shirt and shoes for men. The big changes was "casual dress." This allowed women to wear slacks or shorts and blouse or shirt and shoes, and men to appear in shorts and shirt and shoes. Casual dress was allowed in the library, in the Student Union any time except during designated formal occasions and in the dining hall at Sunday dinner, in the main lobby of Holloway except during special events, in the student center of Holloway Hall, and in Holloway Hall Auditorium for organizational meetings. The girls especially could hardly believe it! No more having to wear a raincoat over shorts just to leave one's dorm room to Campus Market via the main lobby. No more having to roll up slack legs and put on a long coat just to run to the library to check out a book. It seemed unbelievable.

When we consider today that 1967 was the year of mini-skirts, see-through blouses, fringed vests over bare chests, "funky" outfits and the Edwardian costume look of the Beatles (who released the Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band album that year), SSC's dress code revolution hardly seems noteworthy. But considering the 40 years of rigid dress rules preceding it, it certainly hinted of the liberalization of a new generation.

Sylvia Bradley is an assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture located in the Power Building. She is the author of a book chronicling the history of Salisbury State and an alumnus of the institution. Throughout the academic year she will write about SSU's history and heritage.

Health Screening in Guerrieri Center

The annual cholesterol/high blood pressure screening is on Thursday, November 18, beginning at 8 a.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center.

Employees enrolled in Blue Cross/Blue Shield may have all (or most) of the test costs paid for by their insurance program. Health maintenance participants (Delmarva or MD IPA) would have to pay full costs as their policies encourage testing through their private physician.

Employees interested in participating in this year's screening should contact the Personnel Office (548-4755) prior to October 20 to set a precise time for tests.

Helen Keller

Helen Keller Story One of Strength, Courage

Helen Keller, born in 1880 to a genteel Alabama family, was a normal infant who cooed and cried, recognized her mother and father's voices and took joy in looking at their faces and objects about the home. Then at 19 months, a sudden illness (perhaps Scarlet Fever) left the healthy infant deaf and blind, and erased her power of speech.

Years of hopelessness followed. Days of frustrated, angry outbursts by their child exhausted the Kellers. Distracted and despairing, they took her to every major medical facility in the country. Finally Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone and authority on the teaching of the deaf, directed them to the Perkins Institution in Boston and to 20-year-old Annie Sullivan. The lives of the Kellers, and that of the blind and deaf everywhere, would be forever changed by that meeting.

On Friday, October 15, Salisbury State Theatre presents William Gibson's retelling of Sullivan's dramatic breakthrough to the mind of a child trapped in darkness and silence in his acclaimed "The Miracle Worker." This powerful play won Broadway's highest honor, the Tony Award, in 1960. It also introduced 13-year-old Patty Duke as Helen, who with Anne Bancroft as Annie Sullivan received Oscars for their performances in the movie.

SSU Theatre's revival features Amy Black as Annie Sullivan and Kris Gagner as Helen. Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer directs.

Through Sullivan's tremendous devotion and skill, the deaf blind girl from rural Alabama blossomed into one of the most remarkable women of this century. Her life was crowded with improbable feats: Keller learned passable speech, graduated from Radcliffe College with honors in German and English, wrote several books, even rode horseback and learned to fox trot.

Most importantly Keller energized social movements that revolutionized help for the blind and the deaf throughout the world. For four decades she ceaselessly traveled on behalf of the American Foundation for the Blind. At her death in 1968 the New York Times called her "a font of strength and courage to hundreds of millions."

And despite her afflictions, she maintained a sparkling sense of humor. When asked, "Do you close your eyes when you go to sleep?" Her stock reply was "I never stayed awake to see."

Yet there were quiet disappointments.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Senior Soon-Jae Klopers' unassisted goal with 11:15 remaining in the game lifted the Sea Gulls past Frostburg State, 1-0, last Saturday, extending SSU's unbeaten streak to six straight. Coach Gerry DiBartolo's team is 5-0-1 since an 0-4 start. Junior Joe Herman recorded his second straight shutout by stopping eight Frostburg shots. The Gulls (5-4-1 overall) blanked Lincoln 4-0 just three days earlier as Mike Conners and Dan Garringer each tallied a goal and an assist to pace the attack.

The volleyball team (21-9) won four of six matches and finished second at last weekend's 10-team Gallaudet Invitational Tournament. Following a 3-1 round-robin record, SSU defeated Eastern Mennonite in the semifinal round before falling to Guilford 13-15, 13-15 in the championship match. Shannon Cianelli registered 47 kills, 22 digs, six blocks and two aces to lead the Sea Gulls. Courtney Moore added 42 kills and eight aces while setter Jen Bowman tallied 92 assists in the six matches.

The women's tennis team ran its winning streak to a school-record eight with wins over Frostburg State and Christopher Newport last weekend. Kathy Castelli and Kelly Carey each won singles matches against both opponents. Kris Dodson improved her combined singles and doubles record to 15-2. SSU (8-1 overall) looks to extend its streak when it hosts Marymount on Saturday.

Trailing by two goals midway through the second half, the field hockey team scored three times in the final 21 minutes to rally for a 5-4 win at Lynchburg last Saturday. Jen Sites tallied two of the final three scores, while Susan Fatz also finished with two goals and an assist. Tata Savage also added two assists for the Gulls, now 7-6.

The men's and women's cross country teams each placed sixth out of 15 squads at last weekend's Maryland State Championship in College Park. Jeff Hankins topped all Division III runners, finishing 28th in 28:44. Jon Douglas was SSU's next highest finisher in 38th place. Kelly Delp and Mary Puderbaugh paced the Sea Gull women, finishing 25th and 30th overall. Salisbury State hosts its annual Tidewater Invitational at the City Park course this Saturday morning. The women's race is slated for 10 a.m., followed by the men at 11 a.m.

The football team (1-3) travels to Newport News this Saturday to challenge the Builders of The Apprentice School. The Gulls are looking to rebound from last week's 71-14 defeat against nationally-ranked Rowan. Senior Charlie Whalen can tie the SSU record for most games with at least one reception. Whalen's streak is currently 16 games.

Marson Galleries Art Sale Set

Marson Galleries, Ltd. of Baltimore hosts an art exhibition and sale on Friday, October 29, from 11 a.m.-8 p.m., and Saturday, October 30, from 11 a.m.-4 p.m., in the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center.

Marson Galleries which specializes in exhibits for sale has a distinguished collection of original etchings, woodcuts, lithographs, serigraphs and watercolors by old and modern masters. The collection consists of approximately 500 pieces of original graphic art by leading American, European and Oriental artists.

Represented in the unique collection are antique works by Hiroshige, Kuniyoshi, Daumier, Goya, Hogarth, Renoir, Manet, Cassatt, Cezanne and others. A group of Civil War period prints from "Harper's Pictorial History" and a fine selection of Indian miniature paintings and manuscripts are included.

There is a large group of works by such distinguished contemporary artists as Altman, Amano, Azuchi, Baskin, Calder, Chagall, Elgi, Fink, Gantner, Maki, Miro, Rayburn, Tajima, Saito, Cassigneul, Bourrier, Vasarely, Fanch Ledan, Quilici, Laporte and others.

Additionally, there are numerous contemporary Chinese paintings, watercolors, embroideries, batiks, rubbings and folk art. A comprehensive collection of 20th century impressions of the Ukiyo-E prints, a fine selection of reproduction posters and African-American art is also included.

A representative will be present to discuss the collection, answer questions about the works, the artists and the various techniques employed. The prints are shown in an informal atmosphere and the public is invited to browse through the collection.

Marson Galleries Ltd. is the largest firm in the nation specializing in arranging exhibitions and sales of original graphic art at colleges, universities, museums, hospitals and art centers throughout the United States.

For more information on the sale or exhibit call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Throughout her early years Keller was criticized as a curiosity and publicity seeker. In middle age she fell in love, to the point of taking out a marriage license. Then her stern mother abruptly ended the engagement. In the early 1920s, strapped for money, Keller and Sullivan went into vaudeville. Although her Radcliffe friends were scandalized, the act was a critical and financial success. Keller, who had great fun, argued her vaudeville stint helped the cause of the blind.

As a fundraiser Keller toured the country, talking in churches, synagogues and town halls. She not only collected money, but also sought to alleviate living and working conditions of the blind. In those years they were frequently ill-educated and maintained in asylums; her endeavors were a major factor in changing these conditions.

Before World War II she traveled the globe lecturing on behalf of the handicapped.

Tall, handsome and gracious, she was vital and optimistic. Shortly before her death she said, "I believe that all through these dark and silent years, God has been using my life for a purpose I do not know. But one day I shall understand and then I will be satisfied."

Performances of "The Miracle Worker" are Friday-Saturday, October 15-16, and Thursday-Saturday, October 20-23, at 8 p.m. with matinees Sundays, October 17 and 24, at 2 p.m. in the Fulton Hall Theatre. Tickets are $6 general admission, with senior citizen and student tickets at $4. Tickets are free for SSU students, faculty and staff. For additional information including reservations call 543-6228.

Oktoberfest Upcoming, Food, Fun and Games

The German Club holds its 20th annual Oktoberfest on campus on Wednesday, October 27, from 10 a.m.-8 p.m. The public is invited.

Booths set up behind the Guerrieri University Center and along the pergola (Roman walkway) will offer a variety of games and exhibits and vendors selling bratwurst, German potato salad, sauerkraut and tortes.

Additionally, the SSU Dance Company will perform and a parade featuring students in medieval and renaissance costumes will be at 6 p.m.

Prizes will be available at all of the game booths, and the SSU bookstore, the Book Rack, has donated a semester's worth of books for a special grand prize drawing.

The German Club will be accepting donations from businesses and individuals toward the construction of a new home for a local low income family currently being built by the SSU chapter of Habitat for Humanity.

Love Letters Back For Family Weekend

Love Letters, a critically-acclaimed production of A.R. Gurney's award-winning play, is being revived for a pair of Family Weekend performances.

The play, starring communication arts professor Dr. R. J. Wesley and WMDT-TV anchorwoman Kelley Rouse, will be presented on Friday and Saturday, October 29 and 30, at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The performances are free and the public is invited. Love Letters opened the fall SSU Theatre season in early September and drew full houses of appreciative patrons. The production centers around correspondence, a seemingly unconventional subject for which to base a play. It features the passionate, touching and often comical letters of Andy Ladd (Wesley) and Melissa Gardner (Rouse) in a production that audiences found both amusing and inspiring.

For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Cool Clearinghouse

Cool Clearinghouse serves as an information network to help individuals and groups interested in community service opportunities match themselves with community organizations which use volunteers. The project is sponsored by COOL-SSU, a student organization affiliated with the Campus Outreach Opportunity League. Organizations using the service are solely responsible for the conduct of sponsored service activities, including training and supervision. Volunteers assume sole responsibility for their conduct and for any risks associated with service activities. Call Cool Clearinghouse at 543-6080.

in Georgetown on October 1. Hal Hinson of The Washington Post called this "eye-opening documentary" a "sterling example of how film opens our eyes to other cultures and our ears to other voices."

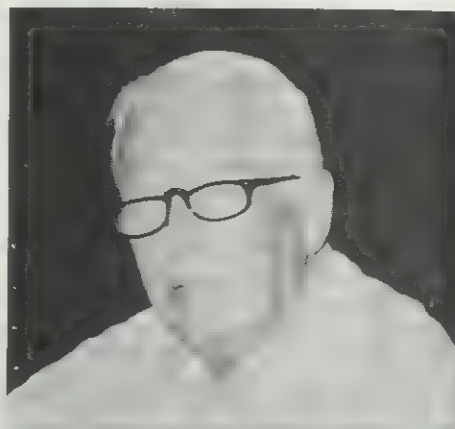

SSU English professor Jim Welsh saw the film and met Tiana while attending an Oral History Symposium on the Vietnam War at Hampden-Sydney College in Virginia in September. "I watched the film with Oliver Stone sitting right behind me," Welsh said, "and knew at once that Tiana would be a hit with our students. She described herself as a 'banana' ('yellow on the outside, white on the inside'). She had lived the American success myth in California, going 'Hollywood' at an early age, yet she still felt connected to Vietnam. She knew the language, and her enthusiasm got her interviews with important political leaders; but she also interviewed her long-lost relatives and other ordinary people, such as a woman who had survived the My Lai massacre. The film, which also has its lighter moments, is quite extraordinary."

From Hollywood to Hanoi has been praised by Vanity Fair, The New York Times, The New York Post and The Boston Globe. Richard Corliss of Time magazine wrote that it joins Joy Luck Club, The Wedding Banquet and Farewell My Concubine in offering a lesson that applies to all families, Asian and American: Never forget, only forgive.

The film screening is free to the public. For more information call Jim Welsh at (410) 543-6446.

to survive," he said.

In response to this desperation, Berrigan now heads the Jonah House, a nonviolent resistance community in Baltimore which as part of its mandate feeds hundreds of the unemployed and disenfranchised. He lives here with his wife, Elizabeth McAlister, a former nun. The announcement of their marriage in 1973 got them ex-communicated. It also begot them three children, the youngest of which, Katy, 12, plays with a huge orange cat named Pope John Pumpkin II.

But a visitor is made quickly aware that while feeding the hungry is important to him, Berrigan's heart still pumps for preserving life in the grander scheme.

"It's starting again in Somalia. It was always there but now people are thinking about it again because some coffins are coming home from another Third World country," he said.

It was coffins coming home in the '60s that started it all and while the era that spawned the big protests is over in Berrigan's view of the world, all the ingredients are still there to allow it to begin all over again.

The Clinton administration isn't any different. He has a vested interest in not changing things too much. Budgeting for war is actually higher now in some major categories than it was under Bush. I must continue," he said.

The man who once stood trial on charges of threatening to kidnap former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and try him for war crimes says when he speaks to the general public and SSU on Wednesday, October 20, he will be talking to young people who are of the same mettle as those of the '60s.

Berrigan's 7:30 p.m. presentation in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center is part of SSU's lecture series "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s."

"Students today are just as smart and just as concerned as they were back then. But they're not getting the truth as to what is going on. If they did, there would be more activism."

Part of Berrigan's "truth" which he will be sharing during his presentation has to do with a system that he sees as too heavily funded toward war. "If we took half of that money and spent it on education and on feeding people in this country you wouldn't hear those helicopters over this part of Baltimore all the time," he said.

"And the world would not be such a dangerous place in which to live. We must disarm. World opinion will force the other countries to do the same. I'll never quit getting that message across," he said.

No Coasting for Today's Kids
Says Former Electric
Kool-Aid Acid Kid

Robert Stone

He sits as the living embodiment to the interviewer's question: "What's left from the '60s?"

His gray hair and beard tribute the passing of three decades since that tumultuous era, but in Robert Stone's eyes there's still the twinkle of a Merry Prankster.

It was his cavorting with writer Ken Kesey and the pranksters chronicled in Tom Wolfe's The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test that represent for many of the current batch of students on campus what the '60s was all about.

"They come to me and tell me how lucky I was to have gone through that period. They have a highly romanticized vision of the whole experience," said Stone.

At 55, Robert Stone, author of Dog Soldiers, Outerbridge Reach and A Flag for Sunrise, is one of this country's leading fiction writers. It is appropriate that his office door at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore bears his name along with noted Maryland novelist, John Barth. It is also appropriate that he fills the large space with a Dostoveskian presence when asked to reflect on what in today's society is left from the 1960s.

"Certain social gains are still around from the time. People took a hold of their lives with a sense of self-realization. Unfortunately, there is some fallout as well," he said.

Some of the fallout is the political correctness being rigidly enforced by those who were protesting in college 30 years ago and now hold the reins.

"Now there's a rigid enforcement at what we thought was an open mindedness. There's also the fact that times are tougher and you can't get by with coasting and having a good time. Kids are much more serious. They have to be to get by," Stone said.

Tougher too are some of the basic rules in Distinguished Faculty Awards

Go to Basehart, Kraft

Dr. Harry Basehart, an expert on state and local government here and abroad, and Dr. Evan Kraft, an economist who was sent by the Fulbright Commission to study the banking system in what was once Yugoslavia, are recipients of the 1993 Distinguished Faculty Award.

The University's highest faculty accolade, it honors outstanding contributions in teaching, scholarship and community service. Presented by the faculty, winners must show excellence in all three areas.

Soft-spoken men, "Evan and Harry are such genuine persons, it's no wonder they're so highly esteemed by their students and colleagues," said Dr. C. Phillip Bosserman, chair of the awards committee.

Kraft comes from a family where academic achievement is prized. His mother was a psychology professor now in private practice. His father had a distinguished teaching career at Queens College, and published several books on music appreciation and theory. Kraft escaped a music career by "not practicing." Still, nudged toward academia, he attended Princeton for two years and earned good grades.

Then, to his family's consternation, he dropped out "to make money and travel," he said. "Life was good in New York, but the pieces weren't fitting together." Looking back, he laughs; his father was right. Kraft wanted to return to the university and to teach.

The New School for Social Research in New York is "a maverick graduate school . . . one of the finest in the country," said Bosserman. More European than American, it is "skeptical of economics' pretensions to being scientific," Kraft added. Here he found a home.

Mamas and Papas Concert on Campus November 8

The Mamas and the Papas, the singing group that exploded on the music scene in 1966 with the hit California Dreamin', is in concert on Monday, November 8.

The concert is part of the Fall Lecture Series at SSU titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The Mamas and the Papas perform at 8 p.m. in the Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Original Mamas and the Papas lead singer Denny Doherty has joined with new "mamas" Elaine "Spanky" McFarlane and Melanie Doane, and new "papa" Scott McKenzie.

Doherty, along with original group members John Phillips, the late Cass Elliott and Michelle Gilliam (who later became Mrs. John Phillips) recorded a string of hit records during the mid-to-late '60s including Monday, Monday, I Saw Her Again, Dream A Little Dream of Me and Words of Love.

About a year after The Mamas and the Papas initial success, Spanky McFarlane formed the group Spanky and Our Gang which had a selection of hits during 1967 and 1968 including Sunday Will Never Be the Same, Lazy Day, Sunday Mornin' and Like To Get To Know You. A good friend of Mama Cass, McFarlane's style is similar to the late singer's.

Scott McKenzie, a long-time friend of the original Mamas and the Papas members, also

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Snow Hill Museum Has Halloween Party

Snow Hill's Julia A. Purnell Museum is the site of a Halloween party for children ages 5 and under on Friday, October 19. The party is from 4-5:30 p.m. at the museum.

Children can enjoy special decorations, refreshments, clever tricks and fun treats. There will be story-telling and time-travel trips in the museum's Magic Trunk. In addition, prizes will be awarded to the children wearing outstanding costumes. Children will also enjoy the museum artifacts as they learn about "the good old days." The museum will provide entertainment and interpretation for the young party-goers.

Parents are invited to enjoy the museum and the festivities with their children. Admission to the museum is 50 cents for children (infants free) and $2 for adults.

Century Committee Thanks All Volunteers

The Salisbury State University Bicycle Club and the 1993 Sea Gull Century Committee wish to thank all of the volunteers and staff who made the event a tremendous success.

Over 3,300 bicyclists came from all over the United States and Canada to participate in the event on October 9, and over two million subscribers to Bicycling magazine read about Salisbury State University and the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

The committee members wish to thank anyone who may have been inconvenienced by this activity for his or her tolerance and understanding.

Office Automation Specialist

SSU has an opening for an office automation specialist in the Office of Computer Services.

Duties include: provide PC support throughout the campus to units configured as both stand alone and networks (using Digital's PATHWORKS); developing and conducting training classes for staff and faculty; evaluating software and hardware; and installing software.

Qualifications include a Bachelor's degree (preferred), extensive experience with DOS, WordPerfect and Windows, and working knowledge of LOTUS 1-2-3, Quattro Pro, Presentations, Harvard Graphics, DataPerfect, dBase, Paradox, Reflection and Kermit. Applicants must be self-motivated, able to work with minimal supervision and have a desire to keep abreast of the latest technology. The position requires good oral and written communication skills and the ability to work as a team member. The position reports to the director of computer services. A permanent state position with an excellent benefits package, the starting salary range is $25,000-$30,000, based on experience. Interested applicants may submit a letter of application, resume and a list of at least three references, with addresses and telephone numbers, to the Personnel Office. Applications will be reviewed starting October 18 and will continue until the position is filled.

Flu season is rapidly approaching. The U.S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta predicts that this year will be more severe than last year, especially for Type A Virus.

The SSU community experienced epidemics of both Type A and Type B virus during the last flu season, which at its peak required treatment for in excess of 150 students per day for a consecutive three-week period.

Vaccines have been shown to be effective in reducing the incidence and severity of influenza infections.

Student Health Services will have flu vaccine available in mid October at a cost of $5 for students, faculty and staff.

Please call SHS for details on dates and locations at 543-6263.

Health Screening In Guerrieri Center

The annual cholesterol/high blood pressure screening is on Thursday, November 18, beginning at 8 a.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center.

Employees enrolled in Blue Cross/Blue Shield may have all (or most) of the test costs paid for by their insurance program. Health maintenance participants (Delmarva or MD IPA) would have to pay full costs as their policies encourage testing through their private physician.

Employees interested in participating in this year's screening should contact the Personnel Office (548-4755) prior to October 20 to set a precise time for tests.

Immunization Record Required of Students

SSU health policy requires that the Health Center maintain an up-to-date immunization record on all students for the maximum health of each student as well as the general University population.

Notices are being sent to those students for whom a record is required but is not complete.

Besides the health implications, an incomplete record could affect a student's spring semester preregistration.

Students should contact the Health Center if they were notified or are not sure their record is up-to-date.

Tickets for Graduation Required at Commencement

Because of the increasing number of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and is implemented for each succeeding ceremony.

Each December graduate is provided 15 guest tickets.

Please note the following dates and deadlines: November 17-19, pick up caps, gowns, announcements and 15 tickets at the Graduation Center in the Book Rack (please return any tickets not needed to the Guerrieri University Center information desk); and December 15-18, pick up extra guest tickets as they become available at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first come, first served basis.

More commencement information will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the SSU News, Flyer and MAX for details.

Spring Student Teaching Orientation Meeting Set

Education majors who wish to student teach during spring semester and have completed or are in the process of completing their professional education (methods) classes are requested to attend an orientation meeting on Friday, October 29, from 10 a.m.-noon in Nanticoke Rooms A, B and C of the Guerrieri University Center.

Sharon Clark, director of field experiences in the Education Department, will explain the student teaching program and the application process.

Also, Linda Benson of the Center for Personal and Professional Development will present information on how to begin preparing for a job search.

Application forms are available from the Education Department. Completed student teaching applications must be submitted to Clark by November 1. Student teaching applications received after the deadline will not be accepted.

Maryland National CEO Great Leader Lecturer

On the heels of an historic merger in the banking industry, Frank P. Bramble, chairman of NationsBank, Maryland and chairman, president and chief executive officer of Maryland National Bank, will be the first speaker in the Great Leader Lecture Series at SSU on Tuesday, October 26. The series is sponsored by the Perdue School of Business.

The Great Leader Lecture Series is designed to offer Perdue School students and faculty and members of the local business community the opportunity to learn from the leaders of some of the country's largest and most successful corporations. In connection with Bramble's visit on Tuesday, October 26, there is a coffee from 10:30-11 a.m. in the lounge of the Guerrieri University Center. Bramble's lecture in the Wicomico Room begins at 11 a.m. Both are open to the public.

Book Rack Closes For Inventory

The book department of the Book Rack will be closed for inventory on Monday and Tuesday, October 25-26. All other departments in the Book Rack will be open for business as usual. The Book Rack apologizes for any inconvenience to its customers.

16 Faculty Receive $5,760 in Foundation Grants

A total of $5,760 in grant money has been awarded to 16 University faculty members by the Grants Committee of the SSU Foundation Inc.

Dr. Pamela L. Alreck of the Management and Marketing Department received a $200 grant to help cover the costs of travel to the Direct Marketing Educator's Conference in Toronto in October. Alreck will present her research paper, "Determinants of Catalog and Store Shopping Attitudes," at the conference.

An award of $400 was made to Dr. Grady Armstrong of the Leisure Studies Department to defray costs connected with travel to the National Recreation and Park Association's 1993 Leisure Research Symposium in San Jose, CA, in October. Armstrong will present his paper titled "Assessing Changes in Attitudes Toward Physical Activity and Leisure Activity Participation of College Students After a Personalized Health Fitness Course."

Dr. Lynne Carroll of the Psychology Department received a $360 grant to cover expenses as she presents her paper, "Interpersonal Impact of Narcissism," at the annual convention of the American Psychological Association in Toronto.

Dr. Don C. Cathcart of the Mathematics and Computer Sciences Department received a $400 award toward expenses at the Southern Regional Conference of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics in Jackson, MS, and at the Eastern Regional Conference of the NCTM in Pittsburgh, both in October. At both conferences, Cathcart will present papers on the use of real world applications in the teaching of mathematics.

Dr. Wayne Decker of the Management and Marketing Department was awarded $400 to help cover expenses at the annual meeting of the Institute for Behavioral and Applied Management to be held in Denver in October. Decker will present his research paper titled "Dual Career Couples: An Empirical Study of Career Progress and Satisfaction."

An award of $400 was made to Dr. Gregory C. Ference of the History Department to cover expenses when he presents his research paper on the recent dissolution of Czechoslovakia at the 25th annual Convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies in Honolulu in November.

Dr. Roland G. Frank of the Education Department received $400 to cover costs when he presents a workshop on multi-cultural activities and literature for elementary classrooms at the annual convention of the National Association for Multi-cultural Education in Detroit in February.

Dr. William L. Grogan Jr. of the Biological Sciences Department was awarded $400 to help defray expenses in the publication of a scientific paper on new fossil species of biting midges from Dominican and Mexican amber. The paper was co-authored with Dr. Ryszard Szadziński of the University of Gdansk, Poland, and has been submitted for publication in the "Proceedings of the Entomological Society of Washington."

Dr. Thomas W. Jones of the Biological Sciences Department was awarded a $400 grant to help with expenses in his project to study nitrogen and phosphorus dynamics in the Monie Bay in Somerset County over the next two years.

An award of $400 was made to Dr. Choong C. Lee of the Information and Decision Sciences Department. Lee will be attending the 1993 National Conference of the Decision Sciences Institute in Washington, D.C., where he will present his paper "An Enhancement of the Information Satisfaction Measure Using SERVQUAL."

Dr. Philip Luft of the Mathematics and Computer Sciences Department received a $400 grant to defray costs in attending the International Symposium on Circuits and Systems in London. Luft will present his paper "Adaptive Control of the Sampling Rate Using a Local Time-Domain Sampling Theorem" at the conference.

Dr. Jerome Miller of the Philosophy Department was awarded $300 to attend the annual meeting of the Society for Phenomenology and Existential Philosophy in New Orleans where he will present his paper "Intelligibility and the Ethical."

Dr. Timothy Miller of the History Department received $300 to attend the 19th annual Byzantine Studies Conference at Princeton University where he will speak on the results of his research on the effect of 12th century Byzantine orphanages on the orphans in their care.

A $400 award was made to Dr. Paul Scovell of the Communication Arts Department to assist with expenses when he presents his paper "Town Hall Meetings, Bus Tours and Whistle Stops: Perot, Clinton and Bush Meet the People" at the Speech Communication Association Convention in Miami, and at the convention of the Eastern Communication Association in Washington, D.C. Scovell will also serve as

SSU Athletics Hall To Induct Five

The SSU Athletics Hall of Fame welcomes five new members as its class of '93. The selectees will be honored at the annual induction dinner and ceremony of Friday, November 12, as part of the University's Homecoming weekend.

Tickets are $25 and available through the Alumni Office by calling 543-6042. Advance reservations are strongly encouraged. The five inductees, with their graduation years noted, are:

Donna Hubbard Rice ('65): a field hockey, volleyball and basketball standout who dominated the women's athletic association awards during her career. She was a regionally all-star in field hockey all four years and led the basketball team in scoring her last three years.

Steve Pitt ('76): A track and field all-American who still owns six school records. Pitt finished sixth in the 110 hurdles at the Division II National Championship as a junior and second in the same event as a senior, earning all-American honors both years.

Dave Funk ('79): Considered the best third baseman in 30 years at SSU, he was a second team national all-American in 1978 and a first team District II honoree in 1979. Funk still owns five Salisbury career records, including runs, hits, total bases, at-bats and walks.

Becky Sweet-Kang ('80): A two-time all-American who was the national runnerup in both singles and doubles in 1980. Sweet finished second at the AIAW national championships in the number two singles flight and teamed with Sue Foelber to finish second in the number one doubles flight.

Sandor Fodor ('82): A premier soccer sweeper who anchored the defense during his Sea Gull career. Fodor was a third team national all-American in 1981 as well as a first team all-South Region selectee. Also chosen to the all-Maryland state team his last three years.

The SSU Athletics Hall of Fame was initiated in 1985 to honor those who have made outstanding contributions to Salisbury State's athletic heritage. To be eligible, an individual must have graduated from the University at least 10 years earlier. The addition of these five inductees brings the Hall's membership to 44. Upon induction, each member will have a permanent plaque added to the Hall of Fame display case in the Maggs Physical Activities Center.

Math Club Schedules Meeting and Social

The next meeting of the Math Club is on Thursday, October 28, at 3:45 p.m. in Power Professional Building, room 117. The club has a social on Friday, November 5, at the Honors House, time to be announced.

Anyone interested in the Putnam exam or the Virginia Tech exam should contact the Math Department. The date of the Putnam is Saturday, December 4, from 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m.; the Virginia Tech exam is Saturday, October 30, from 9:30-11:30 a.m.

Important Date Changes, Insurance Open Enrollment

There has been a change of dates for Open Enrollment for health insurance. The Personnel Office received notice from Baltimore that the entire month of November has been designated as this year's Open Enrollment period.

As a result of the change, the Health Benefits Fair, originally scheduled for October 28, has now been rescheduled for Monday, November 22, from 9 a.m.-3:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Informal literature on the 1994 insurance offerings will be mailed directly to employees' homes by the early part of November if all goes well.

Lobster Night at the Powell Dining Hall last week was an Epicurean success. The craved crustaceans collected culinary commendations from the campus community including these two students.

Upcoming special events sponsored by University Dining Services are: Halloween Dinner, Saturday, October 30; Country Western Night, Wednesday, November 3; Hot Wing Eating Contest, Friday, November 12; Thanksgiving Dinner, Wednesday, November 17; Everybody's Birthday, Wednesday, December 1; and Christmas Dinner, Wednesday, December 15.

All dinners are open to the campus community and their guests. For those not on a meal plan, the cost is $7 per person.

DiSylvestro Receives Food Service Award

Carmen DiSylvestro, associate director of University Dining Services, recently received a Presidents Award at the National Association of College and University Food Service national conference.

DiSylvestro earned the award for his "dedication to (Salisbury State University) and NACUFS," according to Sister Maureen

Schrimpe, president of NACUFS. "Without hesitation, this individual takes on any task, and sees it to completion."

DiSylvestro, a 1980 graduate of SSU who has worked at the University since 1985, has held a variety of offices with NACUFS, chaired regional committees and assisted with subregional events.

Volunteers Needed For Hospice Event

Coastal Hospice is recruiting volunteers to assist with its second annual Caterer's Affair and Art Auction at the City Center on Saturday, October 30. The event is a fundraiser for Coastal Hospice, a local organization which provides licensed health care services to lower Shore residents who are terminally ill and for home-bound cancer patients who are not terminally ill.

Volunteers are being sought to assist with various aspects of the dinner and auction during the afternoon and evening of October 30. Volunteers receive dinner in return for their help.

Individuals or groups interested in helping should call Nancy DeMasi at 543-1805 by October 22.

Faculty Grants Workshop Slated for November 19

There is a grants workshop on Friday, November 19, from 12:30-3:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center for those who would like to know more about the grants process. The purpose of the workshop is to review funding sources in general and specifics about grant writing. Some of the resources of the Grants Office will be available to peruse. An Italian buffet will be served at the beginning of the workshop.

For more information call Sandy Ramses, Grants and Sponsored Research Office, at 548-5395 by November 5.

Guerrieri Center Building Hours Change

Building hours on Sundays for the Guerrieri University Center have been changed. The building is now open at 11 a.m.

Sports Bar-B-Que Benefits Athletes

Tickets are now on sale for the Sea Gull Sports Bar-B-Que, scheduled for Saturday, October 30. The annual dinner, featuring an all-you-can-eat menu of chicken and ribs, is one of the University's primary athletics fund-raising events, with proceeds benefitting SSU student-athletes.

Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students with I.D. and available by contacting the SSU Athletics Department at 548-3503. Primary community sponsors of this year's event are the Salisbury Moose Lodge, VFW Meuse Post 194 and the Sheraton Salisbury.

"We're extremely pleased to have the support of these area groups and businesses for this event," said Dr. Michael Vienna, SSU's director of athletics. "A successful athletics program can have a strong impact on the community, and the help of these sponsors is a reflection of the community's support for what we're trying to accomplish."

Once again this year, the Sports Bar-B-Que will cap a busy Family Day of activities on campus. The event scheduled from 4-7 p.m. in the Maggs Center, follows that day's home football game against Albany State. Kickoff time at Sea Gull Stadium is 1 p.m.

Assistant Professor of Physics

A tenure-track position in physics at the assistant professor level is available beginning in the 1994-95 academic year.

A Ph.D. in physics is required and some college teaching and experience with undergraduate courses in physics, electronics and astronomy is considered a plus.

Applicants should send a resume including the names of three references to: Chair, Search Committee, Department of Physics, Salisbury State University.

Storeroom Clerk

University Dining Services has a full-time, 40-hour position available for a storeroom clerk.

A minimum of six months experience is required. High school diploma or equivalent is preferred. Occasional evening and weekend work is required. This is a contractual position with no state benefits. Starting salary is $6.25 per hour.

Make application not later than October 27 to Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall.

Maintenance Mechanic

Salisbury State has an immediate opening for a maintenance mechanic to perform semi-skilled work in general building maintenance and equipment monitoring. This is full-time contractual position (no paid benefits) paying $15,704 to $16,562 per year depending on experience.

The schedule is a five-day/40-hour work week to include nights and weekends as dictated by rotating shift. The employee will perform routine preventive maintenance and minor repair work on mechanical equipment, fixtures and various building components. The ability to read and interpret pressure and temperature gauges and maintain a written log of activities is required. Knowledge of hot water boilers is desired.

Applications will be accepted in the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall until October 22.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Hippie Community Founders Lecture Here October 27

"Counter Cultures" is the subject of a panel discussion led by Ina Mae and Stephen Gaskin, founders of a cooperative community in Tennessee, on Wednesday, October 27.

The presentation is part of the Fall Lecture Series at SSU titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The discussion will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

The Gaskins are founding members of The Farm in Summertown, TN, at one time the largest hippie community in the world and still one of the most significant.

Stephen Gaskin, a former college professor in San Francisco, began delivering his message of a shared society on street corners. When he was offered a cross-country college lecture tour, many of his followers chose to go with him.

Metropolitan Opera Bus Trip Offered

The University is sponsoring a bus trip to the Metropolitan Opera at the Lincoln Center in New York City on Friday, November 12, to see La Boheme, written by Giacomo Puccini. This is the third trip that SSU has offered to the Lincoln Center and each has been a booming success.

The bus leaves the Dogwood parking lot of the Guerrieri University Center at 8 a.m. There will be a brief breakfast stop in Wilmington; the bus will discharge all passengers at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York at approximately noon.

Everyone is free to spend the afternoon at the museum or at other attractions and proceed on their own to the Lincoln Center for the 8 p.m. performance. The bus leaves New York immediately after the show and returns to Salisbury at approximately 4 a.m. No food or beverages are allowed on the bus.

The charge for the trip is $20 for full-time students; sign up begins on Wednesday, October 27, at 8 a.m. at the Guerrieri Center information desk. An SSU I.D. is needed. Full-time students may sign up for a limit of two seats. The charge for part-time students, faculty and staff is $20; sign-up begins at 8 a.m. on October 29. The sign-up is limited to two seats, also. The charge includes bus and opera ticket only. All food and local transportation in New York is not covered.

There are no refunds for cancellations unless the seat is filled. For more information call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6006.

Bus Trip Scheduled To Large Outlet Mall

There is a bus trip to Franklin Mills Mall (outside of Philadelphia) on Saturday, November 13. The bus leaves at 6 a.m. from the Guerrieri University Center parking lot and returns at 10 p.m. that evening. The bus stops at the Plantation Restaurant where either a buffet or platter breakfast is available. Franklin Mills is a huge outlet shopping mall, on one floor under one roof.

The stores, including a recently opened Burlington Coat store, are top quality outlet stores. This is an opportunity to do some holiday shopping and save money plus have a nice day.

Sponsored by Chapter 72, SSU of Maryland Classified Employees Association, the price is $12 for non-members of MCEA and $8 for members. Please give money to Judy Lowe in the Registrar's Office or Barbara Keene in Student Activities and Minority Affairs Office. Deadline to pay is Friday, October 29.

When the tour ended, the group elected to stay together and bought 1,750 acres in Tennessee.

Ina Mae Gaskin, a self-taught and certified midwife, is founder and director of the Farm Midwifery Center which has handled more than 1,830 births since 1971. She is the author of the best-selling Spiritual Midwifery and Babies, Breastfeeding and Bonding. She is the editor and publisher of The Birth Gazette. Currently, she is doing organizational work for health care reform and participated with the Clinton Health Care Task Force in April.

Currently, the Gaskins are planning to open a cooperative community for the elderly as an alternative to conventional retirement and nursing homes.

For more information or a lecture series schedule, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Oktoberfest Upcoming, Food, Fun and Games

The German Club holds its 20th annual Oktoberfest on campus on Wednesday, October 27, from 10 a.m.-8 p.m. The public is invited.

Booths set up behind the Guerrieri University Center and along the pergola (Roman walkway) will offer a variety of games and exhibits and vendors selling bratwurst, German potato salad, sauerkraut and tortes.

Additionally, the SSU Dance Company will perform and a parade featuring students in medieval and renaissance costumes will be at 6 p.m.

Prizes will be available at all of the game booths, and the SSU bookstore, the Book Rack, has donated a semester's worth of books for a special grand prize drawing.

The German Club will be accepting donations from businesses and individuals toward the construction of a new home for a local low income family currently being built by the SSU chapter of Habitat for Humanity.

For more information on Oktoberfest call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Love Letters Back For Family Weekend

Love Letters, a critically-acclaimed production of A.R. Gurney's award-winning play, is being revived for a pair of Family Weekend performances.

The play, starring communication arts professor Dr. R. J. Wesley and WMDT-TV anchorwoman Kelley Rouse, will be presented on Friday and Saturday, October 29 and 30, at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. The performances are free and the public is invited.

Love Letters opened the fall SSU Theatre season in early September and drew full houses of appreciative patrons. The production centers around correspondence, a seemingly unconventional subject for which to base a play. It features the passionate, touching and often comical letters of Andy Ladd (Wesley) and Melissa Gardner (Rouse) in a production that audiences found both amusing and inspiring.

For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Night Light Golf Benefits Habitat Project

The SSU Golf Club is sponsoring a Night Light Tournament at Nutters Crossing Golf Club in Salisbury on Saturday, October 23. Proceeds from the event, which begins at dusk, benefit the SSU chapter of Habitat for Humanity.

Registration forms are available at the Campus Recreation Office in the Maggs Center. For more information call 543-6080.

Wildlife Photographer Discusses Great Apes

Gerry Ellis, one of the premier nature and wildlife photographers in the world, discusses "The Great Apes" during a lecture and slide program on Monday, October 25, at 7:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the SSU Outdoor Club and Wilderness Orientation Program, Ellis' presentation is in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center and is free and open to the public.

Ellis is internationally acclaimed for his photography of chimpanzees, gorillas and orangutans—the great apes. He is the foremost photographer of endangered primates in the history of photography; notoriety which has led to the label "The ape man of photography." His stunning, heart-wrenching and arresting images of great apes in the wild, as well as their plight in captivity, have afforded the world an intimate perspective on nature's most fascinating creatures and our sometimes less-than-humane treatment of them.

For more information on his lecture call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

'Elemental Abstractions' At University Gallery

The work of three artists who met at the Maryland Institute College of Art in Baltimore are featured in an upcoming exhibit at the University.

Titled "Elemental Abstractions," the show features a collection of large, sometimes irregularly shaped canvases by Timothy App, William Brooke Rogers and Kevin Wolff. The exhibit is in the University Gallery October 21-November 17.

The University Gallery is located in Fulton Hall. Gallery hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday; 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Tuesday; noon-6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday; and closed Friday.

For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Marson Galleries Art Sale Set

Marson Galleries, Ltd. of Baltimore hosts an art exhibition and sale on Friday, October 29, from 11 a.m.-8 p.m., and Saturday, October 30, from 11 a.m.-4 p.m., in the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center.

Marson Galleries Ltd. is the largest firm in the nation specializing in arranging exhibitions and sales of original graphic art at colleges, universities, museums, hospitals and art centers throughout the United States.

For more information on the sale or exhibit call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first come, first served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The soccer team stretched its unbeaten streak to record proportions last Saturday with a 4-0 blanking of Allentown at home. The Gulls improved to 7-4-1 as they tied the school record with eight consecutive games without a loss, set in 1992. Matt Gaines, Soon-Jae Koper and Jason Fearn netted first half goals and Eric Viggiano added a second period tally to carry the offense. Joe Herman, Scott Bowers and Dave Jackson combined in goal for SSU's fourth shutout of the year. The Sea Gulls host Catholic this Friday in a rare home game under the lights. Game time is 7 p.m.

The cross country teams hosted the annual Tide-water Invitational in Salisbury last week, with the Sea Gull men capturing first place and the women finishing third. SSU's Jeff Hankins finished second overall with a time of 27:15 to lead the Sea Gulls. Jon Douglas (8th), Greg Spencer (11th) and Matt Piotrowski (15th) were the other top SSU finishers.

On the women's side, Mary Puderbaugh led Salisbury with a 14th place individual placing. She was followed by Kelly Delp (15th) and Vicky Huchko (18th). Both Sea Gull squads compete in the Capital Athletic Conference Championship Meet this Saturday in Fredericksburg, VA.

The volleyball team (27-11) won six of eight matches last week and moved into the regional rankings for the first time in three years. SSU went 3-0 at a quad match in Chestertown, sweeping Hood, Widener and host Washington. The Gulls then won three of five matches at the North-South Classic in Westminster, MD last weekend. Making a late charge for a postseason bid, Salisbury State checked in at number six in last week's South Region rankings.

The football team also made a late charge but couldn't complete the rally as it lost 35-21 at Newport News last week. Trailing 28-0 in the third quarter, SSU scored three straight TDs to pull within seven late in the fourth period. But a Newport touchdown with 1:12 remaining iced the victory for the Builders, sending the Gulls into this Saturday's game at Wesley with a 1-4 overall record. Kickoff time in Dover for this week's clash with the Wolverines is 1:30 p.m.

Degree-seeking Undergrads' Graduation Rates Listed

The federal Student Right to Know and Campus Security Act of 1990 (Public Law 101-542, as amended by Pub.L. 102-26, 1991) specifies that all colleges and universities disclose annually the graduation rates of degree-seeking undergraduate students.

In accordance with provisions of that legislation, the graduation rate of Salisbury State University's first-time, full-time freshmen who entered in the fall 1986 semester and graduated by June 30, 1992 was 48 percent. (This rate is also known as a six-year graduation rate.) This rate compares favorably to a national average of 43 percent for public four-year institutions as reported in the introduction to the legislation. Adding those who transferred to and graduated from a University of Maryland System (UMS) institution, the rate climbs to 54 percent. An additional 8 percent of SSU's 1986 freshman class (or cohort) were still enrolled within the University of Maryland System as of June 30, 1992 and had the potential to increase the graduation rate to 62 percent.

The six-year graduation rate is expected to rise with subsequent cohorts. For example, data already available for the 1987 SSU cohort of freshmen show a six-year graduation rate from Salisbury State University of 55 percent (7 percent higher than for the 1986 cohort). It is noteworthy that the four-year graduation rate of the 1987 SSU cohort was the highest in the University of Maryland System. Finally, none of the graduation rates take into account SSU freshmen who may have transferred to, and possibly graduated from, a Maryland private college or university, or any out-of-state institution since these data are unavailable.

As of this date, final regulations regarding this legislation have not been issued, so that the data and interpretations employed here are subject to change. Some institutions may have interpreted the U.S. Department of Education's guidelines differently from above or may be unable to provide six-year graduation rates. In the latter case, the legislation allows institutions to report persistence rates until such time that they can provide graduation rates. (Persistence rates reflect the number of entering freshmen who re-enroll in successive years.)

For comparative purposes, the persistence rate of SSU's fall 1991 cohort was 80 percent as of October 1992. This rate compares favorably to a national average of 68 percent for public four-year institutions as reported by the American College Testing Service in its 1992 institutional data file.

SSU's implementation of the campus security section of this legislation is described in a separate brochure available upon request from the Office of Public Safety. For further information about the graduation rates, contact the Office of Institutional Research, Holloway Hall, room 135.

life. He abhors the fashion-set when it comes to clothing and discusses the death of bohemianism as if reading from an obituary. Dressed in a pair of khakis which could easily double for gardening duty and a shirt rarely in danger of iron burns, he speaks fondly but with a critical eye of the '60s dress code.

"There was a reverse snobbery back then. You were supposed to look casual. True, it was a uniform and a sort of elitism. But now there's no reverse snobbery. Instead there's just an outright snobbery that's much more shameless."

Stone has a shameless, unpretentious view of his participation of the times. "Hell, it was fun. There was never a better time to be a student. And there was never a better time for some other things. There's never been another Grateful Dead. And there never will be."

Stone has managed to turn his own experiences from those times and those that followed into a career which garnered a host of honors including the 1968 William Faulkner Foundation Award for A Hall of Mirrors. That award, for "a notable first novel," came out of his experiences as a census taker in New Orleans. That job was one of many which eventually included a radioman in the navy and a radio actor.

His experience as a journalist in Vietnam became the material for Dog Soldiers, a novel of drug smuggling and a country ripped by war. The book won the National Book Award in 1974 and was made into the feature film, Who'll Stop the Rain, starring Nick Nolte.

For a man who never went to college, he has spent a sizeable portion of his life in university settings. Now teaching writing seminars at Johns Hopkins, he has also taught at Stanford, Harvard, Princeton and Amherst.

When he arrives at Salisbury State University on Thursday evening, October 28, he will be taking time out from a schedule which besides teaching includes the writing of a new book of short stories as well as completing another novel. "Who'll Stop the Rain" will be shown on the SSU campus prior to his visit, Monday evening, October 18.

The occasion for both the film presentation and his readings from selected works is the 1993 Fall Lecture Series at SSU titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s."

"It's a good time to look back on that era," said Stone. "The roots of political correctness is just one reason. I think it helps to see that we were all freer at one point. This country was at the zenith of its power and prosperity. The discontent was reflected by an attempt at perfectionism," he said.

But Stone is emphatic about the importance of not taking the 1960s too seriously. "None of us at the time thought that someday we'd all be so intellectual about the period. We were just having a lot of fun. Maybe that's the main message. Fun. That's the part my students seem to regret having missed."

like learning music: part mathematical analysis, part interpretation. In his classes and research, Kraft was able to counterpoint history, politics and cultural crosscurrents with finance in ways that a musician might envy.

If non-musicians did not grasp his techniques, they certainly appreciated the results: At the New School where he earned his Ph.D. with honors, he became the highest rated teaching assistant there. In 1993 students in the Perdue School of Business voted Kraft one of their "Outstanding Professors." This past summer the Fulbright Commission sent him to Slovenia, once part of Yugoslavia, to analyze its banking system. An expert on the former Yugoslavia, his writing has appeared in publications as disparate as the Journal of Comparative Economics and the Baltimore Sun. Regionally, Eastern Shore television and newspapers regularly ask him to interpret the cacophony of economic and political news which erupts from Eastern Europe and Washington, D.C.

"If there is one message I repeat to students it's that life for an American living on the Eastern Shore is affected by things going on beyond our borders. You may not be interested in life beyond the Eastern Shore, but the rest of the world is interested in you," Kraft said.

Currently Kraft and his wife, Jill Benderly, have opened their home to a young Parisian, the third European exchange student to stay with them since they moved to Salisbury three years ago. If today's world is internationally competitive, it can also be hospitable and friendly.

Said Dr. Richard Bebee, dean of the Perdue School, "I don't know if I should say this (for fear of losing him), but any good dean of a business school would like to have Evan. As the students say, 'He walks the walk and talks the talk.'"

Foreign Language Group Names White VP

Dr. Arlene White, chair of the Department of Modern Languages, recently attended the fall workshop of the Maryland Foreign Language Association titled "Technology Revisited." The conference was held at the German School in Baltimore.

White was elected for her fourth term on the board of directors and will serve as one of the vice presidents this year. She will also be MFLA's representative for the next three years on the board of reviewers of the National Standards in Foreign Language Education which is a collaborative project of the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages, the American Association of Teachers of French, the American Association of Teachers of German and the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese. It is funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Education and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Dr. Carmen Figueroa, instructor in Spanish at SSU, also attended the conference as did Jessica Elder and Monica Harris, two students in White's foreign language methods' class.

Dr. James P. Comer, Maurice Falk Professor of Child Psychiatry at Yale University's prestigious Child Study Center and associate dean of the Yale School of Medicine. Yet his mother, Maggie, never completed first grade. Born a sharecropper's daughter in rural Mississippi, she with her husband's support (he was a sixth grade graduate), was fiercely determined that their five children would get an education. Despite handicaps of race and limited means, all five graduated from college, earning 13 degrees.

Building upon his remarkable family experiences and expertise gathered from a lifetime of medical practice and education, Comer has become one of our nation's leaders in teaching minority children. On Wednesday, November 10, he will lecture on "Child Development and the Role of Education: Building Success in the Minority Student."

Part of the E. Pauline Riall Lecture Series sponsored by the School of Education and Professional Studies, Comer's talk begins at 7:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Newsweek magazine has named Comer one of 25 Americans "on the cutting edge" for his ideas about reforming troubled urban schools. In 1990 the Rockefeller Foundation announced a five-year, $15 million project to "speed the widespread adoption of (Comer's) pioneering method for educating at-risk students."

About 100 schools across the country, including ones in Maryland, are using what has come to be known as the "Comer Process." He believes that poor children often fail because parents living under economic and social stress are not

In Bleak Job Market Career Day Contacts Crucial

"Informal contacts" account for almost 75 percent of all successful job searches, Harvard sociologist Mark Granovetter recently reported in Forbes magazine.

On Tuesday, November 2, Salisbury State students have a chance to initiate contacts—and more—in the University's "Career Day VI."

Never has Career Day been more important. Nearly one of three college graduates between 1990 and 2005 is expected to take jobs that don't require a sheepskin—like flipping burgers, hawking jeans or faxing memos, reports the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

A recent Wall Street Journal article spotlighted a William and Mary graduate earning $7,000 a year, an M.B.A. selling clothes at a mall, and a former Rhodes Scholar finalist with a master's from Northwestern University living with his parents and driving nails for a neighbor's construction firm. The Journal reported many graduates are simply losing hope.

Salisbury State is no exception. During last spring's Alumni Phonathon, Alumni Director Nancy Wagner talked to several grads. "There were certainly successes," she said, "but others had tales that were grim. So many recent graduates could not find jobs in their field or even find a permanent full-time job. They'd say things like, 'I want to donate but all I can afford is $2.'"

Many students, especially first generation college, believe a diploma will open any door. "All these years their parents have been saying 'Get that degree and you've got it made.' It simply isn't true anymore," said Linda Benson, placement coordinator in the University's Center for Personal and Professional Development. "That's why events like 'Career Day' where students have a chance to network and make contacts are important," Benson said. "And these are friendly contacts, too." Friendly, because the 30 professionals coming to campus to talk with students are all alumni. Several are recent graduates who know firsthand what needs to be done to find a job. And they want their future fellow alums to succeed.

So does the University. Career Day is getting its biggest push since its inception. Carol Williamson, dean of students, has mailed 3,000 letters to parents urging them to send their children to the hour and a half program. These parents are now calling Benson asking how can they make sure the kids attend. All academic deans are on the Career Day committee and have committed their faculty's support. The Office of Alumni Relations also has mailed memos to all professors asking them to stress Career Day's importance in their classes. At least

Oil Painting Exhibit Opens in Atrium Gallery

An exhibit of oil paintings by Delaware artist Carol Gray opens in the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center on Thursday, November 4. The exhibit, open daily from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. and Sundays from noon-4 p.m. through November 23, is free and the public is invited.

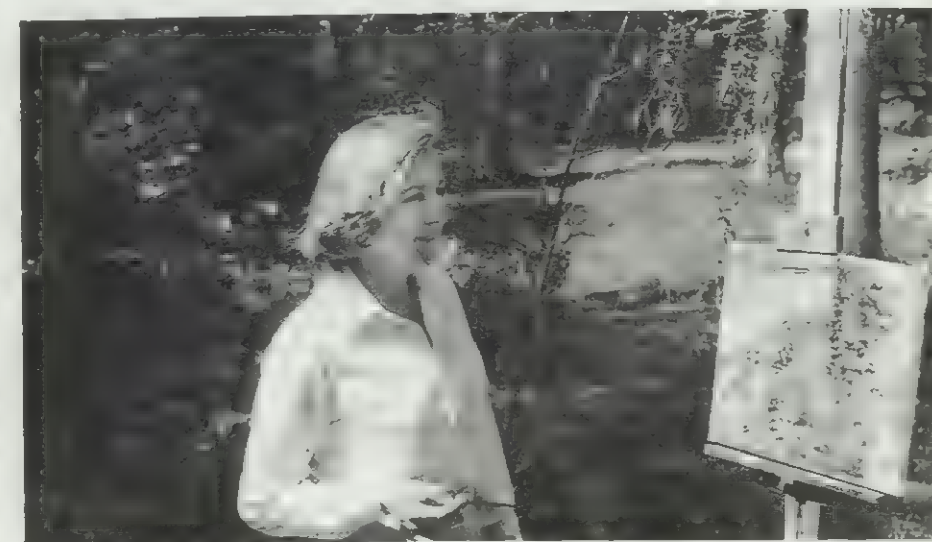

Gray, who lives and works in Newark, DE, graduated from the University of Delaware with a Masters of Fine Arts and has had additional study with Moses Soyer, Brooklyn Art Museum, with William Barnet, Delaware Art Museum, and with Eugene Leake, former director of the Maryland Institute.

She is a past president of the Council of Delaware Artists and has taught drawing and painting at Cecil Community College and New Castle County Adult Education. She continues to give private oil painting lessons. Her paintings are in collections of the DuPont Company and the University of Delaware, as well as other corporate and private collections. She has participated in numerous juried shows and her work is exhibited and sold in several commercial galleries.

The paintings exhibited in "Landscapes and Gardens" were actually executed on location—Gray's backyard. After studying the gardens of Monet, she created her own garden designed as a pattern of colors.

Health Benefits Fair At SSU Cancelled

Due to the re-evaluation of the health insurance program ordered by Gov. William Donald Schaefer, the Health Benefits Fair at Salisbury State has now been cancelled.

Gov. Schaefer has issued a directive that current health benefits will be extended until a new plan has been developed. The Personnel Office will keep everyone posted as information becomes available.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Tickets for Graduation

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for each succeeding ceremony.

Each December graduate will be provided 15 guest tickets. Please note the following deadlines: November 17-19, pick up caps, gowns, announcements and 15 tickets at the graduation center in the Book Rack (return any tickets not needed to the Guerrieri University Center information desk); and December 15-18, extra guest tickets that become available will be at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first-come, first-served basis.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Love Letters Back For Family Weekend

Love Letters, a critically-acclaimed production of A.R. Gurney's play, starring communication arts professor Dr. R. J. Wesley and WMDT-TV anchorwoman Kelley Rouse, will be presented on Friday and Saturday, October 29 and 30, at 8 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

New Sick Leave, Family Leave Policies Due in November

The President's Staff Advisory Council (PSAC) for SSU met with Keith Ferschweiler of the Personnel Office to discuss the new UM System sick leave and family leave policies, the orientation process for new staff, the status of the employee manual and the process by which campus job openings are advertised.

Staff can expect to receive an announcement which outlines the new sick leave and family leave policies during the month of November. The policies reflect UM System changes and federally mandated program changes. The Personnel Office currently orients new staff on a one-on-one basis, but is considering other ways of informing new and current staff of personnel policies and benefits. The Personnel Office is currently working on a revised employee manual. The new edition will be available by the end of January. The council will be meeting with Dr. Bellavance in early November to discuss staff issues.

Any SSU staff member with questions or concerns about these or other staff issues are welcome to contact any PSAC member. The council meets monthly and serves as a conduit between staff and the president or other University departments. Council members are: Linda Abresch, Math Department; Dennis Bradford, Public Safety Office; Lesley Dayton, Blackwell Library; Jackie Eberts, Financial Services Office; Barry King, Dean of Students Office; Bob Meigel, Physical Plant; Jerry Waldron, Registrar's Office; and Jeanette Wolinski, Computer Services Office.

The next meeting of the Math Club is on Thursday, October 28, at 7:45 p.m. in Power Professional Building, room 117. The club has a social on Friday, November 5, at the Honors House, time to be announced.

Anyone interested in the Putnam exam or the Virginia Tech exam should contact the Math Department. The date of the Putnam is Saturday, December 4, from 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m.; the Virginia Tech exam is Saturday, October 30, from 9:30-11:30 a.m.

Faculty Grants Workshop Slated for November 19

There is a grants workshop on Friday, November 19, from 12:30-3:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center for those who would like to know more about the grants process. The purpose of the workshop is to review funding sources in general and specifics about grant writing. Some of the resources of the Grants Office will be available to peruse. An Italian buffet will be served at the beginning of the workshop.

For more information call Sandy Ramses, Grants and Sponsored Research Office, at 548-5395 by November 5.

Wellness Lifestyle Seminars at CPPD

The Center For Personal and Professional Development will be coordinating a series of seminars focused on developing a wellness lifestyle. The seminars are on Wednesdays from noon-1 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Participants should bring their lunch.

Topics to be covered at the seminars include: stress management, smoking cessation, time management, successful weight control, developing emotional muscle and effective communication for healthy relationships. Additional topics to be covered will be announced at a later date.

For more information call CPPD at 543-6070.

Metropolitan Opera Bus Trip Offered

The University is sponsoring a bus trip to the Metropolitan Opera at the Lincoln Center in New York City on Friday, November 12, to see La Boheme, written by Giacomo Puccini. This is the third trip that SSU has offered to the Lincoln Center and each has been a booming success.

The bus leaves the Dogwood parking lot of the Guerrieri University Center at 8 a.m. There will be a brief breakfast stop in Wilmington; the bus will discharge all passengers at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York at approximately noon.

Everyone is free to spend the afternoon at the museum or at other attractions and proceed on their own to the Lincoln Center for the 8 p.m. performance. The bus leaves New York immediately after the show and returns to Salisbury at approximately 4 a.m. No food or beverages are allowed on the bus.

The charge for the trip is $20 for full-time students; sign up begins on Wednesday, October 27, at 8 a.m. at the Guerrieri Center information desk. An SSU I.D. is needed. Full-time students may sign up for a limit of two seats. The charge for part-time students, faculty and staff is $20; sign-up begins at 8 a.m. on October 29. The sign-up is limited to two seats, also. The charge includes bus and opera ticket only. All food and local transportation in New York is not covered.

There are no refunds for cancellations unless the seat is filled. For more information call the Guerrieri Center at 543-6006.

Bus Trip Scheduled To Large Outlet Mall

There is a bus trip to Franklin Mills Mall (outside of Philadelphia) on Saturday, November 13. The bus leaves at 6 a.m. from the Guerrieri University Center parking lot and returns at 10 p.m. that evening. The bus stops at the Plantation Restaurant where either a buffet or platter breakfast is available. Franklin Mills is a huge outlet shopping mall, on one floor under one roof.

The stores, including a recently opened Burlington Coat store, are top quality outlet stores. This is an opportunity to do some holiday shopping and save money plus have a nice day.

Sponsored by Chapter 72, SSU of Maryland Classified Employees Association, the price is $12 for non-members of MCEA and $8 for members. Please give money to Judy Lowe in the Registrar's Office or Barbara Keene in Student Activities and Minority Affairs Office. Deadline to pay is Friday, October 29.

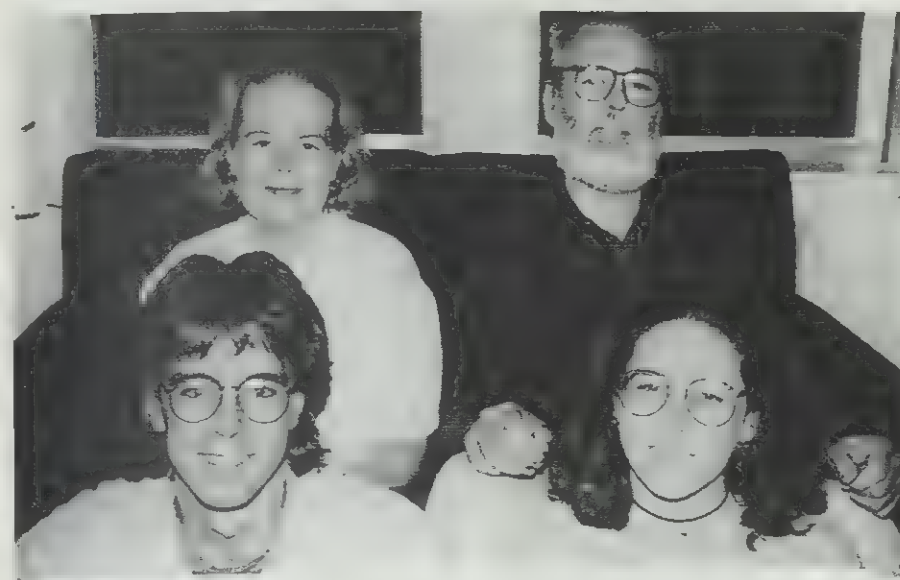

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Honors Program Director, Students at Conference

Dr. Tony Whall, director of the University Honors Program, will be accompanied to this year's National Collegiate Honors Council Conference by three student officers in the Honors Student Association, thanks to the largesse of a retired University of Maryland professor and his wife.

Dr. John Portz, retired director of the University of Maryland's Honors Program and a past president and executive secretary of NCHC, and his wife, Edith, have donated $1,000 to enable the students to attend the October 27-31 conference in St. Louis. This gift, as well as funds from the SSU Foundation's Honors Program Endowment, will make it possible for Mike Long (Boonsboro, MD), Alison Frame (New Hyde Park, NY) and Jennifer Mariner (Sykesville, MD), student officers in the HSA, to attend workshops and seminars on building community among Honors students, on undergraduate research, on community service projects and Honors education, and on other topics that can enrich and improve the experience of Honors students at SSU.

The theme of this year's conference is "Privilege, Responsibility, and Community"; the plenary speaker is Dr. Cornel West, professor of religion and director of African-American studies at Princeton University whose recently-published and widely praised book, "Race Matters," will provide a focus for a number of symposia at the conference.

Whall serves as a consultant for NCHC and will present a workshop with Dr. Ronald Dotterer, dean of SSU's Fulton School of Liberal Arts, on "Taking Responsibility for Knowing: A Workshop on Hermeneutics." Dotterer is chair of NCHC's Publications Board and is a member of the NCHC executive committee.

Family Weekend Has Something for Everyone

Family Weekend will be held for parents, spouses and friends of the University on October 29-31 with a plethora of events planned.

Events on Saturday include an Open House from 9-10 a.m. in the Guerrieri University Center; Academic Schools Open House from 11-11:45 a.m. and 11:45 a.m.-12:30 p.m.; "New Students' Seminar in the Wilderness" slide show from 11 a.m.-noon; Honors Students Reception from 11:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.; Arboretum Tour from 12:30-1:15 p.m.; SSU vs. University of Albany football game from 1-4 p.m.; SOPHANS Guided Halloween Tour through a Haunted House from 2-5 p.m. (children) and 6:30-10 p.m. (adults); the Sea Gull Sports Bar-B-Que from 4-7 p.m.; and a comedy, magic and juggling show by Russ Merlin at 8 p.m.

On Sunday "Brunch on the Hill" will be served in the University Center from 11 a.m.-2 p.m.

For additional information about Family Day contact the Office of Public Relations at 543-6030.

Estate Planning Seminar On November 13

The SSU Foundation Inc. will sponsor a seminar, "Your Estate: How To Plan It," from 9:30 a.m.-noon on Saturday, November 13.

The guest speaker will be G. Michael Richwine, vice president of the Security Trust Co. of Washington, D.C., a division of MNC Financial. Richwine is an expert in estate planning and has conducted seminars on behalf of Security Trust for many years.

Among the topics to be discussed are estate planning, forms of property ownership, wills, probate, trusts, selection of fiduciaries, estate and gift taxes, and gifting programs to reduce estate taxes.

The seminar is being held as a public service and is not intended to sell any financial product. Its purpose is to protect the assets of SSU alumni, faculty, staff and friends from taxes, probate and waste.

The registration fee for the seminar is $10 per person and reservations are required.

For more information or to make reservations call the Foundation at 543-6175.

Basehart Receives Faculty Award

Editor's Note: Dr. Harry Basehart, professor of political science, is one of the winners of SSU's 1993 Distinguished Faculty Award. In last week's story about the award, the following was deleted accidentally. The SSU News staff apologizes for the error.

Dr. Harry Basehart, SSU's senior political scientist, appreciates the unappreciated. His specialties are state legislatures, country governments and city precincts.

His love of grassroots politics may have come from his grandmother, postmistress of Newcomerstown, OH, during the 1930s, '40s and '50s. Then P.O. positions were political; she was appointed by FDR, and Basehart remembers her each election at the court house checking the returns like an accountant.

In communities like Newcomerstown (population 5,000, smaller than the SSU campus), the post office was an important center of community life. Years later Basehart takes his SSU political science students to another town center, the newsroom of the local paper, where before each election they utilize Daily Times phone banks to poll voters.

The civilities of small town living have served him well in his 23 years of teaching. "I go to Harry to get an honest, level-headed opinion. If he agrees, he's pleasant; if he disagrees, he's pleasant," said Dr. Michael O'Loughlin, Political Science Department chair. Basehart's courtesy coupled with expertise has paid off in the classroom as well. According to O'Loughlin, "Harry has the highest student evaluations in the department."

Like a 19th century Shaker, Basehart sees beauty in utility. He co-authored the second edition of "Understanding American Government," a basic text for courses which is "one of the best on the market," O'Loughlin said. Basehart also has written for Legislative Studies Quarterly, "used by everyone in the field of state government."

"I like explaining the inexplicable," Basehart joked. Following graduation from Ohio State University where he earned his Ph.D., he was sent to Viet Nam. His base near the DMZ was shelled only twice, but that was enough. Years later he is incredulous when revisionist historians claimed the U.S. was winning the war when it pulled out. "They were not there," he said.

Last year, on the 25th anniversary of the Tet Offensive, Basehart sparked a Viet Nam conference at SSU which attracted scholars and authorities from around the world. It "was historic for SSU" bringing "scholarly prominence to the University nationwide," Bosserman said. Putting aside any personal feelings, Basehart made sure all sides of the issues were heard.

Said O'Loughlin, "Harry exemplifies what is best about a scholar-teacher."

"Teaching here is every bit as good as at Dartmouth College, Boston University, the University of Paris," added Bosserman, all places he has been. "I never cease to be amazed by how good SSU's faculty is."

Community Players Present Oklahoma

The Salisbury area Community Players present Oklahoma on Thursday, November 4, through Sunday, November 7, at Wicomico High School. Performances are at 8:15 p.m. except Sunday's 2 p.m. matinee. For ticket information call 543-ARTS.

Mamas and Papas Concert On Campus November 8

The Mamas and the Papas, the singing group that exploded on the music scene in 1966 with the hit California Dreamin', is in concert on Monday, November 8.

The concert is part of the Fall Lecture Series at SSU titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The Mamas and the Papas perform at 8 p.m. in the Holloway Hall Auditorium.

SSU students, with an I.D., can pick up two free tickets beginning October 25. Tickets are $10 each for the general public and $5 each for SSU staff and faculty, and are limited to four tickets per person. They go on sale Thursday, October 28.

All tickets are available at the Guerrieri University Center information desk. Call 543-6006 for ticket information.

The Fall Lecture Series is a presentation of the Faculty Cultural Events Committee. For more information or a lecture series schedule, call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Software Available For Faculty, Staff Review

Blackwell Library has acquired several different packages of computer software which are available for faculty/administrative staff review. The loan period for these materials is two weeks.

Unauthorized copying of the software is illegal without the permission of the copyright owner. Therefore, the software is loaned with the understanding that it will be reviewed only and not copied.

Access to the call number of the software is obtained by searching either author, title or subject in the card catalog. After locating the call number, borrowers should request the software at the circulation desk. A list of software titles is also available at the circulation desk.

SSPB Seeks Film Chairperson

The Salisbury State Program Board is currently accepting applications for the position of film chairperson.

The committee is responsible for selecting, booking and showing films for the campus community. Applications are available in the Dean of Students Office (room 212), the Student Activities Office (room 242D), the Program Board Office (room 226) and the information desk. Applications are due in the Student Activities Office by 4 p.m. on October 29. Applicants must sign up for an interview at that time.

For more information call the Program Board Office at 543-6197 or the Student Activities Office at 543-6125.

WSUR on the Air

WSUR, SSU's student-run radio station, is back on the air. Available on campus TV, channel 11, and 107.5 cable FM on Storer Cable, WSUR broadcasts from 7 a.m.-1 a.m. Monday through Saturday, and 10 a.m.-1 a.m. on Sunday. Current programming includes College Alternative, with specialty shows including gospel, reggae and jazz. WSUR also provides live coverage of Sea Gull sports.

WSUR also offers free public service announcements for the community and student organizations. For information on how to get WSUR off campus, contact WSUR General Manager Andy Mitchell at 543-6195 or stop by WSUR, Guerrieri University Center, room 249, during business hours. For advertising information, contact WSUR Advertising Manager Todd Humphrey.

Fleming NSO Guest for Russian Tour

Dr. Jessie L. Fleming, professor of music, has returned home from a 15-day tour of Russia and the three Baltic countries as a special guest of the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington, D.C.

The orchestra performed five concerts in Moscow, including a noon concert in Red Square on September 26. President Boris Yeltsin appeared, along with an estimated crowd of 300,000. The concert was televised both in Russia and the United States. Since the orchestra and guests were housed in a hotel near Red Square, they were not close to the area of the city where the political unrest and ensuing fighting took place.

The group was assigned four buses and a police escort each time it moved from place to place. After a week in Moscow the group went to St. Petersburg by train, where the orchestra performed four concerts in as many days. In both cities there was scheduled time for escorted sight-seeing. The tour ended with concerts in each of the capitols of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia. Each concert ended with accolades for the conductor, Mstislav Rostropovich, a native Russian who is considered a national hero to many Russians. He has been the music director of the National Symphony for the past 17 years and will return to Russia at the end of the current concert season.

In Moscow the group was entertained at a reception by the American Ambassador at his residence, Spasso House, and in St. Petersburg the American Consul hosted a reception for the orchestra and Rostropovich.

The special guests were invited to join the tour by members of the National Symphony, among whom Fleming has several professional friends. The group returned to Washington on October 5.

African-American Actress Discusses Cultural Diversity

Barbara-O, who plays a leading role in the critically acclaimed film, Daughters of the Dust, visits campus November 15-16.

On Monday, November 15, Barbara-O introduces a screening of the film at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall Auditorium (room 149).

On Tuesday, November 16, from 11 a.m.-12:20 p.m. she conducts an acting workshop in Fulton Hall, room 203. This is followed by a seminar on cultural diversity with students from SSU's Learning Community from 5:30-6:50 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 128.

Barbara-O has had a distinguished acting career. She has appeared in such movies as Polished Ebony and Diary of an African Nun, produced by the American Film Institute; Bush Mama and Child of Resistance by Mypheduh Films; Demon Seed by MGM; and Black Chariot by Columbia Pictures.

Stage appearances include Sisthu at the Los Angeles Actors Theatre, Piano Bar at the Inner City Cultural Center, Los Angeles, and A Raisin in the Sun at the Karamu House in Cleveland.

She also has been seen in such popular television series as Wonder Woman, Laverne and Shirley, Divorce Court, Freedom Road, Quest and the pilot, The Powers of Matthew Starr.

Daughters of the Dust is the dramatic portrait of an African-American family on Ibo Landing in the Sea Islands off the coast of South Carolina. Set at the turn of the century, the movie offers a rare opportunity to observe authentic details of the African-American Gullah culture of that period.

The viewing experience is unique because the people brought to these islands were isolated. Gullah people developed intricate cultural expressions of African traditions. In Daughters of the Dust audiences see both the links and conflicts between African and African-American traditions as lived by one family on the island.

Barbara-O plays Yellow Mary, a character she describes as "that part of us all which we recognize, but dare not acknowledge—that part of us that wants to belong, but only on our own terms."

Barbara-O drew upon a mother lode of training and personal experience in crafting Yellow Mary. Armed with a B.A. and M.F.A.

Croatian Journalist Gives Her Views on War

Vesna Kesic, a noted Croatian journalist, discusses "A Croatian Feminist View on the War in the Ex-Yugoslavia" in Caruthers Auditorium at 3:30 p.m. on Thursday, October 28.

A writer and later editor for the popular magazine Start, she was one of the first generation of modern Yugoslav feminists, who organized and published extensively since 1978.

After Croatia declared independence, Start was one of a number of publications closed down by the government of Franjo Tudjman. When the war with Serbia began in 1991, Kesic committed herself to the antiwar movement. She has taken an outspoken public stance against nationalism, whether it be Serbian or Croatian. She writes for ARKzine, an antiwar magazine.

She is a founder and coordinator of the Center for Women War Victims in Zagreb, which helps women war refugees to survive and regain control over their lives in the refugee campus. Kesic has spoken around the world about women's antiwar activities in ex-Yugoslavia. She was part of a U.S. tour last spring.

Barbara-O

She proposed (and will be a key participant in) the October 1993 Washington, D.C., conference on "Women, Nationalism and Democratization" in Eastern Europe sponsored by the International Research and Exchanges Board, the Atlantic Council and the Network of East-West Women.

The lecture, free and open to the public, is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee and SSU's international students. For more information call the Office of Public Relations at 543-6030.

For more information about study abroad, stop by the AIFS table in the Dining Hall lobby on Friday, October 29, 7:30-9 a.m. or the downstairs locker hallway in the Guerrieri University Center on Saturday, October 30, 9-11 a.m.

Maryland Charity Campaign Kicks Off

Pledge cards will accompany pay checks for University state employees on Wednesday, November 3 requesting a voluntary contribution to the 1993 Maryland Charity Campaign. The campaign runs through Friday, November 19. A brochure, which lists all participating agencies, will be mailed to all state employees.

The agency listing is helpful for those who wish to designate a specific agency to receive contributions or require the services of one of the agencies. This year as an incentive for employees to support the campaign, the SSU Foundation Inc. has donated a VCR; employees will be eligible to win if they give at least $1.50 per pay period. Also, University Dining Services has donated free passes to the annual Christmas dinner, Wednesday, December 15, and the Book Rack has donated some items. The drawing for the VCR and the other prizes will take place on Monday, November 22. The winners will be contacted immediately.

When considering whether to contribute please consider that the agencies which receive funds from the Maryland Charity Campaign depend on generous support to continue to function. Emergency assistance, vocational training for the handicapped and disabled, and counseling and educational programs are just a few of the services offered.

"Perhaps that which you give today may some day come back to you," said Gains Hawkins, director of public relations. "Be as generous as you can be."

Campaign coordinators at the University this year are Debbie Merryweather of the Financial Services Office (543-6050), Kathy Pusey of the Public Relations Office (543-6030) and Hawkins (543-6030). Call one of them for more information.

Study Abroad Opportunities Presented

SSU and the American Institute for Foreign Study have signed a consortium agreement to facilitate study abroad opportunities for students. Dede Alicia will be on campus to discuss programs, sites and scholarships for summer, semester or year-long programs.

For more information about study abroad, stop by the AIFS table in the Dining Hall lobby on Friday, October 29, 7:30-9 a.m. or the downstairs locker hallway in the Guerrieri University Center on Saturday, October 30, 9-11 a.m.

Piano Recital By Cockey Upcoming

Linda Cockey, assistant professor of music, performs a recital of baroque, rococo, classical, romantic and 20th century piano music at 2 p.m. on Sunday, November 14, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Featured works are a Prelude and Fugue by Johann Sebastian Bach, a Fantasy by Carl Phillip Emanuel Bach, the Pathetique Sonata (Opus 13 in c minor) of Ludwig van Beethoven, six Chopin preludes, a song transcription by Franz Liszt and a dance suite by a South American composer Alberto Ginastera. Cockey, a full-time member of the Music Department, teaches applied piano, class piano, music history and music appreciation. She holds a Doctor of Musical Arts from Catholic University of America, a Master of Music from Temple University and a Bachelor of Arts from Lebanon Valley College. She has studied piano with Robert Bailey, William Fairlamb, Susan Starr and Thomas Mastroianni.

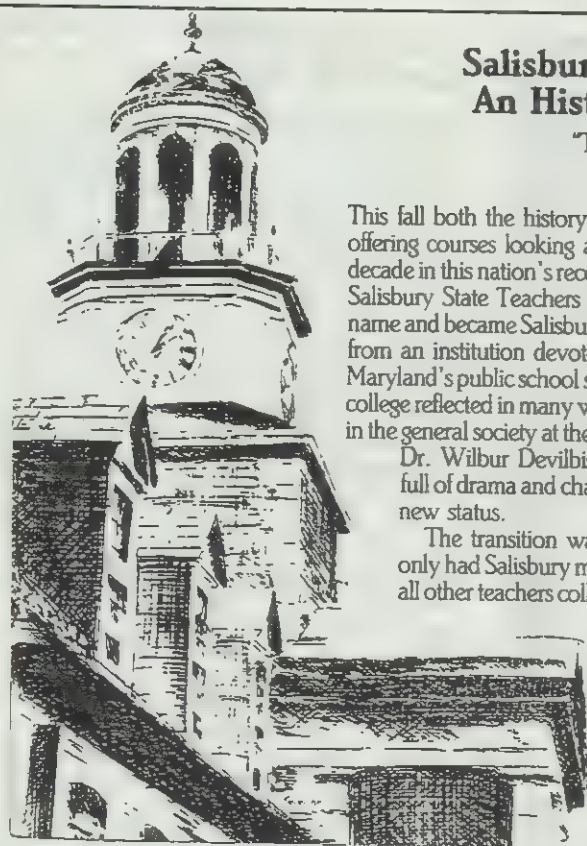

Admission to the recital is free. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Outdoor Club Has Rock-Climbing Trip

The second speaker sponsored by the Outdoor Club this fall is Cindy Ross, an author and long-distance backpacker. She speaks on Monday, November 1, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The regular Monday weekly meeting follows at 9 p.m.

There is a rock-climbing trip to Great Falls, VA, on Saturday, November 6, with a rain date of November 7. For additional information contact Wendy Rosen at 546-4392 or Scott McIntosh at 548-1689.

Salisbury State University An Historical Perspective

"The Sixties Came To Salisbury"
by Sylvia Bradley

This fall both the history and English Departments are offering courses looking at the 1960s, truly a critical decade in this nation's recent past. In September 1963, Salisbury State Teachers College changed its status and name and became Salisbury State College. The transition from an institution devoted to producing teachers for Maryland's public school system to that of a liberal arts college reflected in many ways the changes taking place in the general society at the time. Under the direction of Dr. Wilbur Devilbiss, Salisbury would see years full of drama and challenge in the first years of this new status.

The transition was expected to be costly. Not only had Salisbury moved to a liberal arts school; all other teachers colleges in the state had done the same.

A Baltimore Sun reporter pointed to their need for more laboratories, foreign language departments and "libraries far beyond the present scale" if they were to be fully accredited. It seems today to be almost deja vu to review the struggle over "upgrading" facilities, hiring needs, expanding library holdings and building new campus structures. In the eight years prior to 1963 state authorizations of $1.3 million for capital improvements had resulted in the renovation of the original library wing (now the Perdue School wing) into a student activity center and science laboratories and classrooms, a new gymnasium (on the site of the present Fulton School building), a new home for the president (still used for that but scheduled for demolition), and planning for the construction of a women's dormitory and a dining hall-student union building (the present Ruth Powell Dining Hall). In addition, the College had purchased a restaurant building facing Route 13 and began renovation of it as a classroom (music) building; today the Office of Public Safety is in the building. At the time Salisbury became a liberal arts college, then, it had 10 buildings and appropriations for two more—a science classroom building (Devilbiss Hall) and a student union (dining hall). None of the buildings had names until 1966 when a committee of faculty, administrators, alumni and students adopted a policy for naming buildings and selected these names: Holloway Hall, T.J. Canuthers Campus School, Tawes Gymnasium, Memorial Student Union and Wicomico, Manokin and Pocomoke halls.

Enrollment by 1965 had more than doubled since 1955 and stood at approximately 700 students, but grew to 850 by 1968. About 60 percent of those came from beyond a 20 mile radius and boarded on campus. Few students, however, came from outside Maryland. Most who did came from neighboring Delaware and Virginia, with a few from Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Admission requirements had changed little over two decades. Student's class rank, kinds of courses and pattern of subjects taken, test scores (including SATs), recommendations of school counselors, and a minimum of 60 percent "A" and "B" grades with nothing less than "C" in academic subjects were the basic requirements. There were many waivers and much flexibility, however.

There were 32 teaching faculty members at Salisbury in 1963. Twelve of those held doctorate degrees, and only one had just a bachelor's degree. Five years later there were 51 faculty. A sharp rise in the number of professors in English, science, history and social science areas reflected the switch to a liberal arts school, but the greatest jump was in education; Salisbury's dedication to producing teachers had not been abandoned. When Academic Dean Earl Willis spoke to the faculty workshop in September 1967, he repeated what he had said often, that "the primary function of a college is to provide opportunities for the liberal education of men and women." Then he admitted to some disappointments. Society, he said, seemed to have misconstrued what the liberal ideal really is; it stresses getting a degree and a good job "with too little attention to the liberalizing influences of college and the ultimate concern for the kind of person who emerges."

In November 1965 a Baltimore reporter called Salisbury "a typical small college—spacious, primly landscaped campus, buildings styled in dignified Georgian, knots of bookladen students moving about, and the inevitable glut in the parking lots." (Deja vu again!) The parking problem predicted the future trend; more and more students chose to live off campus.

Sylvia Bradley is an assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture located in the Power Building. She is the author of a book chronicling the history of Salisbury State and an alumnus of the institution. Throughout the academic year she will write about SSU's history and heritage. Book Rack Has Book Signing

Six local authors, whose works range from romance novels to a non-fiction study of romance, will be at the Book Rack signing their books on Saturday, October 30.

Dr. William C. Home, an SSU English professor, opens the day signing copies of his Making a Heaven of Hell from 8:30-11 a.m. From 10 a.m.-noon Linda Windsor (Delta Moonfire, Mexican Caress, Midnight Lovestorm and Brides Passion) and SSU biology professor Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna (Human Aging: Biological Perspectives) will be on hand.

Mary Corddry, retired Baltimore Sun reporter and author of Ocean City: City on the Sand, will be present from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Cynthia Bailey-Pratt, author of A Lady in Disguise, A Lady in Love and Heart Strings (written under the pen name Lydia Browne) signs her books from 1-3 p.m.

For more information about the book signing sessions call the Book Rack at 543-6085.

Our Voices Host Lectures Here Nov. 4

Beverly Smith, host of Our Voices, Black Entertainment Television's (BET) popular prime time talk show, presents a lecture discussion on "Reinventing America: Giving What You Have Learned to the Less Fortunate" on Thursday, November 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

In the course of her television and radio career, which began in 1972 as the nation's first black consumer affairs reporter at WPXI-TV in Pittsburgh and has included several broadcast stints in Miami, Orlando and Washington, D.C., Smith has never been afraid to take on a new challenge or address a potentially dangerous topic.

In addition to her regular radio and television work, Smith has made several appearances on prominent national news programs such as ABC's Nightline with Ted Koppel, CNN's Larry King Live, NBC's The Today Show and ABC's Good Morning America. A highly sought speaker, she lends her talents not only to broadcast but to the town meeting forum, as well. For example, she spoke at a Pittsburgh town meeting on "Politics and Black Americans" which, with more than 2,500 people in attendance, quickly became a standing-room-only event for which the police had to block streets.

Smith has received over 200 awards and citations including the Most Outstanding Black Woman in America Award (1978) and the University of Miami Outstanding Journalist Award (1984). Smith attended Robert Morris Business College in Pittsburgh, where she studied marketing and management.

An admission donation to the SSU Habitat for Humanity project is requested for the event, sponsored by the Union of African-American Students and the Office of Minority Affairs. For further information please call 548-4503.

Museum Card Party Is Benefit Fundraiser

Snow Hill's Julia A. Purnell Museum is holding a card party fundraiser on Tuesday, November 9. The party, held in two sessions, is 1-4 p.m. and 8-11 p.m. Eleven tables are available at each session for foursomes to enjoy the atmosphere of the museum while playing their favorite card games. The museum provides desserts, snacks and coffee at both sessions. The cost of each card party session is $5 per person, or $20 per table. To make reservations call Alice Patera at 632-0515.

Senior portraits will be taken in November. All seniors who are graduating in December or May should sign up between November 8-12.

The sign-up sheet is located in the Guerrieri University Center at the information desk. The photographs will be taken in the Choptank Room of the Guerrieri Center from November 15-19. The sitting fee is $5. A yearbook will be mailed to each senior in September 1994 but only if that senior is photographed.

For more information call 546-3210 on Tuesday or Thursday from 2-4:45 p.m. on stop by The Evergreen office on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center (room 229A).

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Cross Country runner Jeff Hankins became SSU's first-ever Capital Athletic Conference champion as he won the men's race at last Saturday's CAC Championship in Fredericksburg, VA. Hankins topped all runners with a time of 26:33, and helped guide the Sea Gulls to a second place team finish. Jon Douglas (9th overall) and Matt Piotrowski (11th) also earned all-conference honors by finishing among the top 15.

On the women's side, Mary Puderbaugh and Rita Leventy earned all-conference status by placing 12th and 13th overall. The SSU women placed third as a team, finishing behind Mary Washington and Catholic. Both Gull squads compete in the Mason-Dixon Championship this week in Cumberland, MD.

The soccer team extended its school-record unbeaten string to 10 games before having the streak snapped last Sunday. The Gulls posted back-to-back 4-0 shutouts over Goucher and Catholic last week before losing 2-0 at Randolph-Macon on Sunday afternoon. The loss was the team's first in over five weeks, dating back to September 19. The Gulls, now 9-5-1 overall, face Christopher Newport and Chowan this week as they close out the regular season.

The women's tennis team concluded an outstanding fall season with a 5-4 triumph over Navy last Saturday. Paced by singles wins from Kathy Castelli, Nikki Lee and Kelly Carey, the Gulls won their 10th straight match to finish the season 10-1 overall. SSU will regroup for a short schedule of matches in the spring that will serve as warm-up for the Capital Athletic Conference championship tournament in April.

The football team saw a big second half rally fall just a bit short for the second straight week as the Gulls (1-5) lost at Wesley 45-30. Trailing by 15, SSU rode the record-breaking passing arm of QB Len Annetta to within 32-30 with 10 minutes remaining. But the Gulls fell victim to a couple of Wesley big plays, including an 89-yard kickoff return, as they lost their fourth straight. Annetta finished with an SSU record 393 yards passing, including TD passes of 73 yards to Byron Pugh and 35 yards to Todd Burrell. Salisbury hosts Albany this Saturday as the Gulls return to Sea Gull Stadium for the first time in five weeks.

The field hockey and volleyball teams return to action this week after having clear schedules last week. The stickers (7-7 overall) close out the regular season this week by visiting Mary Washington and hosting Rowan. The volleyball team (27-11) visits Marymount in its season finale.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Thursday, Oct. 28
Field Hockey vs. Rowan (HOME)—3 p.m.
Saturday, Oct. 30
Cross Country at Mason-Dixon Championship—11 a.m.
Football vs. Albany State (HOME)—1 p.m.
Sea Gull Sports Bar-B-Que—4 p.m.
Sunday, Oct. 31
Soccer vs. Chowan (HOME)—3 p.m.

Mathematics Contest Sponsored by Loyola

Students from 25 high schools on the Eastern Shore have been invited to Salisbury State to participate in the 10th annual High School Mathematics Contest.

The contest is in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center on Thursday, November 11. Registration is at 9:30 a.m. and the test is given in two parts, at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m.

The three highest scorers are declared winners and receive plaques and prizes; the fourth and fifth place winners receive prizes; a permanent plaque engraved with the name of the first-place winner remains in the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science. A plaque is also presented to the high school team with the combined highest score, as well as a prize. A luncheon given by the University follows the testing.

Dr. E. Lee May, professor in the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science, will give a presentation titled "Fermat's Last Theorem and the Appeal of Mathematics" following the contest. Dr. Bernard Fusaro will present a mini-workshop titled "Using Graphing Calculators" for teachers of the contestants during the contest.

Arrangements for the contest are being handled by Dr. Carla Schultes and Dr. David Parker (co-chairs), Dr. Homer A. Austin, Dr. Steven Hetzler, Mary A. Nichols, Dr. Barbara Wainwright, Dr. Robert M. Tardiff and Debbie Lewis, all of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science. The sponsor of this year's Math Contest is Loyola Federal Savings Bank.

For further information contact Debbie Lewis at 543-6140.

Todd Gladfelter, Cindy Ross, son Bryce, daughter Sierra, and llamas on the Colorado Trail

Hiking, Backpacking Author Gives Lecture

Cindy Ross, author of numerous books about hiking and backpacking and a contributing editor at Backpacking Magazine, gives a lecture and slide show about her trip along the Colorado Trail on Monday, November 1, at 7:30 p.m.

The presentation, free and open to the public, is in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Ross and her husband, Todd Gladfelter, have each hiked more than 6,000 miles including the 2,100-mile Appalachian Trail and the 2,600-mile Pacific Crest Trail. They took a respite from long-distance hiking five years ago when the first of their two children, Sierra, a daughter, was born. Son Bryce was born two years later.

"We had reconciled ourselves to the fact that we would not be taking a long hike again until the children were older," Ross said. "But, we ended up meeting a guy who had some llamas. We started thinking that, with llamas to help carry our gear, we could take the kids on a long hike."

After a year of planning, last summer, Ross, Gladfelter, the two children and four llamas embarked on a two-month trip along the 470-mile Colorado Trail, which runs from Denver to Durango. They averaged 10 to 12 miles a day, walking for an hour, then taking an hour off.

They had no previous experience with llamas but "after 30 minutes of training, we were able to handle them," said Ross. "We didn't have a single problem."

"Llamas have a reputation for being somewhat temperamental and stubborn, but we didn't see that at all. They're very sweet animals."

Ross is the author of four books: A Woman's Journey, which recounts her experiences on the Appalachian Trail; A Journey on the Crest, about her Pacific Crest Trail hike; Hiking; and A Hiker's Companion: 12,000 Miles of Trail Wisdom, which she co-authored with her husband. Ross will be at the Book Rack, the campus bookstore, for a book signing from 3-4 p.m. on the day of the lecture.

Her presentation is sponsored by the Outdoor Club and the Guerrieri Center Office. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Paintings by Powell on Exhibit in Salisbury

From November 1 through November 30, the Wicomico County Free Library sponsors the 10th annual watercolor exhibit by Dolores Powell. As in the past, these paintings brighten the entrance of the library for the month. Powell's love of the Eastern Shore is evident by the theme of many of these paintings.

Having attended SSU and studying art, and after attending many workshops taught by professional artists, Powell discovered a hidden talent for capturing a place and mood in the media of watercolor. She proudly acclaims that painting is her hobby. The encouragement and praise of family, friends and other artists have been to a large degree the force behind her continuing pursuit of this hobby. In her leisure, Powell is at her art table, on location at the beach or the bay, in awe of the waterfowl, skipjacks and landscapes of the Eastern Shore. Based on field observations, Powell often paints from photos that she and her husband have taken. Her family is the most important factor in her life. Her husband does most of the framing. Powell has two daughters who also are artists and in their leisure time, or on vacation, can be found with her at the beach or near a crab shack with paint, paper and easel.

Although the settings of her paintings are usually the Eastern Shore, she portrays the beaches and lighthouses of the eastern United States, white sands of Pensacola, farms, barns and houses of Pennsylvania, the northeast and Canada. Watercolor is her favorite medium; it demands by its very nature, a quick response to the scene, the play of light and shadows, creating a harmony of sky and water with soft edges, yet detailed portrayal of her chosen subject. Her paintings are fresh and uniquely light-filled which transforms the ordinary into an exceptional painting.

The Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia Elks Association map of the area and lodges was painted by Powell and prints successfully shown to and purchased by the lodges and Elks members throughout the mid-Atlantic region.

Powell is an administrative aide in the Office of the Dean of the Henson School of Science and Technology. Library hours are Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10 a.m.-9 p.m.; Friday and Saturday 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; and Sunday 1-5 p.m. Works in the exhibit are for sale. Telephone 546-2836.

Eastern Shore Solitude

able to give their children the preschool experiences needed for success. "Reform isn't going any place unless you focus it on what kids are like," he said. "We are probably the only educational reform group that...is focusing on how you take child-development and relationship issues and apply them to the school."

Results have been impressive. He started with two failing elementary schools in New Haven, CT. By 1980 academic performance at the two schools was at the national average and by 1984 it was well above the national norm. Attendance increased sharply; truancy and disciplinary problems declined dramatically.

Hugh B. Price of the Rockefeller Foundation said, "For kids alienated from school and whose parents are alienated, (Comer's) approach yields academic gains...and the social gains that society is clamoring for."

The process is based on a simple principle: Everyone with a stake in a school should have a say in how it's run. It calls for forming a "school governance team" made up of teachers, parents, the principal, professional support staff and non-professional support staff. The team develops a plan for operating the school, including a calendar of academic and social events that encourage parents to participate in and support the work of the school.

There is a governance agreement that "the team can't paralyze the principal, and the principal can't use the team as a rubber stamp." By working collaboratively they create a school climate that nurtures student development and confidence, and in time, desirable teaching, learning and behavior. So far more than 250 schools in 18 states and the District of Columbia have adopted Comer's methods, several reporting similar outcomes.

Comer has written almost 500 articles and chapters about education, child development and race relations. Many are for such popular publications as Parents, Ebony, Newsweek and Scientific American magazines, and The New York Times.

Of his four books the last, Maggie's American Dream: The Life and Times of a Black Family, is based on his own family story. It has been featured as a television documentary called The Legacy of Maggie's Dream and is being developed into an audiotape book and feature film.

His hectic lecture schedule has taken him across the United States and to more than 10 countries. A consultant to Sesame Street and The Electric Company he serves on numerous organizational boards. Awards include 29 honorary degrees.

The Riall Lecture Series, now in its sixth year, is made possible by a bequest to the University from the late E. Pauline Riall, a long-time educator and principal of the SSU campus school. Her goal was to bring educators of national stature to the Eastern Shore. All lectures are free and the public is cordially invited. For more information call 543-6030.

Oprah Show Rumor Untrue Rally, Forum Set

A false rumor started filtering across campus that on an Oprah Winfrey Show (October 11 or 12) a psychic from Baltimore predicted a "massacre" on the Salisbury State campus. Dates varied between October 29 and 30 and some versions of the rumor suggested it would occur near Fulton Hall. Contact with the Oprah Winfrey Show revealed no such program ever aired.

Immediately after the rumor surfaced on campus, several African-American students received threatening and racist phone calls. Dr. Bellavance sent out a campuswide memo denouncing the threatening calls and indicated, "the sternest action allowable by law will be taken against any and all individuals engaging this type of behavior."

In response to those phone calls the Student Government Association and the Union of African-American Students are sponsoring a Solidarity Rally on Wednesday, October 27, at 6 p.m. in front of the dining hall and a forum on Thursday, October 28, from 7-9 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium to discuss the issues raised by the threatening calls.

If anyone has further questions please call the Dean of Students Office at 543-6080.

Cole Porter Revue Benefits Arts Council

A Cole Porter Revue and dinner at Webster's 1801 in Salisbury on Friday, November 12, and Saturday, November 13, benefits the Salisbury-Wicomico Arts Council. Tickets are $35 per person and can be purchased at Peninsula Bank, the Bank of Delmar, SWAC, 543-ARTS or by calling Sonja Mills at 548-3881.

Art Council Offers Grants for Next Year

The Salisbury-Wicomico Arts Council is accepting Project Grant applications from qualifying organizations seeking financial assistance for arts programs. The deadline for Project Grants submission is November 12 for arts events taking place between January 1-June 30.

To be eligible organizations must be incorporated as not-for-profit agencies. Organizations must show that the activity is in the field of the arts, is of community benefit, is fiscally sound and has the potential for self-support in the future. All SWAC grant funds must be matched and cannot be the sole source of income for a project.

In addition to the Project Grants, the Arts Council also has available two other grant funding programs. Director's Grants and Community Outreach Grants are smaller grant options and application may be made at any time. Director's Grants, limited to a maximum award of $100, are for emergency and small funding needs. Community Outreach Grants are the only SWAC grants limited geographically. To apply an organization must be producing an arts program within Wicomico County but outside the city limits of Salisbury. The goal of the program is to provide financial incentives for more arts activities throughout the county.

For more information or to pick up application forms call 543-ARTS.

In Memoriam—Al Constantine

Mr. Alvah "Al" Constantine, 69, who retired as director of field experiences in the Education Department in 1989, died on October 19 at his home in Nanticoke of cancer.

Mr. Constantine began his career at Salisbury State in 1974 as an associate professor of education and director of practice. He left the campus in 1980 to pursue personal business interests, and returned in 1985 as director of field experiences.

Born in Rochelle Park, NJ, he was a son of the late Gaetano R. "Garrett" and Louise Veronica Constantine-Rizzolo.

Mr. Constantine earned a Bachelor of Arts from Glassboro State (NJ) Teachers College and a master's degree from Rutgers University. He was a principal at Memorial Elementary and Ocean Road schools in Point Pleasant, NJ, and West Dover School in Toms River, NJ. He was also a middle school teacher at Ocean Road School.

Mr. Constantine was a professor at Monmouth (NJ) College and assistant dean of education at Fairleigh Dickinson (NJ) University prior to coming to Salisbury State. He was the owner and operator of the Roaring Point Camp Ground in Nanticoke since 1989, a World War II Army veteran and a member of Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Salisbury.

He is survived by his wife, Constance Helen Stone Constantine; two daughters, Jennifer Louise Constantine of Nanticoke and Pennie Lynn White Constantine of Salisbury; two sons, Alvah "Buddy" Constantine of Laurel and Paul R. Constantine of Virginia Beach, VA.

Contributions may be made in memory of Mr. Constantine to Coastal Hospice, P.O. Box 1733, Salisbury, MD 21802.

Education Faculty Attend Conference

The Education Department was well represented at this year's combined conference of the Diamond State Reading Association and the Delaware School Library Media Association held in Dewey Beach, DE, on October 7 and 8.

Dr. Amy Meekins and Dr. Patricia Richards made two presentations of their thematic unit activity, "An Apple for the Teacher." Dr. Ron Frank, in conjunction with his wife, Susan, a vice principal at Federalsburg Elementary School, presented a session on Saturday titled, "Classroom Activities From Other Cultures—Using the Whole Picture." Also Dr. Charles Long and Dr. John Wolinski conducted a workshop on "Mingling the Flock: Integrating the Language Arts Through Cooperative Structures."

All of the workshops were well attended and highly evaluated. SSU was the only university/college represented on the program.

Retirement Savings Program Discussed

Permanent and contractual employees are invited to consider enrolling in one of Maryland's tax sheltered retirement savings programs.

On November 10, December 8, January 12 and February 9, Diane Rogers, area representative for the three tax sheltered plans, will be accepting individual appointments to discuss how such a savings program would benefit employees or, if already enrolled, to review their accounts. To arrange an appointment, call the Personnel Office at 543-6035 or 548-4755.

Career Day Panelists

To be held Tuesday, November 2, from 3:30-5 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center, Career Day allows students to talk to professionals in five different areas. They range from Bonnie Walston, named "1993 Teacher of the Year in Maryland," to DonJuan Williams, district director for Congressman Albert Wynn of Maryland.

Other panelists are:

"Business, Finance and Commerce"—Linda Benson '88, Pete Engler '89, David Irwin '87, Mike Kleger '80, Paul Rendine '74;

"Community Service, Politics and Law"—Christina M. Alfonsi '82, James L. Lutz '81, Tom Maloney '82, Rebecca K. Ruf '81, Robin Wesley '89, Randy N. Whaples '85;

"Education and Development of Today's Youth"—Mark L. Bowen '92, Marion L. Handy '77, James Iretton '92, Charlene Mills '78, Irwin Schiermann '91, Bonnie Walston '75;

"The Arts, Culture, Public Relations and Global Communications"—Christine Banks '87, Bonnie M. Gallagher '81, George Kreiner '88, Brenda Marzucco '79, Patrick Vane Wiggins '81, Sara Wiggins '80, DonJuan Williams '83; and one professor is requiring her students to attend. Wagner is visiting student organizations personally inviting their membership, including the Student Government Association, the popular Outdoor Club and The Flyer, the student newspaper. Inserts and a story are planned for The Flyer as well. This year Career Day programs have been scheduled on Tuesday, from 3:30-5 p.m., a free time when classes aren't scheduled. Located in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center, Career Day has been fine-tuned with most of the 90 minutes devoted to students talking with professionals.

"They not only get a chance to network, but students will have a crack at some paid summer internships," said Paul Rendine, president of the SSU Alumni Association. The prime mover for Career Day for the last six years, Rendine thinks the program is valuable for underclassmen as well as graduating seniors. "They can learn what classes might be useful to take now to get them into summer jobs, learn how a degree in one field could lead to a career in another," he said. A stock broker who helped establish internship programs with Duke University when he lived in North Carolina, in 1984 Rendine established an internship program with SSU's business school. "It's a chance to take advantage of these successful alumni," he said.

Wolinski Conducts Teaching Workshop

Dr. John T. Wolinski, associate professor in the Department of Education, was invited to conduct a workshop at the 34th annual meeting of the Maryland Society of Radiologic Technologists in Ocean City in October.

The conference had two tracks, one for practicing radiologists and one for radiologic technology instructors. Wolinski addressed over 40 instructors from around the state. His 1½ hour presentation was titled "Effective Teaching: What We Know For Sure, But Not For Certain."

Freshman students Niles Hancock of Salisbury and Lori Didio of New Plains, NJ, review each other's portfolio at a recent showcase of the arts held for new students in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

The showcase was part of a freshman orientation class led by faculty from art, music and communication arts. The class introduces new students to the arts on campus as well as art opportunities on the Eastern Shore. Programs, internships, co-op exchanges, awards and scholarships are all discussed. During the semester students also go on field trips to concerts, plays and exhibits in cities like Washington, D.C. and New York.

For further information about SSU's arts orientation program contact the Departments of Art, Music or Communication Arts.

"Through my painting, I am trying to capture the essence of my subject which is the landscape and the garden in the landscape," said Gray. "Because I feel that light is the essential element in creating forms in space, I pursue plein-air painting. I experience the atmosphere of light as a pervasive influence on my work."

Gray is drawn to the techniques of the impressionists and post-impressionists. She has been influenced by the spontaneous pastels of Childe Hassam, the impressionist years of Sargent and the pointillist technique of Seurat. The color and textures of Van Gogh has also had an influence.

Gray feels that the romantic views and peaceful qualities of these artists are important values in the stressful world we live in now and hopefully viewers will feel the same sense of emotional calmness visiting the exhibit. Visitors leaving the exhibit will recall the quiet beauty only found in a lovely living garden.

VOL. X NO. 10

Feminist Movement Subject of Lecture

The American feminist movement of the 1960s will be the subject of a lecture by Dr. Ruth Rosen of the University of California, Davis, on Monday, November 15.

The presentation is part of the Fall Lecture Series titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The lecture begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

Asked by a feminist sociologist in Prague, Czechoslovakia, what she could learn from mistakes made by American feminists, Rosen wrote an essay in response. Her answer, which is the focus of her lecture, compares the different political cultures out of which American and Eastern European feminists have emerged.

A history professor, Rosen has devoted her intellectual life to exploring women's condition past and present. Her first book, The Maimie Papers, was an edited and annotated edition of letters written by a young Jewish immigrant woman who worked as a prostitute. Rosen found the letters while conducting research for her second book, The Last Sisterhood: Prostitution in America.

Rosen has also written more than 50 opinion essays, some of which have appeared in The New York Times and The Christian Science.

Dance Company Showcases Student Talent

SSU Dance Company

A variety of dance styles—modern, jazz, ballet and hip-hop—are highlighted when the University Dance Company presents its fourth annual Student Dance Showcase on Wednesday, November 10. Eight original works choreographed by members of the Dance Company premiere.

"Membership in the company is the highest ever with over 40 members," said Victoria Hutchinson, Dance Company director and faculty advisor. "The quality of performance and the diversity of dances created by students over the past four years has grown tremendously."

Each year a panel of outside judges that includes faculty, students and community members select two showcase works for inclusion in the spring concert. Voting is based on artistic originality and technical excellence. "Pretty soon we should be able to submit student works like these to the American College Dance Festival for adjudication," Hutchinson added.

The Student Dance Showcase opens with "Everybody Dance," an energetic work choreographed by Marcia Castrence, a senior communication arts major. The dance is set to the music of Rupaul's "I Don't Want To Be a Part of Your Revolution if I Can't Dance."

Then choreographer William Wells, a junior communication arts major, features the music of Johnny Gill in his hip hop-based "Capture." A tender ballad sung by Garth Brooks provides the score for "The Dance," a lyric ballet choreographed by Kristy Ena, a senior elementary education major.

Karen Turner, a junior elementary education major, and Amber Wright, a senior communication arts major, choreographed "The Things I Do for You" set to music by Janet Jackson. Shadow and light weave through the center of "Tears," a lyrical solo choreographed and performed by Diane Jackson, a junior communication arts major.

Jennifer Moskowitz, a graduating senior from Snow Hill High School and a five-year member of the company, blends the freshness of hip hop with the demands of traditional jazz dance. The big band sounds of the '40s accompanying Bette Midler's stunning voice, along with patriotic images of World War II, are reflected in "For the Boys," a tap dance choreographed by Jennifer Twigg, a junior art major.

Walker, who won the Tony, Broadway's highest honor, for The River Niger in 1973-74, is chair of the Department of Speech and Theatre at the University of Rutgers-Camden.

He also is director of UR's African American Studies Program. On Thursday, November 11, from 5:30-7 p.m. the public is invited to a presentation of African folk tales, which includes drumming on a Djimbwa followed by a discussion of the world view in the tales. "This special program should delight children as well as adults," said Dr. Andrew Hepburn of SSU's Communication Arts Department. Admission is free. Walker's presentation is in the television studio of Caruthers Hall.

His visit is made possible by grants from SSU Theatre, the departments of Communication Arts, English and History, and the Guerrieri University Center. For more information call Hepburn, who is coordinating Walker's residency, at 543-6233.

Maryland Charity Campaign Kicks Off

Pledge cards will accompany pay checks for University state employees on Wednesday, November 3 requesting a voluntary contribution to the 1993 Maryland Charity Campaign. The campaign runs through Friday, November 19. A brochure, which lists all participating agencies, will be mailed to all state employees.

The agency listing is helpful for those who wish to designate a specific agency to receive contributions or require the services of one of the agencies. This year as an incentive for employees to support the campaign, the SSU Foundation Inc. has donated a VCR; employees will be eligible to win if they give at least $1.50 per pay period. Also, University Dining Services has donated free passes to the annual Christmas dinner, Wednesday, December 15, and the Book Rack has donated some items. The drawing for the VCR and the other prizes will take place on Monday, November 22. The winners will be contacted immediately.

When considering whether to contribute please consider that the agencies which receive funds from the Maryland Charity Campaign depend on generous support to continue to function. Emergency assistance, vocational training for the handicapped and disabled, and counseling and educational programs are just a few of the services offered.

"Perhaps that which you give today may some day come back to you," said Gains Hawkins, director of public relations. "Be as generous as you can be."

Campaign coordinators at the University this year are Debbie Merryweather of the Financial Services Office (543-6050), Kathy Pussey of the Public Relations Office (543-6030) and Hawkins (543-6030). Call one of them for more information.

African-American Actress Discusses Cultural Diversity

Barbara-O, who plays a leading role in the critically acclaimed film, Daughters of the Dust, visits campus November 15-16.

On Monday, November 15, Barbara-O introduces a screening of the film at 7 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall Auditorium (room 149).

On Tuesday, November 16, from 11 a.m.-12:20 p.m. she conducts an acting workshop in Fulton Hall, room 203. This is followed by a seminar on cultural diversity with students from SSU's Learning Community from 5:30-6:50 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 128.

Barbara-O's appearance is sponsored by the Fulton School of Liberal Arts Scholar-in-Residence Program. Also participating are the departments of English, Philosophy and Communication Arts, and the Office of Minority Affairs. For more information including reservations, contact the Communication Arts Department at 543-6229.

Oil Painting Exhibit Opens in Atrium Gallery

An exhibit of oil paintings by Delaware artist Carol Gray opens in the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center on Thursday, November 4. The exhibit, open daily from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. and Sundays from noon-4 p.m. through November 23, is free and the public is invited.

Gray feels that the romantic views and peaceful qualities of these artists are important values in the stressful world we live in now and hopefully viewers will feel the same sense of emotional calmness visiting the exhibit. Visitors leaving the exhibit will recall the quiet beauty only found in a lovely living garden.

For more information about the exhibit and other exhibits in the Atrium Gallery call 543-6006.

Yale Professor Is Riall Lecturer; Minority Student Success Is Topic

Dr. James P. Comer, Maurice Falk Professor of Child Psychiatry at Yale University's prestigious Child Study Center and associate dean of the Yale School of Medicine will lecture on "Child Development and the Role of Education: Building Success in the Minority Student."

Part of the E. Pauline Riall Lecture Series sponsored by the School of Education and Professional Studies, Comer's talk begins at 7:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Newsweek magazine has named Comer one of 25 Americans "on the cutting edge" for his ideas about reforming troubled urban schools. In 1990 the Rockefeller Foundation announced a five-year, $15 million project to "speed the widespread adoption of (Comer's) pioneering method for educating at-risk students."

The Riall Lecture Series, now in its sixth year, is made possible by a bequest to the University from the late E. Pauline Riall, a long-time educator and principal of the SSU campus school. Her goal was to bring educators of national stature to the Eastern Shore. All lectures are free and the public is cordially invited. For more information call 543-6030.

Blackwell Library has acquired several different packages of computer software which are available for faculty/administrative staff review. The loan period for these materials is two weeks.

Unauthorized copying of the software is illegal without the permission of the copyright owner. Therefore, the software is loaned with the understanding that it will be reviewed only and not copied.

Access to the call number of the software is obtained by searching either author, title or subject in the card catalog. After locating the call number, borrowers should request the software at the circulation desk. A list of software titles is also available at the circulation desk.

WSUR on the Air

WSUR, SSU's student-run radio station, is back on the air. Available on campus TV, channel 11, and 107.5 cable FM on Storer Cable, WSUR broadcasts from 7 a.m.-1 a.m. Monday through Saturday, and 10 a.m.-1 a.m. on Sunday. Current programming includes College Alternative, with specialty shows including gospel, reggae and jazz. WSUR also provides live coverage of Sea Gull sports.

WSUR also offers free public service announcements for the community and student organizations. For information on how to get WSUR off campus, contact WSUR General Manager Andy Mitchell at 543-6195 or stop by WSUR, Guerrieri University Center, room 249, during business hours. For advertising information, contact WSUR Advertising Manager Todd Humphrey.

Retirement Savings Program Discussed

Permanent and contractual employees are invited to consider enrolling in one of Maryland's tax sheltered retirement savings programs.

On November 10, December 8, January 12 and February 9, Diane Rogers, area representative for the three tax sheltered plans, will be accepting individual appointments to discuss how such a savings program would benefit employees or, if already enrolled, to review their accounts. To arrange an appointment, call the Personnel Office at 543-6035 or 548-4755.

Senior portraits will be taken in November. All seniors who are graduating in December or May should sign up between November 8-12.

The sign-up sheet is located in the Guerrieri University Center at the information desk. The photographs will be taken in the Choptank Room of the Guerrieri Center from November 15-19. The sitting fee is $5. A yearbook will be mailed to each senior in September 1994 but only if that senior is photographed.

For more information call 546-3210 on Tuesday or Thursday from 2-4:45 p.m. on stop by The Evergreen office on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center (room 229A).

Our Voices Host Lectures Here Nov. 4

Beverly Smith, host of Our Voices, Black Entertainment Television's (BET) popular prime time talk show, presents a lecture discussion on "Reinventing America: Giving What You Have Learned to the Less Fortunate" on Thursday, November 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

An admission donation to the SSU Habitat for Humanity project is requested for the event, sponsored by the Union of African-American Students and the Office of Minority Affairs. For further information please call 548-4503.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Tickets for Graduation

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for each succeeding ceremony.

Each December graduate will be provided 15 guest tickets. Please note the following deadlines: November 17-19, pick up caps, gowns, announcements and 15 tickets at the graduation center in the Book Rack (return any tickets not needed to the Guerrieri University Center information desk); and December 15-18, extra guest tickets that become available will be at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first-come, first-served basis.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Soviet Expert Talks About Russia

What is the mood of the Russian people as they face elections in a few weeks?

Memories linger of Boris Yeltsin's bloody assault on the former Communist-dominated Parliament; economic collapse continues. "Russia: Emergent Democracy or Dictatorship?" is the title of a talk to be given by an internationally-recognized authority on Russian politics on Thursday, November 4.

Dr. Charles Ziegler, professor of political science at the University of Louisville, has been interviewed about Russia by the BBC, Voice of America, the Christian Science Monitor and other national and international media. He has served as a legislative assistant for the U.S. Senate on foreign policy and defense issues, and traveled extensively throughout the former Soviet Union and Europe.

Ziegler has written several books including Foreign Policy and East Asia: Learning and Adaptation in the Gorbachev Era, Environmental Policy in the USSR and A Soviet Special Economic Zone. He has published over 30 articles and book chapters on Soviet and Russian politics in Political Science Quarterly, Comparative Politics, Soviet Studies, Studies in Soviet Thought, the British Journal of Political Science, Technology Review and Pacific Affairs among others.

He was awarded an International Affairs Fellowship with the Council on Foreign Relations, spent as a research associate at the International Institute for Strategic Studies in London. He was also a national fellow at the Hoover Institution at Stanford University.

Other postdoctoral research grants include the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Kennan Institute for Advanced Russian Studies. Since 1990 Ziegler has served as director of the Louisville Committee on Foreign Relations.

His talk is at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited. It is sponsored by SSU's Faculty Cultural Events Committee. For more information call 543-6030.

Authors Sign Books At Book Rack

Six authors, whose books range from a locally-set adventure novel to a scientific probe into the causes of war, will be at the University bookstore on Saturday, November 13.

From 10 a.m.-noon the following authors will be signing their books: Dr. Greg Cashman, associate professor of political science at SSU, "What Causes War"; Ann Nock, "Child of the Bay"; and Jim Huelskamp, former SSU lacrosse all-American, "Indoor Lacrosse," an account of the players and personalities in the Major Indoor Lacrosse League.

Sharon Miner, owner of Unicorn Stables in Salisbury and an SSU student, will sign copies of "The Delmarva Conspiracy," a novel for young adults about a Neo-Nazi leader who tries to take over the Delmarva Peninsula, from 11 a.m.-1 p.m.

From noon-2 p.m. the following writers will be on hand: Keith Walters, "Chesapeake Strippers" and "Pocket Guide to Striped Bass"; and Frances Kendall, assistant professor of communication arts at SSU, "Sweet Temptations."

Some of the books will be for sale at special discounts. The campus bookstore, the Book Rack, is located in the Guerrieri University Center. The event is free and the public is invited. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Beckett's Endgame Opens November 17

Some scholars consider it one of the most interesting plays of the 20th century. Others call it hollow and grisly. In Endgame where half of the cast spends the evening in ashcans, playwright Samuel Beckett beautifully explores a world lacking in beauty.

This absurdist drama from the author of Waiting for Godot is performed Wednesday-Monday, November 17-21, in Fulton Hall Theatre. Robert Smith of the Communication Arts Department directs. Tickets, free for SSU students, faculty and staff, are now available at the box office. General admission is $6, students and senior citizens $4. Curtain is at 8 p.m. all nights except Sunday, November 21, which is a 2 p.m. matinee. For more information including reservations call the theatre box office at 543-6228.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

For the first time since 1985, the soccer team has received a bid to play in a postseason tournament. The Sea Gulls will be one of four teams vying for the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) Southern Region Championship, to be played this Saturday and Sunday, November 6-7. Dickinson College in Carlisle, PA will host the four-team tournament.

SSU, which finished 10-6-1 in the regular season, will meet Wesley at 11:30 on Saturday in the opening round. Dickinson will host Frostburg in the second game. The winners will meet at noon on Sunday in the championship game. Salisbury defeated both Wesley and Frostburg during the '93 season, blanking the Wolverines 3-0 at home and beating Frostburg 1-0 on the road. The Sea Gulls closed out the regular season by winning 10 of their last 13 games.

In a football game played in the rain from start to finish, visiting Albany nipped the Sea Gulls 7-6 on Family Day last Saturday. The adverse weather conditions produced 12 fumbles and 21 punts between the two teams, with all the scoring confined to the first quarter. The Gulls struck first, marching 74 yards on seven plays on their opening possession of the game. Byron Pugh capped the drive with his team-leading ninth touchdown of the year on a 16-yard run. The extra point missed to the left.

Albany answered on the final play of the first quarter, with David Coston rumbling home from 33 yards out. The successful extra point kick would prove to be the difference in the game. Pugh finished the game as SSU's top runner with 81 yards on 24 carries. QB Len Annetta added 141 yards through the air, including five passes totalling 65 yards to Derrick Arnold. The Sea Gulls (1-6) play their final road game this Saturday at C.W. Post, then return to Sea Gull Stadium for Homecoming on November 13 against Guilford.

The field hockey team (7-9) finished its season with a 2-1 overtime loss to Rowan last week. The loss sealed SSU's first losing season since 1982, and ended a streak of nine straight years in the NCAA Championship Tournament.

The men's and women's cross country teams each brought home third place finishes in the Mason-Dixon Conference Championship last Saturday. Jeff Hankins paced the men with a seventh place individual finish, with Matt Piotrowski 12th and Jon Douglas 13th. Christopher Newport won the race, with Mary Washington second.

Mary Puderbaugh was the top finisher for the women, placing 15th overall. Rita Leventry was 19th and Kelly Delp 21st. Mary Washington claimed the women's team title, followed by Frostburg State. Both Sea Gull squads close the season at the NCAA Mideast Regional on November 13 in Allentown, PA.

The volleyball team also concluded its regular season last week, beating Marymount 3-0 in its final outing. Courtney Moore powered the offense with 15 kills and three aces. Shannon Cianelli added nine kills and two aces while Jen Bowman registered 25 assists. Like the soccer team, the volleyball squad (28-11 overall) could receive an ECAC postseason bid later this week.

Many students are spending Saturday mornings working on the Habitat for Humanity home at the construction site near Sea Gull Stadium. The project is being built and funded by University students, faculty and staff. Contact the campus Habitat chapter at 543-6219 to help.

Office Secretary II Education

The Department of Education is accepting in-house applications from both permanent and contractual University employees for the position of Office Secretary II (Grade 8). Responsibilities of the position include monitoring of student records, maintenance of student files, and processing communication for the undergraduate program (approximately 1,200 students); providing secretarial services for faculty members and the director of field experiences; and managing routine office procedures.

Minimum qualifications include graduation from high school, two years of office experience (graduation from an accredited secretarial program or possession of an Associate of Arts degree in secretarial science may be substituted for one to two years of experience) and excellent typing skills. The successful applicant will be the one who is proficient in the use of computer software and possesses strong interpersonal and communication skills. This is a permanent state position with benefits.

If interested in the position, submit resume, along with an application, to the Personnel Office by November 12.

No News on Thanksgiving

The SSU News will not be published on Thursday, November 25, due to the Thanksgiving holiday. The deadline for the December 2 issue is Wednesday, November 24, at noon.

McAuliffe Awards For Education Majors

Applications for the Sharon Christa McAuliffe Memorial Teacher Education Awards are available in the Financial Aid Office. The awards are for undergraduates who are interested in teaching in areas of critical shortage which are earth science, general science, space science, physics and special education (most categories).

Applicants must have 60 credit hours by the end of the spring semester to be eligible for the 1994-95 academic year. Applicants must have a 3.0 GPA, must be a Maryland resident and can be full or part time. Deadline for applications is January 7.

'Get Back in Control' Group Meeting

There is a meeting for those interested in reducing their drinking or who have stopped drinking and would like to talk to others who are interested in stopping. The meeting is on Fridays at 1 p.m. in the downstairs area of Student Health Services, in Holloway Hall, room 022 (the old Public Safety Office.)

The meeting is confidential and private. It is not an AA group or 12-step affiliated but is a general discussion of topics of concern for those wishing to gain control over drinking issues. Questions can be directed to Jennifer Berkman at 543-6263.

SHS Casual Day To Benefit Students

Staff in Student Health Services have established each Friday as Casual Day. SHS employees don their jeans, T-shirts and other favorite casual wear as a way of raising awareness and funds for students in need.

"We are in the business of helping students and very often have students with critical needs," said Rosemary Cupp, a nurse practitioner and originator of the idea. "Having our Casual Day benefit the Student Emergency Fund makes us feel we are donating to a cause that is very close to the students we work with."

Each week, staff members voluntarily donate to the Student Emergency Fund, operated by the Dean of Students Office, as a way of building funds that students can access in an emergency situation.

Methods Courses Require Application

As preregistration approaches, education majors should remember that in order to take methods classes they must apply to the Professional Teacher Education Program. Requirements for admission to the program are: completed application (available in Caruthers Hall, room 148); overall GPA of 2.5 including transfer courses (GPA of 2.75 in academic major); grades of C or better in English 101 and 102, CMAT 250, Education 300 and 305, Math 103 (ELED majors only); and passing scores on the general knowledge and communication skills tests of the National Teachers Exam (NTE).

Unless students meet all these requirements they may not register for methods classes. No waivers will be granted.

Applications are available in the Department of Education, Caruthers Hall, room 148. Applications must be turned in to the student's advisor during preregistration. Failure to do so will result in students being dropped from any methods classes for which they are enrolled.

Students should see their advisor for further information.

Catholic Group Has Abortion Discussion

The Newman Club, the campus association for Catholic students, sponsors a discussion session on abortion and the Catholic Church's objections to it. Dr. Fran Kane of the Philosophy Department presents the moral principles which underlie the Catholic position on abortion. In addition Dr. Timothy Miller of the History Department presents some thoughts on legal issues involved with abortion. An open discussion follows.

The presentation, titled "The Catholic Position on Abortion: Moral and Legal Issues," takes place Monday, November 8, at 7:30 p.m. in Nanticoke Room B of the Guerrieri University Center. All are welcome.

Equestrian Club Has Many Events

The next meeting of the Equestrian Club is on Wednesday, November 10, from 7:30-8:30 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center's Choptank Room. All members and those interested in joining the club are invited.

Topics to be covered include the spring benefit horse show for the Joseph House Village and these upcoming events: Friday, November 19, free tours of the New Bolton Vet Center and Iron Spring Horse Farm; Friday November 26-28, jumping clinic; and Sunday, December 5, long trail ride in the Pocomoke Forest.

For information contact the club at SSU Box 3011 or call Sharon Miner at 546-2941 in the evenings.

No Major Changes In Liberal Studies

In the Liberal Studies Program there will be no change of majors during the two weeks of preregistration (November 8-19). Dr. James C. Lackie and Carol A. Bosserman will see only their advisees during preregistration. Non-liberal studies advisees should see their appropriate advisor during this period.

25+ Student Union Sponsors Workshop

The 25+ Student Union presents the second workshop in its Fall Workshop Series in Annex B on Thursday, November 4, from noon-1 p.m. and again on Saturday, November 6, from 10-11 a.m. The workshop topic is "Academic Planning and Resources." Everyone is welcome to attend. For more information call Ruth Malone or Agata Liskowska at 543-6313.

Management Fraternity Hosts Lecture

Sigma Iota Epsilon, the newly founded management fraternity, brings John Nyce from the Naval Air Systems Command to lecture on Thursday, November 4, at 3:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall, room 114. He will be accompanied by Monica Gibson, a recent University of Maryland graduate.

They will discuss pros and cons and the requirements of civilian positions as a contract specialist. In the past Nyce has recruited students from SSU. All students, faculty and guests are invited to attend. The lecture can help students gain a competitive edge in the business world.

Hayes Discusses Needle Disposal

Diane Davis Hayes, an assistant professor in the Health Sciences Department, presented "Safe Handling and Disposal of Needles and Sharps" at the educational conference of the American Society of Phlebotomy Technicians held at the Sheraton in Ocean City recently. The thrust of the talk was that health care workers cannot avoid handling contaminated sharps but that through proper handling and disposal most accidents can be prevented. Hayes teaches clinical laboratory safety in the medical technology program at SSU.

Small at Conference, Presents Paper

Dr. Clara L. Small, assistant professor of history, attended the 78th annual meeting of the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History (ASALH). The conference was held recently at the Omni Hotel in Baltimore.

While at the conference Small presented a paper titled "The African-American Presence in the Potomac Valley, with emphasis on the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, from 1820-1880." The paper was a preliminary report of an on-going study in cooperation with the National Park Service of the U.S. Department of the Interior. The final report and study will become a part of the interpretive program at the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

The membership of the association consists of persons interested in the study of Afro-American, African, Caribbean and Latin American life and history. The association prepares kits for and leads in the celebration of Black History Month; organizes tours of Africa and Latin America; and works closely with local branches in major cities in promoting the study, teaching, researching, writing, collecting of manuscripts, preserving of historic sites and instituting other programs related to black life and history.

Bountiful Reading By Waters Nov. 18

Dr. Michael Waters, professor of English, will read from Bountiful, his most recent book of poetry, on Thursday, November 18.

The reading is at 8 p.m. in room 111 of Fulton Hall. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited.

In October Waters read his poems at several universities in the Midwest, including Purdue, Eastern Illinois and Western Illinois.

In July he served as writer-in-residence at "Doubled Meaning," a conference on book arts held at Longwood College in Farmville, VA.

Poems from his manuscript-in-progress have been appearing in Poetry, The American Poetry Review, The Gettysburg Review, The North American Review, The Missouri Review, The Illinois Review, The Ohio Review and other journals. Bountiful was published by Camegie Mellon University Press in 1992.

raphed by Kristy Ena and Jennifer Ruff, has been a featured halftime entertainment at SSU home football games this semester. Through a strong mix of rhythms, sounds and movement, this dance pumps up the volume to music by Janet Jackson, 2 Unlimited and Duice. Ruff, a sophomore majoring in biology, is president of the Dance Company.

Two showcase performances are scheduled for Wednesday, November 10, at 7 and 8:15 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Tickets, free for SSU students, faculty and staff, are $2 general admission at the door. For further information contact Hutchinson at 543-6353.

SADD Meeting

Students Against Drinking and Driving (SADD) meets Thursdays at 7:30 p.m. The next meeting is November 4 in the Guerrieri University Center lounge (by the fireplace). Anyone interested in joining the group or working on a specific project is welcome to attend. Interested individuals with questions may contact the SADD advisor, Jennifer Berkman.

Mamas and Papas
Tickets Available

Free tickets are available to all SSU faculty and staff as well students for the upcoming Mamas and the Papas concert on Monday, November 8.

The tickets are at the Guerrieri University Center information desk. A University ID is required.

One of the 1960s most popular performing and recording groups, the new Mamas and the Papas includes original lead singer Denny Doherty with Elaine "Spanky" McFarlane formerly of Spanky and Our Gang. McFarlane's hits include Sunday Will Never Be the Same, Lazy Day, Sunday Mornin' and Like To Get To Know You. A good friend of Mama Cass, McFarlane's style is similar to the late singer's. California Dreamin', Monday, Monday and Words of Love are just a few of the hits of the Mamas and the Papas, a quintessential folk rock group.

The concert is at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Tickets for the general public are $10 each. For more information call 543-6030.

Health Benefits Fair
At SSU Cancelled

Due to the re-evaluation of the health insurance program ordered by Gov. William Donald Schaefer, the Health Benefits Fair at Salisbury State has now been cancelled.

Gov. Schaefer has issued a directive that current health benefits will be extended until a new plan has been developed. The Personnel Office will keep everyone posted as information becomes available.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Homecoming/Reunion Weekend
Has Something for Everyone

Alumni, students and friends of Salisbury State gather on Friday-Sunday, November 12-14, to recall fond memories and renew old friendships at the University's annual Homecoming/Reunion Weekend.

"It's a time for our graduates to return to campus to reminisce, to talk about the 'good old days,' those precious college years," said Nancy Wagner, director of alumni relations. "It's also a time to learn about and appreciate the many changes that have taken place here since we began as a two-year Normal School in 1925."

"Alumni who have not visited the campus in recent years always marvel at the beauty of the place," said Wagner. "And when they find out about the qualitative improvements in the academic profile of the University, the alumni are all the more impressed. After all, it is their diplomas that have increased in value due to the institution's enhanced academic reputation."

The induction of five former star athletes into the University Athletics Hall of Fame kicks off the weekend. Boosting the Hall's overall membership to 44 are Donna Rice Hubbard (Class of '65), Steve Pitt ('76), Dave Funk ('79), Sandor Fodor ('82) and Becky Sweet-Kang ('82). The event begins at 7 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center. Reservations are required.

Beckett's Sinister Yet
Comic Endgame Comes to SSU Stage

Katie George as Nell, John Warren as Clov and Robert F. McCall as Nagg in Endgame, by Nobel Prize-winning playwright Samuel Beckett. It is performed November 17-21.

In 1938, as playwright Samuel Beckett walked along a Paris street, a panhandler stabbed him in the chest, perforating a lung and narrowly missing his heart. When Beckett later asked why the attack happened, the assailant replied, "I don't know, sir."

That random, senseless violence confirmed Beckett's dark vision of life, a vision that was beautifully, brilliantly and often hilariously portrayed in his plays and novels. Beckett brought a mordant humor to the theatre which, in the words of the 1969 Nobel Prize committee, "transformed the destitution of man into his exaltation."

On Wednesday, November 17, Salisbury State Theatre presents Endgame by this Nobel Prize-winning writer who some critics consider the most important playwright of the century.

Beckett's images have transfixed countless theatergoers. They have watched his tramps in Waiting for Godot envision a savior who never comes; or heard an old man in Krapp's Last Tape review recorded fragments of his life as he murmurs over and over the word "Spool"; or shared the haplessness of an elderly couple in Endgame who face the end of the world while encased in trashcans.

According to Robert Smith, of SSU's Communication Arts Department, Endgame was Beckett's personal favorite among his plays. First produced in 1957 four years after the sensational premiere of Godot, Endgame was also the most difficult for him to write.

Smith, who is directing the SSU production, was introduced to Endgame some 20 years ago in a college literature class. The memory of this mysterious, sometime sinister yet frequently comic drama never left him.

At the center of Endgame, literally and figuratively, is the character, Hamm, blind and confined to a wheelchair. His senile parents, Nell and Nagg, are kept in garbage cans. They peak out occasionally to reminisce or ask for food, but their thoughts cannot beguile their present suffering. Clov, Hamm's servant (and perhaps his son), attends the three, but no affection exists between them. Completely interdependent but not wanting to be, they nevertheless go on together.

Columbia Professor Discusses '60s Images

Images of the 1960s, from the optimism of the early Civil Rights movement to the clash between mainstream and counterculture forces, is the subject of a lecture by Dr. Barbara L. Tischler of Columbia University on Wednesday, November 17.

The presentation is part of the Fall Lecture Series at SSU titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The lecture begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

Tischler defines the 1960s as the 20-year period starting with the Supreme Court's Brown vs. The Board of Education decision in 1954 to the resignation of President Nixon in 1974, because it is that period which has come under the most scrutiny by scholars and the popular press.

"We have tended to construct two equally

Walker, who won the Tony, Broadway's highest honor, for The River Niger in 1973-74, is chair of the Department of Speech and Theatre at the University of Rutgers-Camden.

He also is director of UR's African American Studies Program. On Thursday, November 11, from 5:30-7 p.m. the public is invited to a presentation of African folk tales, which includes drumming on a Djimbwa followed by a discussion of the world view in the tales. Admission is free. Walker's presentation is in the television studio of Caruthers Hall.

His visit is made possible by grants from SSU Theatre, the departments of Communication Arts, English and History, and the Guerrieri University Center.

For more information call Hepburn, of the Communication Arts Department.

Feminist Movement Subject of Lecture

The American feminist movement of the 1960s will be the subject of a lecture by Dr. Ruth Rosen of the University of California, Davis, on Monday, November 15.

The presentation is part of the Fall Lecture Series titled "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s." The lecture begins at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

The public is invited to attend. There is no admission charge.

For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Tickets for Graduation

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for each succeeding ceremony.

Each December graduate will be provided 15 guest tickets. Please note the following deadlines: November 17-19, pick up caps, gowns, announcements and 15 tickets at the graduation center in the Book Rack (return any tickets not needed to the Guerrieri University Center information desk); and December 15-18, extra guest tickets that become available will be at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first-come, first-served basis.

Thanksgiving Week Library Hours

Blackwell Library hours for Thanksgiving week are: Tuesday, November 23, 7:45 a.m.-8 p.m.; Wednesday, November 24, 8 a.m.-5 p.m.; Thursday-Saturday, November 25-27, closed; and Sunday, November 28, 6 p.m.-midnight.

Great American Smokeout

The Great American Smokeout is on Thursday, November 18. Smokers are encouraged to try and quit that day. It could be the beginning of a healthier lifestyle.

Authors Sign Books At Book Rack

Six authors, whose books range from a locally-set adventure novel to a scientific probe into the causes of war, will be at the University bookstore on Saturday, November 13.

From 10 a.m.-noon the following authors will be signing their books: Dr. Greg Cashman, associate professor of political science at SSU, "What Causes War,"; Ann Nock, "Child of the Bay"; and Jim Huelskamp, former SSU lacrosse all-American, "Indoor Lacrosse," an account of the players and personalities in the Major Indoor Lacrosse League.

Sharon Miner, owner of Unicorn Stables in Salisbury and an SSU student, will sign copies of "The Delmarva Conspiracy," a novel for young adults about a Neo-Nazi leader who tries to take over the Delmarva Peninsula, from 11 a.m.-1 p.m.

From noon-2 p.m. the following writers will be on hand: Keith Walters, "Chesapeake Strippers" and "Pocket Guide to Striped Bass"; and Frances Kendall, assistant professor of communication arts at SSU, "Sweet Temptations."

Some of the books will be for sale at special discounts. The campus bookstore, the Book Rack, is located in the Guerrieri University Center. The event is free and the public is invited. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

'Get Back in Control' Group Meeting

There is a meeting for those interested in reducing their drinking or who have stopped drinking and would like to talk to others who are interested in stopping. The meeting is on Fridays at 1 p.m. in the downstairs area of Student Health Services, in Holloway Hall, room 022 (the old Public Safety Office.)

The meeting is confidential and private. It is not an AA group or 12-step affiliated but is a general discussion of topics of concern for those wishing to gain control over drinking issues. Questions can be directed to Jennifer Berkman at 543-6263.

No Major Changes In Liberal Studies

In the Liberal Studies Program there will be no change of majors during the two weeks of preregistration (November 8-19). Dr. James C. Lackie and Carol A. Bosserman will see only their advisees during preregistration. Non-liberal studies advisees should see their appropriate advisor during this period.

Bountiful Reading By Waters Nov. 18

Dr. Michael Waters, professor of English, will read from Bountiful, his most recent book of poetry, on Thursday, November 18.

The reading is at 8 p.m. in room 111 of Fulton Hall. Admission is free and the public is cordially invited.

In October Waters read his poems at several universities in the Midwest, including Purdue, Eastern Illinois and Western Illinois.

In July he served as writer-in-residence at "Doubled Meaning," a conference on book arts held at Longwood College in Farmville, VA.

Poems from his manuscript-in-progress have been appearing in Poetry, The American Poetry Review, The Gettysburg Review, The North American Review, The Missouri Review, The Illinois Review, The Ohio Review and other journals. Bountiful was published by Carnegie Mellon University Press in 1992.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.

3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.

4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.

5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.

6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.

7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.

8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.

9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.

10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

No News On Thanksgiving

The SSU News will not be published on Thursday, November 25, due to the Thanksgiving holiday. The deadline for the December 2 issue is Wednesday, November 24, at noon.

In the Line of Fire Presented November 11, 14

The movie In the Line of Fire will be shown on Thursday, November 11, at 10:15 p.m. and on Sunday, November 14, at 8 p.m. and 10:15 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall, room 149. In addition to the film, there will be a food drive to benefit the Joseph House. Those who bring food will be eligible to win door prizes such as backpacks, bus trips to New York and movie tickets. For more information call Wendy or Jenn at 546-4392.

1994-95 Financial Aid Renewal Application

In an effort to simplify the financial aid process, the federal government has made a Renewal Application available to students who filed the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) in 1993-94.

The Renewal Application is preprinted with the items that are consistent from year to year, such as name, social security number and date of birth, and is being mailed directly to students in December. Students should follow these guidelines when they receive the Renewal Application: review the Renewal Application for accuracy; correct only those items that need changing; sign and date where applicable and mail to the central processor on or after January 1.

Using the Renewal Application will speed up the application process; however, if students do not receive a Renewal Application by January 1 they can stop by the Financial Aid Office and pick up a FAFSA. The primary reason for not receiving the Renewal Application is an incorrect address on the 1993-94 form.

If students receive a Renewal Application, do not file a FAFSA. This will delay the processing of the Student Aid Report. Maryland residents should check "yes" to question No. 92 on the Renewal Application. This will allow the information to be sent directly to the Maryland State Scholarship Administration for scholarship consideration.

The processed forms must be in the Financial Aid Office by March 1 for priority funding. Please allow four weeks for processing to meet the deadline.

For more information contact the Financial Aid Office, Holloway Hall, room 243, telephone 543-6165.

TIAA-CREF Offers Retirement Counseling

On Thursday, November 18, from 3:30-5:30 p.m., TIAA-CREF is hosting a reception for all employees in the Guerrieri University Center lounge. Employees should make plans to stop by and meet their representatives. The representatives will be available on both Thursday, November 18, and Friday, November 19, for one-on-one counseling sessions to find out how TIAA-CREF can help achieve retirement planning goals with tax-sheltered dollars.

To schedule an appointment for an individual counseling session call the Personnel Office at 543-6035.

Poinsettias Sale Benefits Charities

The Salisbury Junior Service League is selling poinsettias this Christmas season to benefit local charitable causes. The red poinsettias, $10 each, are sold in 6 1/2-inch pots with approximately six to eight blooms.

Poinsettias should be reserved and paid for in advance and picked up on Saturday, December 11, from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. at the Salisbury Mall (old Hess Apparel location). Poinsettias not picked up by 4 p.m. on December 11 will be forfeited.

Those wishing to order should send their name, complete address, telephone number and number of poinsettias ordered along with their check made out to SJSL, P.O. Box 1854, Salisbury, MD 21802-1854. All orders must be received by November 29.

The Salisbury Junior Service League supports Joseph House, Habitat and Project Read, and begins a pilot program of Project Self Esteem for fourth graders in the spring.

Meeting Scheduled for London Trip

An orientation meeting for the 1994 January London course and trip to England has been scheduled for Thursday, November 18, at 8:30 p.m. in Devilbiss Auditorium, according to Jim Welsh, associate professor of English. Those interested in either the English course to be offered or the Art Department course proposed by Jeanne Anderton are invited to attend.

The airline to be used for the trip has recently been upgraded to British Airways, departing from Philadelphia on January 10, and returning to Washington Dulles on January 24. Chartered buses will take the group to Philadelphia and return them to Salisbury from Dulles. While in England the group will stay at a hotel near Bloomsbury, Russell Square and the British Museum.

The two-week tour of London and the English countryside has been offered annually since 1984. The cost of the 1994 trip is $795 but, since the deadline for deposits has passed, Hall's Tidewater Travel will require an additional $25 late fee to cover the cost of procuring additional space for those signing up after October 27. Registration for the January term courses begins at Salisbury State on November 8 and lasts until December 10.

For information about the trip call John Hall of Tidewater Travel at 749-8131. For information about the course call Welsh at 543-6446.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Saturday, November 13	Cross Country at Mideast Regionals	10 a.m.
Sunday, November 14	Swimming vs. Hood (HOME)	1 p.m.
Tuesday, November 16	Swimming vs. Gallaudet (HOME)	6 p.m.

Sea Gull Roundup

ECAC South Region runnerup. That's what the soccer team finished its season as following a 2-1 loss to Dickinson in the ECAC Championship game last Sunday. An unassisted Dickinson goal with just under 18 minutes remaining in the game broke a 1-1 deadlock and proved to be the difference. Eric Viggiano's goal just four minutes earlier had knotted the score.

The Sea Gulls advanced to the championship by defeating Wesley 4-2 in the semifinal game one day earlier. Matt Lischman's goal with 5:44 remaining in that game broke a 2-2 tie and lifted the Gulls past the Wolverines. Willie Morris added an insurance score two minutes later.

The Sea Gulls rebounded from an 0-4 start this season to finish 11-7-1 overall. They also finished the season with 43 goals scored, a new school record.

The women's swim team opened its season in impressive fashion on Sunday, defeating Capital Athletic Conference rival St. Mary's 153-50. Eileen Messenger, Amy VanDriessche and Debbie Rosikiewicz paced the Gulls with two first place finishes apiece. Kathy Geety also added a new school record in the 100 butterfly (1:17.88). The Gulls took first-place honors in every race.

The football team closes out its season this Saturday with the annual Homecoming game at Sea Gull Stadium. SSU (1-7) hosts Guilford at 1 p.m. The Sea Gulls generated 380 yards of offense last week, but it wasn't enough to stop an explosive C.W. Post team that passed its way to a 58-18 win. Saturday's game will be the final one for 15 seniors, including the record-setting combo of QB Len Annetta and H-Back Charlie Whalen.

The men's and women's basketball teams are quickly approaching the tip-off for the new season. Both teams open the year on Friday, November 19, in tournaments on the road. The men, 18-8 last year, play in Susquehanna (PA) College's Tip-Off Classic, while the women, 11-13 last year, are at the Bridgewater (VA) Invitational.

Staff Advisory Council Seeks Input

Dr. Bellavance has established the President's Staff Advisory Council to provide him with input on the feelings of all staff with regard to personnel issues or other concerns. Staff members may contact one of the council members to voice their concerns or ask questions. Concerns will be discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the council and relayed to Bellavance.

Piano Classes, Lessons Offered in Spring Term

Piano classes and private lessons in piano are offered this spring. Class Piano I (MUSA 205-001, Monday and Wednesdays from 8:55-9:50 a.m.) and Class Piano II (MUSA 206-001, Monday and Wednesdays from 10-10:55 a.m.) will be held in the new piano lab in Fulton Hall. The lab is a wonderful facility using electronic Roland pianos with 88 weighted keys that give the sound and feel of an acoustic piano. In addition these instruments have the ability to produce different keyboard sounds such as harpsichord, jazz piano, etc., and to record one's practicing. In addition the lab includes computer stations with keyboards for self-tutoring. The prerequisite for Class Piano I is Music Fundamentals (MUSC 200) or .

permission by the instructor. Students who have already had private piano lessons might be eligible for Class Piano II or individual studio lessons (MUSA 390-006). In certain cases students' backgrounds could CLEP them out of Class Piano and enable them to register for individual lessons. Anyone interested in Class Piano or Applied Piano Lessons please contact Dr. Linda Cockey in the Music Department (Fulton Hall, room 242) before preregistering. Enrollment is limited.

In addition students having prior piano lessons who have reached a certain level of proficiency are offered harpsichord and organ lessons. Interested students should contact Cockey.

Two from SSU Attend Pi Gamma Mu Conference

Maryland Gamma, the campus chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, had two representatives attend its international conference in Omaha, NE, recently, Jennifer White and Dr. Clara L. Small.

White is a senior history major from Columbia, MD, whose wants to attend graduate school to further her studies in history. She is presently serving as president of the Salisbury State chapter. She is also the first Salisbury State student to attend a regional or international conference for Pi Gamma Mu.

The other representative, Small, is assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts. Small is co-sponsor of the SSU chapter along with Dr. Greg Ference. Small is also the chancellor of the North Eastern Region for the international honor society, which includes 40 chapters and the states of Maryland, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Vermont and Washington, D.C. Just prior to the conference, Small was elected to serve a second term as chancellor and member of the board of trustees.

Pi Gamma Mu is the international honor society for the social sciences. Founded in 1924 the primary objectives of the organization are to encourage the study of the social sciences among graduate and undergraduate students and faculty members in colleges and universities throughout the world and to recognize outstanding achievement in the area and the presentation of various awards for distinguished achievement. For membership a student must have 20 semester hours with an average grade of "B" or better in the five core disciplines of history, political science, sociology (including anthropology), economics and international relations. That list has been expanded to include criminal justice, social psychology, social philosophy, the history of education and human geography. The maximum number of undergraduates admitted to the society by any chapter in any one year is limited to 25 percent of the total number of the upperclass in that year, and only students that rank in the upper 35 percent of their classes may be inducted. Members of the faculty, including the administration, research and extension staffs, whose scholastic records and/or outstanding achievements have rendered them worthy, may become members.

Quinn Discusses Nursing in Sri Lanka

"Sri Lanka: A Cross-Cultural Nursing Perspective" is the subject of a lecture by Dr. Edna Quinn, professor of nursing, on Thursday, November 18, at 8 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Quinn took a team of graduate and undergraduate nursing students to Sri Lanka in January 1993 to upgrade nursing care at the General Hospital of Kandy at the invitation of the director of the hospital. The experience will serve as a model for exploring differences in Sri Lanka and American culture, cross-cultural nursing concepts, and a comparison of the delivery of health care in Sri Lanka and the United States.

The program has been approved by the Maryland Nurses' Association for CEUs. There is a registration fee of $5; students are admitted free. The presentation, one in a regular series of educational programs of the Eastern Shore District of Maryland Nurses' Association, is co-sponsored by the SSU Nursing Department. A social and brief business meeting of the Nurses' Association precedes the program at 7 p.m.

All nurses, nursing students and the public are cordially invited to the meeting and program. For further information contact Quinn at 543-6420 or 742-7963.

Bing Attends PDK Conference

Dr. John Bing, associate professor of education, was among 1,300 educators from around the world attending the 44th Biennial Council of Phi Delta Kappa, November 4-7. The delegates from 675 chapters, representing 49 states and 14 other countries, convened in Nashville, TN, to conduct the business of the professional fraternity in education and to take part in the 11th International Conference on Educational Issues.

Phi Delta Kappa is an education fraternity whose purpose is to promote public education through the ideals of research, service and leadership. Emphasis is placed on publicly supported education.

Homecoming Dance Photographer Available

A professional photographer will be available for photos during Saturday night's Homecoming dance. Roland Condon from One to One Photography is offering three separate packages: one 8x10 photograph ($10), two 5x7 photographs ($12) or one 8x10 and two 5x7 photographs ($20). Payment needs to be made that night. Examples of his work are found in the Salisbury State Program Board's bulletin board outside of the Gull's Nest.

Peruvian Amazon Excursion Offered

The Friends of the Salisbury Zoo (FOSZ) invite all to take an excursion through the "Peruvian Amazon" with new zoo director, Brian Reizfeld, on Wednesday, November 17, at 7:30 p.m. at the Elks Lodge BPOE 817 (near the east gate of the Salisbury Zoo). FOSZ members are admitted free, non-members are charged $2.50; refreshments follow. RSVP at 860-6880 by November 15.

UPI Photojournalist Focuses on Homeless

The Salisbury State Program Board presents "Shooting Back at Homelessness" by Jim Hubbard, a former UPI photojournalist, on Tuesday, November 16, at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

His work on a Pulitzer-nominated project, Plight of the Homeless Families, sparked an interest in photography by some of his younger subjects. This inspired him to begin educating less fortunate children in the world of photography. Hubbard believed that by teaching children photography and other creative skills he could give a fighting chance in their violent world.

In February 1989 the Shooting Back Educational and Media Center was founded.

The children are now able to learn video, dark room and photography skills from professional photojournalists. Photographers from The Washington Post/The New York Times, Newsweek and other organizations volunteer to teach their craft to the area's homeless children. The center is also working to develop scholarships, internships, and special college and university programs for the promising at-risk youth.

Hubbard and his volunteers organized an exhibition at the Washington Project for the Arts. The exhibition attracted over 20,000 viewers in a three-month period and is currently on a nationwide tour.

For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Metropolitan Museum Bus Trip Scheduled

The University is sponsoring a bus trip to the Metropolitan Museum in New York City on Thursday, December 2. Sign-up for full-time SSU students with I.D. begins at 8 a.m. on Monday, November 15, at the Guerrieri University Center information desk. The cost is $12. The charge covers bus costs only. Part-time students, faculty, staff and invited guests can sign up beginning at 8 a.m. on Thursday, November 18. The charge is $15.

Students, faculty and staff must be present to sign up and cannot give their seat to someone else. No refunds will be given unless the seat is filled by the information desk staff.

The Met recently opened its new 19th-century European Paintings and Sculpture Galleries after a two-year, $13 million renovation.

"This will be the foremost collections of impressionist and post-impressionist works outside Paris' Musee d'Orsay," said Barbara McAdam, senior editor at Artnews.

The bus leaves the Dogwood entrance of the Guerrieri Center promptly at 6 a.m. on December 2 and returns to the same location at approximately 11 p.m. Interstate commerce regulations prohibit unscheduled stops for the purpose of pickup or discharge of passengers. There is a brief stop for breakfast and dinner. No food or beverages are allowed on the bus.

For more information about the trip call 543-6006.

Cockey Presents Piano Recital

Linda Cockey, assistant professor of music, performs a recital of baroque, rococo, classical, romantic and 20th century piano music, at 2 p.m. on Sunday, November 14, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Featured works are a Prelude and Fugue by Johann Sebastian Bach, a Fantasy by Carl Phillip Emanuel Bach, the Pathetique Sonata (Opus 13 in c minor) of Ludwig van Beethoven, six Chopin preludes, a song transcription by Franz Liszt and a dance suite by a South American composer Alberto Ginastera.

Cockey, a full-time member of the Music Department, teaches applied piano, class piano, music history and music appreciation. She holds a Doctor of Musical Arts from Catholic University of America, a Master of Music from Temple University and a Bachelor of Arts from Lebanon Valley College. She has studied piano with Robert Bailey, William Fairlamb, Susan Starr and Thomas Mastroianni.

Admission to the recital is free. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Outdoor Club Plans Turkey Hike

The next Outdoor Club trip, the annual turkey hike, is November 19-21. Preparations are also underway planning the 1994 Montreal/Quebec ski trip. Sign up at the Outdoor Club meeting on Monday, November 15, in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center. For additional information contact Wendy Rosen at 546-4392 or Claudine Roussel at 742-5085.

Salisbury State University: Students of the Sixties

by Sylvia Bradley

In looking back at Salisbury State in the 1960s, it is obvious that not only buildings, faculty and the grounds were changed. The new emphasis on building a "real" liberal arts college infected the students. President Wilbur Devilbiss and Dean Earl Willis, committed to the "liberal ideal," to the molding of independent thinkers sure of their own identity and values, were faced with a "strange new breed of students" by the mid-60s. This was not a phenomenon unique to Salisbury, of course. The '60s nationwide witnessed the emergence of the activist, sometimes militant, college student. There was no militancy on the SSC campus, and the degree of activism on national, political and social issues seen in most of the country by 1968 didn't appear at Salisbury until 1970-71. But a new attitude among students definitely appeared to be taking shape. If society did not fully comprehend the true meaning of "liberal education," as Dean Willis had regretted, at least the students seemed to be getting an inkling of it.

One of the first sure signs was a Holly Leaf (campus newsletter) editorial in December, 1965. Acknowledging that the college was in "the midst of what is possibly the most important period of growth in its history," the editor suggested that undoubtedly would mean much greater responsibility for the Student Government Association. Therefore, it seemed reasonable that the organization should begin planning and organizing for its new role by broaching certain suggestions to the administration. Four specific suggestions were volunteered by the editor: first, study the possibility of forming a student-faculty senate; second, consider the possibility of students serving on college committees dealing with curriculum changes, assignment of students to class sections, and professional competency; third, create a tutorial system; and fourth, ask for, an increase in student activities fees. Such student involvement in the college's first 35 years would have been unthinkable. But, here they were. What would come of them?

President Devilbiss' response came in another Holly Leaf interview. If students had wondered how he would react, their questions were soon answered. In regard to a possible student-faculty committee on tenure, he was emphatic.

"...A sound policy of administration is never to go into someone else's business...students have a right to serve on a committee which directly concerns them... (but) it's not the province of a student to decide when a professor should leave...or whether he should.... The greatest freedom a student has is to pursue his intellectual development...."

What about a student-faculty curriculum committee?

"No. It is something that is a matter for the Board of Trustees.... The people of...Maryland have provided much for the student in that state colleges are tax operated. The institution is here to give the student the opportunity to get an education, but not to help supervise and operate."

That did not end the issue. Throughout the spring, the Circle K sponsored a series of informal discussion on the general topic of planning improvement at SSC. A group of about 35 soon came to be known as the Student Action Committee. In order to fight perpetual apathy on campus, they urged that roadside signs be erected at the edges of the city advertising Salisbury as the home of Salisbury State College, not State Teachers College. (Townpeople persisted in referring to it as STC or State Teachers, and some still do!) They pressured for the naming of campus buildings and were successful in getting students appointed to the naming committee the next year. They pushed for the extension of library hours, and undertook a campaign to make city businessmen aware of the college's economic value to them. And in a really shocking display of radicalism, even advocated the legalization of wearing slacks and shorts at 6 p.m. on weekdays and anytime on weekends anywhere on campus except in the library or main lobby!!! The SGA in May approved the formation of a Student-Faculty Committee to consider mutual academic and social problems; it needed only faculty approval to become a standing committee in the fall of 1966. Students applauded the SAC efforts. A Holly Leaf article reporting on their activities reminded readers that the Board of Trustees' executive director had recently announced that it was board policy that students should have a voice in college policies. In the same issue, an enthusiastic student declared "...we are involved...our lives at this college, our education and our attitudes must be broadened by active participation and acceptance of our responsibility as students."

simplistic paradigms of the period." Tischler said. "The first is a nostalgic view of the early Civil Rights and antiwar movements, coupled with a hazy cultural melange of tie-dyed clothing, love beads, a sexual revolution without consequences and relatively harmless experimentation with recreational drugs."

"The second set of images focuses on the fear suggested by Black Power, the violence of the Weather Underground and the fundamental disruption in the American social fabric."

"Even a more sophisticated analysis provides us with little more than a 'good '60s/bad '60s' typology that suggests that something started out right but went terribly wrong."

Tischler will also offer some analytical approaches to understanding the legacies of the 1960s by reintegrating such subjects as liberalism in mainstream politics, the impact of the feminist movement and the search for community. The lecture will include videotaped events of the period and musical examples.

There is "nothing funnier than unhappiness" one of the characters says and the people of Endgame are funny: "What about having a good guffaw the two of us together?" Hamm asks Clov, to which Clov replies, "I couldn't guffaw again today."

For Dr. Gary Harrington of SSU's English Department and a Beckett aficionado, Endgame is one of the most interesting plays of the 20th century. "In the academy, Endgame is frequently considered the better play (than Godot)," he said. It epitomizes Beckett.

The beauty and integrity of Beckett's art and life contradicted the horror and despair about which he wrote. If existence were meaningless, he nevertheless joined the French Resistance when the Nazi occupation began "making life hell for my friends," Beckett said—particularly his Jewish friends. He later was awarded the Croix de Guerre. He intervened for persecuted artists under Franco in Spain and protested the detention of Czechoslovak playwright Vaclav Havel. And he never ceased writing. He died in 1989.

Then there was his humor. As they strolled in a London park, a friend said it was the kind of day that made you glad to be alive. "I wouldn't go that far," Beckett replied.

Endgame is performed Wednesday-Monday, November 17-21, in Fulton Hall Theatre. Curtain is 8 p.m. all nights except Sunday, November 21, which is a 2 p.m. matinee. General admission is $6, students and senior citizens $4. For more information including reservations call the theatre box office at 543-6228.

which includes child care provided by SSU's Education Club. Reservations are required.

On Sunday Linda Cockey, a member of the University's music faculty, performs a piano recital at 2 p.m. in the Guerrieri Center's Wicomico Room. Admission is free.

For students the festivities began earlier in the week. "Go Bananas" night, sponsored by the Greek Council, was on Tuesday, November 9, followed by "Casino Night" on Wednesday, November 10.

Earlier Wednesday judges determined the winners of the "Banner Contest."

On Thursday, November 11, the Union of African-American Students sponsors a Homecoming Jam in the Wicomico Room at 9 p.m. On Friday it's the gastronomically popular "Spicy Wing Eating Contest" on the steps of the Powell Dining Hall at 3 p.m. (prior-registration is required). A "Pregame Party" sponsored by the Student Government Association is at 8 that night.

The "Homecoming Semi-formal Dance" is Saturday at 9 p.m. in the Wicomico Room.

SSU Makes Computer Technology Available To Area High Schools

Imagine a group of elementary school students taking a tour of the English countryside, guided by a teacher in London. Imagine them taking the tour without leaving their Delmar classroom. Imagine the students asking for more, maybe a science lesson next time.

It's all happening in the global classroom, where computer terminals and fiber optics are linking students around the world. And, thanks to the efforts of a team of area business leaders and educators, it will soon be happening in classrooms across Delmarva.

The Center for Technology in Education (CTE), which just opened at the University, is bringing Eastern Shore teachers and their students a greater understanding and familiarity with the classroom benefits of computer technology.

The overall purpose of the CTE, as outlined by Dr. Doran Christensen, dean of the School of Education and Professional Studies, is fourfold: —to provide basic training in computer-assisted instruction for classroom teachers and other educational personnel; —to introduce teachers and other educational personnel to state-of-the-art technology for application to innovative uses in the classroom;

—to perform research in the use of technology for classroom instruction; and

—to participate in program development to enhance the technology literacy of school people throughout the region.

Already the center has become an invaluable resource to teachers and administrators in area public and private schools. Director Wanda Wagner couldn't be happier.

"What's exciting is to be able to go to teachers and say, 'I'm a resource for you, how can I help?' and to have the teachers ready with their ideas and requests," said Wagner, who until recently coordinated user services at SSU's Computer Services Office.

Teachers like Patti Weeg, whose Delmar class took the computer tour of England mentioned earlier, are looking forward to learning about new technology—and new uses for the equipment and programs they already have—at the center.

Practical use of the facilities has already begun. According to Wicomico County Superintendent of Schools Evelyn Holman, members of the school board's administrative staff have begun weekly training sessions at SSU. Holman has been a supporter of the center since plans were begun.

"We have installed Word Perfect in most of our offices, but hadn't yet trained the staff to

SSU, UMES Agree to Common Calendar

Students enrolled at the University of Maryland System's (UMS) two-degree-granting institutions on the Eastern Shore will have to do a lot less juggling of schedules to take advantage of the universities' growing collaboration. The presidents of SSU and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore announced last week that their faculties have adopted a common academic calendar, beginning fall 1994.

In making the announcement Dr. Bellavance and UMES President William P. Hytche said the action will greatly benefit both institutions, allowing for optimal scheduling of dual and joint degree programs. Already the campuses offer cooperative programs in a number of academic areas including social work, sociology, environmental sciences and biology. And they have reached agreement to implement joint programming in other areas including chemistry, education and physical education. In addition the common calendar will remove logistical barriers that can complicate joint activities.

"I am very pleased by the spirit of cooperation, so important to the success of the University of Maryland System, that led to this action," said UMS Chancellor Donald N. Langenberg. "The leadership, faculty and staff of these two institutions are clearly committed to providing students broader access to educational opportunities and to achieving optimal use of available expertise and resources."

In a joint statement Bellavance and Hytche said: "Each of our institutions can pursue its individual mission and at the same time develop and implement programs that are complementary and supplementary."

What this action means is that beginning September 7, 1994 at the two institutions, semesters and final examinations will begin on the same day and end on the same day. Also, all vacation dates will be the same.

In addition the 50-minute classes on each campus will be scheduled to accommodate shuttle bus travel between the campuses. For example, a student taking a class from 8-8:50 a.m. at SSU will be able to make a 9:30 a.m. class at UMES. A student taking a class from 8:30 a.m.-9:20 a.m. at UMES will be able to make a 10 a.m. class at SSU.

The UMS Inter-Institutional Committee, a group that works to foster communication and information-sharing among the institutions, is developing options for a possible common academic calendar for all UMS institutions. The committee is scheduled to present its options later this month to the UMS Academic Affairs Advisory Council, a group comprising the chief academic officers of the institutions and System Administration.

'Major Contemporary Artist' Brings Pastels To Fulton Gallery

"If you hold a mirror before a real painting it will steam the glass"—Pablo Picasso

John Canaday, the late art critic for The New York Times, said about Kathleen Holder's work, "The only other artists I can think of whose pastels I really like are Degas' and Manet's, and they're nothing like this—hers is an entirely different approach."

Some people may draw with pastels, but Holder paints with them. And brilliantly, if critics from Chicago to New York are to be believed. "She is a major contemporary artist," said Marie Cavallaro, chair of the Art Department.

On Friday, November 19, an exhibit by Holder, whom Art-Talk magazine has compared to Mark Rothko, opens in Salisbury State's University Gallery. A reception for her will be held from 5-7 p.m. in Fulton Hall.

Complementing the opening is a poetry reading on Thursday, November 18, by Dr. Michael Waters of the English Department. Holder is a friend of Waters and one of her

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

No News On Thanksgiving

The SSU News will not be published on Thursday, November 25, due to the Thanksgiving holiday. The deadline for the December 2 issue is Wednesday, November 24, at noon.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Tickets for Graduation

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for each succeeding ceremony.

Each December graduate will be provided 15 guest tickets. Please note the following deadlines: November 17-19, pick up caps, gowns, announcements and 15 tickets at the graduation center in the Book Rack (return any tickets not needed to the Guerrieri University Center information desk); and December 15-18, extra guest tickets that become available will be at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first-come, first-served basis.

Thanksgiving Week Library Hours

Blackwell Library hours for Thanksgiving week are: Tuesday, November 23, 7:45 a.m.-8 p.m.; Wednesday, November 24, 8 a.m.-5 p.m.; Thursday-Saturday, November 25-27, closed; and Sunday, November 28, 6 p.m.-midnight.

1994-95 Financial Aid Renewal Application

In an effort to simplify the financial aid process, the federal government has made a Renewal Application available to students who filed the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) in 1993-94.

The Renewal Application is preprinted with the items that are consistent from year to year, such as name, social security number and date of birth, and is being mailed directly to students in December. Students should follow these guidelines when they receive the Renewal Application: review the Renewal Application for accuracy; correct only those items that need changing; sign and date where applicable and mail to the central processor on or after January 1.

Using the Renewal Application will speed up the application process; however, if students do not receive a Renewal Application by January 1 they can stop by the Financial Aid Office and pick up a FAFSA. The primary reason for not receiving the Renewal Application is an incorrect address on the 1993-94 form.

If students receive a Renewal Application, do not file a FAFSA. This will delay the processing of the Student Aid Report. Maryland residents should check "yes" to question No. 92 on the Renewal Application. This will allow the information to be sent directly to the Maryland State Scholarship Administration for scholarship consideration.

The processed forms must be in the Financial Aid Office by March 1 for priority funding. Please allow four weeks for processing to meet the deadline.

For more information contact the Financial Aid Office, Holloway Hall, room 243, telephone 543-6165.

Metropolitan Museum Bus Trip Scheduled

The University is sponsoring a bus trip to the Metropolitan Museum in New York City on Thursday, December 2. Sign-up for full-time SSU students with I.D. begins at 8 a.m. on Monday, November 15, at the Guerrieri University Center information desk. The cost is $12. The charge covers bus costs only. Part-time students, faculty, staff and invited guests can sign up beginning at 8 a.m. on Thursday, November 18. The charge is $15.

Students, faculty and staff must be present to sign up and cannot give their seat to someone else. No refunds will be given unless the seat is filled by the information desk staff.

The Met recently opened its new 19th-century European Paintings and Sculpture Galleries after a two-year, $13 million renovation.

"This will be the foremost collections of impressionist and post-impressionist works outside Paris' Musee d'Orsay," said Barbara McAdam, senior editor at Artnews.

The bus leaves the Dogwood entrance of the Guerrieri Center promptly at 6 a.m. on December 2 and returns to the same location at approximately 11 p.m. Interstate commerce regulations prohibit unscheduled stops for the purpose of pickup or discharge of passengers. There is a brief stop for breakfast and dinner. No food or beverages are allowed on the bus.

For more information about the trip call 543-6006.

Staff Advisory Council Seeks Input

Dr. Bellavance has established the President's Staff Advisory Council to provide him with input on the feelings of all staff with regard to personnel issues or other concerns. Staff members may contact one of the council members to voice their concerns or ask questions. Concerns will be discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the council and relayed to Bellavance.

The staff council members are: Linda Abresch, Math Department; Dennis Bradford, Public Safety Office; Bob Meigel, Physical Plant; Lesley Dayton, Blackwell Library; Jackie Eberts, Financial Services Office; Barry King, Dean of Students Office; Jerry Waldron, Registrar's Office; and Jeannette Wolinski, Computer Services Office.

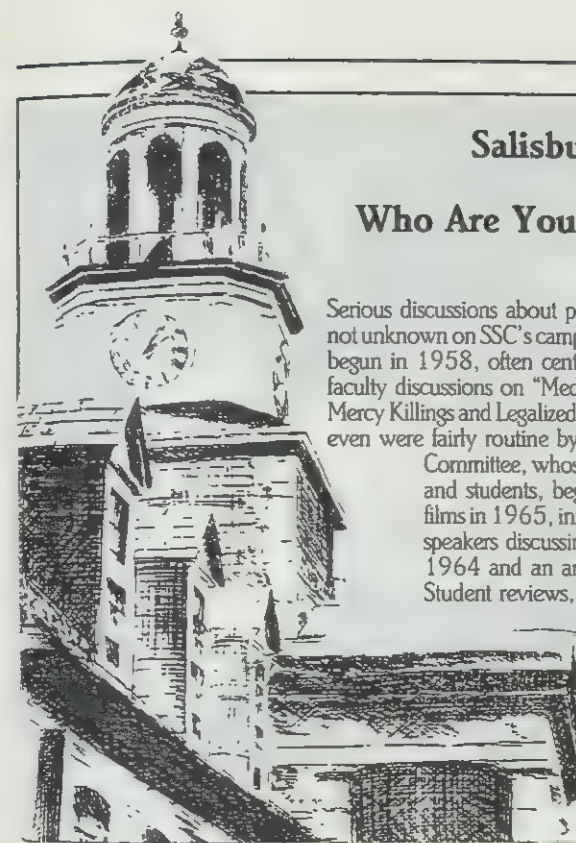

Senior Portraits Needed for Yearbook

December graduates who did not have their photos taken previously may have a portrait taken by another company and submit it to the yearbook (SSU Box 3061).

The photo must be a frontal street clothes portrait. Men must wear a shirt and tie. Women must wear a long-sleeved blouse. The background must be a plain solid color. The senior section is printed in black and white.

Those students graduating in May 1994 will have a second chance to have a portrait taken for the yearbook. Sign-ups are the first week of the spring semester (February 7-11) and the portraits will be taken the following week.

Student teachers can opt either to submit a portrait by an outside company to the yearbook (Box 3061) or have a portrait done in February by DaVor.

Salisbury State University: Activist? Who Are You Calling an Activist?

by Sylvia Bradley

Serious discussions about politics and American society were not unknown on SSC's campus in the '60s. Coffee hours, first begun in 1958, often centered on serious issues. Student and faculty discussions on "Medicare" and "Death and the Law: Mercy Killings and Legalized Abortions" and other similar topics even were fairly routine by the mid-60s. The Cultural Affairs Committee, whose membership included both faculty and students, began sponsoring free showings of art films in 1965, informal assemblies with notable guest speakers discussing major contemporary problems in 1964 and an annual Fine Arts Festival in 1967.

Student reviews, editorials and letters-to-the-editor in the college newspaper following such events indicated widespread student interest and appreciation for them. In the U.S. Presidential election year in 1964, the campus buzzed with political activity. A mock election had statistical results almost identical to the real thing—Lyndon Johnson trounced Barry Goldwater.

And, with a large male student body, by 1965 Vietnam also was attracting the attention of students as well as the nation. As in the U.S. at large, SSC initially expressed support for the government's policy there. In November 1965 Father Raymond deJaegher, former advisor to South Vietnam's President Diem, was invited by the Newman Club to speak to students. U.S. Sen. Joseph Tydings visited the campus in December and avowed his support for U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia. In October a Holly Leaf editorial was highly critical of the Vietnam protest marches across the nation, claiming they represented only a small part of the country's college population, but got all the publicity. "These are people who are willing to enjoy the benefits of living in a free country, but are unwilling to defend the freedom of that country and help insure the same freedom for other nations...their motives are those of self-interest and fear, rather than an interest in humanity and world peace," it read.

A campus poll of 110 students, conducted in November, revealed that only 8 percent then advocated early and complete withdrawal from Vietnam involvement; however, 80 percent defended the right of students to demonstrate on social and political issues, insisting only that such demonstrations be peaceful and non-violent. As part of the Cultural Affairs Committee's Vital Issue Series, a panel of history professors—Drs. William Wroten, Millard LesCallette, Nayland Page and Jack Kadlubowski—discussed the historical background and future implications of the Asian conflict.

Interestingly there was considerably less talk of and attention to Vietnam in 1966-67, and by 1968 students even were beginning to speak of LBJ and the "stigma of Vietnam." Students in the liberal arts college of SSC remained basically conservative, however.

Sylvia Bradley is an assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture located in the Power Building. She is the author of a book chronicling the history of Salisbury State and an alumnus of the institution. Throughout the academic year she will write about SSU's history and heritage.

Army Field Band Concert Benefits Food Bank

The internationally acclaimed United States Army Field Band and Soldier's Chorus performs on Tuesday, December 7, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Known as the "Musical Ambassadors of the Army," the band has performed throughout Europe, the Far East, and Central and South America as well as all 50 states.

Although admission to the concert is free a donation to the Maryland Food Bank of canned food goods will be appreciated. The food goods will be distributed to the needy of the community.

Unique among military bands, the Army Field Band performs music appealing to all age groups and spanning the musical spectrum from classics to pop. Its members are selected by personal audition and many have studied at the country's leading conservatories and schools of music.

The Field Band has a distinguished history. It has performed in the Royal Festival Hall in London, Luxembourg Gardens in Paris, the Olympia Stadium in Berlin, the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., the Hollywood Bowl and New York's Carnegie Hall, where it was the first military band to present a full-dress concert.

Traveling thousands of miles every year, band members have a reputation as being among the best touring musicians in the country.

Tickets to the concert are available beginning Monday, November 22, at the Guerrieri University Center information desk, The (Salisbury) Daily Times reception desk and the U.S. Army Recruiting Center at the Twilley Shopping Center.

The event is co-sponsored by The (Salisbury) Daily Times, SSU and the Salisbury State ROTC Detachment. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Musical Tour of '60s In Gull's Nest Nov. 19

From Elvis Presley and The Beatles to the Motown sound, from Crosby, Stills and Nash to Creedence Clearwater Revival and Bob Dylan, the '60s overflowed with great music. American Bandstand was on TV. Radios and jukeboxes were everywhere inviting a generation to come together, sing along, tune in, dance and dream.

There was the Vietnam War and the anti-war movement. The civil rights and women's movements were gathering momentum. College campuses were hyperactive with everything from Students for a Democratic Society to dance crazes like the Twist. The whole country was moving and music was always there...to entertain, soothe, excite and inspire.

And there was Woodstock. Hundreds of thousands of people gathered for a peaceful, loving "Festival of Life." Danny McCarthy, a student at the time, drove to Woodstock in a Volkswagen bus with a couple of Vietnam vets. Everyone celebrated together.

McCarthy performs on Friday, November 19, at 8 p.m. in the Gull's Nest. SSPB and the Spotlight Cafe invite everyone to come see "A Piece of That Sweet American Pie, a Musical Tour of the '60s" with McCarthy.

Chamber Choir Performance Dec. 5, 6

The SSU Chamber Choir performs Bach's Christmas Cantata, Holst's Christmas Day, Bax's Five Fantasies on Polish Christmas Carols and Nellybel's Estampie Natalis on Sunday and Monday, December 5 and 6, at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall in Holloway Hall.

The performance is free and the public is invited. Student soloists, instrumentalists and student conductors will be featured. For more information call 543-6385.

An orientation meeting for the 1994 January London course and trip to England has been scheduled for Thursday, November 18, at 8:30 p.m. in Devilbiss Auditorium, according to Jim Welsh, associate professor of English. Those interested in either the English course to be offered or the Art Department course proposed by Jeanne Anderton are invited to attend.

The airline to be used for the trip has recently been upgraded to British Airways, departing from Philadelphia on January 10, and returning to Washington Dulles on January 24. Chartered buses will take the group to Philadelphia and return them to Salisbury from Dulles. While in England the group will stay at a hotel near Bloomsbury, Russell Square and the British Museum.

The two-week tour of London and the English countryside has been offered annually since 1984. The cost of the 1994 trip is $795 but, since the deadline for deposits has passed, Hall's Tidewater Travel will require an additional $25 late fee to cover the cost of procuring additional space for those signing up after October 27. Registration for the January term courses begins at Salisbury State on November 8 and lasts until December 10.

For information about the trip call John Hall of Tidewater Travel at 749-8131. For information about the course call Welsh at 543-6446.

Quinn Discusses Nursing in Sri Lanka

"Sri Lanka: A Cross-Cultural Nursing Perspective" is the subject of a lecture by Dr. Edna Quinn, professor of nursing, on Thursday, November 18, at 8 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Quinn took a team of graduate and undergraduate nursing students to Sri Lanka in January 1993 to upgrade nursing care at the General Hospital of Kandy at the invitation of the director of the hospital. The experience will serve as a model for exploring differences in Sri Lanka and American culture, cross-cultural nursing concepts, and a comparison of the delivery of health care in Sri Lanka and the United States.

The program has been approved by the Maryland Nurses' Association for CEUs. There is a registration fee of $5; students are admitted free. The presentation, one in a regular series of educational programs of the Eastern Shore District of Maryland Nurses' Association, is co-sponsored by the SSU Nursing Department. A social and brief business meeting of the Nurses' Association precedes the program at 7 p.m.

All nurses, nursing students and the public are cordially invited to the meeting and program. For further information contact Quinn at 543-6420 or 742-7963.

TIAA-CREF Offers Retirement Counseling

On Thursday, November 18, from 3:30-5:30 p.m., TIAA-CREF is hosting a reception for all employees in the Guerrieri University Center lounge. Employees should make plans to stop by and meet their representatives. The representatives will be available on both Thursday, November 18, and Friday, November 19, for one-on-one counseling sessions to find out how TIAA-CREF can help achieve retirement planning goals with tax-sheltered dollars.

To schedule an appointment for an individual counseling session call the Personnel Office at 543-6035.

Last week's Las Vegas Night is a done deal, but for students, faculty and staff alike the payoff was a good time.

Piano Classes, Lessons Offered in Spring Term

Piano classes and private lessons in piano are offered this spring. Class Piano I (MUSA 205-001, Monday and Wednesdays from 8:55-9:50 a.m.) and Class Piano II (MUSA 206-001, Monday and Wednesdays from 10-10:55 a.m.) will be held in the new piano lab in Fulton Hall. The lab is a wonderful facility using electronic Roland pianos with 88 weighted keys that give the sound and feel of an acoustic piano. In addition these instruments have the ability to produce different keyboard sounds such as harpsichord, jazz piano, etc., and to record one's practicing. In addition the lab includes computer stations with keyboards for self-tutoring. The prerequisite for Class Piano I is Music Fundamentals (MUSC 200) or permission by the instructor. Students who have already had private piano lessons might be eligible for Class Piano II or individual studio lessons (MUSA 390-006). In certain cases students' backgrounds could CLEP them out of Class Piano and enable them to register for individual lessons. Anyone interested in Class Piano or Applied Piano Lessons please contact Dr. Linda Cockey in the Music Department (Fulton Hall, room 242) before preregistering. Enrollment is limited.

In addition students having prior piano lessons who have reached a certain level of proficiency are offered harpsichord and organ lessons. Interested students should contact Cockey

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The footballs, volleyballs and soccerballs of the fall have been put away for another year and the basketballs have been rolled out as a new season tips off this week. Both Sea Gull squads open the season in tournaments on the road this Friday and Saturday.

The women's team, coming off an 11-13 campaign last year, opens against St. Mary's in the Bridgewater (VA) College Tournament. The Gulls are led by returning frontcourt players Kim Roth and Amy Fenzel. Roth averaged 13.2 points/game last year and 14.8 rebounds, finishing fourth in the nation in rebounding. Fenzel added 12.7 points and 8.2 rebounds. Senior Jen Shelley is the top returning backcourt player and will handle the point guard duties.

The men's team heads north to Selinsgrove, PA to face Jersey City State in the first round of the Susquehanna College Tournament. Senior Dameron Ross, who finished second in the nation with a 28.2 scoring average last year, is one of two returning starters. Senior point guard Tom Wolfe, the other starter, is slated to rejoin the team in December. He will miss the first few weeks of the season due to a preseason knee injury.

The football team closed out the '93 campaign with a strong Homecoming Day effort, downing Guilford 41-3 at Sea Gull Stadium. Senior QB Len Annetta went out with a record-setting performance, passing for 437 yards and five touchdowns. In addition to those single-game marks, he set new records for passing yards in a season (2,087) and in a career (5,817).

Freshman CB Eric Hill, making his second career start, contributed to a strong defensive showing with three interceptions and a fumble recovery. Freddy Grant, who caught seven of Annetta's passes, tied the school-record with 159 receiving yards. In recognition of their outstanding play, both Annetta and Hill were named ECAC South Region Players-of-the-Week.

The women's swim team blazed its way to its third win in as many tries with a convincing 113-51 win over Hood last Sunday. Kathi Geety and Debbie Roskiewicz each had two first place finishes and the 200-meter freestyle relay team set a new school-record. The Gulls also routed York 134-66 earlier in the week.

Endgame by Nobel Prize-winning playwright Samuel Beckett is performed Wednesday-Monday, November 17-22, in Fulton Hall Theatre. Critics have called Endgame one of the most interesting plays of the 20th century. Pictured are Katie George as Nell, John Warren as Clov and Robert F. McCall as Nagg. Curtain is 8 p.m. all nights except Sunday, November 21, which is a 2 p.m. matinee. Tickets, free for SSU students, faculty and staff, are $4 and $6. For more information call the theatre box office 543-6228.

Choral Society Performs 'A Ceremony of Carols'

The Salisbury Choral Society performs Britten's A Ceremony of Carols and Mechem's Seven Joys of Christmas on Tuesday, December 14, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

Sonja Inglefield from the Peabody Conservatory of Music will be the featured guest harpist and will accompany the choir as well as perform her own solo harp selections. Tickets are $8 for adults and $6 for students and senior citizens. SSU staff, faculty and students are admitted free of charge with SSU I.D. For more information call 543-6385.

Outdoor Club Plans Canada Ski Trip

The Outdoor Club's Montreal/Quebec downhill/cross country ski trip is Sunday, January 23, to Friday, February 4. The approximate cost of the trip is $275 which includes everything except lift tickets and equipment rentals.

Those interested should come to the meeting on Monday, November 22, in the Nanticoke Room A of the Guerrieri University Center.

For additional information contact Claudine Roussel at 742- 5085 or Marek Topolski at 860-6769.

Health Insurance Open Enrollment Upcoming

Open enrollment for health insurance is November 22-December 8.

At press time no additional information was available. The Personnel Office urges all state employees to watch their mail (both at home and on campus) for literature containing details of any changes to plans or prices. Employees should read it carefully to make informed choices about health insurance coverage for 1994.

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

PLEASE NOTE: Students and alumni must have a resume and/or credential Personal Information Form on file with the Center for Personal and Professional Development prior to interviewing on campus. Please visit the CPPD as soon as possible to complete this requirement. Unless otherwise specified, recruiters are interviewing all graduates up to and including May 1994.

Thurs. Nov. 18 K-Mart—Business management, marketing, business retailing and liberal arts majors. Must have minimum GPA of 2.5.
Wed. Dec. 1 Atlantic Publications, Inc.—All majors, especially interested in English and business, may apply for editors, reporters, photographers and advertising sales. Must have 2.75 or better GPA and be willing to move to location of newspaper.

Druid Hill Park Turkey Trot Nov. 20

State employees are invited to a "Turkey Trot Around Druid Hill Park" on Saturday, November 20, beginning at 10:45 a.m. There will be a free raffle for participants with a prize of a family membership to the Baltimore Zoo.

Druid Hill Park is the home to the zoo, famed Druid Hill Conservatory and the city's water supply. Employees are invited to enjoy the fall weather and walk around the reservoir and then view the exotic plants and annual colorful chrysanthemum show in the conservatory.

The three-mile walk (1.5 miles each way) and the visit to the conservatory are free. Admission to the zoo is $6.50 for adults;

Health Career Day, Job Fair Dec. 6

The Department of Nursing is sponsoring a Health Careers Day/Job Fair on Monday, December 6, from 10:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Representatives from over 25 hospitals and health care organizations from the Eastern Shore as well as many from Baltimore, Washington, D.C., and Delaware will have tables set up with information on employment opportunities in the health care industry.

For more information contact Dr. Edna Quinn or Eleanor Morris of the Department of Nursing at 543-6414 or 6401.

Whaley Published On Soul Musicians

Donald Whaley of the History Department recently published 17 entries in The African-American Encyclopedia. Whaley contributed an article on "Soul Music and Musicians." In addition he wrote 16 biographical sketches of soul music artists.

The African-American Encyclopedia is a six-volume reference work relating to African-American history and culture. It is published by Marshall Cavendish.

Whaley has also recently agreed to contribute an essay on Memphis soul music to a new reader on Tennessee history to be published in 1996.

Cool Clearinghouse

Cool Clearinghouse serves as an information network to help individuals and groups interested in community service opportunities match themselves with community organizations which use volunteers. The project is sponsored by COOL-SSU, a student organization affiliated with the Campus Outreach Opportunity League. Organizations using the service are solely responsible for the conduct of sponsored service activities, including training and supervision. Volunteers assume sole responsibility for their conduct and for any risks associated with service activities. Call Cool Clearinghouse at 543-6080.

use it," she said. Before the center opened, this type of training had been accomplished slowly, during summer months and whenever else time allowed. Thanks to weekly sessions at SSU, said Holman, "we're able to do this on school time."

"We'll have all our staff trained there by the end of the year. We're excited by the CTE," she added. "We'll keep them as busy as they allow us."

The CTE will be a resource for private schools, as well. At Worcester Country School, computers have been used in classrooms since the 1970s. While the school has managed to introduce its students to some cutting-edge technology, it shares Wicomico's need for teacher training.

Dr. Merle Marsh, the school's academic dean, has worked on the Maryland Committee for Technology and helped establish a program at Johns Hopkins University to bring computer education to Baltimore-area teachers. She was one of a core group of people who then began looking for such a resource on the Shore.

The seed for a Center for Technology in Education was first planted when Marsh met with Herb Fincher of Peninsula Roofing and the Greater Salisbury Committee Education Technology Task Force, which he chaired.

"The Greater Salisbury Committee's mission is to identify community needs and problems, seek broad solutions and find the appropriate groups to implement these solutions," Fincher said.

Fincher brought the idea to Christensen and the CTE began to take root. Today the steering committee for the CTE includes the Greater Salisbury Committee, representatives of each of the participating school systems and private schools, the director of the Eastern Shore of Maryland Education Consortium, the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and SSU.

In addition to meeting with computer resource teachers at elementary and secondary schools, Wagner is also pursuing the on-campus possibilities of the CTE and its resources. Classes for undergraduate and graduate students in the pastels graces the cover of his most recent volume, Bountiful. This is his first reading in Salisbury in more than four years. It starts at 8 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 111.

The public is cordially invited to both the Waters' recital and the reception honoring Holder.

A National Endowment for the Arts fellow, this Arkansas artist has an impressive exhibition resume which includes the National Museum of Women in the Arts in Washington, D.C., and the Chicago International Art Exposition.

Chicago-based critic Michel Segard has praised her abstractions for their "beautifully saturated colors and ethereal luminosity."

Holder works with pastels because, "There's a vitality in the color of pastel that I haven't been able to find in other media." This and "her interest in spiritual and psychic experiences gives her art an edge and subtle aggressiveness that is not immediately apparent," Segard said. "Collectors have remarked, after living with Holder's work, that it sometimes becomes a bit frightening. The slow revelation of that aspect of her art, however, seems to have resulted in their greater appreciation of its depth."

Observers have often chastised abstract art for its detachment from nature, but not Holder's. In a chapbook of essays about her work, Waters wrote, "Late one afternoon in June... I stepped into Kathleen Holder's studio at the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts. Aproned and pastel-smudged, Holder sat on the stone floor surrounded by drawings tacked to the walls. The energy in the room was palpable, a storm on the wind—the images seemed to expand to the moment of bursting, then recede, each a swirling universe. I was struck by the motion on paper...."

(Kenzo) Okada described a new painting by Mark Rothko: "...like air—going toward you, going away from you!" "Let there be light," I remember thinking as I stared at Holder's drawings. Her work emanated warmth, the blues slowly evolving from an immense blackness, the reds and oranges fiery, of course, and elemental. Air and fire. The silence of the summer afternoon was trebled by the silence on the walls. I felt a deep, abiding presence blossoming into light.

"Abstraction and nature: the true subject of Kathleen Holder's work is the Creation."

"The Holder visit and exhibition is an important event of the University Gallery season," said Cavallaro. The exhibit continues through December 16. Gallery hours are Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Tuesdays from 10 a.m.-8 p.m. and weekends from noon-6 p.m. The gallery is closed on Friday. For more information call 543-6006 or 543-6271.

School of Education and Professional Studies are being prepared. In addition Wagner is working on a program to introduce "Computers across the Curriculum," which will bring all SSU education students and faculty in touch with computer technology and the many ways it can fit into the work they are doing.

While SSU is embracing the CTE and the promise of technology to foster greater collaboration among educators on the Eastern Shore, Fincher and the Greater Salisbury Committee are confident that their idea is blossoming in fertile soil. Said Greater Salisbury Committee Executive Director Luis Luna, "It's because of Salisbury State University's backing and forward-thinking attitude that this is going to happen."

The Center for Technology in education makes its home in Caruthers Hall. For more information please call Wanda Wagner at 548-4501.

'One-stop Shopping' For Student Loans Planned

By The (Salisbury) Daily Times

Students at Salisbury State who need student loans will be facing a lot less paperwork next year.

SSU is one of 105 colleges and universities that will be part of a direct loan program, where the SCHOOLS THEMSELVES WILL HANDLE LOAN MONEY.

The federal Education Department unveiled its new direct loan program, under which the government will lend students money instead of funneling the loans through banks and guarantor agencies that charge extra.

The Federal Direct Student Loan Program also will save taxpayers money by giving students a more generous repayment schedule that should lower the default rate, Education Secretary Richard Riley said.

"We are on track to make good on our pledge to save taxpayers $4.3 billion in the course of the next five years," he said. "Parents and students will appreciate one-stop shopping."

At SSU about 2,300 students at the school use either the Stafford or the Family Education Loan Program and could be eligible for the new program, according to Beverly Horner, director of financial aid for SSU. She said the processing time will be cut in half and more money will end up being used for education under the new program.

"Under the old way, you had to fill out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid, wait three to four weeks to see if you were eligible, come here (to SSU) and fill out an application, go to the bank and fill out an application, wait another four to six weeks to see the money," she said.

"Now, you'll fill out the FAFSA here and that's it. We'll be able to do it all in a month."

Horner said that the students will get 96 percent of the loan they apply for under the new system, rather than the current 93 percent. The program will start with the 1994-95 academic year at SSU.

New Faculty at SSU, UMES Enjoy Shared Orientation Program

Drs. Arlene White and Gerald W. Johnson share a love of music. They also love teaching: White at Salisbury State and Johnson at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore. During lunch recently the two professors discussed how their positive experiences as colleagues and friends over the years might help their associates at each school.

"Both SSU and UMES have many new faculty who don't know anything about their sister institution 20 miles away," said White, chair of SSU's Department of Modern Languages. "Gerry and I started talking about how we could make it easier for them to collaborate."

The result: With the blessings of the University of Maryland System which gave a $1,500 grant, White and Johnson have begun a program bringing together on a regular basis 16 of the newest faculty at both universities to learn about one another and their respective institutions.

The two schools have different histories and missions—SSU is a regional teaching university that started as a normal school; UMES a historically black land grant university engaging in research as well as teaching.

Yet "no other institutions in the University of Maryland System have our unique geographical closeness," said Johnson, chair of the Department of Fine Arts at UMES. "There are opportunities for exchanges...to let ideas grow."

"Too often we become engulfed in our own campuses," he added.

"We wanted faculty to meet one another in a social as well as a professional setting," said White, so the initial meeting included tours of the communities of Salisbury and Princess Anne, with dinner at UMES. For many faculty new to this area it was their first exposure to both their sister campus and parts of the Eastern Shore. The response was positive.

More issue-oriented sessions follow. The group met recently to discuss alternative methods of student assessment. In February they will take a personal look at a hot topic: multiculturalism. How can a positive and accepting attitude be fostered in the classroom and on campus? These and other questions will be discussed by a panel of students, faculty and staff from each university.

Almost like proud parents, Johnson and White beam when they discuss the interchanges within the new group. "Nothing is being forced," Johnson said, "but already faculty from the two

Symphony Orchestra Fall Concert Has Holiday Flavor

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University opens its fall concert with the music that placed it among Maryland's best on the stage at Meyerhoff Symphony Hall in October. Having showcased its talents in the Maryland Citizens for the Arts "ArtSalute '93," the SSO returns home with a special fall concert program.

In addition to Beethoven's King Stephan Overture, the orchestra performs Berlioz's tone poem, Flight into Egypt, Yorkshire Ballad by James Barnes, New England Holiday by Robert Washburn and Prokofiev's Lt. Kije.

The Prokofiev piece tells the timeless story of Lt. Kije, whose name roughly translates as "Lt. Whatchamacallit." The officer was a great and noble war hero who was unfortunately, invented out of whole cloth by villagers eager to impress the Tsar. When the Tsar decides to pay a visit and meet this impressive military man, the village is thrown into a frenzy of adventure and, of course, misadventure.

In keeping with long-standing tradition, the fall concert is also a holiday concert. Having

Met Season Preview On WSCL Dec. 4

The Met Season Preview, a three-hour introduction to the 54th consecutive season of live Texaco-Metropolitan Opera radio broadcasts, is on WSCL FM 89.5 on Saturday, December 4, at 1:30 p.m.

The program includes recorded highlights from historic past Met broadcast performances, as well as special recorded features and interviews with artists. The program introduces some rarely performed works (including the Met premieres of Dvorak's Rusalka and Verdi's I Lombardi and Stiffelio) as well as illuminates some of the more popular works in the repertory.

Artists featured in musical highlights from past broadcasts are Mario Del Monaco, Victoria de los Angeles, Plácido Domingo, Rosalind Elias, Maria Ewing, Kristen Flagstad, Thomas Hampson, Dorothy Kirsten, Erich Leinsdorf, James Levine, Christa Ludwig, Aprile Millo, James Morris, Luciano Pavarotti, Peter Pears, Bidu Sayao, Joan Sutherland, Renata Tebaldi, Tatiana Troyanos, Astrid Varnay and Shirley Verrett.

Two operas by Giuseppe Verdi are also being broadcast from the Met for the first time, I Lombardi on January 15 and Stiffelio on March 5, and lecturer and commentator Brigit Paolucci discusses these virtual Verdi rarities. Additionally, other new productions will be featured: Benjamin Britten's Death in Venice—which has been aired only once before from the Met—will be broadcast on February 26; and Verdi's Otello will be broadcast on April 2.

Listeners to the Met Season Preview can order a free broadcast guide to the 1993-94 season by calling 1-800-MET-8828, or by writing to MET Broadcast Guide, Box 50, New York, NY 10023.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Tickets for Graduation

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for each succeeding ceremony.

Each December graduate will be provided 15 guest tickets. Please note the following deadline: December 15-18, extra guest tickets that become available will be at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first-come, first-served basis.

1994-95 Financial Aid Renewal Application

In an effort to simplify the financial aid process, the federal government has made a Renewal Application available to students who filed the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) in 1993-94.

The Renewal Application is preprinted with the items that are consistent from year to year, such as name, social security number and date of birth, and is being mailed directly to students in December. Students should follow these guidelines when they receive the Renewal Application: review the Renewal Application for accuracy; correct only those items that need changing; sign and date where applicable and mail to the central processor on or after January 1.

Using the Renewal Application will speed up the application process; however, if students do not receive a Renewal Application by January 1 they can stop by the Financial Aid Office and pick up a FAFSA. The primary reason for not receiving the Renewal Application is an incorrect address on the 1993-94 form.

If students receive a Renewal Application, do not file a FAFSA. This will delay the processing of the Student Aid Report. Maryland residents should check "yes" to question No. 92 on the Renewal Application. This will allow the information to be sent directly to the Maryland State Scholarship Administration for scholarship consideration.

The processed forms must be in the Financial Aid Office by March 1 for priority funding. Please allow four weeks for processing to meet the deadline.

For more information contact the Financial Aid Office, Holloway Hall, room 243, telephone 543-6165.

Health Career Day, Job Fair Dec. 6

The Department of Nursing is sponsoring a Health Careers Day/Job Fair on Monday, December 6, from 10:30 a.m.-2:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Representatives from over 25 hospitals and health care organizations from the Eastern Shore as well as many from Baltimore, Washington, D.C., and Delaware will have tables set up with information on employment opportunities in the health care industry.

For more information contact Dr. Edna Quinn or Eleanor Morris of the Department of Nursing at 543-6414 or 6401.

Attention Graduating Loan Borrowers

All December graduating students who borrowed under the federal Stafford/SLS loan program are required to attend an exit interview with financial aid personnel. It is mandatory that SLS recipients attend one of the following sessions: Monday, December 13, 4 p.m., Nanticoke Room, Guerrieri University Center; Tuesday, December 14, 4 p.m., Nanticoke Room, Guerrieri Center. If SLS recipients do not attend their school records and diplomas will be held. Those students on internships, working, student teaching, etc., must make arrangements to attend.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
 2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
 3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
 4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
 5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
 6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
 7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
 8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
 9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
 10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.
- For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Voodoo Dreams Author Has Reading Dec. 9

"I had a great time reading Voodoo Dreams. Marie Laveau is the most interesting figure in American culture. Jewell Parker Rhodes did a wonderful job painting the possible picture of the Queen of Voodoo. I loved it."—Whoopi Goldberg

Legendary voodoo queen Marie Laveau was rumored to have walked on water, sucked blood from a snake's jaws and raised the dead. Even today, more than a hundred years after her death, her spirit is courted by believers—practitioners of voodoo who leave offerings at her tomb in New Orleans.

In Voodoo Dreams (St. Martin Press, October 11, 1993), a mesmerizing combination of history and storytelling, Jewell Parker Rhodes reconstructs Marie Laveau's incredible rise to power in 19th century New Orleans. In a starred review, Kirkus Reviews hails Voodoo Dreams as a "gripping first novel...with all the brooding intensity and latent menace of a summer's night on a lonely bayou...all the ingredients of a bewitching read—mystery, romance—as well as enough intellectual substance to give it a satisfying heft."

Rhodes reads from Voodoo Dreams and other works on Thursday, December 9, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Free and open to the public, the reading is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee and English Department.

Raised by her grandmother, a former slave, in the bayous of Louisiana, Marie Laveau shed her Catholic upbringing to become a theatrical, flamboyant spiritual leader of the black community of New Orleans while still a young woman.

Jewell Parker Rhodes

Her abilities as seer, spell-weaver and voodoo priestess eventually made her one of the most powerful women in New Orleans, feared and worshipped by blacks and whites alike. As an African-American and a feminist, Rhodes was intrigued by this historic figure of a black woman rising to power amid slavery and oppression. Rhodes first came across a reference to Marie Laveau in a Creole cookbook, and felt "haunted" into writing about her, as more pieces of Marie's story revealed themselves to her.

Voodoo Dreams is the imaginative result of Rhodes' fascination with Marie Laveau, and a vivid portrait of New Orleans in the early 19th century—a city teeming with white aristos, free black creoles and African slaves—a place pulsing with crowds, commerce and with the power and spectacle of voodoo religion. The story begins as a dying Marie recounts the details of her life to a friend. She describes the heart-wrenching moment when she allowed her ceremonial python to murder John, her lover and nemesis. John was a charlatan voodoo doctor who first came to her through dreams and visions, and later seduced and exploited her, profiting from her spectacular voodoo rites for his own ends.

Voodoo Dreams is the story of Marie's odyssey into the darkest realms of the human spirit and the enormous emotional and physical price she paid for it. Her journey of self-discovery was made all the more difficult by her isolation from her family, culture and religious heritage. Film Expert Discusses Composer Bio-Pictures

In January 1992 Dr. John Tibbetts published an essay titled "The Lyre of Light" in Film Comment, the magazine of the Film Society of Lincoln Center, examining the genre of the composer biopic, a natural extension of his interest in classical music. On Monday, December 6, he will discuss biographical films about artists in Devilbiss Auditorium at 7 p.m.

Though his most recent book is titled Dvorak in America (Amadeus Press, 1993), his first three books dealt with film-related topics. His first book, His Majesty, the American: The Cinema of Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., (A.S. Barnes, 1977), was written in collaboration with Salisbury State Associate Professor Jim Welsh and traced the celebrity career and films of one of the silent cinema's most popular stars.

For eight years Tibbetts was editor of American Classic Screen, the magazine of the National Film Society out of Kansas City. Besides conducting radio interviews from the Crown Center over the years with concert artists who come to Kansas City to perform, he has also reviewed films for television stations in Kansas City. The next issue of Literature/Film Quarterly will include an interview Tibbetts was granted with Wayne Wang, the director of The Joy Luck Club adapted by from Amy Tan's novel. He also interviewed director Robert Altman in 1992 on the film Vincent and Theo, treating the artist Vincent Van Gogh.

Tibbetts teaches a popular film course at the University of Kansas. His lecture at is free and open to the public. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Wind Sinfonia Concert Offers Unique Musical Mix—from Squabbling Seagulls to the Chimes of Big Ben

The Fulton School of Liberal Arts and Department of Music present the SSU Wind Sinfonia in concert on Thursday, December 2, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The performance is free and open to the public.

Assisting artists for this performance include Dr. Duane R. Kama as tenor soloist, Scot Hawkins on piano, the SSU Chamber Choir, and seniors Brenda Toney and Donald Plehn as undergraduate conducting associates.

The Wind Sinfonia opens the concert with David Holsinger's Ballet Sacre, composed in 1989. The 15-minute work is based upon universally known Christian liturgical texts. Composer David Holsinger envisioned the composition as a collaboration between dance company and symphonic band, yet it can stand alone in its tri-part design without the visual element.

The idea for Crystals, composed in 1985 by Thomas Duffy, was conceived as the composer was sitting under the Big Ben Tower in London while on tour with the Yale University Wind Ensemble. Crystals is a one-movement tone poem which is divided into four segments subtitled, Dark Ice, Underwater Rubies, Cyanide and Monolith. Each segment is based on water sounds produced on crystal wine glasses which is incorporated into the impressionistically blurred Big Ben hourly bells theme and background of a random succession of tones and sounds.

The performance of Second Suite in F for Military Band (1911), composed by Gustav Holst, will be conducted by Toney and Plehn, seniors majoring in music education. A vocal major and student of Kama, Toney is president of the Chamber Choir, vice president of the MENC Collegiate Student Chapter and a member of Phi Eta Sigma and Phi Kappa Phi. She has also performed as a flutist in the Wind Sinfonia and the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra during the past four years.

Marcia funebre, written by the Italian composer Giuseppe Filippa, was composed in 1887 as processional music for the transportation of the remains of Gioachino Rossini from Paris to the church of St. Croce in Florence, Italy on May 2, 1887. Rossini, who died in 1868, was initially buried in Pere Lachaise cemetery in Paris. His wife, Olympia, realizing that she would not be able to be laid to rest at her husband's side, was finally persuaded to have Rossini's remains moved to Florence.

Hymn of St. Francis by Daniel Bukvich is based on the ideology of the patron saint of birds, St. Francesco d'Assisi. The hymn appears in its original form sung by Kama as part of the Invocation which is supported by quiet chanting by members of the Wind Sinfonia. Each successive variation quotes the hymn in a variation of random settings that render an impressionistic setting for each animal depicted in each movement: A Murmuration of Starlings, A Scuttling of Crabs, A Squabble of Seagulls, A Smack of Jellyfish, A Drumming of Grouse, A Buzzing of Bees, A Rumba of Rattlesnakes and A Flight of Swallows.

Dr. Richard L. Johnson, assistant professor of music and director of wind studies, is conductor to the Wind Sinfonia and music director for chamber music ensembles. Johnson also teaches courses in conducting, advanced level music theory, orchestration and arranging, instrumental methods and undergraduate music education.

Canada Ski Trip

Again this year the Outdoor Club will travel to Shawbridge, Quebec, January 23-February 4 for cross-country and downhill skiing over winter term.

Cross-country skiing can be done in the vicinity of Shawbridge on some 50 miles of wooded trails. Downhill skiing is available on the finest slopes in the Laurentians, including Mont St. Saurer, Mount Ste. Anne, Stoneham and Mont Tremblant. Prior experience for downhill is recommended but is not necessary for cross-country. The trip includes sightseeing in old Montreal and a three-day side trip to the city of Quebec with ample opportunity for both sightseeing and skiing.

Cost, including lodging, transportation, and breakfast and dinner in Canada, is $260. That does not include rentals of downhill or cross country skis ($3 a day at the McGill house) or lift tickets (about $25-30 Canadian or lower with a student ID).

If interested come to a meeting on Monday, November 25, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the Guemeri University Center. A place on the trip is guaranteed with a $75 deposit on December 6 the rest is due on December 13. If you cannot attend these meetings and are interested in the trip, contact Claudine at 742-5085 or Mark at 860-6769 as soon as possible.

SSU Enters Festival of Trees

Joining the 1993 fifth anniversary celebration of the Festival of Trees, Art Department ceramic students present "12 Birds of Christmas." The Christmas carol the Twelve Days of Christmas and the birds of the Eastern Shore are the inspiration for the gift.

The 4 1/2-foot tree holds over 50 ornaments each uniquely designed, hand carved and cast in the fragile pure porcelain clay medium. One-of-a-kind gold and white sculptured ornaments take the forms of birds or objects relating to the Christmas carol. Topping the tree, the mother bird designed by Marie Cavallaro, chair of the Art Department, hovers majestically with her gift of "5 golden rings," repeated as garland throughout the tree. The ornaments were designed and crafted by Cavallaro, instructor Gary Weber and students in their classes.

Choral Society Concert 'A Ceremony of Carols'

The Salisbury Choral Society presents "A Ceremony of Carols" on Tuesday, December 14, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The choral features choral works accompanied by harp.

The guest harpist,

Sonja Inglefield, received her Artist Diploma in harp performance from the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore.

She began studying the harp at age three with her mother, Dr. Ruth K. Inglefield, the current harp instructor at Peabody.

After studying in France and Italy, Inglefield completed her Bachelor of Music at Bowling Green State (OH) University. She later studied in Romania on a Fulbright grant and has performed throughout Europe and the United States.

At Peabody she was the 1992 winner of the prestigious Yale Gordon Concerto Competition. In July she was a featured performer on the "Focus on Today" concerts at the fifth World Harp Congress in Denmark. She is presently working on Master of Music at Peabody while teaching the Peabody Preparatory program as well as the Baltimore School for the Arts.

The holiday concert includes Benjamin Britten's A Ceremony of Carols and Kirke Mechem's Seven Joys of Christmas. Both extended choral works will be accompanied by Inglefield. She will also be featured as a harp soloist on the evening's program. Her selections for solo harp will be announced.

Adult ticket admission is $8 and students' and senior citizens' tickets are $6. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Chamber Choir Performs 'To Us a Child Is Born'

The SSU Chamber Choir under the direction of Dr. Duane R. Kama presents its annual holiday concert "To Us a Child Is Born" on Sunday and Monday, December 5 and 6, at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall in Holloway Hall. The performance is free and the public is invited.

Student conductors will be featured in Arnold Bax's Five Fantasies on Polish Christmas Carols and the choir will be singing in Polish. Gustav Holst's Christmas Day is a work which presents familiar carols identifiable with the holiday season. Two other works will be accompanied by student instrumentalists and will also feature student soloists performing J.S. Bach's Christmas Cantata and Vaclav Nelyhbel's Estampie Natalis. The program is a varied mixture of seasonal music appropriate for the holidays.

Members of the SSU Chamber Choir will be participating in a two-week residency and travel study course at the Bavarian Music Academy outside Munich, Germany during the January winter term.

The choir will be rehearsing and performing two concerts in southern Bavaria and will also have the opportunity to visit Salzburg, Austria. The students will also immerse themselves in the study of German culture and history and will be studying conversational German in preparation for their experiences in Germany.

Two performances of their "Homecoming Concert" will be presented in the Great Hall on February 14 and 15 at 8 p.m. Both performances are identical and free. The public is invited to attend. For more information call the Department of Music at 543-6385.

Lecturer Examines Dvorak in America

"It looks as if I got them confused quite a bit," the Czech composer Antonin Dvorak said after his symphony in E Minor, No. 8 was first performed in December of 1893. The score was inscribed From the New World, but was the symphony about the "New World," or simply written there?

One hundred years later music critic Dr. John Tibbetts attempted to sort out that mystery in his book Dvorak in America (Amadeus Press, 1993), treating the composer's three-year appointment as director of the National Conservatory of Music in New York. The book's timing was perfect, coinciding with major Dvorak festivals this summer at the University of Iowa, at Spillville, IA, the Czech village where Dvorak spent the summer of 1893 and at Bard College in New York.

Tibbetts will discuss the importance of Dvorak's American presence on Sunday, December 5, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Two keyboard students of Dr. Linda Cockey, Joanne Peters and Theresa Rose, will also be featured, playing Dvorak's Slavic Dances (No. 10, Opus 72, and No. 1, Opus 46). An expert in American cultural studies, Tibbetts is a radio and television personality in his native Kansas City. His radio commentaries on music air nationally on Monitor Radio and internationally on the Voice of America. In August he was interviewed by Martin Goldsmith on the National Public Radio show Performance Today.

Leon Botstein, conductor of the American Symphony Orchestra and the president of Bard College, called the Tibbetts' book "a long overdue and thoroughly fascinating exploration of Dvorak's sojourn and influence in America." Copies of the book will be available at the Book Rack.

Superstar Auditions

Auditions are scheduled for Monday and Tuesday, December 6-7, for the joint Salisbury State Theatre, MAC, Inc. production of Jesus Christ, Superstar.

Auditions are from 7-10 p.m. in Fulton Hall, room 203. Singers and dancers are needed, and all parts except Pilate are open. Performers must be able to rehearse in January. Martha Pfeiffer directs. For more information call 543-6235 or 896-9416.

Proceeds go to assist the elderly in the area. Organizers said last year's SSU-MAC, Inc. production of Godspell raised nearly $17,000.

Gospel Choir Concert

The SSU Gospel Choir holds its third annual "Winterfest Service" in Caruthers Hall Auditorium on Saturday, December 11, at 7 p.m. The Gospel Choir is featured along with various local ensembles. The public is invited to the free concert. For more information call 546-0710.

Phi Kappa Phi Eligibility Outlined

The Salisbury State chapter of the national honor society Phi Kappa Phi is preparing for its annual initiation of new members. The society is interdisciplinary, drawing from all departments within the University.

The purpose of Phi Kappa Phi is to recognize and encourage superior scholarship in all academic disciplines. The society hopes that by recognizing and honoring those persons who have excelled in scholarship in all fields, it will stimulate others to strive for excellence.

Members are elected from the top 5 percent of the senior class, and all candidates who are seniors must have a GPA of at least 3.6. Juniors with GPAs of at least 3.85 are also eligible for consideration for membership by the society.

Those students interested in being considered for membership in Phi Kappa Phi should contact Dr. George Whitehead in the Psychology Department, Holloway Hall, room 341, 543-6369 by December 23.

Victorian Christmas Celebrated in Snow Hill

Snow Hill's Julia Purnell Museum's Victorian Christmas Celebration is 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday, December 11 and 12.

On Saturday the Snow Hill Christian Church Choir performs carols. The performances are at noon and 1 p.m.; visitors are welcome to join in the singing.

Also on Saturday, the SSU Dance Company performs a suite of Victorian dances. Contra dances and American heritage dances are among those demonstrated at 12:45 p.m. and 1:45 p.m.

Refreshments of hot apple cider and homemade desserts will be served throughout the day.

Admission is $2 for adults, and 50 cents for children under 12. The Museum is located at 208 West Market St. Please call 632-5515 for more information.

Lost and Found

The campuswide Lost and Found is located at the Public Safety Office in the Administrative Services building. If you lose an item, you may come to room 119 or call 543-6534 to find out if the item has been turned in.

If you find an item, you may turn it in to the Public Safety Office. Every semester numerous items such as keys, clothing, wallets, checkbooks, book bags, etc. are returned to the owner through Lost and Found.

An item recently reported lost is a beige London Fog women's raincoat. If found, please turn it in to the Public Safety Office.

Pension Board Member Critical of Investment Plan

"The board of trustees of the Maryland State Retirement and Pension Systems is seriously considering investing millions of dollars of state employee's pension funds in 'Economically Targeted Investments,'" according to Malcolm S. Barlow, a member of the board. A committee has been appointed to study the proposal. Barlow is a member of the committee. "The size of this investment will dwarf the $15 million the board voted to 'invest' in the Governor's Venture Capital Fund," said Barlow.

"What are ETIs?" said Barlow. "These are investments targeted to areas to improve the economy and to restore run-down neighborhoods. The money would be used to repair and build bridges, roads and other public projects that are normally financed by taxes. The public will not stand for anymore tax increases. These funds will also be used to create a pool of money to finance low-interest rate mortgages for home buyers, to construct and repair run-down and neglected properties."

"The money invested in ETIs would come from funds that would otherwise be invested in private sector securities where they would create and maintain permanent jobs, not temporary ones," said Barlow. "Most of the benefits accrued would go to large construction corporations."

"Next to your job, your retirement is the most important part of your employment," said Barlow. "You say your pension is guaranteed? That's what people thought before they created the new pension system and made members contribute 2 percent more to guarantee their unlimited cost of living in the retirement system."

"Please write to the board members, contact your senators, congressman and members of the State Assembly. This is the worst idea that has been presented to the board in the 15 years I have been a representative," said Barlow.

Open Enrollment For Health Benefits

Open Enrollment for health benefits ends December 8. State employees should have received two items separately in the mail by now: a listing showing an employee's coverage and the cost of keeping that coverage in 1994, and the Open Enrollment booklet. Please check the listing for errors, and submit corrections by December 8 using the enrollment forms.

Employees must complete forms if they desire to continue participation in either of the two spending accounts. One's participation will not automatically continue without new forms.

Wednesday, December 8, is a firm date for the end of Open Enrollment. All forms must be turned in to the Personnel Office, Holloway Hall, room 222, by that date.

The Personnel Office will not be holding a Benefits Fair this year. Employees should review their booklet and use the telephone numbers listed in it if they have questions about a particular insurance program. It is highly recommended that employees keep the booklet through 1994. It can be an excellent source of information regarding one's particular coverage. By staying informed employees increase the likelihood of better service and lower costs.

Gull's Nest Drops Paper Cup Prices

Because of a change in philosophy, the Gull's Nest is reducing the price of paper cups in the servery effective December 1.

The new prices represent reductions of 4 to 8 cents per cup. New prices are as follows: 16-ounce cold cup, 6 cents; 22-oz. cold cup, 7 cents; 32-oz. cold cup, 16 cents; 8-oz. hot cup, 8 cents; and 12-oz. hot cup, 9 cents. The change in pricing is a result of customers' responses on comment cards.

Alumni House Campaign Hits $200,000 Mark

The Alumni Association announced it has raised nearly $200,000 toward the construction of the new $500,000 SSU Alumni House.

That the campaign has reached nearly $200,000 in contributions and pledges means the Alumni Association can proceed with hiring an architect for the project.

"I'm delighted that so many of our graduates have started to contribute to this worthwhile project," said Alumni Association President Anne Miller. "It's been a long road, but we're finally going to see an alumni house and that's very exciting."

Planned for a three-acre site on Camden Avenue opposite Holloway Hall, the new building will be the center of reunions and alumni meetings as well as headquarters for the Alumni Association, the Office of Alumni Relations and the SSU Foundation Inc.

All funds for the new building will come from private donations by alumni and friends. No state monies are involved in the project.

"I applaud the efforts of our alumni who have contributed to this project both with their time and their money," said Nancy Wagner, director of alumni relations at SSU. "This house will be built entirely by alumni, for alumni."

Although architect's drawings of the new building won't be completed for several months, the new 7,500-square-foot facility is expected to have reception and meeting rooms, an alumni library and archives, and much-needed office space. The house will bear a resemblance to Holloway Hall, while at the same time blending comfortably into the surrounding residential neighborhood. Outside, landscaping plans will include formal gardens, a covered pavilion and recreation areas suitable for summer reunions and receptions.

The SSU Alumni Association maintains ties with some 16,000 alumni in all 50 states and several foreign countries. Many of these alumni are vigorous supporters of the University through the association. A house dedicated to SSU alumni is expected to provide a permanent location for all alumni activities and to strengthen the bonds between the University and its alumni.

Clarke, Kimmel Present Joint Program

Dr. J. Craig Clarke, assistant professor of psychology, and Dr. Kent N. Kimmel, professor of art, recently returned from a trip to St. Louis where they presented a scholarly paper at the 57th annual Mid-America College Art Association conference. The MACAA is a regional affiliate of the College Art Association, a national organization of artists and art faculty teaching at the post-secondary level.

Clarke and Kimmel's presentation, "Teaching Visual Perception," highlighted two activities encountered by undergraduate students in a course developed and presented by the two professors. The course, Art, Psychology and Visual Perception, seeks to develop in the student "the ability to effectively use the study of psychology and visual perception to gain greater access to the understanding of the visual arts." The importance of the presentation is that it is at the forefront of curriculum development in the area of visual perception for art students and others interested in art related fields, such as art therapy. To date there is little evidence of other curricular development in this area, and there is no text which focuses on visual perception for this audience.

Curtis Book Visually Probes U.S. Space History

The text of a new electronic book about the history of American men and women living and working in outer space has been written by Anthony R. Curtis of the Communication Arts Department.

The electronic book, Space: A Visual History of Manned Spaceflight, is a multimedia publication on CD-ROM (compact disc, read-only memory) published by Sumeria Inc. of San Francisco.

The CD-ROM's 650 megabytes of data include the book-length text by Curtis and more than 100 "movies" of Mercury, Gemini, Apollo, Skylab and shuttle astronauts living and working in space. The movies are scenes from historic videotape footage found in NASA's archives. They include voices and sounds of astronauts and music.

A CD-ROM is a five-inch compact disc, similar to a popular music CD. However, a CD-ROM not only can hold music, but also text, graphics and full-motion television video. It must be "played" through a computer outfitted with a CD-ROM drive.

Curtis' text includes overviews of Project Mercury from 1959-63, Project Gemini from 1964-66, Project Apollo 1967-75, Skylab space station in 1973, and space shuttles from 1981 to the present. The author describes space science and technology, the difficulty of living in zero gravity, conducting science experiments in space, space suits and spacewalking, satellite deployment from shuttles and space station operations.

Space: A Visual History of Manned Spaceflight is published as a "hybrid" CD-ROM so one can be read both by Macintosh computers and by IBM PC compatibles with Windows. The action video is seen on the computer screen like ordinary television.

"The electronic book has history time lines, movie indexes and text search," Curtis said. "Those should make it a good resource for reports, presentations and multimedia applications."

Space: A Visual History of Manned Spaceflight is available from Sumeria Inc., 329 Bryant Street, Suite 3D, San Francisco, California 94107, telephone (415) 904-0800, fax (415) 904-0888.

Curtis, a Marietta, OH, native, has degrees in journalism and political science from Pennsylvania State University. He was assistant professor in the School of Journalism at Penn State and assistant professor of English, teaching journalism, at Hood College. He taught political science at Penn State. At Ohio University Curtis instructed broadcast journalism students. He taught computer science at Frederick Community College and English and speech at Wor-Wic Community College.

The author has written some 70 conventional books in addition to hundreds of articles for magazines and newspapers. The third edition of Curtis' Space Satellite Handbook, a paperback describing all 22,000 satellites ever orbited, will be published by Gull Publishing Co. of Houston in 1994.

Goldy Tyler Chairs Division Of Alumni House Campaign

Alumnus and former faculty member Dr. S. Goldsborough "Goldy" Tyler has been named chair of the Heritage Gifts Division of the SSU Alumni House Campaign.

Tyler and his committee members will be responsible for helping to secure deferred gifts to the Alumni House through charitable trusts, life insurance, the SSU pooled income fund or charitable gift annuities. Many of these gifts are not received by the University until the death of the donor, a concept which may be more attractive to older friends and alumni, according to Tyler.

"A lot of older people are not able or are hesitant to make a gift now because they don't know what the future holds in terms of medical or long-term care," he said. "Many deferred gifts are structured to provide a lifetime income to the donor."

There are other advantages to deferred gifts, according to Wally Swank, director of planned giving for the SSU Foundation Inc. "Deferred gifts can frequently be structured to provide an immediate tax deduction, as well as avoidance of capital gains and estate taxes," he said.

Anyone who provides for Salisbury State after their death through a deferred gift is eligible for membership in the University's Heritage Society. Members will have their names added to a plaque that will be on permanent display at the new Alumni House. Donors of both large and small gifts are eligible.

Tyler, a 1941 graduate of Salisbury State, retired from the Education Department in 1980 and has been executive director of the SSU Athletics Hall of Fame since 1988. Last year, he was awarded the Alumni Appreciation Award for a lifetime of outstanding achievement in his field and for community service.

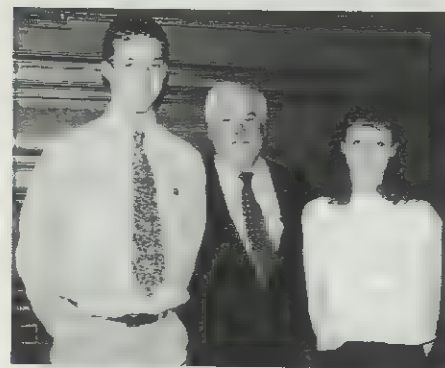

The proposed 7,500-square-foot Alumni House is planned for a three-acre site on Camden Avenue opposite Holloway Hall. It is expected to have reception and meeting rooms, an alumni library and archives, and much needed office space. Outside, landscaping plans will include formal gardens, a covered pavilion and recreation areas suitable for summer reunions and receptions.

The Alumni House Campaign is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Foundation Inc., a tax exempt organization which raises private funds for scholarships, faculty grants, cultural events, field trips for students and numerous alumni activities at the institution.

For more information on the Alumni House Campaign, planned gifts to Salisbury State or estate planning call the SSU Foundation at 543-6175.

Shipper Recognized In Who's Who

Dr. Frank M. Shipper, professor of management in the Perdue School of Business, will be included in the 12th edition of Who's Who in the World, due out next year.

Shipper, recipient of the Perdue School's Outstanding Teacher Award and Outstanding Researcher Award for 1992-93, is the author of Avoiding and Surviving Lawsuits, a Macmillan Book Club Book-of-the-Month selection in 1990.

In 1985 the Library Journal selected his Business Strategy for the Political Arena as one of the seven books on business and government relations for recommendation. A book, Business Without Bosses, to which he is a contributing author, is a Fortune Book Club Book-of-the-Month Selection in 1993.

Other papers he has written have received similar accolades and in 1980-81 Shipper was the recipient of a Federal Faculty Fellowship from the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools.

Shipper joined the Perdue School faculty in 1991 after 14 years at Arizona State University. He earned his bachelor's degree from West Virginia University and his M.B.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Utah.

universities "have found some possible ways of doing things together."

Such exchanges are timely. SSU and UMES are leading the UM System in cooperation between campuses. At a recent board of regents meeting here Dr. Bellavance and UMES President William Hytche announced a historic first for two sister institutions: starting next year they will coordinate their academic calendars, making it easier for students to take classes at both campuses. No other UMS institutions have done this.

For Johnson the growth in ties between the two schools has added meaning. "My older son is a graduate of Salisbury State," he said, "and I have a tremendous amount of academic and social respect for what takes place at both campuses."

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Fans of college basketball should get their post-Thanksgiving fill of roundball this weekend as SSU hosts the Optimists' Club men's and women's tournaments on Friday and Saturday. Both days feature four games, alternating between men's and women's games each day.

The tournament tips off at 5 p.m. on Friday afternoon with the first women's game. Game two at 5 p.m. features an opening round men's game. The SSU women take to the court for a 7 p.m. contest against Gallaudet, followed by the SSU men at 9 p.m. against St. Mary's. Christopher Newport and North Carolina Wesleyan round out the women's field, while Wilmington and Lynchburg complete the men's bracket.

Saturday's schedule features the women's consolation game at 2 p.m., the men's consolation at 4 p.m., the women's championship game at 6 p.m. and the men's championship at 8 p.m.

The Sea Gull men captured their first win of the season on Tuesday prior to the Thanksgiving break, defeating Marywood 118-80 in Scranton, PA. Craig Blackmon led six Sea Gulls in double figures, finishing with a game-high 26 points. Casey Musick added 22 off-the-bench, while Kyle Jefferson, Jon Evans, John DeRichie and Josh Mitchell also tallied in double figures.

Meanwhile, the SSU women lost their first of the year on the same evening, falling 102-81 to Christopher Newport at home. Junior center Kim Roth paced the Gulls, finishing with 22 points and 17 rebounds. Freshman guard Kristi Kauffman added 17 and forward Amy Fenzel had 13 for SSU.

The women's swim team travels to Notre Dame in Baltimore this Saturday as the Gulls resume their season following a 10-day holiday layoff. SSU fell to 4-2 on the year following a 129-74 loss to Washington last week. Kathi Geety was among the bright spots in defeat for the Gulls, smashing the 100 butterfly record for the fourth time this season. She clocked 1:06.79 as she captured the team's lone first place finish.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

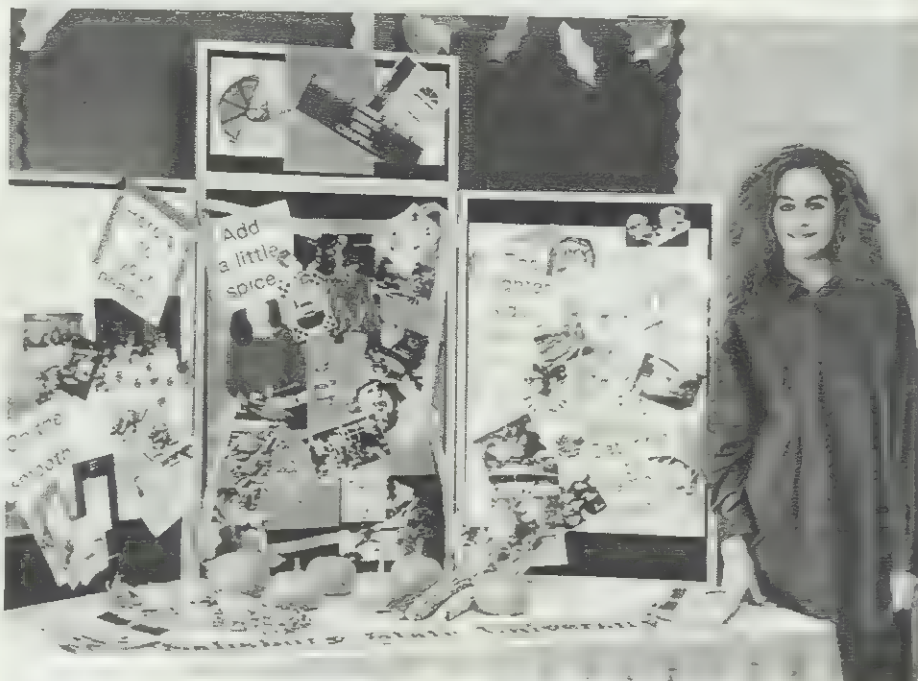

Friday, Dec. 3	Optimists' Club Gull Classic Basketball Tournament	3 p.m.
Saturday, Dec. 4	Swimming at Notre Dame	1 p.m.

devoted the first half of the program to classical music, the SSO then takes up popular holiday songs and carols. Music lovers who come to listen will get a kick out of singing along to favorite songs of the season.

On the holiday music program are Bach's Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring, The Christmas Song by Mel Torme, Let it Snow, Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas and a medley piece appropriately titled Christmas Memories.

The concert is in Holloway Hall Auditorium on the SSU campus at 8 p.m., Saturday, December 11, and 2 p.m., Sunday, December 12. Tickets are now available from the SSO Office and from the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council and its ticket outlets (543-ARTS). Prices are $10 for adults; $6 for senior citizens and students. SSU students, faculty and staff are admitted free with a valid I.D. For more information call the SSO Office at 548-5587.

New International House Is Home to Many Cultures

The first trip away from home can be a bumpy ride. When "home" is across the Atlantic—or across the world—it helps to have some guidance along the way.

International students at Salisbury State now have that support thanks to the newly opened International House. The modest home on College Avenue, next to SSU's Honors House, is symbolic of the programs and services the University has instituted to better welcome students who come there from around the world.

Agata Liszkowska, who directs international student programs for SSU, takes her cues from several sources: the needs of the students she works with, information from the National Association for Foreign Student Affairs, and her own memories as a college student newly arrived in America from Poland.

"I was here alone, with no family in this country," she recalled. "I was not prepared for the American pace of life, the different culture. Many students still have trouble with the differences in educational systems, and the day-to-day routines."

The International House serves as a gathering place where these students can share their experiences as strangers in a strange land. They take trips together to the beach and to nearby cities and help each other learn American customs.

Aging Process: 'Getting Older But Wiser' Observes DiGiovanna in New Book

You roll over in bed one morning, gaze at your lovely wife of 20 years, and notice a hair growing out of her chin.

After living through flower power and bell bottom jeans, Saturday Night Live and Saturday Night Fever you've suddenly started to wonder about the size of your husband's retirement pension.

Meanwhile, he is concerned about the size of his prostate.

Yep, America's baby boomers are now in "the middle years" and beginning to feel it. And many are not happy. Actually, aging starts earlier than fortysomething, "earlier than most people think—around age 20," said Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna, associate professor

But for many, it's the meals that feature their native cuisine that offer the best cures to homesickness. Wei Hsiung Chen is the resident manager of the International House and one of four students who call it home. Having come here from Taiwan, he finds a welcome reminder of home in unexpected things—like the smell of Chinese food cooking.

Education and TQ Proponent Is Commencement Speaker

Dr. Theodore J. Marchese, a writer and educator on the cutting edge of issues confronting higher education, is the guest speaker at Salisbury State's winter commencement.

Marchese is vice president of the American Association for Higher Education, the leading professional body for universities and colleges in America. He oversees AAHE's popular series of publications and is executive editor of Change, one of the most widely read and influential magazines in academe.

Described as an engaging speaker, Marchese delivers his address at graduation on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

The AAHE administrator is not afraid of controversy. For the last eight years his principal interest has been in the sometimes hotly contested arena of measuring student learning. This goes beyond classroom grading to evaluating how well professors are teaching and institutions are fulfilling their missions. Such assessment affects Salisbury State and other Maryland universities, said Dr. K. Nelson Butler, SSU's vice president of academic affairs, because the campuses must be able to back up claims of "quality instruction" to the Maryland Higher Education Commission and national

Attention Graduating Loan Borrowers

All December graduating students who borrowed under the federal Stafford/SLS loan program are required to attend an exit interview with financial aid personnel. It is mandatory that SLS recipients attend one of the following sessions: Monday, December 13, 4 p.m., Nanticoke Room, Guerrieri University Center; Tuesday, December 14, 4 p.m., Nanticoke Room, Guerrieri Center. If SLS recipients do not attend their school records and diplomas will be held. Those students on internships, working, student teaching, etc., must make arrangements to attend.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.

For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Canada Ski Trip

Again this year the Outdoor Club will travel to Shawbridge, Quebec, January 23-February 4 for cross-country and downhill skiing over winter term.

Cross-country skiing can be done in the vicinity of Shawbridge on some 50 miles of wooded trails. Downhill skiing is available on the finest slopes in the Laurentians, including Mont St. Sauver, Mount Ste. Anne, Stoneham and Mont Tremblant. Prior experience for downhill is recommended but is not necessary for cross-country. The trip includes sightseeing in old Montreal and a three-day side trip to the city of Quebec with ample opportunity for both sightseeing and skiing.

Cost, including lodging, transportation, and breakfast and dinner in Canada, is $260. That does not include rentals of downhill or cross country skis ($3 a day at the McGill house) or lift tickets (about $25-30 Canadian or lower with a student ID).

If interested come to a meeting on Monday, November 25, at 9 p.m. in Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center. A place on the trip is guaranteed with a $75 deposit on December 6 the rest is due on December 13. If you cannot attend these meetings and are interested in the trip, contact Claudine at 742-5085 or Mark at 860-6769 as soon as possible.

Nuts! Nuts! Nuts!

Mardela Middle-Senior High School is having its annual nut sale. Black walnuts are $6 per pound; cashews $7 lb.; pecans $6 lb. Contact Debbie Bailey in Physical Plant at 543-6201.

Attention December Graduates

Commencement exercises will be held on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Detailed information will be mailed to graduates at a later date.

Tickets for Graduation

Because of the increasing numbers of graduates, the University Graduation Committee decided to issue tickets for guests attending the graduation ceremony. This decision went into effect for the December 1992 graduation and will be implemented for each succeeding ceremony.

Each December graduate will be provided 15 guest tickets. Please note the following deadline: December 15-18, extra guest tickets that become available will be at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first-come, first-served basis.

Gospel Choir Concert

The SSU Gospel Choir holds its third annual "Winterfest Service" in Caruthers Hall Auditorium on Saturday, December 11, at 7 p.m. The Gospel Choir is featured along with various local ensembles. The public is invited to the free concert. For more information call 546-0710.

Lost and Found

The campuswide Lost and Found is located at the Public Safety Office in the administrative Services building. If you lose an item, you may come to room 119 or call 543-6534 to find out if the item has been turned in.

If you find an item, you may turn it in to the Public Safety Office. Every semester numerous items such as keys, clothing, wallets, checkbooks, book bags, etc. are returned to the owner through Lost and Found.

An item recently reported lost is a beige London Fog women's raincoat. If found, please turn it in to the Public Safety Office.

Phi Kappa Phi Eligibility Outlined

The Salisbury State chapter of the national honor society Phi Kappa Phi is preparing for its annual initiation of new members. The society is interdisciplinary, drawing from all departments within the University.

The purpose of Phi Kappa Phi is to recognize and encourage superior scholarship in all academic disciplines. The society hopes that by recognizing and honoring those persons who have excelled in scholarship in all fields, it will stimulate others to strive for excellence.

Members are elected from the top 5 percent of the senior class, and all candidates who are seniors must have a GPA of at least 3.6. Juniors with GPAs of at least 3.85 are also eligible for consideration for membership by the society.

Those students interested in being considered for membership in Phi Kappa Phi should contact Dr. George Whitehead in the Psychology Department, Holloway Hall, room 341, 543-6369 by December 23.

Voodoo Dreams Author Has Reading Dec. 9

"I had a great time reading Voodoo Dreams. Marie Laveau is the most interesting figure in American culture. Jewell Parker Rhodes did a wonderful job painting the possible picture of the Queen of Voodoo. I loved it."—Whoopi Goldberg

Legendary voodoo queen Marie Laveau was rumored to have walked on water, sucked blood from a snake's jaws and raised the dead. Even today, more than a hundred years after her death, her spirit is courted by believers—practitioners of voodoo who leave offerings at her tomb in New Orleans.

In Voodoo Dreams (St. Martin Press, October 11, 1993), a mesmerizing combination of history and storytelling, Jewell Parker Rhodes reconstructs Marie Laveau's incredible rise to power in 19th century New Orleans. In a starred review, Kirkus Reviews hails Voodoo Dreams as a "gripping first novel...with all the brooding intensity and latent menace of a summer's night on a lonely bayou...all the ingredients of a bewitching read—atmosphere, mystery and romance—as well as enough intellectual substance to give it a satisfying heft."

Rhodes reads from Voodoo Dreams and other works on Thursday, December 9, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

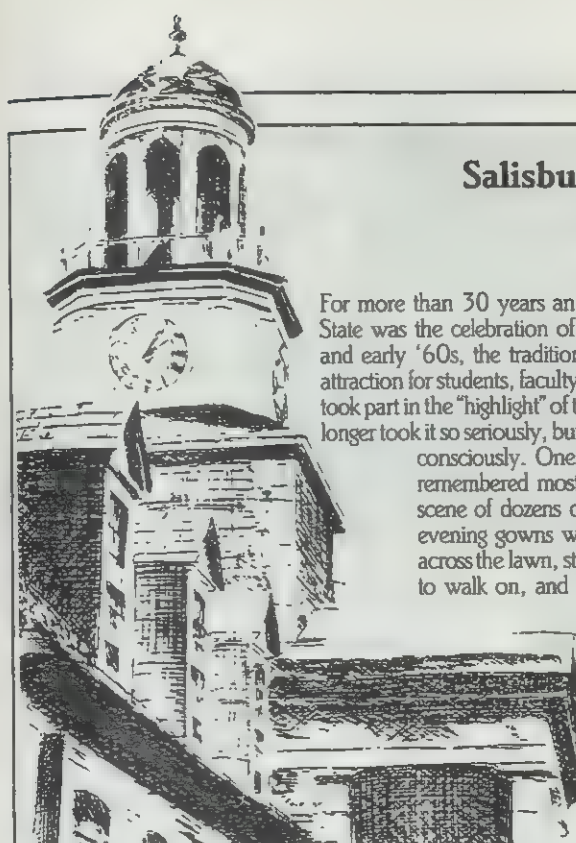

Free and open to the public, the reading is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee and English Department.

Staff Council Seeks Input

The SSU President's Staff Advisory Council meets monthly to discuss issues of concern to SSU staff at the local and state levels. The council also coordinates activities with the UM System Council for University System staff.

Any staff member with questions or concerns about campus or state personnel policies or other issues should contact one of the council members listed below. The council will discuss questions or concerns with Dr. Bellavance or the Personnel Office at regular meetings.

Salisbury State University: The Rites of Spring

by Sylvia Bradley

For more than 30 years an annual spring ritual at Salisbury State was the celebration of May Day. But by the late '50s and early '60s, the traditional event had lost much of its attraction for students, faculty and townspeople alike. Girls who took part in the "highlight" of the day, the Maypole Dance, no longer took it so seriously, but instead often giggled a little selfconsciously. One student who participated later remembered most vividly the somewhat ludicrous scene of dozens of barefoot girls wearing strapless evening gowns with full skirts dancing gracefully across the lawn, strewing flowers for the May Queen to walk on, and then for days after scrubbing and scrubbing to try to get rid of green feet. Not surprisingly, the last May Day exercise was held in 1963, coincidentally the last year also of "Salisbury State Teachers College."

Mayhem, on the other hand, enjoyed great popularity as a purely student-nated evening of fun and satire. The first Mayhem in 1961 was a kind of collegiate version of Major Bowes Amateur Hour. Students sang, danced, told jokes and did skits with widely varying degrees of talent and skill. But it became an annual event until 1964 when it, too, failed to materialize. Announcements late that year said it would be held at Homecoming in the fall instead. But by Homecoming 1965, it again was cancelled, and ditto for May 1965. Some upset students scolded the volunteer organizers who had failed to deliver. The Holly Leaf Campus Chatter column charged, "The cause of death: lack of leadership and willingness to work, overabundance of buck passing and procrastination...all chiefs—no workers...a lack of distribution of the work...." As if adding insult to injury, the float which was to be built by the freshmen class to carry the traditional May Queen and King in the city's Flower Mart parade that year was never completed. The election of a May Queen had grown directly out of the old May Day observance, and once May Day was abandoned, there was some question of whether or not to continue the election. But now it really became a hollow title with no recognition for the queen at all.

With the adoption of a new SGA constitution in 1966-67, the award of May Queen was finally officially dropped. Then, finally, in 1967, Mayhem was revived. The revived version differed only little from the earlier ones, however. The new one had a loosely integrated "plot" rather than disorganized skits, and told the sad story of Arthur, an ambitious but unsuccessful author who tried repeatedly to have his story of his years at SSC published. Satire and slapstick joined in such little ditties as "Spaghetti and Apricots," aimed at a frequent dining hall offering; "Congo CLOSED," in memory of registration days; and "I Wanna Get Sick in the New Health Center," observing the opening of the new infirmary.

By the end of the '60s there were few "organized" collegewide activities designed to celebrate the coming end of the academic year. Instead, students had found their own, mostly unofficial means of observing the rites of spring. And they were hardly activities of which the college's earlier faculty and administration would have approved!

Sylvia Bradley is an assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture located in the Power Building. She is the author of a book chronicling the history of Salisbury State and an alumnus of the institution. Throughout the academic year she will write about SSU's history and heritage.

Super Saturday for 7th, 8th Graders

Salisbury State professors Tom Erskine and Tony Whall will again offer their award-winning Super Saturday Program for area seventh and eighth graders this spring.

"Super Saturday was conceived as an accelerated enrichment program for Eastern Shore youngsters who don't have easy access to the kinds of academic enrichment programs offered in larger metropolitan areas," said Whall, professor of English and director of the University's Honors Program. "We offer the kids courses that are challenging and fun in subjects that should help them in all their studies."

This spring Whall will teach a course in "Critical Thinking" in which students learn a system for developing coherent, sensible arguments, and for assessing the veracity of one's own arguments and those of others. "After this course, students study, read and even watch television more attentively and more intelligently," Whall said.

Erskine, also a professor of English, will teach "Etymology," or word study, a course designed to nurture the verbal skills of young students by teaching them how language is made and how it works. "We'll study a bit about the history of the English language, Latin and Greek derivations of English words, classes of words, and so on," said Erskine. "My job is to show these young people how exciting the study of language can be. Practically speaking these kinds of programs will certainly enhance a student's performance on the SATs. But I'm more concerned that they have a greater appreciation for, even an affection for, language."

The two courses will be offered on 10 consecutive Saturday mornings from January 15-March 19. The cost is $135 for one or $260 for both courses. Admission deadline for the program is December 20. Application forms are available from local middle schools and private schools, or by calling Whall at 548-7037.

Derryberry & Alagia Perform in Gull's Nest

Derryberry & Alagia, an energetic and versatile acoustic rock duo that has been performing, recording and touring the eastern United States since 1987, has a concert on Saturday, December 11, at 8 p.m. in the Gull's Nest. John Alagia, a native Kentuckian, and Douglas Derryberry, originally from Tennessee, duo got their start when the pair met as undergraduates at Georgetown University.

From their regular performances in Washington, D.C., they were able to cultivate an extensive network of followers and fans.

Although on record D&A augments their sound with a full complement of instruments, when performing live they prefer the pared down yet potent blend of their two acoustic guitars and two voices. A typical set includes everything from a blues or jazz inflected ballad to some no-nonsense roots rock-n-roll to their own brand of acoustic thrash funk, all delivered with energy and versatility.

In 1989 D&A released their first recording, the aptly titled Southpaw—alluding to their southern roots as well as their lefthandedness. The album features 12 original songs recorded mostly as they would be performed live with the addition of some electric and bass guitars and percussion. More recent highlights for D&A include working with Grammy-winning producer/guitarist John Jennings on their 1991 release Rutabaga Slew and subsequently being nominated for eight Wammies (Washington Area Music Awards) and winning the Wammie for Best Acoustic Artist/Group. The concert is sponsored by the Spotlight Cafe.

Choral Society Concert 'A Ceremony of Carols'

The Salisbury Choral Society presents "A Ceremony of Carols" on Tuesday, December 14, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The choral features choral works accompanied by harp.

The guest harpist, Sonja Inglefield, received her Artist Diploma in harp performance from the Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore. She began studying the harp at age three with her mother, Dr. Ruth K. Inglefield, the current harp instructor at Peabody.

After studying in France and Italy, Inglefield completed her Bachelor of Music at Bowling Green State (OH) University. She later studied in Romania on a Fulbright grant and has performed throughout Europe and the United States.

At Peabody she was the 1992 winner of the prestigious Yale Gordon Concerto Competition. In July she was a featured performer on the "Focus on Today" concerts at the fifth World Harp Congress in Denmark. She is presently working on Master of Music at Peabody while teaching the Peabody Preparatory program as well as the Baltimore School for the Arts.

The holiday concert includes Benjamin Britten's A Ceremony of Carols and Kirke Mechem's Seven Joys of Christmas. Both extended choral works will be accompanied by Inglefield. She will also be featured as a harp soloist on the evening's program. Her selections for solo harp will be announced.

Adult ticket admission is $8 and students' and senior citizens' tickets are $6. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

December 1993 Commencement Information

General Information and Directions (Please Read Carefully)

1. Commencement will be held at 3 p.m., Sunday, December 19, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. ADMISSION WILL BE BY TICKET ONLY. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 2:00 p.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center (see No. 13-16 for location).

2. The commencement speaker will be Dr. Theodore J. Marchese, vice president of the American Association for Higher Education in Washington, D.C.

3. Physically Disabled Guests—Accessible seating is provided on the main floor of the arena. Disabled guests should ask an usher for the location as they enter the Civic Center.

4. Hearing Impaired Guests—Signers are present for the entire graduation ceremony. Seating for an optimum view of the individual(s) signing is in the first level of the grandstands close to and on either side of the stage. Seating is not reserved, therefore, early arrival is suggested. Ask an usher for the location upon entering the Civic Center.

5. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.

6. Caps, gowns, master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through the BOOK RACK beginning November 17. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours are Monday through Thursday, 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. THE BOOKSTORE WILL BE OPEN SATURDAY, DECEMBER 18 FROM 8:30 A.M. TO 5:30 P.M. GRADUATES MUST PICK UP THE NECESSARY ITEMS ON OR BEFORE 4 P.M. ON SATURDAY, DECEMBER 18.

*TICKETS FOR GRADUATION WILL BE DISTRIBUTED BY THE BOOK RACK UNTIL DECEMBER 15. EACH STUDENT WILL BE LIMITED TO 15 TICKETS EACH. STUDENTS WHO DO NOT NEED ALL 15 TICKETS SHOULD RETURN THE EXTRAS TO THE GUERRIERI UNIVERSITY CENTER INFORMATION DESK. GUESTS ARE REQUESTED TO BE SEATED BY 2:45 P.M.

STUDENTS WHO PICK UP THEIR CAP AND GOWN AFTER DECEMBER 15 WILL NOT BE GUARANTEED 15 TICKETS FOR GRADUATION.

Students may leave personal property in Flanders Room No. 1 during the graduation ceremony when the room will be locked. It will be unlocked when the ceremony is over and students may pick up their possessions at that time. SSU will not be responsible for these items; students are therefore encouraged to leave valuables with family or friends.

7. Students will first be awarded degrees by school (e.g., School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Dr. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassels from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.

8. Then students will individually be awarded their diploma. The faculty marshals will have given each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the School, (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be handed to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name to Dr. Butler, who will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. THE NAME ON THE CARD MUST NOT BE CHANGED FOR ANY REASON.

9. DURING THE RECESSIONAL GRADUATES AND FACULTY ARE TO RETURN TO THE AREA WHERE THEY ASSEMBLED PRIOR TO THE CEREMONY. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion

9. DURING THE RECESSIONAL GRADUATES AND FACULTY ARE TO RETURN TO THE AREA

WHERE THEY ASSEMBLED PRIOR TO THE CEREMONY. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the commencement exercises MUST notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6158 no later than Monday, December 13. All graduates will receive a blank folder at commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

12. Faculty and staff should enter through the Midway Room entrance and line up for the processional at 2:15 p.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should inform their respective school dean.

13. BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Salisbury Mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through the letter K will report to DRS. ROBERT BERRY and JOHN TYVOLL at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). These candidates will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the side aisle.

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates beginning with the letter L through the letter Z will report to DRS. GERRY ROSSI and MIKE GARNER and will line up alphabetically along the windows facing West (the front of the building). These candidates will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the side aisle.

14. BACHELOR OF ARTS candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors, on the side nearest the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through the letter K will report to DRS. HOMER AUSTIN and AUGIE DIGIOVANNA at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). These candidates will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the center aisle. BACHELOR OF ARTS candidates with last names beginning with the letter L through the letter Z will also go to the right after entering the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to DRS. HARRY BASEHART and GERALD ST. MARTIN. They will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. They will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the center aisle.

15. B.A.S.W. candidates will also go to the right after entering the front doors of the Civic Center. They will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to DR. HARRY BASEHART. They will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. They will also sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

16. ALL MASTER'S DEGREE candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S., and M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park) and report to a faculty marshal in that corridor. M.A., M.S., and M.B.A. candidates will report to DR. MARY ELLEN ELWELL. They will line up according to her direction, alphabetically by degree, and will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the center aisle. M.Ed. candidates are to report to DR. JACK WULF and line up alphabetically by degree, and will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the center aisle. M.Ed. candidates are to report to DR. JACK WULF and line up alphabetically at his direction. They will also sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the center aisle.

17. Dress Code—This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor. The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women
1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) — no white or other light color.

2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe. Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
5. No flowers are permitted on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men
1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color)—no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.

2. Dark color socks—no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)

6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.

7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such. Kente cloths are permissible as well.

C. Both
1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) NO DECORATION OF ANY KIND IS TO BE PLACED ON THE MORTARBOARD.

2. Honors students will have a gold and white hood. It is to be worn with the gold side out and the white inner lining turned out at the top, over the gold (like a collar). Gold cords would be worn under the honors hood.

3. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by Dr. Bellavance (and/or the appropriate faculty marshal).

4. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.

5. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate who should face the audience and bend down a little. Faculty marshals will give master's candidates more specific information.

6. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Chappell Studio, Inc. This information will arrive at each graduate's permanent address in the near future.

7. Candidates should not chew gum or tobacco.
8. Graduation Decorum Graduation ceremonies are, by their very nature, festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion.

Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Kim Dorman

Young Pianist Performs Mozart Concerto at SSO Concert

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University is planning a fall concert that will have the excitement of the new and the joy of rediscovering the familiar.

Kim Dorman, a young pianist whose family recently moved to Salisbury, will perform Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 23 in A Major as a soloist with the orchestra.

And, as always, the SSO will make room in its classical program for holiday music favorites. The concert is in Holloway Hall Auditorium at 8 p.m. on Saturday, December 11, and at 2 p.m. on Sunday, December 12.

At 17, Dorman has the poise and love of music befitting the classical musician she is. Participation with an orchestra is exhilarating for her.

"It's very exciting," she said. "Very thrilling to be out there."

The daughter of Paul and Annette Dorman, Kim and the family moved here from the Pittsburgh area; Paul Dorman is the pastor of Christ's Community Presbyterian Church. Kim has been playing the piano for 11 years and has won a number of first-place awards: from the Pittsburgh Concert Society, the Carnegie School of Fine Arts and the Duquesne School of Music.

WSCL's Just Folks Turns Two; Program Airs Saturday Nights

WSCL's homegrown contemporary folk music program, Just Folks celebrates its second anniversary on December 18. Just Folks features a wide assortment of folk, acoustic and mostly contemporary music and airs every Saturday from 8-11 p.m. from the WSCL studios at SSU.

John Kalb, the host of Just Folks came to Salisbury from Michigan in 1989 to join the English Department as an assistant professor. At that time, no folk music was available on radio in Salisbury, so Kalb approached WSCL and offered to create the sort of music program folk music fans might enjoy.

Kalb wants people to notice that the program is called Just Folks and not Just Folk. "People hear 'folk music' and immediately think of three hours of Michael Rowed the Boat Ashore and Kumbayah," he said. "But I have a fairly broad notion of the sort of music appropriate for a show called Just Folks."

For example, on any given Saturday listeners might hear music ranging from traditional tunes of the British Isles and North America to the latest works by contemporary singers and songwriters. The flavors might be Cajun, bluegrass, folk-rock, Texas swing, folk blues, urban contemporary, Celtic or Tex-Mex and the songs might be about love gained or lost, parenthood, farming, fishing, cars, politics, the environment, the season or music itself.

Dorman has two teachers with whom she now studies. Maryann Herrett, a Washington, D.C. music teacher and the president of the Virginia Music Teachers Association, tutors her once a week. Dorman also makes the trip to Baltimore for lessons with concert pianist Robert McDonald at the Peabody Conservatory of Music.

While her first love is piano, she has performed with orchestras in the Pittsburgh area twice so far, and Dorman is not sure that her future is in performing. "Right now," she said, "I just want to get into a good conservatory. Time will tell what the future holds for me musically."

Whatever that future is, there is no question that in music, Dorman has found her true love. The hours of practice each day are, for her, "not work—it's mentally stimulating."

"I really think through my music," she said. "It's fun."

Tickets for the concert are available from the SSO Office and from ticket outlets of the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council (543-ARTS). Prices are $10 for adults; $6 for senior citizens and students. SSU faculty, staff and students are admitted with a current ID. For more information, call the SSO Office at 548-5587.

"I've had calls from folks," Kalb said, "who tell me that they didn't know they liked folk music until they heard my program. That's a great compliment."

Since the show expanded in length from two hours to three in October 1992, Just Folks normally puts the spotlight on a particular artist, songwriter or album in the second hour of each program. On past shows, Kalb has featured extended sets from new releases by Lyle Lovett, Michelle Shocked and Loudon Wainwright; lengthy excerpts from early recordings by Joni Mitchell, Bruce Cockburn, Tom Paxton, Phil Ochs and Peter, Paul & Mary; a mix of old and new recordings by Maura O'Connell, Joan Baez, James Taylor and Bonnie Raitt; and live recordings by Richie Havens, John Prine and Feron.

Other programs have highlighted the often recorded songwriting of Michael Smith, Paul Brady, Pat Alger, Bob Dylan and Leonard Cohen as interpreted by such vocalists as Anne Hills, Maura O'Connell, Nanci Griffith and Judy Collins and length segments of various artists collections such as All Through the Year: A Calendar in Music and Song, A Tribute to Woody Guthrie, and Bringing It All Back Home: Music from the BBC TV Series (a series tracing Irish music from its roots, to America, and back to Ireland).

Challenge Examination In English Upcoming

Challenge exams for English 101 and 102 will be given Monday, February 7, from 4-7 p.m. For those interested in taking either of these exams, a $20 non-refundable fee must be paid to the Cashier's Office and the receipt delivered to Kathy Schafer, English Department, Holloway Hall, room 333A, by Friday, January 7. In January a letter will be sent to registrants regarding the location of the exam and any other pertinent information. For more information please contact the English Department at 548-7990 or 543-6445.

From INTERNATIONAL HOUSE, Page 1

Wei—his American friends call him Andrew—first experienced American living as an undergraduate student in California. At SSU, while he works on his M.B.A., he also tries to help Asian students with the adjustment he found difficult a few years ago.

"There is one girl from Malaysia who speaks Chinese," he said. "We can communicate with each other and, since I have a car, I can give her a ride and show her where to find Chinese food. Then she can come here to cook food from home."

"It's nice to hear someone speak Chinese." Andrew says the International House now has the feeling of home. "We all come from different countries," he said. "But here we can all talk to each other."

The International House has long been a goal not only of Liszkowska, but of Associate Dean of Admissions Gary Grodzicki. Grodzicki works with new students who come to SSU from other countries, coordinating their paperwork with immigration authorities and getting support from the diplomats from their homelands. While all of the work is important, none of it is easy—especially for the students.

"Filling out immigration forms is like doing your income taxes," he said. "But more than the help I give them, these students needed a focal point for gathering socially. It will also allow students to get the extra support they might need with studying."

Grodzicki is also excited about the orientation program his colleague has established. "Agata has designed an orientation course that will be a godsend to these students."

The course will be accompanied by a handbook, helping students over hurdles that are invisible to their American classmates. "The handbook explains everything," Liszkowska said. "Currency, Social Security, driver's licenses, the phone system."

It's valuable information, even for students like Yvonne Downie, who grew up speaking English—but, in her case, in Scotland. Every international student has a story to tell about coming face-to-face with American culture, but Downie's may be the most dramatic.

"In Europe," she explained, "when a policeman stops you on the road, it's polite to get out of the car and greet the officer." When a Delaware trooper pulled her over for speeding, he clearly expected her to stay in her car. When she didn't, the policeman drew his weapon and shouted orders. "He called out 'Hands against the car. Hands against the car,'" she said.

As much as students like Yvonne and Andrew will benefit from this extensive orientation to life in the U.S.A., Liszkowska pointed out that the program is designed to benefit all SSU students. "Our goal," she said, "is to integrate the International House into the campus and integrate campus into the House."

Many students are spending Saturday mornings working on the Habitat for Humanity home at the construction site near Sea Gull Stadium. The project is being built and funded by University students, faculty and staff. Contact the campus Habitat chapter at 543-6219 to help.

Art Scholarship Sale Has Something for All

Looking for the perfect, but reasonably priced gift for the person who already has too many slipper socks and waffle irons? Your search may be over starting December 10 at 10 a.m. Salisbury State opens its 10th annual Arts and Crafts Exhibition and Sale to benefit the Art Scholarship Fund.

A wide variety of artwork by art students and artists with regional and international reputations will be on sale. The items, which include pots, prints, paintings, ornaments and photography, range in price from one dollar to $500 with the majority of the items under $25.

The sale runs Friday through Saturday, December 10-11, and Monday through Friday, December 13-17, from 10 a.m.-4 p.m. each day, or by appointment to groups. It is in the Atrium Gallery of the Guernsey University Center.

Through the continued support of the art students, area artists, art faculty and loyal customers the sale has grown from a one-day event to an eight-day event; and the scholarship fund has grown from $450 to enough money to offer at least two scholarships per year to incoming freshmen.

According to Marie Cavallaro, chair of the Art Department, "The community has been very supportive to the arts as has been proven by the increase in sales and interest in 'drawing' high quality art students to the Eastern Shore."

Artist contributing to this year's sale include Jill Olson, Margie Violetta, Dan and Rhonda Heinicke, Angie Hodges, Gloria Smith, Sue Thomas, Dolores Powell, Jane Hiddleston, Vesna Dovic, Karl Connolly, Nancy Spicer, Jim and Mary Rehack, Lori Ellison, Nicole Rich, Tricia Van Dornak, Nancy Mysak, Jeanne Anderton, Garry Weber, Dolores Cummings, Anne Colonna, Dot Truitt, Beth Fusaro and Paula Hepburn.

For more information about the sale, the scholarship or art major call the Art Department at 543-6270.

Student and staff artwork are on sale at the 10th annual SSU Art Department Scholarship Sale.

Child Study Center Researches Behavioral Problems

This summer Dr. Adeline Tryon from the Department of Psychology established the Child Study Center on campus. The long-range goals of her Child Study Team are to research the development of behavior problems in children and to develop intervention programs aimed at preventing conduct disorders in childhood and adolescence.

This summer, with a team of 10 undergraduate and graduate psychology students, Tryon interviewed and observed 60 mothers and their first grade children on campus. The interviews were designed to learn about the ways in which mothers teach their children problem-solving strategies and to examine whether or not their children use the same strategies when trying to solve new problems with new acquaintances. In addition to the interviews and questionnaires, each mother was videotaped first with her own child and then twice more with unfamiliar children while solving problems.

The problems included challenges such as drawing a family on an etch-a-sketch (Mom gets one knob, child gets the other) or making a boat by folding origami paper according to a picture. "Using frustrating games like these often brings out a mother's best efforts at problem-solving," said Tryon. "Studying mothers' contributions to children's problem-solving skills is an important link in understanding how children learn to solve problems with peers, and how problem-solving skills may be linked to children's social success or failure at school."

The mothers and their children who participated were identified through interviews conducted last spring at Salisbury First Grade Center by Tryon's Child Study Team. Currently the team is busy analyzing the summer questionnaire data and the videotapes of problem-solving episodes. Results are anticipated next spring.

Honorary's Book Fair in Caruthers Hall

Salisbury State's Rho Eta chapter of Kappa Delta Pi International Honor Society held its annual induction ceremony on campus recently.

Dr. Carolyn Bowden, professor of education, delivered the keynote speech to the 92 initiates and their guests. Her speech, "The Ultimate Challenge," concerned the many challenges facing prospective teachers as they graduate from college and assume responsibilities in their own classrooms.

Lori Nichols, this year's president, along with fellow officers Hazel Freeman and Tracy Berry, Dr. Sharon Clark and Dr. Gerry Rossi urged all new members to commit themselves to service in the local chapter beginning with the sales of books during the popular KDP Book Fair held in the lobby of Caruthers Hall the second week of December.

An individual becomes a member of KDP by invitation from the local chapter whose members have approved the candidacy. The invitation is based on high academic achievement, a commitment to education as a career and a professional attitude in the field of education.

Cathcart Presents Pair of Papers

Dr. Don Cathcart of the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science recently presented talks at two regional meetings of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics (NCTM).

Cathcart's talk at the Southern Regional Conference of the NCTM in Jackson, MS, was titled "Relating Mathematics to Other Fields through Activities in Modeling." His talk at the Eastern Regional Conference of the MCTM in Pittsburgh, PA was titled "Helping Students Learn to Apply Mathematics." Each talk illustrated ways that teachers can link mathematics to other disciplines through consideration of realistic problems.

Mediation and Conflict Resolution Center Director

SSU and the Wicomico County Public School System, dependent upon the final approval for funding, announce the opening for a director of the Center for Mediation and Conflict Resolution, effective February 1.

Starting salary is commensurate with background and experience. Duties include directing the center located at Salisbury State in carrying out a student conflict resolution/mediation program at SSU and implementation of mediation and conflict resolution programs in Wicomico County public schools. Other duties include running training seminars on conflict resolution and mediation, mediating disputes and working with local courts and attorneys to design and implement mediation services for the citizens of Wicomico County and environs.

Minimum qualifications: Ph.D. preferred (will accept M.A. or equivalent in law, social work, psychology, communications, sociology or other degree related to conflict resolution and mediation); four years of professional experience in mediation or other form of collaborative conflict resolution, including the handling of court-referred, student, academic, divorce, cross-cultural, large groups, organizational, community, employment and business disputes; experience teaching conflict resolution in an institution of higher education; demonstrated effectiveness in helping resolve disputes through collaborative conflict resolution processes; experience in designing and implementing peer mediation programs in public schools; training attorneys in mediation; experience in agency administration including fundraising; and program initiation/development.

DiSylvestro Is Named Regional NACUFS President

Carmen DiSylvestro, associate director of University Dining Services, was recently named president-elect of Region II of the National Association of College and University Food Services (NACUFS).

NACUFS, which encompasses nine regions and over 550 colleges and universities, promotes high quality food service on college campuses by providing educational and training opportunities, technical assistance, industry information and research support to member institutions.

"I am tremendously honored," said DiSylvestro of his election to the three-year term which begins July 1. "This will allow SSU and me to make substantive contributions to college and university food service programs heading into the 21st century."

"Our students will also benefit due to the increased educational and professional development opportunities afforded the SSU dining services staff," said DiSylvestro. He cited Visiting Chef's Week and an 80-foot ice cream sundae to celebrate every student's birthday as examples of popular dining hall programs at SSU that the dining services staff learned about through NACUFS.

NACUFS also allows member institutions to compete with one another in a variety of categories including displays, service, food quality and programming. SSU has consistently fared well in these competitions despite being considerably smaller than many of the other member schools.

DiSylvestro, a 1980 graduate of SSU who joined the dining services staff in 1985, was one of two recipients of the NACUFS President's Award, presented at the organization's annual conference last summer. He has served as vice president for Region II for the past two years and education chair for three years.

DiSylvestro, whose selection as president took place at the Region II conference at Penn State in November, was also selected to serve as site chairperson for the 1999 national conference for NACUFS.

accrediting agencies. Under Marchese's leadership AAHE's Assessment Forum has become a center for national thought and leadership on the topic. Its annual assessment conferences now attract over 1,200 participants.

Since 1989 Marchese also has guided AAHE efforts to bring the business practice of "Total Quality Management" to university life. TQM has not always been greeted with open arms. Exemplified by companies such as Xerox, Motorola and earning converts including Perdue Farms, TQM involves meeting the customer's or student's needs at every level, Butler said. "A student getting the brush off from a professor rushing to catch a plane for a consulting assignment is not an example of TQM."

Fortunately, "The principles of TQM, competence, caring and commitment, are practiced everyday at SSU," he added. Marchese also wrote "The Search Committee Handbook," an educational best seller and staple at campuses across the nation.

Prior to moving to AAHE, Marchese was at Barat College in Lake Forest, IL, for 14 years. He taught and then served as vice president for administration.

He has his Ph.D. in higher education from the University of Michigan, a law degree from Georgetown University, and his bachelor's in English literature from Rutgers University.

A PUBLICATION FOR UNIVERSITY FACULTY, FRIENDS, STAFF AND STUDENTS

DECEMBER 16, 1993

VOL. X NO. 15

Revenge Cited in Vandalism

by Keith Paul of The Daily Times

The Camden Neighborhood Association's desire to have SSU reinstate a policy of disciplining students for off-campus offenses led to the association president's car being vandalized, the Salisbury chief of police said.

"There is no doubt in my mind this was done in retaliation," Chief Coulbourn Dykes said. "We will not tolerate this type of terrorist destruction to citizens' property."

While there is no proof linking students to the incident, Dykes said, "I've been in police work long enough to know where a crime points to."

In the early hours of Thursday morning, someone slashed all four tires and put several scratches on each side of association president Debbie Burley's car.

There were several students at the association meeting Monday who talked about the neighborhood's desire for the policy to be reinstated. One student became agitated and yelled before leaving, Burley said.

The policy the association wants reinstated is for campus officials to review police reports involving students and call a hearing if warranted, said Dr. Carol Williamson, dean of students.

The hearings were stopped at the start of this semester because the number of incidents were not decreasing, Williamson said.

There were no witnesses to Thursday's vandalism. While there may not be an arrest, Dykes points to this incident as a reason for the University to start the discipline hearings again.

"We looked and the hearings were increasing, not decreasing, and what we were doing was not making a difference," Williamson said.

The hope was to alter the students' off-campus behavior by letting them know they would not longer get a civil citation and a hearing from campus officials, but a criminal summons from the police, Williamson said.

Dykes and Burley said it's not all Salisbury State students, but a small minority that have loud parties, throw bottles in the streets, scream obscenities late at night while leaving parties and urinate on lawns.

Burley used a video camera to capture three incidents in the past months where students were cursing and yelling, and one where someone was being handcuffed by police and a girl yelling obscenities jumped on the officer's back.

But discipline policy or not, Dykes said he will increase police patrols in the neighborhoods around the school.

"If they thought there was a police crackdown before, there will be more police around," he said.

474 To Graduate At Commencement Sunday

At the University's fall commencement 393 bachelor's degree and 81 master's degree candidates will be recognized for their academic achievements at the University's graduation ceremonies on Sunday, December 19, at 3 p.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

The class of 1993 includes 251 receiving the Bachelor of Science, 139 receiving the Bachelor of Arts and three receiving the Bachelor of Arts in Social Work. In addition 81 students will receive master's degrees: 62 the Master of Education, eight the Master of Arts, five the Master of Business Administration and six the Master of Science.

Dr. Theodore J. Marchese, vice president of the American Association for Higher Education, the leading professional body for universities and colleges in America, will deliver the commencement address.

Marchese oversees AAHE's popular series of publications and is executive editor of Change, one of the most widely read and influential magazines in academe.

During the last eight years Marchese's principal interest has been in the area of measuring student learning—going beyond classroom grading to evaluating how well professors are teaching and institutions are fulfilling their missions. In addition he has guided AAHE's efforts to bring the business practice of "Total Quality Management" to university life.

Prior to moving to AAHE, Marchese was at Barat College in Lake Forest, IL, for 14 years where he taught and then served as vice president for administration.

He received his Ph.D. in higher education from the University of Michigan, a law degree from Georgetown University and his bachelor's in English literature from Rutgers University.

They're Tops in Their Class And SSU Is Their No. 1 Choice

Valedictorians and salutatorians are a college recruiter's happiest fantasy. This past spring recruiters at SSU held their breaths as a dozen of these brightest and best selected the Eastern Shore university.

After one semester, parents and University officials are smiling. The Shore campus is suiting the academic stars just fine. But then 20 percent of SSU's freshmen ranked in the top 10 percent of their high school class; most SSU freshmen were in the top quarter. "Kindred spirits are here," said Jane Dané, dean of admissions.

The majority of counties on Maryland's Eastern Shore sent high school valedictorians and salutatorians to the local university. "I'd like to go back and tell all the seniors not to sell Salisbury State short because it's close to home. It's really good," said Eliza Rutter, 1993 salutatorian at Snow Hill High in Worcester County.

Others agree. "I'd always had my mind set on a big name school," said Todd Bittner, valedictorian at Queen Anne's County High in Centreville. "But I didn't want to go somewhere where I couldn't get the classes." Stories about students at huge universities unable to graduate in four years because required classes were closed out had him worried. Once considering going out-of-state, instead Bittner opted for Salisbury after settling on accounting as a major. "The (Franklin P. Perdue) Business School here is head and shoulders above the other business schools I've looked into.... The way the business and general education classes are coordinated, I couldn't go anywhere and get as good a set up."

The magic of the Perdue name also cast its spell over Courtney Moore, co-valedictorian at North Carolina High School in Ridgely. After being accepted at Gettysburg College, Virginia Tech and Rutgers universities, she felt the Perdue School reputation was "really good in helping prepare you for the job market," she said. Once here, other factors became important.

Challenge Examination In English Upcoming

Challenge exams for English 101 and 102 will be given Monday, February 7, from 4-7 p.m. For those interested in taking either of these exams, a $20 non-refundable fee must be paid to the Cashier's Office and the receipt delivered to Kathy Schafer, English Department, Holloway Hall, room 333A, by Friday, January 7. In January a letter will be sent to registrants regarding the location of the exam and any other pertinent information. For more information please contact the English Department at 548-7990 or 543-6445.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
 2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
 3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
 4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
 5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
 6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
 7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
 8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
 9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
 10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office.
- For more information on personal safety, contact the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double-spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

'Casual' for Habitat, Guerrieri University Center

Employees in the Guerrieri University Center have slated each Friday as "Casual Day." For the privilege of dressing "down," each participant donates $1 toward SSU's Habitat project.

Visitors to the Guerrieri Center offices have expressed interest in the project. All offices are eligible to participate. Following the habitat project, plans are to select another worthwhile charity to become recipient of "Casual Day" funds. Offices wishing to participate, should contact the Dean of Students Office for details.

Phi Kappa Phi Eligibility Outlined

The Salisbury State chapter of the national honor society Phi Kappa Phi is preparing for its annual initiation of new members. The society is interdisciplinary, drawing from all departments within the University.

The purpose of Phi Kappa Phi is to recognize and encourage superior scholarship in all academic disciplines. The society hopes that by recognizing and honoring those persons who have excelled in scholarship in all fields, it will stimulate others to strive for excellence.

Staff Council Seeks Input

The SSU President's Staff Advisory Council meets monthly to discuss issues of concern to SSU staff at the local and state levels. The council also coordinates activities with the UM System Council for University System staff.

Any staff member with questions or concerns about campus or state personnel policies or other issues should contact one of the council members listed below. The council will discuss questions or concerns with Dr. Bellavance or the Personnel Office at regular meetings.

Goldstein Says Pension Investments Not Risky

According to Maryland Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein, the board of trustees of the Maryland Retirement and Pension Systems has received many inquiries about economically targeted investments (ETIs). The board is not currently reviewing any type of ETI proposals.

"I can assure you that the board of trustees is very conscious of (state employees') concerns, and as trustees, we are doing everything possible to make sound investments," said Goldstein, who is chairman of the board. "Secure retirement will always be our top priority."

The Retirement Systems' board has appointed a subcommittee to examine the issue of economically targeted investments. The subcommittee hasn't made any decisions or formulated any recommendations yet.

"All investments continue to meet the criteria of the investment committee and the full board of trustees," said Goldstein. "We will continue to invest with care, skill and prudence."

John Kalb of the English Department hosts WSCL's Just Folks. The program which features a wide assortment of folk, acoustic and mostly contemporary music, airs every Saturday night from 8-11 p.m. on WSCL, 89.5 FM.

Ference Attends Slavic Conference

Dr. Gregory Ference, assistant professor of history, recently attended the 1993 national convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies (AAASS).

The AAASS is an international multi-disciplinary scholarly organization that studies the lands and peoples of Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. The golden anniversary meeting of the AAASS met in Honolulu with the Western Slavic Association acting as host.

While in attendance Ference participated in two panels: "Leadership and Political Change in Eastern Europe" and "The End of Czechoslovakia: The Perspectives of Its Various Peoples." The first panel discussed two topics: leadership in the break-up of Czechoslovakia during 1991-92, and the changing positions of dissidents in Eastern Europe before and after the democratization of the region. The second panel focused exclusively on the dissolution of Czechoslovakia and presented the viewpoints of the Czechs, Slovaks, Gypsies and Ruthenians on the topic.

Both panels were sponsored by an affiliate society of the AAASS, the Czechoslovak History Conference, of which Ference is the secretary-treasurer. Besides Ference, the other participants of the panels were academics from the University of Toronto, St. Joseph College in Connecticut, the University of Ottawa, Middlebury College, Valdosta State University in Georgia, Elon College and New York University.

Also present at the sessions was Michael Zantkovsky, ambassador of the Czech Republic and 20th century Czech literary scholar, who gave his perspectives and insight into the demise of Czechoslovakia.

Salisbury businessman Sam Seidel recently met with SSU students who are the recipients of scholarships established by Seidel and his wife, Lynn. Shown, from left, are Jennifer Unsell, Jennifer McNab, Jim Hudson, Seidel and Katherine Harte. The Seidels are responsible for establishing the Seidel Scholars in Education Scholarship, the Seidel Nursing Scholarship and the Cahall Scholarship, named in honor of Lynn Seidel's parents, Clifford and Elizabeth Cahall. The scholarships are administered by the SSU Foundation Inc. and awarded by the University's Office of Financial Aid.

General Information and Directions (Please Read Carefully)

1. Commencement will be held at 3 p.m., Sunday, December 19, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. ADMISSION WILL BE BY TICKET ONLY. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 2:00 p.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center (see No. 13-16 for location).
 2. The commencement speaker will be Dr. Theodore J. Marchese, vice president of the American Association for Higher Education in Washington, D.C.
 3. Physically Disabled Guests—Accessible seating is provided on the main floor of the arena. Disabled guests should ask an usher for the location as they enter the Civic Center.
 4. Hearing Impaired Guests—Signers are present for the entire graduation ceremony. Seating for an optimum view of the individual(s) signing is in the first level of the grandstands close to and on either side of the stage. Seating is not reserved, therefore, early arrival is suggested. Ask an usher for the location upon entering the Civic Center.
 5. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.
 6. Caps, gowns, master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through the BOOK RACK beginning November 17. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours are Monday through Thursday, 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. THE BOOKSTORE WILL BE OPEN SATURDAY, DECEMBER 18 FROM 8:30 A.M. TO 5:30 P.M. GRADUATES MUST PICK UP THE NECESSARY ITEMS ON OR BEFORE 4 P.M. ON SATURDAY, DECEMBER 18.
- *TICKETS FOR GRADUATION WILL BE DISTRIBUTED BY THE BOOK RACK UNTIL DECEMBER 15. EACH STUDENT WILL BE LIMITED TO 15 TICKETS EACH. STUDENTS WHO DO NOT NEED ALL 15 TICKETS SHOULD RETURN THE EXTRAS TO THE GUERRIERI UNIVERSITY CENTER INFORMATION DESK. GUESTS ARE REQUESTED TO BE SEATED BY 2:45 P.M. STUDENTS WHO PICK UP THEIR CAP AND GOWN AFTER DECEMBER 15 WILL NOT BE GUARANTEED 15 TICKETS FOR GRADUATION. Students may leave personal property in Flanders Room No. 1 during the graduation ceremony when the room will be locked. It will be unlocked when the ceremony is over and students may pick up their possessions at that time. SSU will not be responsible for these items; students are therefore encouraged to leave valuables with family or friends.
7. Students will first be awarded degrees by school (e.g., School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Dr. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.
 8. Then students will individually be awarded their diploma. The faculty marshals will have given each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the School, (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be handed to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name to Dr. Butler, who will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. THE NAME ON THE CARD MUST NOT BE CHANGED FOR ANY REASON.
 9. DURING THE RECESSIONAL GRADUATES AND FACULTY ARE TO RETURN TO THE AREA WHERE THEY ASSEMBLED PRIOR TO THE CEREMONY. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.
 10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

WHERE THEY ASSEMBLED PRIOR TO THE CEREMONY. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.

10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is sponsored by the Salisbury State University Alumni Association and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State University.

11. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the commencement exercises MUST notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6158 no later than Monday, December 13. All graduates will receive a blank folder at commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.

12. Faculty and staff should enter through the Midway Room entrance and line up for the processional at 2:15 p.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should inform their respective school dean.

13. BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates will assemble in the north corridor of the Civic Center (to the left when entering from the front doors and on the side nearest the Salisbury Mall). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through the letter K will report to DRS. ROBERT BERRY and JOHN TYVOLL at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). These candidates will sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the side aisle.

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates beginning with the letter L through the letter Z will report to DRS. GERRY ROSSI and MIKE GARNER and will line up alphabetically along the windows facing West (the front of the building). These candidates will sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the side aisle.

14. BACHELOR OF ARTS candidates will assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after you enter the front doors, on the side nearest the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through the letter K will report to DRS. HOMER AUSTIN and AUGIE DIGIOVANNA at the rear of the corridor and will line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). These candidates will sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the center aisle. BACHELOR OF ARTS candidates with last names beginning with the letter L through the letter Z will also go to the right after entering the front doors of the Civic Center, but will go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to DRS. HARRY BASEHART and GERALD ST. MARTIN. They will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. They will sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the center aisle.

15. B.A.S.W. candidates will also go to the right after entering the front doors of the Civic Center. They will proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to DR. HARRY BASEHART. They will line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. They will also sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

16. ALL MASTER'S DEGREE candidates (M.A., M.Ed., M.S., and M.B.A.) will enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park) and report to a faculty marshal in that corridor. M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates will report to DR. MARY ELLEN ELWELL. They will line up according to her direction, alphabetically by degree, and will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the center aisle. M.Ed. candidates are to report to DR. JACK WULF and line up alphabetically by degree, and will sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the center aisle. M.Ed. candidates are to report to DR. JACK WULF and line up alphabetically at his direction. They will also sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, they are to return to their seats via the center aisle.

17. Dress Code—This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor. The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

- A. Women
 1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color) — no white or other light color.
 2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
 3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe. Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.
 4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such.
 5. No flowers are permitted on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.
- B. Men
 1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color)—no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
 2. Dark color socks—no white athletic socks.
 3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
 4. Dress shirt, preferably white or a light color.
 5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)
 6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.
 7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such. Kente cloths are permissible as well.
 - C. Both
 1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, and so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) NO DECORATION OF ANY KIND IS TO BE PLACED ON THE MORTARBOARD.
 2. Honors students will have a gold and white hood. It is to be worn with the gold side out and the white inner lining turned out at the top, over the gold (like a collar). Gold cords would be worn under the honors hood.
 3. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by Dr. Bellavance (and/or the appropriate faculty marshal).
 4. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
 5. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate who should face the audience and bend down a little. Faculty marshals will give master's candidates more specific information.
 6. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Chappell Studio, Inc. This information will arrive at each graduate's permanent address in the near future.
 7. Candidates should not chew gum or tobacco.
 8. Graduation Decorum Graduation ceremonies are, by their very nature, festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g., B.S., B.A., etc.).

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

For the second straight week, a Salisbury State basketball player has been honored by the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC). One week after Kim Roth earned the ECAC's South Region Player of the Week award, Craig Blackmon has won the same honor for the men. Blackmon, a sophomore forward from Roseboro, NC, scored 69 points and collected 28 rebounds in three games for the Gulls last week.

Despite Blackmon's efforts however, SSU won just one of the three games, defeating Catholic 105-102, but losing to Cabrini and Washington in last weekend's Wild Goose Tournament in Chestertown. The men, now 3-6 for the year, play once more prior to the holiday break, hosting Virginia Wesleyan at 7 p.m. on Friday.

The women's team, 3-3 overall, had a light week, playing just one game. Trailing by 15 points at halftime, SSU's second-half rally fell just short as it dropped a 66-64 decision at Catholic. Sarah Jones tallied a team-high 18 points to pace the Gulls, with Kristi Kauffman adding 16 and Roth contributing 10 points and 14 rebounds.

The women's swim team suffered its first loss in Capital Athletic Conference action last Saturday, losing to Marymount 130-66 at home. SSU is 5-3 overall, 3-1 in CAC meets.

Kathi Geeti provided one of SSU's bright spots, eclipsing her own 100-butterfly record with a time of 1:14.41. The 200-freestyle relay team also set a new school record, clocking 2:06.54 to shave nearly a second off the previous mark.

Orientation Group Adopts Family for Christmas

All incoming freshman to SSU are required to take a University orientation course. This year SSU offered 12 options for first-time freshman. On August 29, 13 freshman students arrived on campus for a one-week residential Cultural Diversity Program. These students had volunteered for this option as an alternative to the traditional classroom experience. During the week the students had the opportunity to explore Hispanic, African-American and Native American cultures.

Their days and evenings were long and involved trips to museums, dramatic lectures and workshops, small group discussions, preparation of ethnic meals and volunteering in the community. For all the students involved this was the first time they had ever experienced such an intensive residential program that was designed to enhance their appreciation and understanding of those that differ culturally, ethnically and racially.

The program concluded with the Millsboro Native American Pow Wow on September 11. When one student was asked about his experience for the week, he replied, "I laughed, I cried and I learned."

The group has met sporadically since the summer and concluded that too much was gained to discontinue their efforts. So on October 21 they decided to adopt a needy family for Christmas. Presents will be purchased for the entire family and delivered on Friday, December 17.

All the valedictorians and salutatorians commented on the friendliness and comfortable size of the SSU campus (about 6,000 students). Leo Gomez was ranked first in his high school class in Colombia, South America, before moving his senior year to Pocomoke City in Worcester County. The University faculty reminds him of some of his favorite teachers in Colombia. "They're approachable, not like a 'teacher-god.' You're not just a number. They want you to learn," he said.

In fact academic excellence has remained the critical factor in college contentment for all these scholars. Kendra Lowery, salutatorian at Sussex Central High in Georgetown, DE, decided on Salisbury after learning the private college in South Carolina she planned to attend was not fully accredited. Constance Lohse, salutatorian at Chincoteague High, VA, and Kathy Schells, salutatorian at Mardela High in Wicomico County, are majoring in elementary education, another strong SSU program. "Salisbury State's location is really convenient, but if it hadn't been a good school I wouldn't have picked it," Lohse said.

Finally, many Eastern Shore students attending SSU choose to live at home to save the costs of room and board, Dané noted. "Money was a main factor in my decision," said Tanya Townsend, valedictorian at Snow Hill High who commutes to campus. "Medicine is something I've dreamed of ever since kindergarten. But medical school's expensive. My parents are saving money all the time (for it). I thought I'd get just as good an (undergraduate) education" here, she said.

Despite commuting, studying and a library job, this pre-med major's life isn't all work and no play. "There's never a dull moment," agreed Karen Sears, 17, valedictorian at St. Michael's High in Talbot County, though "I'm doing more work than I did in high school."

Also pictured is Debbie Merryweather one of the coordinators of this campaign. The VCR was donated by the SSU Foundation, Inc. This year's campus campaign, which raises money for a variety of charities throughout the state, netted $7,736; 80 employees (out of a possible 565) participated in the campaign. Other prize winners were Dr. Nelson Butler, SSU glass; Dr. Thomas Elliot, SSU glass; Monte Bradley, SSU mug; Terry Daenzer, SSU mug; Elaine Patterson, SSU mug; Carol Bosserman, SSU mug; Jack Bradshaw, SSU mug; Dr. Augustine Digiovanna, SSU mug; Dr. George Whitehead, SSU dinner pass; and Dr. Marvin Tossey, SSU dinner pass. Glasses and mugs were donated by the Book Rack; dinner passes were donated by University Dining Services.

Cookbooks for Sale Benefit Habitat Fund

The SSU chapter of Habitat for Humanity is selling Partners in the Kitchen cookbooks. The 238-page cookbook, a collection of favorite recipes from Habitat for Humanity affiliates and campus chapters, is $10. Proceeds from the sale will be applied to the SSU building fund. Please contact Theresa Thomas at 543-6215 for a copy.

Health Center Hours in January

The hours for the Health Center during winter term are 9 a.m.-10 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Louis H. Himes, II, M.D., vice president, medical affairs and staff physician for Student Health Services at Salisbury State University, presents a check for $75 to Dr. Carol Williamson, SSU's dean of students. The Health Center staff made the holiday donation to the Student Emergency Fund at SSU in Hime's name. The fund is set up to provide assistance to students in times of need.

VOL. X NO. 16

Campus Facilities Ranked No. 1 3rd Straight Year

If you think the campus has been doing good lately, you're right. And you're not the only one who has noticed.

For the third year in a row, a report by the Maryland Department of General Services awarded SSU its highest ranking among college and university campuses in the University of Maryland System.

Each year, an inspector from General Services visits the 13 campuses in the System, evaluating the facility itself, its programs for preventive maintenance, housekeeping, groundskeeping, management, its cost effectiveness, "every aspect of the facility, from soup to nuts," according to SSU's president of administration Joseph K. Gilbert. And for yet another year, SSU has finished ahead of the rest.

In fact, the university has held onto the title despite the fact it ranks last in state funds.

Gilbert gives credit for the high marks to the people involved; the students and other staff the University employs, who take pride in their work; the management team, each of whom is academically credentialed and dedicated to SSU's high standards; and to SSU's president,

SSU has been designated an arboretum by the American Association of Botanical Gardens and Arboreta. Some 2,000 different species of plants are nurtured on campus.

Dr. Thomas E. Bellavance, who is, in his own words, "convinced that when you give students an atmosphere that is pleasant and orderly it goes quite far in helping them to study and be serious about what they are here for."

While they are proud to be leading the state, both Gilbert and Bellavance point out that the notoriety has not been their goal. "We like to have awards," Gilbert said, "and we appreciate them; but we're working toward a higher, more idealistic goal. We strongly believe that an enlightened education institution ought to be able to manage itself well." As Bellavance puts it, "the facility should reflect the quality of the institution."

Maintaining their own high standards has been toughest this year. When the state cut back on the funding for its colleges and university, all SSU departments felt the pinch, not just the physical plant. Like everyone else on campus, Gilbert and his staff worked hard to hold onto the improvements they had made in recent years. In some ways, the plan already in place has paid off.

Business Students Learn Outside Classroom

Business students in search of the classic "win-win situation" have found it in a program at the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business at Salisbury State University.

The school's ABLE program—for Applied Business Learning Experience—requires that students complete work designed to bring to life the lessons they are learning in the classroom. The program is drawing praise from the students and from their employers.

In many cases, the student intern takes his employer by surprise. Businesses that enter the program to support SSU find their interns a great asset. In a letter to SSU ABLE director Rebecca A. Emery, Charles B. Dashiell, president of J. Roland Dashiell & Sons, Inc., described his company's ABLE experience, exactly the success the program sets out to achieve.

"He (intern Mike Guercio) has not only been learning but he has also been teaching and instituting programs that we haven't had time to do, and has made improvements in several areas of our business," Dashiell wrote.

In making matches like the one that placed Guercio, who is from Towson, at Dashiell & Sons, Emery tries to customize the position to the student's major. She also screens both the student and the employer to ensure that the placement is both appropriate and informative for the student. Finally, the students check in with Emery regularly throughout the course of the internship, so she knows they are progressing on track. Emery has observed that in the process,

SSU Selected as NASA Joint Venture Facility—Only One in State

Salisbury State has been selected as the only institution in Maryland to participate in the NASA Joint Venture Initiative (JOVE), allowing three faculty members the opportunity to study at NASA facilities to further their research.

The three-year program began this summer, with faculty members spending up to 10 weeks at a National Aeronautics and Space space science. Included in the award is $20,000 for student scholarships and undergraduates to work with the faculty at SSU.

"This joint venture is an excellent way to get the most out of our space program," said Congressman Wayne T. Gilchrest. "And it's a way to inspire not only University students but students all over the community about the importance of scientific research through the program's outreach efforts."

"This is a tremendous achievement for our University," said Dr. Phil Creighton, dean of the Henson School of Science and Technology at SSU. "We are the only JOVE location in the state of Maryland, and it will provide our faculty and students an opportunity to work on the most current space-related research, with frontier information."

The three SSU faculty members are: Dr. Steven Hetzler, a mathematician who will work in collaboration with Dr. Alex Klimas at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, MD, will be developing a mathematic model of the solar wind and Earth's Magnetosphere coupling; Dr. Andrew Pica a physicist who will collaborate with Dr. Susan Neff at the Goddard Space Flight Center, will be working with the ultraviolet imaging telescope; and Dr. John Tyvoll a chemist who will work in partnership with Dr. Arnold Torres at the Administration facility where they had access to data from active space science missions. When they returned to the University this fall, electronic links were established with the NASA facilities, allowing for continued joint research.

NASA has agreed to provide $110,000 in equipment, summer stipends and travel costs to SSU, while the University has agreed to provide research time for the faculty members, consider curriculum development in the space sciences and conduct outreach to secondary and/or elementary schools about

Imagine a group of elementary school students taking a tour of the English countryside, guided by a teacher in London. Imagine them taking the tour without leaving their classroom. Imagine the students asking for more, maybe a science lesson next time.

It's all happening in the global classroom, where computer terminals and fiber optics are linking students around the world. And, thanks to the efforts of a team of area business leaders and educators, it will soon be happening in classrooms across Delmarva.

The Center for Technology in Education (CTE), which just opened at the University, is bringing Eastern Shore teachers and their students a greater understanding and familiarity with the classroom benefits of computer technology.

The overall purpose of the CTE, as outlined by Dr. Doran Christensen, dean of the School of Education and Professional Studies, is fourfold:

- to provide basic training in computer-assisted instruction for classroom teachers and other educational personnel;
- to introduce teachers and other educational personnel to state-of-the-art technology for application to innovative uses in the classroom;
- to perform research in the use of technology for classroom instruction; and
- to participate in program development to enhance the technology literacy of school people throughout the region.

Already the center has become an invaluable resource to teachers and administrators in area public and private schools. Director Wanda Wagner couldn't be happier.

"What's exciting is to be able to go to teachers and say, 'I'm a resource for you, how can I help?' and to have the teachers ready with their ideas and requests," said Wagner, who until recently coordinated user services at SSU's Computer Services Office.

Teachers like Patti Weeg, whose Delmar, DE, class took the computer tour of England mentioned earlier, are looking forward to learning about new technology—and new uses for the equipment and programs they already have—at the center.

The CTE will be a resource for private schools, as well. At Worcester Country School, computers have been used in classrooms since the 1970s. While the school has managed to introduce its students to some cutting-edge technology, it shares Wicomico's need for teacher training.

Dr. Merle Marsh, the school's academic dean, has worked on the Maryland Committee for Technology and helped establish a program at Johns Hopkins University to bring computer education to Baltimore-area teachers. She was one of a core group of people who then began looking for such a resource on the Shore. The seed for a Center for Technology in Education was first planted when Marsh met with Herb Fincher of Peninsula Roofing and the Greater Salisbury Committee Education Technology Task Force, which he chaired.

"The Greater Salisbury Committee's mission is to identify community needs and problems, seek broad solutions and find the appropriate groups to implement those solutions," Fincher said.

Fincher brought the idea to Christensen and the CTE began to take root. Today the steering committee for the CTE includes the Greater Salisbury Committee, representatives of each of the participating school systems and private schools, the director of the Eastern Shore of Maryland Education Consortium, the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and SSU.

While SSU is embracing the CTE and the promise of technology to foster greater collaboration among educators on the Eastern Shore, Fincher and the Greater Salisbury Committee are confident that their idea is blossoming in fertile soil. Salisbury Greater Salisbury Committee Executive Director Luis Luna, "It's because of Salisbury State University's backing and forward-thinking attitude that this is going to happen."

the on-the-job relationship often shifts from the usual student-supervisor one to student-mentor. By the time their internship is completed, most students have established a network of business connections that should serve them well after graduation.

One such student was Donna Wheeley of Bozman, MD. Now a graduate of SSU and the ABLE program, Wheeley's first contact with her current employer, Perdue Farms, was made through the ABLE program. Not only did she have an opportunity to learn the company and make a positive impression on her future employer, Wheeley found that the experience she gained through the internship attracted other job offers.

"I had classmates who didn't have internships and some of them are still looking for jobs," she said. "When I interviewed with companies in Washington, Baltimore and Virginia I was able to talk about my experience and to give references."

Wheeley pointed out that, for her, the internship itself was just the beginning. When her supervisors at Perdue Farms offered to send her to training workshops, she took advantage of every opportunity. "Perdue Farms invested time and money in training me," she said. "And I think they noticed that I was willing to learn more." One such training program prepared Wheeley for her current position as associate programmer analyst in Perdue Farms' management information systems office.

SSU business student Kris Garofalo of Ft. Washington, MD, is still building her network of business contacts. Her internship at the Salisbury Area Chamber of Commerce has brought Garofalo into contact with many area business leaders. Garofalo tries not to miss any opportunities to learn about the business community and has seen many of the management strategies she learned about in class put to work on the job. Garofalo is hoping that the network she is building will enable her to get a job in Salisbury during her senior year at SSU—adding more business experience to her resume.

While all students hoping to graduate from the Perdue School must complete the ABLE program, not all are sent out into the local work force. Two courses, marketing research and small business consulting, offer students hands-on experience with real business problems under the direction of a Perdue School faculty member. Emery said that has made it possible for her to ensure that the students placed in internships are qualified for the work to which they are assigned. "We have to stand behind the students we're sending out," she said. "They have our stamp of approval."

That kind of quality control has earned the program at least one convert. Rich Evans, who runs the equipment sales office for AT&T in this region said he was skeptical at first that a college student could be of help to him. "As an account rep, I have many responsibilities and monthly objectives to meet," he said. "I was concerned that this would be a hindrance."

"I found quite the opposite. (Intern) Tom Baumann of Stone Harbor, NJ, runs with me every day. I've come to rely on him. He'll come away with some excellent experience. And I'll participate in the ABLE program again."

University Vehicles Powered by Propane

Salisbury State University, continuing its efforts toward maintaining an environmentally responsible campus has converted several university gasoline- and battery-powered motor vehicles to liquid propane, a cleaner and safer fuel source.

Under a statewide experimental program sponsored by the Department of Transportation and the Department of the Environment, SSU has replaced 10 battery-powered golf carts with six Cushman propane-burning vehicles. Additionally, two vans, a car and a pickup truck have been retrofitted to burn propane, and two large trucks are scheduled to be converted this summer.

"The employees like them," said SSU's fleet coordinator Bill Bowen. They're quieter and start faster, and their performance is as good as the gasoline vehicles."

The vehicles are used by several departments at SSU including the physical plant, public safety, dining services, the campus post office, central stores and the escort service. They are driven both on and off campus.

"The National Energy Policy Act of 1992 has a provision that state fleets must use an alternative fuel source by 1996," said Rick Sheckells, manager of environmental resources for Maryland's Department of Transportation. "As a result, the governor has directed the state to mount an aggressive fuel alternative program."

Salisbury State is one of three state agencies currently testing alternative fuels and is only one using propane. The departments of Transportation and Energy are currently using compressed and liquid natural gas in their vehicles, Sheckells said.

SSU was asked to participate in the two-year testing program because of its reputation for success with the campus recycling and energy conservation programs.

Funding for the vehicle conversion at SSU—$18,585 in all—was supplied by the Maryland Energy Administration. The only cost to the University is the fuel itself.

"Salisbury State has a strong commitment to continue a leadership role in regard to conservation, environmental protection, personal safety and financial stewardship," said SSU's administrative services director, Richard Yobst. "Our participation is based on the premise that propane fuel will be a more efficient fuel source which will result in a reduction in fuel cost."

Propane burns cleaner than gasoline which means fewer oil changes and tune-ups and reduced labor cost for maintenance. Over the next two years, the University will be looking at the cost of operating the propane vehicles versus gasoline-powered ones.

"Sparkplugs on these vehicles get replaced every 60,000 miles and oil changes are recommended every 20,000 miles," Bowen said. "They'll probably never need a tune-up during the test period."

State and SSU officials will be comparing the amount of savings with the cost of converting the vehicles. "We're trying to find out if it's cheaper in the long run," Bowen said. "We already know it's cleaner."

Propane also is a safer fuel source because of a higher point of ignition.

Replacing battery-operated golf carts will contribute to SSU's recycling efforts as well by reducing the number of batteries which would have to be placed in the waste stream.

The move to propane-powered vehicles marks a continued effort on the University's part to be a community and statewide leader in the energy conservation field.

Previously, SSU has implemented several programs on campus that include recycling glass, paper, metal and plastic products; composting food and garden waste; eliminating the use of disposable plates and utensils in the Gull's Nest snack bar; and asking staff and faculty to make two-sided photocopies.

Campus Community Funds, Builds Habitat Home

Students at work on SSU's Habitat project

The campus chapter of Habitat for Humanity is embarking on an ambitious project: raising $34,000 through individual contributions to finance the building of a home for a needy family and then constructing the home through volunteer labor.

Construction of the house began this fall and should be completed within a year. According to Habitat officials no other college or university has both secured funding and built a Habitat home within a year. Salisbury State would be the first.

The genesis of the idea occurred while members of the campus Habitat chapter spent a week in Louisiana in January 1993 repairing homes destroyed by Hurricane Andrew.

"Realizing the great need Salisbury has for affordable housing for lower income families, and witnessing in Louisiana and in Salisbury the effectiveness of the Habitat for Humanity program, we felt the University sponsorship of a Habitat home would be a wonderful project," said Richard Yobst, director of administrative services and advisor to the campus Habitat group.

"If the University community can rally around this project," said Yobst, "it will send a signal to the broader Salisbury community that we are vitally interested and an integral part of achieving solutions to the housing problems in the region."

'One-stop Shopping' For Student Loans Planned

The (Salisbury) Daily Times

Students at Salisbury State who need student loans will be facing a lot less paperwork next year.

SSU is one of 105 colleges and universities that will be part of a direct loan program, where the schools themselves will handle loan money.

The federal Education Department unveiled its new direct loan program, under which the government will lend students money instead of funneling the loans through banks and guarantor agencies that charge extra.

The Federal Direct Student Loan Program also will save taxpayers money by giving students a more generous repayment schedule that should lower the default rate, Education Secretary Richard Riley said.

"We are on track to make good on our pledge to save taxpayers $4.3 billion in the course of the next five years," he said. "Parents and students will appreciate one-stop shopping."

At SSU about 2,300 students at the school use either the Stafford or the Family Education Loan Program and could be eligible for the new program, according to Beverly Horner, director of financial aid for SSU. She said the processing time will be cut in half and more money will end up being used for education under the new program.

"Under the old way, you had to fill out the Free Application for Federal Student Aid, wait three to four weeks to see if you were eligible, come here (to SSU) and fill out an application, go to the bank and fill out an application, wait another four to six weeks to see the money," she said.

"Now, you'll fill out the FAFSA here and that's it. We'll be able to do it all in a month."

Horner said that the students will get 96 percent of the loan they apply for under the new system, rather than the current 93 percent. The program will start with the 1994-95 academic year at SSU.

SSO Plays the Meyerhoff!

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University was chosen to open ArtSalute '93, at the Joseph Meyerhoff Symphony Hall in October. The appearance by the SSO, the only symphony orchestra on the program for the evening, kicked off a month-long multicultural celebration of the arts in Maryland. The Maryland Citizens for the Arts, sponsors of ArtSalute '93, noted in their invitation to the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra that "narrowing the huge field of Maryland arts organizations was a most difficult task...the SSO rose to the top."

"Every musician dreams of playing in Symphony Hall," said SSO's music director and conductor, Dr. Thomas G. Elliot.

"This is a proud moment for the University," said SSU President Thomas E. Bellavance. "Since it was founded in 1986, the SSO has enjoyed a meteoric rise and is now earning the honors it deserves."

"It was gratifying to learn that our Orchestra had been selected to give the opening performance for ArtSalute '93," Elliot said. "I was so very proud of our members and the dedication that kept us together and growing these past eight years."

Common Academic Calendar Latest Cooperative Effort Between SSU, UMES

By Tracy Sahler, The (Salisbury) Daily Times

They're two separate campuses situated 12 miles apart, but Salisbury State University and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore are moving closer together all the time.

The collaboration that has gone on between the two campuses for the past 12 years accelerated this spring when SSU and UMES teamed to appeal the University of Maryland System Board of Regents' proposals for cutting majors. Their joint effort was largely successful, and today they're exploring more ways to collaborate.

"Together we do things that alone we could not do," SSU President Thomas E. Bellavance told The Daily Times.

The two universities will start the 1994 fall semester on a common calendar, eliminating many scheduling problems for students attending both institutions. A grant is being sought for a shuttle bus system between the two campuses, making it easier for students to travel. Future projects include standardizing course descriptions in the two catalogs, and making it possible to move records between the two universities by computer, instead of by car.

They're serving on each other's faculty search committees, writing a joint proposal for funds saved in the board of regents' cutback, and looking at ways to use technology to increase course offerings. Their collaboration may become a state and national model, UMES President William P. Hytche said.

"Our being brought together last spring to look at a fairly significant issue forced us in a short amount of time to really work together toward a common goal. That spring experience sort of opened the door to a lot more possibilities," said Karen Verbeke, coordinator of special education at UMES.

Studying on two campuses
Cooperation between the two universities takes place in several ways. Students attending one university may take any course at the other for credit without paying extra. Some students do this when required courses at their home school are full. The informal arrangement has existed for years.

In dual-degree programs, students attending one university can take more courses in their field of study at the other institution. If they take the prescribed number of credits and the right courses, they qualify for a degree from each campus.

Last spring saw the first graduates from the dual-degree program in environmental science and biology, a program now in its fourth year. Three students received a biology degree at SSU, then walked across the stage at UMES for a second degree in environmental science with a concentration in marine biology.

With 115 students enrolled in the program, there should be 15 to 20 graduates a year for the next several years, said Dr. Tom Jones, chair of the Department of Biology at SSU and coordinator of the dual-degree program in environmental science.

Another dual-degree program in its fourth year is sociology and social work. Students take sociology courses at both universities and study for a bachelor's degree in social work at SSU. The program cuts two years from the education process, said Lamin Mbye, acting chair of the Department of Social Sciences at UMES, and it helps put more minorities in the social work profession. Faculty and administrators at the two institutions will be looking at ways to eliminate duplication in the two sociology curriculums, too.

Students in some majors earn a joint degree by taking courses in their concentration at both schools. Students at both universities take ROTC at SSU, for example. They receive a degree from their home school.

After the board of regents' decision last spring, committees were formed to coordinate physical education, chemistry and education majors at both institutions, with the goal of eliminating duplication. The work is continuing.

Elementary education students at SSU can get special education certification from UMES, while UMES students can get elementary education certification at SSU. The education task force is looking into establishing a joint early childhood education major. A master's degree in guidance and counseling is given only at UMES.

"It extends both of our programs. It makes both sets of students more marketable," said Dr. Gerry Rossi, chair of the Department of Education at SSU.

Verbeke said she's been thrilled to see the cooperation that has taken place since she arrived four years ago.

"I was sort of surprised we weren't doing more together because there are so many ways that we strengthen each other and compliment each other, that we can share our resources," Verbeke said. "There are probably so many ways we can work together that we haven't even thought of yet."

Sharing Resources
New Department of Education faculty from both universities are going through orientation together so they'll know both campuses, Verbeke said. Dr. Nelson Butler, vice president for academic affairs at SSU, said he'd like to see students do the same thing.

The universities are talking about developing a joint engineering major using a combination of courses at SSU and UMES and distance learning. Technology and cooperation may give students at the two universities an opportunity they've never had on the Shore.

Right now about 70 SSU students go to UMES to work on their majors; 52 UMES students study at SSU. The two presidents said they'd like the totals to be even, but they're pleased with the growing popularity of dual programs.

"With this kind of cooperation we can provide a resource and an educational system that is second to none," Hytche said.

SSU Is Top Choice For Top Students

Valedictorians and salutatorians are a college recruiter's happiest fantasy. This past spring recruiters at Salisbury State University held their breaths as a dozen of these brightest and best selected the Eastern Shore university.

After one semester, parents and University officials are smiling. The Shore campus is suiting the academic stars just fine. But then 20 percent of SSU's freshmen ranked in the top 10 percent of their high school class; most SSU freshmen were in the top quarter. "Kindred spirits are here," said Jane Dané, dean of admissions.

The majority of counties on Maryland's Eastern Shore sent high school valedictorians and salutatorians to the local university. "I'd like to go back and tell all the seniors not to sell Salisbury State short because it's close to home. It's really good," said Eliza Rutter, 1993 salutatorian at Snow Hill High in Worcester County.

Others agree. "I'd always had my mind set on a big name school," said Todd Bittner, valedictorian at Queen Anne's County High in Centreville. "But I didn't want to go somewhere where I couldn't get the classes." Stories about students at huge universities unable to graduate in four years because required classes were closed out had him worried. Once considering going out-of-state, instead Bittner opted for Salisbury after settling on accounting as a major. "The (Franklin P. Perdue) Business School here is head and shoulders above the other business schools I've looked into.... The way the business and general education classes are coordinated, I couldn't go anywhere and get as good a set up."

The magic of the Perdue name also cast its spell over Courtney Moore, co-valedictorian at North Caroline High School in Ridgely. After being accepted at Gettysburg College, Virginia Tech and Rutgers universities, she felt the Perdue School reputation was "really good in helping prepare you for the job market," she said.

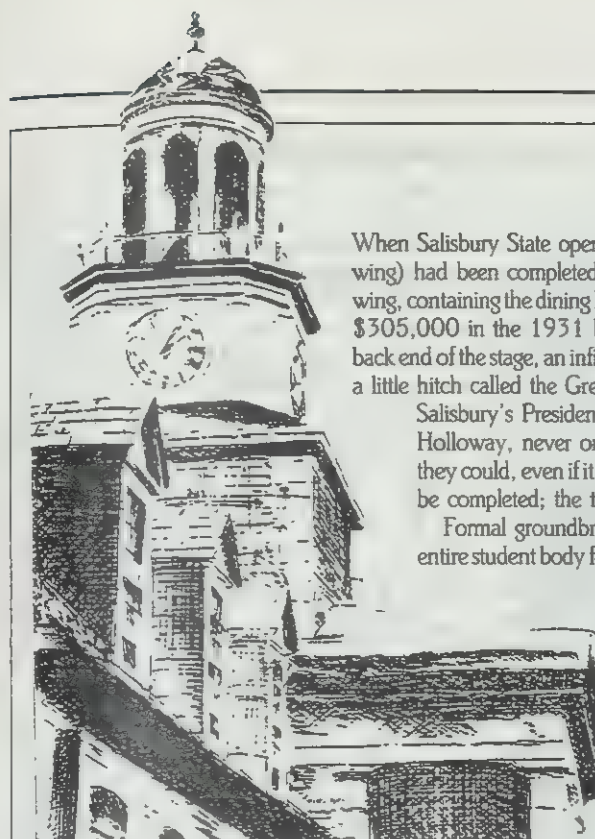

Once here, other factors became important. All the valedictorians and salutatorians commented on the friendliness and comfortable size of the SSU campus (about 6,000 students). Leo Gomez was ranked first in his high school class in Colombia, South America, before moving his senior year to Pocomoke City in Worcester County. The University faculty reminds him of some of his favorite teachers in Colombia. "They're approachable, not like a 'teacher-god.' You're not just a number. They want you to learn," he said.

In fact academic excellence has remained the critical factor in college contentment for all these scholars. Kendra Lowery, salutatorian at Sussex Central High in Georgetown, DE, decided on Salisbury after learning the private college in South Carolina she planned to attend was not fully accredited. Constance Lohse, salutatorian at Chincoteague High, VA, and Kathy Schells, salutatorian at Mardela High in Wicomico County, are majoring in elementary education, another strong SSU program. "Salisbury State's location is really convenient, but if it hadn't been a good school I wouldn't have picked it," Lohse said.

Finally, many Eastern Shore students attending SSU choose to live at home to save the costs of room and board, Dane noted.

"Money was a main factor in my decision," said Tanya Townsend, valedictorian at Snow Hill High who commutes to campus. "Medicine is something I've dreamed of ever since kindergarten. But medical school's expensive. My parents are saving money all the time (for it). I thought I'd get just as good an (undergraduate) education here," she said.

Despite commuting, studying and a library job, this pre-med major's life isn't all work and no play. "There's never a dull moment," agreed Karen Sears, 17, valedictorian at St. Michael's High in Talbot County, though "I'm doing more work than I did in high school."

The Great Hall by Sylvia Bradley

When Salisbury State opened as the Normal School in 1925 only the north wing (now the Perdue School wing) had been completed; the center section was opened in 1928, and the ground breaking for the south wing, containing the dining hall and kitchen did not occur until February 1932. Plans had been made to seek $305,000 in the 1931 budget to complete the building as originally planned, including the gymnasium and back end of the stage, an infirmary, dining hall and kitchen, social room and student bedrooms. Unfortunately a little hitch called the Great Depression intervened, and in January 1931 Governor Albert Ritchie informed Salisbury's President Holloway that only $200,000 would be requested for construction. President Holloway, never one to accept defeat easily, announced that they would proceed to build as much as they could, even if it meant only the first floor and possibly only exterior walls of the south wing would be completed; the third floor dorm rooms and the second floor infirmary would simply have to wait.

Formal groundbreaking ceremonies were held, therefore, in March 1932 with the faculty and the entire student body forming a half circle around the spot where the Social Room fireplace would be. In December of that same year, the south wing was opened while a rain, snow, sleet and wind storm raged outside!

The room now called the Great Hall, opened to the second floor where a balcony ringed the center opening, served as the College's dining hall from 1933 through August 1966. Paneled walls, tile floor, plaster ceiling with molded decorative rosettes in the style of Adams, all were meant to evoke a sense of dignity, formality and elegance. Entrance to the kitchen cafeteria-serving counter was through a narrow door; exit on the other side of the rear wall was through a similar door. During dinner the sights and sounds of the kitchen could be completely closed out. During the 1930s and 1940s a vase of fresh flowers sat on each cloth-covered table. A warning bell sounded in the dorm rooms at 5:20 p.m., and the dinner bell rung at 5:30 p.m. signaled the opening of the doors from the Social Room and students' entrance into the dining room. Everyone stood until grace was said by a volunteer at each table. During the 1930s, for four evenings of every seventh week of the school year dinner was served by students who alternately volunteered for the task. During the rest of the weeks dinner was served cafeteria style. Anyone who failed to make the 5:30 setting did not eat.

Occasionally the dining hall would be used for special dining functions. In the 1930s, for example, a highlight of the year was the May Day celebration. A May queen and king were chosen and the court included most beautiful girl, honor student or Miss SNC, best athlete, most literary, highest ranking junior and highest ranking senior. Elementary school children filled parts as jesters and attendants. On the night of May Day ceremonies everyone would attend a special queen's dinner, wearing formal dress, "to do honor to the queen."

Overseeing the students' behavior in the Social Room and Dining Hall was the social director, Miss Ruth Powell. Miss Powell was the all-around health nurse, director of social activities, dorm mother, kitchen supervisor and generally was in charge of most non-academic affairs. This included supervising the elementary school children who attended school in the campus school in the east end of the north wing. Elementary school children also ate lunches in the college dining hall, and it was Miss Powell, whom they called "That Ruth woman!" who saw to it they ate all their lunch. Failure to do so brought a spanking—which explains why so many little boys came home from school with their pockets stuffed with mashed potatoes and peas!

The Christmas Candlelighting ceremony started by "Miss Ruth" in the College's first years was moved to the Social Room in the 1930s; by the '50s when attendance had grown too large for the Social Room, it was moved into the dining hall. The College Chorus carried the only lighted candles and stood on the east end balcony overlooking the dining hall to sing carols.

There were no dorm rooms for men until 1947-48, but many male students ate all their meals at the college and roomed in nearby homes. For them and for the girls, there were strict regulations governing "appropriate" dress in the dining room. Shorts and gym suits were never to be worn in the dining hall; women might wear socks at breakfast and lunch, but had to wear hose at dinner time; men could wear sweaters with sleeves at breakfast and lunch, but coats were required at all evening meals. Although the '50s brought new styles for women, slacks, shorts, riding breeches and culottes all were forbidden in the dining hall, Social Room, or any classes except physical education. Girls might go to breakfast or lunch with their hair wrapped in a turban, but turbans at dinner were forbidden except on the evening of special dances, parties and concerts. Hose were required always for Sunday dinners and special occasions. Violations of these rules earned the offender progressive punishments, most of which dealt with "campusing," or restrictions to campus. More than three offenses might result in referral to the SGA Executive Board for action.

"Miss Ruth" retired in June 1946 and the new dietician, Mrs. Lillian Webster, took over the alcove next to the front outside door as her office, closed off from the rest of the room with a screen. For a brief time in the early 50s, some of the dinnertime formality was suspended. But in 1956, at the suggestion of the acting deans of men and women and the dietician, family style dinner service was reinstated. The purpose of the change, it was explained was "to provide...an enrichment in the day-to-day business of living." Also in the 1950s, dances were held in the dining hall, rather than the gym (behind the stage in Holloway Hall). These were always the formal dances associated with holidays, such as Valentine's Dance or Harvest Ball. Usually there was an elected queen and attendants and a special "throne" would be set up in the end of the room and flowers and decorations would be brought in the room. Never would anything be nailed into the paneling, though.

In September 1966 the new dining hall-student union, appropriately named the Ruth Powell Dining Hall, was opened and the old quarters in the south wing were assigned new duties. The kitchen became the infirmary. (During the '30s and '40s the infirmary had been on the second floor over the kitchen.) The dining hall was converted into a gallery for rotating art exhibits and was occasionally used for large meetings on campus. One of the last of these was the April 1968 meeting of the board of trustees when it made the hotly protested decision to close the Campus School at SSC. At the public portion of that meeting the old dining hall was filled to capacity with politicians, members of the community, faculty and students, all loudly objecting to the board's decision. Shortly after that, the Ward Wildfowl Museum, just beginning to organize and looking for a home, moved into the dining hall, and it became home to the Ward Museum until 1992.

Now it is the Great Hall. But, it always was.

Gilbert reports that they are able to replace campus fixtures on a piecemeal, rather than a wholesale basis.

"Eventually, we will be able to stabilize the prices students pay," he said. "In housing, for example, we won't have to replace boilers or aluminum windows; we'll be maintaining what we are buying now."

Another key ingredient to SSU's success, according to Gilbert, has been its policy of hiring students, rather than contracting for campus services. Not only does this inspire students to take pride in the campus, but it can give them the experience they need in beginning their careers. One student, who was involved in the SSU recycling project, now works for a major recycling company, BFA. Others, who received their training in the food services and groundskeeping departments, have gone on to jobs in restaurant and landscaping businesses.

But the students aren't the only ones enjoying the campus. "People stroll the campus as if it's a park," Gilbert said, "all we did was what was correct and right. That was sometimes harder, but we have had good people on the job. As a result, the campus has blossomed."

Mary Willis, SSU Graduate, Is One of Five Women Generals in U.S. Army

By Cynthia Coppage

Mary Willis is a force to be reckoned with. Hearing her recall her exploits and accomplishments since graduating from Salisbury State can leave one awestruck, and feeling like a bit of an underachiever. She recently culminated a 30-year career in the Army as one of five women generals, after serving stints and racking up myriad achievements from Korea to West Point to Germany and a final stop with the Joint Staff in Washington.

Willis was a Salisbury native when she entered the Teachers College. She was intent on earning a degree so that she could be self-sufficient and Salisbury's practically nonexistent tuition in exchange for a commitment to teach for two years in Maryland was an attractive offer. She remembers Salisbury as being a sleepy, rural town in those days and a wonderful place to grow up. But despite the low key nature of the town, one really had to work for grades at the College, which at that time numbered 800 students. "The professors really challenged you to grow and search for answers" she recalled. For fun there was a drive-in restaurant called "The Oaks," school dances and sporting events. "The most serious things we did was smoke cigarettes in the administration building basement. It was an innocent time compared to today."

Willis taught second grade for a year and a half in North Salisbury Elementary School. She enjoyed the creativity of teaching and witnessing the constant flow of ideas from her students, but felt something was missing in her own education. Her knowledge was from books only, rather than experience, and she longed for the broader picture she was missing. Following a brother who was already in the military, she took "a great leap of faith" and joined the Army in the summer of 1963. And that broader picture she was searching for was soon fulfilled to an extent she could have never imagined.

During basic training at Fort McClellan, AL, Willis learned that she liked the military's organized, forward-looking style and emphasis on professional development, and felt it was the perfect place to further her service-oriented goals. Two-year tours of duty followed in Virginia, Korea, Chicago, Colorado, Alabama, West Point and Germany as Willis developed a growing expertise in large-scale human resource programs and administrative systems management. In South Korea she was the first woman assigned outside of Seoul where she served as an administrative services officer. Willis wanted to go to Vietnam but remarkably there was a waiting list at the time. In Korea she loved the broadening experience of meeting a different culture and the strong esprit de corps amongst the soldiers. Korea had one hard surface road then and they flew more than they drove she recalls. In 1989 Willis returned to Korea for the first time in almost 30 years and was astounded by the changes in the country.

In Chicago Willis was in charge of recruiting women officers during the height of the anti-war movement, 1967-68 and feels fortunate to have never been thrown off of a campus or confronted with insults. When asked if she felt any conflicts over the Vietnam War and her role in the military at that time she replies "the military is subservient to civilian leadership and we were only doing what elected leadership wanted to do. I never felt hatred toward the card-burners. It was a bad situation. Nobody in the military liked the body counts and there was great frustration at being neither fish nor fowl, and being unable to make a clean sweep." She quotes General Colin Powell, whom she later worked closely with on the Joint Staff, "When you decide to do a military intervention you have to understand why you are going in, how you will know when you've accomplished what you wanted, and how you will get back out. Those questions were not answered before we got into Vietnam."

Willis' strengths in personnel management lead to larger and larger responsibilities. After command of the continental Army at Fort Monroe, VA, where Willis was responsible for sustaining the personnel readiness of 320,000 soldiers, she was sent to the Army military personnel center in Washington where she managed the careers of Women's Army Corps members. She enjoyed the teaching, counseling and coaching the job entailed and her success led to a 3 1/2-year role as an advisor to the first female class admitted at West Point. It was an extremely challenging time she recalls. "Out of 176 women admitted that first year, less than 50 graduated. It called on all my skills. The women were constantly hazed and bombarded with put-downs. They were so afraid of standing out as females that many cut their hair off and wouldn't wear make-up or be seen in a skirt. I saw a television show the other day where a woman West Point cadet was interviewed and I was thrilled to see she actually curled her hair and wore a skirt. Women can now be comfortable being themselves there."

During Willis' two-year tenure in Heidelberg, Germany as commander, 1st Personnel Command where she assigned 70,000 annually and supported 74,000 soldiers deployed to Saudi Arabia during Operation Desert Storm, she was selected to be one of the Army's five women generals. It was a thrilling moment when she received the call informing her of the honor, especially after having herself served on selection committees that reviewed 4,000 candidates and selected 36 to make general. When asked what the criteria is for the honor, Willis mentions that all of the candidates are truly exemplary, but those that are selected have a broader experience, vision and ability to motivate. They can see a complex problem, design a program to address the problem and successfully bring it to fruition.

Brigadier General Willis next took charge of her final military post, director of manpower and personnel at the Joint Staff in the Pentagon. There she had personnel command over all the U.S. troops in Europe, numbering 220,000. She was involved in negotiating and developing policy and positions on such complex issues as down-sizing and gays in the military. Working with Chief of Staff Colin Powell was a wonderful experience and she cites his leadership, sense of balance and ability to motivate and empower his staff as a magnificent role model.

For Willis, the most valuable thing she left Salisbury State with was the attitude of the faculty. "The attitude was that growth will take place. There was never a doubt that you would be successful, grow and contribute." Mary Willis has surely lived up to that expectation.

Orientation Program Introduces Students to Cultural Diversity

To say that new students need help adjusting to university life would be an understatement. Almost as much of an understatement as it would be to say that at Salisbury State University, new students have a variety of orientation alternatives.

SSU offers a dozen orientation options in addition to the traditional five-week class. Interested in community service? The STARS program, for Students Taking Action and Responsibility on the Shore, has expanded to five different groups. In addition to the fall and summer Habitat programs and the head start offered to nursing students, STARS: TEACH pairs education majors with mentor teachers and brings them into elementary school classrooms during their first semester at SSU. This new program draws its name from its mission: Tomorrow's Educators Assisting Children.

All new student orientation options take up the subject of cultural and ethnic differences and appreciation; but students who opted for STARS: Cultural Diversity last summer got a closer look—at other races and at themselves. Each day, the group of students, representing a rainbow of ethnic backgrounds themselves, was immersed in the contributions of a different culture.

The 13 students visited the Native American Museum in Millsboro, DE, and the Blacks in Wax Museum in Baltimore. They learned about Hispanic culture and history. They prepared foods they'd probably never tasted before: buffalo stew, sopapillas, chitlins, pig's feet.

The students weren't the only ones to learn something, either. "It confirmed our belief that most students know very little about the contributions African Americans, for example, have made to American history," said coordinator John Fields. Fields is SSU's associate dean for minority affairs and, like the students who participated, he believes that the program should be continued next year.

In the introductory session, one student spoke candidly about the racist attitudes that were part of his upbringing. For him, STARS: Cultural Diversity offered a way to begin to remove blinders that made him uncomfortable with who he was becoming.

But the most eye-opening experience for this group was the day they spent working in the community: at either the Maryland Food Bank, Joseph House Village or the Joseph House Food Center. "Most of these student had never been face-to-face with someone who lived in poverty," Fields said. In their evaluations of the program, according to Fields, all 13 students gave the experience high marks.

The additions to STARS are just of few of the new orientation options that began this year. Five of the choices are academic, focusing on the arts, Eastern Shore ecology, "Natures' Design," wildlife biology and one that offers new students a chance to join the small, close-knit "Learning Community." The group of 25 freshmen and three faculty will work together closely through the semester, especially on three General Education courses: English composition, world civilization and interpersonal communication.

The Learning Community may develop into a support system for the new students who join. That was one goal of the Algonquin canoeing trips: one that students say they've realized. After 11 years, the wilderness options—a cycling trip to Maine's Acadia National Park and the canoe trip to Algonquin Provincial Park in Ontario—are more popular than ever. A second Algonquin trip was added to accommodate the 68 students who signed up this year.

Peer Counselor Claudine Roussel isn't surprised. Roussel had never slept in a tent before and may not have signed up three years ago, had a close friend not recommended it so highly. "I had heard that I'd make a lot of friends that it would make the transition into college easier," she said. "But I didn't expect that I would form such close relationships." Now a junior, Roussel has made three trips, two as a peer counselor. "The people from my Algonquin orientation are still my closest friends."

Senior Mike Baker agreed. An avid camper, he chose this option because he expected he would like it. "But I didn't expect that I'd have such a head start the first week of classes," he said. "I already had 50 friends, knew 16 upperclassmen and 10 or more professors and administrators. I think I probably went through every problem freshmen go through, and I knew I could go to my peer counselor, or (Algonquin coordinator and Guerrier University Center Director) Dave Ganoe or my faculty advisor Linda Benson for help."

While orientation programs are nothing new, there is little doubt that SSU's many options put the University at the head of the class. "I think we are the cutting edge," said orientation co-chair Dr. Gene White. A member of the psychology faculty, White represents SSU at several national conferences on new student orientation. "I don't know of any other school that devotes this much energy to providing so many different programs," he said.

Alumni Contributions To Build Alumni House Exceed $250,000

The Salisbury State University Alumni Association recently announced a campaign to build an Alumni House on recently acquired property on Camden Ave. opposite Holloway Hall. In just two months alumni contributed over $250,000 toward the $500,000 goal to construct the house.

The red brick Georgian-style home will be funded entirely through private contributions from SSU alumni. Architecturally it will bear a resemblance to Holloway Hall while at the same time blending comfortably into the surrounding residential area. Alumni Association representatives anticipate construction to begin in the summer.

"The project has been in the planning stages for over two years," said Alumni Association President Paul Rendine. "We are thrilled that construction is so imminent."

The Alumni House will be home to the administrative offices of the Alumni Relations Office as well as the SSU Foundation staff. The facility will allow for myriad alumni-related events to take place in the home and on the grounds. Class reunions, socials, weddings, teas, committee meetings and other types of alumni activities will be held in the new facility.

Goddard Space Flight Center's Wallops Island Facility, will be conducting upper atmosphere ozone analysis.

The goal of the JOVE program is to make the excitement, challenges and the research opportunities of NASA's space science missions available to a broader spectrum of colleges and universities while at the same time providing opportunities for outreach programs to grade schools and high schools in local communities.

The program is in its fifth year, and 21 universities including Salisbury State were selected this year to participate. There are already 53 universities participating in the program.

The Sea Gull Century, an annual 100-mile fall bicycle ride which takes riders on country roads through beautiful natural splendor of the Eastern Shore, was rated one of the top ten centuries in the country by Bicycling magazine. Last year some 3,000 cyclists from 29 states participated.

Salisbury State's International Students Now Have Place To Call Home

Students gather at the International House.

The first trip away from home can be a bumpy ride. When "home" is across the Atlantic—across the world—it helps to have some guidance along the way.

International students at Salisbury State University now have that support thanks to the newly opened International House. The modest home on College Avenue, next to SSU's Honors House, is symbolic of the programs and services the University has instituted to better welcome students who come there from around the world.

Agata Liszkowska, who directs international student programs for SSU, takes her cues from several sources: the needs of the students she works with, information from the National Association for Foreign Student Affairs, and her own memories as a college student newly arrived in America from Poland.

"I was here alone, with no family in this country," she recalled. "I was not prepared for the American pace of life, the different culture. Many students still have trouble with the differences in educational systems, and the day-to-day routines."

The International House serves as a gathering place where these students can share their experiences as strangers in a strange land. They take trips together to the beach and to nearby cities and help each other learn American customs.

But for many, it's the meals that feature their native cuisine that offer the best cures to homesickness. Wei Hsiung Chen is the resident manager of the International House and one of four students who call it home. Having come here from Taiwan, he finds a welcome reminder of home in unexpected things—like the smell of Chinese food cooking.

Wei—his American friends call him Andrew—first experienced American living as an undergraduate student in California. At SSU, while he works on his M.B.A., he also tries to help Asian students with the adjustment he found difficult a few years ago.

"There is one girl from Malaysia who speaks Chinese," he said. "We can communicate with each other and, since I have a car, I can give her a ride and show her where to find Chinese food. Then she can come here to cook food from home."

"It's nice to hear someone speak Chinese," Andrew says the International House now has the feeling of home. "We all come from different countries," he said. "But here we can all talk to each other."

The International House has long been a goal not only of Liszkowska, but of Associate Dean of Admissions Gary Grodzicki. Grodzicki works with new students who come to SSU from other countries, coordinating their paperwork with immigration authorities and getting support from the diplomats from their homelands. While all of the work is important, none of it is easy—especially for the students.

"Filling out immigration forms is like doing your income taxes," he said. "But more than the help I give them, these students needed a focal point for gathering socially. It will also allow students to get the extra support they might need with studying."

Grodzicki is also excited about the orientation program his colleague has established. "Agata has designed an orientation course that will be a godsend to these students."

The course will be accompanied by a handbook, helping students over hurdles that are invisible to their American classmates.

"The handbook explains everything," Liszkowska said. "Currency, Social Security, driver's licenses, the phone system."

It's valuable information, even for students like Yvonne Downie, who grew up speaking English—but, in her case, in Scotland. Every international student has a story to tell about coming face-to-face with American culture, but Downie's may be the most dramatic.

"In Europe," she explained, "when a policeman stops you on the road, it's polite to get out of the car and greet the officer." When a Delaware trooper pulled her over for speeding, he clearly expected her to stay in her car. When she didn't, the policeman drew his weapon and shouted orders. "He called out 'Hands against the car. Hands against the car,'" she said.

As much as students like Yvonne and Andrew will benefit from this extensive orientation to life in the U.S.A., Liszkowska pointed out that the program is designed to benefit all SSU students. "Our goal," she said, "is to integrate the International House into the campus and integrate campus into the House."

Aging Process: 'Getting Older But Wiser' Observes DiGiovanna in New Book

You roll over in bed one morning, gaze at your lovely wife of 20 years, and notice a hair growing out of her chin.

After living through flower power and bell bottom jeans, Saturday Night Live and Saturday Night Fever you've suddenly started to wonder about the size of your husband's retirement pension.

Meanwhile, he is concerned about the size of his prostate.

Yep, America's baby boomers are now in "the middle years" and beginning to feel it. And many are not happy. Actually, aging starts earlier than fortysomething, "earlier than most people think—around age 20," said Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna, associate professor of biology. DiGiovanna, who helped develop an interdisciplinary minor in gerontology at SSU, is an expert on the aging process. A member of the boomer generation himself, he's not panicking about growing older.

His approach to aging may be unique, however. The college professor has personally confronted the process by writing about it. His new book, called Human Aging: Biological Perspectives, is about to be released by McGraw Hill, Inc. One of the few books in biology commissioned by this publishing giant, McGraw Hill is already planning a second edition.

DiGiovanna had many reasons for writing the book. Surprisingly, despite widespread interest in aging and a rapidly growing elderly population, a dearth of current texts existed for the classroom. With both his children now in college, he also was seeing changes in himself, family and colleagues. "I was growing older and noticing it," he said. And after teaching for two decades he was "in the professional doldrums."

It was time to take a risk and challenge himself. What started as a project to satisfy a personal and professional need became a labor of love. It also offers clues to boomers on how to mature gracefully. "The positive feedback I received from the publishers, the real backing I received from the University for a sabbatical, financial support from the SSU Foundation for travel, encouragement from my family, and the inner feeling of doing something were all rejuvenating. And 'rejuvenation' means 'to be young again.'"

DiGiovanna's book is more than an introduction to the biology of growing old. It looks at nutrition and exercise, as well as the social, economic and psychological aspects of aging. It is a positive and hopeful book. "As we grow older, we grow wiser," said DiGiovanna. "Our view expands. We consider alternatives. We may not be as strong or as quick, so we develop better strategies; we learn to use our resources more effectively. And we cooperate. It's not as bad as people think, and there's much we can do to make it better."

Welsh in Romania On Fulbright

James M. Welsh, associate professor of English, has been awarded a Fulbright grant to Alexander I. Cuza University in Iasi, Romania, the J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board and the United States Information Agency (USIA) announced recently. Welsh has taught English and cinema studies for 22 years at Salisbury State, where he also edits Literature/Film Quarterly.

Welsh is one of approximately 2,000 U.S. grantees who will travel abroad for the 1993 academic year under the Fulbright Program. Established in 1946 under Congressional legislation introduced by former U.S. Sen. J. William Fulbright of Arkansas, the program is designed "to increase mutual understanding between the people of the United States and the people of other countries."

Under the Fulbright Program, some 5,000 grants are awarded each year to American students, teachers and scholars to study, teach and conduct research around the world, and to foreign nationals to engage in similar activities in the United States. Individuals are selected on the basis of academic and professional qualifications, plus their ability and willingness to share ideas and experiences with people of diverse cultures.

More than 190,000 "Fulbrighters"—over 68,000 from the United States and 122,000 from abroad—have participated in

Republican House Members Visit Campus

SSU hosted the yearly retreat of the The Congressional Institute from January 27-29. Some 159 Republican members of the U.S. House of Representatives and guests attended including (pictured here) Maryland First District Rep. Wayne Gilchrest with arm in sling, and Minority Whip Newt Gingrich, far right. The Congressmen were housed in University residence halls (St. Martin and Chesapeake) and fed by University Dining Services. According to representatives of The Congressional Institute, SSU was chosen from among 40 other colleges and universities within a three-hour drive of Washington, D.C.

Basile Named Director Of Galleries on Campus

Kenneth Basile, the director of development at WSCL, was recently named director of university galleries at SSU.

Basile, 48, who was director of the Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art for nine years, will be in charge of SSU's University Gallery in Fulton Hall and the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center.

"Mr. Basile is uniquely qualified (for directing the galleries)," said Dr. Bellavance, "in that he has both academic credentials and experience, as well as practical experience in membership development and grant writing."

"Our primary emphasis will be to enhance and to enrich the academic and cultural experiences for our University community," said Bellavance. "But it is my hope that we will also serve the community at large."

Opera Written by Student Performed in Fulton Theatre

The premiere performance of Afraid of Nothing, an opera written by SSU student Tim Whittemore, opens Thursday, February 10. The opera will be performed along with A Hand of Bridge by Samuel Barber, and The Women and La Divina both by Pasatieri. The four chamber operas are the culmination of the opera workshop at Salisbury State directed by Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer with vocal coach Dr. Duane Karna. Piano accompanist is Scot Hawkins.

Whittemore's opera has been over five years in the making. It began as a small chamber piece written for a tuba recital while he was a student at the University of Maryland College Park. That composition used an original text about dealing with sorrow without becoming numb emotionally.

After transferring to Salisbury State that first text gave birth to the libretto of Afraid of Nothing. Having completed the libretto, Whittemore began private composition studies with Dr. Ray Zeigler, professor of music at SSU. In this course of study Whittemore was introduced to computer software that clearly benefited the composition of the opera which is a combination of live piano and computer-produced orchestra.

Afraid of Nothing involves four characters whose lives are deeply affected when John is drafted to war. The opera features a split-stage to show both the war and homefront simultaneously as the characters come to terms with the reality of the situation. A suicide results and forces the true depth of the characters' relationships. Despite the tragedy the overall message of the opera is an affirmation of life. "This is a direct result of my own attempts to come to terms with the horrors of the world," said Whittemore.

The SSU production of Afraid of Nothing consists of the second of two acts. Whittemore is currently working on finishing portions of act one and the last scene as well as preparing to release a CD with his band Big Blow and the Bushwackers. He may be working on a short comic opera in the future.

Afraid of Nothing can be seen along with three chamber operas at SSU's Fulton Theatre on February 10-12, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, February 13, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $5, $3 for seniors and students. Tickets are free for students, faculty and staff.

Biology

Applications for two 10-month, tenure-track appointments as assistant professor of biology with beginning dates of August 15 are now being accepted. A Ph.D. in biological sciences is required for each position.

One position requires a demonstrated expertise in invertebrate biology, the other requires a demonstrated expertise in plant ecology. Successful candidates must be able to participate in the instruction of introductory biology courses for majors and non-majors and upper division experiences for majors. Although teaching at the undergraduate level is the prime focus, it is expected that the successful candidate will actively pursue scholarly research. Salary is competitive and commensurate with experience.

A complete application must contain a current curriculum vitae, transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate work and three letters of recommendation. Deadline for receipt of application materials is February 25. Address correspondence to Dr. William Grogan, Chair, Invertebrate Biologist Search Committee, or Dr. Dan Sistrunk, Chair, Plant Ecologist Search Committee, Department of Biological Sciences, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. Department of Immigration and Naturalization Service authority to accept employment in this country. Demonstrated ability to communicate effectively in English, both oral and written, is essential.

Chemistry

The Department of Chemistry invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level beginning in the fall. A Ph.D. in chemistry and a strong commitment to teaching research at the undergraduate level are required. Teaching duties include general chemistry and General Education courses.

Applicants in any area of chemistry will be considered, but preference will be given to candidates with expertise complementing that of the department and with experience mentoring undergraduate research. Salary is commensurate with qualifications.

Send resume, three letters of recommendations and description of teaching and research goals by March 1 to Dr. E.T. Shaffer, Chemistry Search Committee, Chemistry Department, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. The Department of Chemistry at SSU is ACS certified and the University is a fully accredited, comprehensive institution.

Sous Chef

SSU seeks a professional sous chef to assist the executive chef in planning and directing the activities of the dining services kitchen in preparation of high quality production and presentation to include board program, catering and cash operations. The position requires an individual with experience as a department head in multifaceted kitchen operation serving large volumes. The person hired will be directly responsible for production guidelines estimating the scheduling and staffing of kitchen staff on a shift-by-shift basis (approximately 20 full-time and 20 part-time).

The successful candidate will hold a degree from an accredited culinary school, a minimum of two years as a department head and working chef certificate. Salary in the high $20,000s and has a full state benefit package.

Interested applicants should send a resume to Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801. Screening begins February 9 and continues until the piece is filled.

Geography/Regional Planning

A new tenure-track assistant professor/instructor position is available for fall in the Geography and Regional Planning Department. A Ph.D. is preferred; A.B.D. with dissertation in final stages will be considered.

Candidates with a strong background in geographic information systems/remote sensing are sought. Individuals should also have an interest in one or more of the following areas: water resources/hydrology, resource management and environmental/land use planning. Candidates must be committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching and directing/mentoring undergraduate research. The ability to communicate effectively in English, both orally and in writing, is essential.

Salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience. Send letter of application, curriculum vitae, transcripts and three letters of recommendation. Review of applications begins March 15 and continues until the position is filled. Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Authorization to accept U.S. employment.

Apply to J. Chapman McGrew, Chair, Faculty Search Committee, Department of Geography and Regional Planning Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Phone 543-6457; Fax 548-3318.

Athletics Training

SSU seeks an individual for a tenure-track position in athletics training. The person will work cooperatively with the head athletics trainer and the athletics training track coordinator in the supervision and instruction of student athletics trainers. Additional duties in the daily management of a competitive NCAA Division III athletics program will be assigned.

The successful candidate must have NATA certification, a minimum of three years of experience in athletics training, at minimum a master's degree in athletics training or related field, and be experienced in basic first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation. The candidate must show a proficiency in one or more of the areas of care, prevention, evaluation, rehabilitation and management of athletic injuries, assessment and/or administration/supervision of athletics training.

Rank is at the instructor level and salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience. Send letter of application, current vitae, official transcripts and names/addresses of three references to Chair, Search Committee, Athletics Training, Department of Physical Education, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be accepted immediately; the search remains open until the position is filled.

Automatic Teller Machine (ATM)

A Maryland National Bank automatic teller machine (ATM) is located at the north entrance of the Guerrieri University Center. The ATM will accept MOST, Cirrus, Plus, Visa, MasterCard, American Express and Discover cards. The ATM does not accept deposits. Checks are not cashed anywhere on campus.

Students with a college account at Maryland National Bank can make ATM transactions free of charge.

For information on how to get a Maryland National Bank ATM card and how to open a college account with unlimited ATM use, please contact Patricia Parker at the South Salisbury branch at 742-8671.

If banking with a financial institution other than Maryland National Bank, that institution may charge for using the on-campus ATM.

CLEP Test

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) test will be given on Wednesday, March 16. The registration deadline for the test is February 16. For further information contact the Admissions Office at 543-6161.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Alumni House Campaign Reaches Halfway Mark

Ann Miller

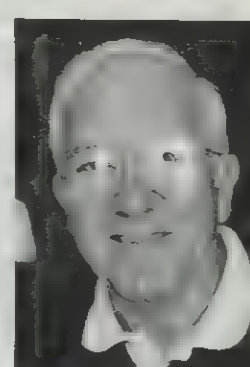

Flo Mabe

Walt Brittingham

Billye Sarbanes

Dr. Goldsborough Tyler

The SSU Alumni House Campaign has reached the halfway point in its $500,000 goal, according to Anne Miller, class of 1981 and president of the SSU Alumni Association.

With nearly $250,000 received so far in pledges and donations, the campaign's committee has begun the search for an architect for the new 7,500-square-foot facility planned for a three-acre site on Camden Avenue opposite Holloway Hall.

Throughout the campaign, several alumni have played key roles in the fund-raising process. Flo Mabe ('70) and Walter Brittingham ('55) are co-chairs of the Major Gifts Division which includes contributions of $5,000 or more.

The Special Gifts Division is chaired by Billye Sarbanes ('62) and includes gifts ranging from $500 to $5,000. Dr. Goldsborough Tyler ('41) is chair of the Heritage Gifts Division which includes gifts that are made through a will, trust, life insurance policy or other deferred gift plan.

Numerous named giving opportunities exist for donors to dedicate rooms or areas of the building.

The new building will be the center of reunions and alumni meetings as well as headquarters for the SSU Alumni Association, the Office of Alumni Relations and the SSU Foundation.

All funds for the new building will come from private donations by alumni and friends. No state monies are involved in the project.

Look at U.S. Cities Opens Spring Lecture Series

Dr. Lynn Curtis, president of the Milton S. Eisenhower Foundation, opens a spring lecture series that looks at critical issues as America approaches the 21st century.

Curtis will discuss "Investing in Children and Youth: Reconstructing Our Cities" on Wednesday, February 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

"Twenty five years after the 1968 Kerner Riot Commission, America has progressed even further toward 'two societies, separate and unequal,'" said Curtis. "Yet in large part, we already know what works for a comprehensive policy for children, youth and the inner city—including demand side drug prevention."

"We need to replicate what already works on a 'scale equal to the dimensions of the problem,'" to quote the (Kerner) Commission," said Curtis. "The issue today is not the 'Boyz in the Hood,' but the Boys on the Hill. We need political leadership in Congress to break the gridlock, identify the resources and reverse what many see to be Congress' betrayal of American democracy."

The Milton S. Eisenhower Foundation, created in 1981, is a youth investment and social development version of the Local Initiatives Support Corporation and James Rouse's Enterprise Foundation. Curtis has developed what Commerce, Justice Appropriations Subcommittee Senate Reports have called a "unique socioeconomic formula" to finance and duplicate successful inner-city, community-run programs.

The programs simultaneously reduce unemployment, school drop outs, crime, drugs and welfare dependency. The initiatives often rehabilitate housing and use community-based policing to assist in economic development that generates jobs for inner-city youth.

Typical neighborhoods for Foundation youth investment and community reconstruction have been South Central Los Angeles, the South Side of Chicago, the South Bronx, Southeast Washington, D.C., Liberty City in Miami and the barrios of San Juan.

The overall series, sponsored by SSU's Faculty and Cultural Events Committee, aims at painting the intellectual landscapes of the 21st century: health care and science; politics, international and domestic; education; and the shape of the planet. Issues addressed will range from the future of cities to the completion of the Human Genome Project, reproductive technologies at the beginning and end of life and the future shape of business and education.

All lectures are free and the public is invited. For more information or to get a comprehensive schedule of all lectures and cultural activities taking place at SSU this spring, please call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Homecoming Concert for Chamber Choir

A Germany Homecoming Concert will be performed Monday and Tuesday, February 14 and 15, at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall on the campus.

Twenty-four students, members of the Chamber Choir, traveled to Germany with Klaudia Thompson, instructor of modern languages, and Dr. Duane Karna, director of choral activities, during January's winter term and were in residence for two weeks at the Bavarian Music Academy in Marktoberdorf, Germany. Concerts were given in Bern Beuren and Marktoberdorf during the choir's stay with additional sightseeing in Salzburg, Austria and Munich, Germany.

The students also had the opportunity to sing

in the famous Wieskirche and the Hall of Mirrors at the Herrenchiemsee Palace outside of Munich. The students also studied German language and culture during their residency at the Music Academy.

The concert program will feature two motets from the Renaissance, "Adoramus Te" by Palestrina and "Cantate Domino" by Pitoni; a setting of the scriptural text, "First Corinthians 13"; "Four Motets" by Aaron Copland; two a cappella choral works by Vaclav Nelyhbel; American folksongs; and spirituals.

The performance is free and the public is invited. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

'Treasure the Chesapeake' Earth Day Celebration

Friday, April 22, is the 24th anniversary of Earth Day—a day that individuals and groups across the United States dedicate to honoring the wealth and diversity of our country's natural resources; a day of participation in environmental cleanups, fairs and festivals; and school and neighborhood educational campaigns.

Maryland's Earth Day initiative this year is titled "Treasure the Chesapeake," a statewide celebration beginning April 22 and concluding Sunday, May 1. Over the course of the week, citizens will be urged to take advantage of opportunities to support the Chesapeake Bay cleanup, through involvement in hands-on volunteer events, education and informational mediums, and other activities. This three-part observance will consist of:

—A citizen volunteer weekend called "Give a Day For the Bay" (April 23-24) that encourages people to repair the damage done to the environment by planting trees, cleaning streams, painting storm drains with "Don't Dump, Chesapeake Bay Drainage," cleaning up illegal dump sites, properly disposing of hazardous household materials, as well as sponsoring other events.

—A Bay Education Week for both children and adults (April 25-29) that focuses on hands-on activities in all Maryland schools, field trips and opportunities to join environmental organizations and activities people can become involved in to "Treasure the Chesapeake."

—A fun Saturday of "Bayfests" in all state parks (April 30) featuring picnics, environmental exhibits, nature walks and other events that blend instruction with entertainment.

The culmination of the week will be Bay Day, May 1, and the annual Bay Bridge Walk.

Ceramic Students Should Pick Up Pieces

Students who took ceramics last semester should pick up by February 14 any work left in the studio. After that date, the pieces become the property of the Art Department.

Children's Literature Conference Is February 19

Bill Martin, Jr., author of Brown Bear, Brown Bear and other children's books, is a featured speaker at the upcoming Children's Literature Conference at SSU.

Sponsored by the SSU Education Department, the conference is on Saturday, February 19, from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. on campus. It is designed to provide an opportunity for teachers, librarians, students and parents to become better acquainted with children's literature through presentations by a variety of authors, educators, librarians, storytellers and enthusiasts of literature for children. Instructional uses and applications are emphasized.

The keynote speaker is Dr. Elinor Ross, professor of education at Tennessee Technological University and Phi Delta Kappa author and lecturer, who will discuss "Children's Literature Across the Curriculum." Ross is the author of more than 50 articles and 12 textbooks.

Martin, who has written instructional materials for children as well as books, speaks during lunch beginning at 1 p.m. Some of his other books include Chicka Chicka Boom Boom, Knots on a Counting Rope, Listen to the Rain and Polar Bear.

The conference features numerous presentations for attendees to choose from: "Taking the Classroom Home" with Dr. Carolyn Bowden; "Storytelling: How To Use and Enjoy the Oral Tradition" with Raggatha Calentine; "Sing, Spell, Read and Write" with Vida L. and Jeannette C. Daly; "Authors, Authors, Authors" with Kimberly Doggett; "Write?...Right!" with Dr. Bruce Foster; "Games and Multicultural Literature" with Dr. Roland and Susan Frank; "I See a Song: Music in the Classroom Through Children's Literature" with Kathleen Jacobikama; "New Picture Books" with Marilyn Kieffaber; "Becoming an Author" with Sharon Miner; "Dare To Be Different" with Cindy Orban and Sallie Barker; "Enhancing Mathematical Power Through Literature" with Dr. Debra Panian; and "Assateague Island of the Wild Ponies" with Larry Points.

The cost to attend the conference is $20 which includes lunch. The cost to full-time undergraduate students is $15. The registration deadline is February 10. Due to limited space, there will be no on-site registration.

For more information or registration materials please call the Education Department at 543-6280.

Ceramic Artist Displays Work In Atrium Gallery Exhibit

Ernest Satchell

Ernest Satchell, an area ceramic artist and university professor, displays his newest work in the exhibit "Hot Earth in Cool Places" February 10-March 4. The exhibit of large stoneware vessels with richly embellished surfaces is in the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center Monday-Saturday from 11 a.m.-4 p.m.

and Sunday from noon-4 p.m. Satchell, visual arts coordinator at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, received his degrees in art education and ceramics at Towson State University and currently teaches jewelry sculpture and ceramics at UMES. In addition to teaching, he has exhibited his ceramics throughout the Eastern Shore, as well as Baltimore and other locations in Maryland.

"Hot Earth in Cool Places" will consist of life-sized stoneware pottery with reduction glazes. Most will have classical, functional shapes with richly decorated surfaces, both incised and applied. Satchell's ongoing concern for human values will be of considerable importance in the exhibit.

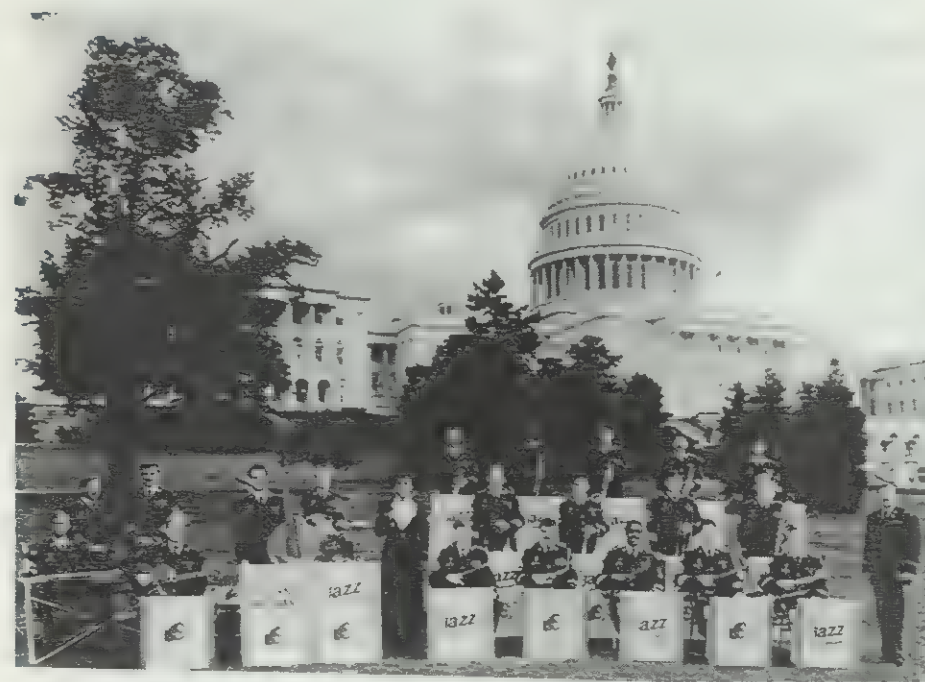

"Art for me has been the one means at my disposal to draw attention to basic wrongs that have been perpetrated against the peoples of the world through war, famine, disease, ignorance, indifference and racism," said Satchell. Satchell will be available at the opening to share his philosophy with others on Thursday, February 10, from 4-6 p.m.

For more information on this and upcoming exhibits in the Atrium Gallery call 543-6006.

Student Handbook At Dean of Students Office

The Office of the Dean of Students has published a Student Handbook for the 1993-94 academic year. The handbook includes information on campus programs and services, student organizations and community resources. The handbook also features a 1993-94 calendar that includes intramural sign-up deadlines, athletic events, special events on campus and important academic deadlines.

Handbooks are available at the Dean of Students Office and Guerrieri University Center information desk during the year.

Jazz Ambassadors Perform Free Concert

The Jazz Ambassadors of the world-travelled U.S. Army Field Band present a free concert on Thursday, February 10, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Co-sponsors for the event are The (Salisbury) Daily Times, SSU and the SSU ROTC detachment.

The Jazz Ambassadors from Washington, D.C. is a select group of military musicians that use its talents to bring the Army image to the American public.

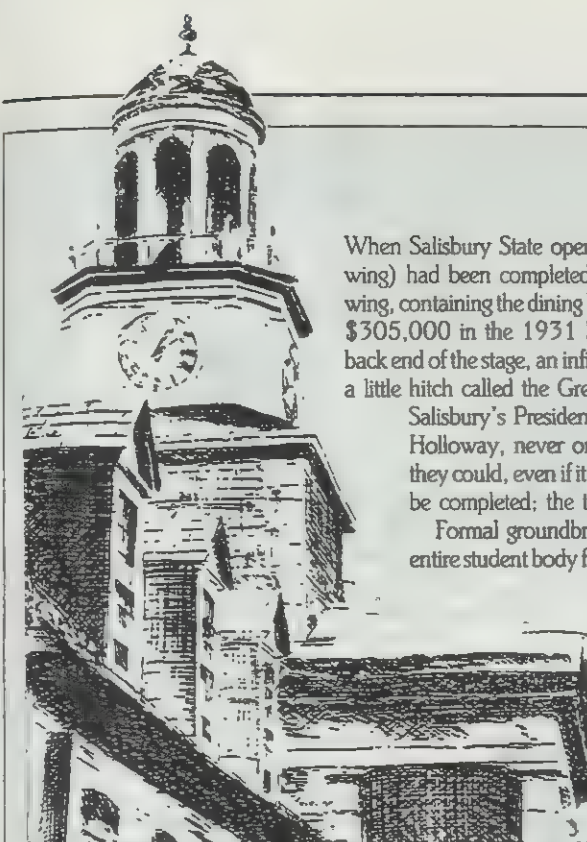

Although admission to the concert is free, patrons are asked to bring a donation of nonperishable food for distribution to the area's needy by the Maryland Food Bank, Salisbury chapter.

Salisbury Zoo Seeks Volunteer Staff

Concerned about the future of wildlife on our planet and want to do something about it? Then maybe the Salisbury Zoo is the place for you. The zoo is looking for a dedicated staff of volunteers to serve as educators and share the stories of the animals with the public.

Coffee hours for interested individuals are on Tuesday, February 15, and Wednesday, February 23, at 10 a.m. in the zoo education building. Training classes begin March 7. Contact the zoo at 742-2640 for more information.

The Great Hall by Sylvia Bradley

When Salisbury State opened as the Normal School in 1925 only the north wing (now the Perdue School wing) had been completed; the center section was opened in 1928, and the ground breaking for the south wing, containing the dining hall and kitchen did not occur until February 1932. Plans had been made to seek $305,000 in the 1931 budget to complete the building as originally planned, including the gymnasium and back end of the stage, an infirmary, dining hall and kitchen, social room and student bedrooms. Unfortunately a little hitch called the Great Depression intervened, and in January 1931 Governor Albert Ritchie informed

Salisbury's President Holloway that only $200,000 would be requested for construction. President Holloway, never one to accept defeat easily, announced that they would proceed to build as much as they could, even if it meant only the first floor and possibly only exterior walls of the south wing would be completed; the third floor dorm rooms and the second floor infirmary would simply have to wait.

Formal groundbreaking ceremonies were held, therefore, in March 1932 with the faculty and the entire student body forming a half circle around the spot where the Social Room fireplace would be. In December of that same year, the south wing was opened while a rain, snow, sleet and wind storm raged outside!

The room now called the Great Hall, opened to the second floor where a balcony ringed the center opening, served as the College's dining hall from 1933 through August 1966. Paneled walls, tile floor, plaster ceiling with molded decorative rosettes in the style of Adams, all were meant to evoke a sense of dignity, formality and elegance. Entrance to the kitchen cafeteria-serving counter was through a narrow door; exit on the other side of the rear wall was through a similar door. During dinner the sights and sounds of the kitchen could be completely closed out. During the 1930s and 1940s a vase of fresh flowers sat on each cloth-covered table. A warning bell sounded in the dorm rooms at 5:20 p.m., and the dinner bell rung at 5:30 p.m. signaled the opening of the doors from the Social Room and students' entrance into the dining room. Everyone stood until grace was said by a volunteer at each table. During the 1930s, for four evenings of every seventh week of the school year dinner was served by students who alternately volunteered for the task. During the rest of the weeks dinner was served cafeteria style. Anyone who failed to make the 5:30 setting did not eat.

Occasionally the dining hall would be used for special dining functions. In the 1930s, for example, a highlight of the year was the May Day celebration. A May queen and king were chosen and the court included most beautiful girl, honor student or Miss SNC, best athlete, most literary, highest ranking junior and highest ranking senior. Elementary school children filled parts as jesters and attendants. On the night of May Day ceremonies everyone would attend a special queen's dinner, wearing formal dress, "to do honor to the queen."

Overseeing the students' behavior in the Social Room and Dining Hall was the social director, Miss Ruth Powell. Miss Powell was the all-around health nurse, director of social activities, dorm mother, kitchen supervisor and generally was in charge of most non-academic affairs. This included supervising the elementary school children who attended school in the campus school in the east end of the north wing. Elementary school children also ate lunches in the college dining hall, and it was Miss Powell, whom they called "That Ruth woman!" who saw to it they ate all their lunch. Failure to do so brought a spanking—which explains why so many little boys came home from school with their pockets stuffed with mashed potatoes and peas!

The Christmas Candlelighting ceremony started by "Miss Ruth" in the College's first years was moved to the Social Room in the 1930s; by the '50s when attendance had grown too large for the Social Room, it was moved into the dining hall. The College Chorus carried the only lighted candles and stood on the east end balcony overlooking the dining hall to sing carols.

There were no dorm rooms for men until 1947-48, but many male students ate all their meals at the college and roomed in nearby homes. For them and for the girls, there were strict regulations governing "appropriate" dress in the dining room. Shorts and gym suits were never to be worn in the dining hall; women might wear socks at breakfast and lunch, but had to wear hose at dinner time; men could wear sweaters with sleeves at breakfast and lunch, but coats were required at all evening meals. Although the '50s brought new styles for women, slacks, shorts, riding breeches and culottes all were forbidden in the dining hall, Social Room, or any classes except physical education. Girls might go to breakfast or lunch with their hair wrapped in a turban, but turbans at dinner were forbidden except on the evening of special dances, parties and concerts. Hose were required always for Sunday dinners and special occasions. Violations of these rules earned the offender progressive punishments, most of which dealt with "campusing," or restrictions to campus. More than three offenses might result in referral to the SGA Executive Board for action.

"Miss Ruth" retired in June 1946 and the new dietician, Mrs. Lillian Webster, took over the alcove next to the front outside door as her office, closed off from the rest of the room with a screen. For a brief time in the early 50s, some of the dinnertime formality was suspended. But in 1956, at the suggestion of the acting deans of men and women and the dietician, family style dinner service was reinstated. The purpose of the change, it was explained was "to provide...an enrichment in the day-to-day business of living." Also in the 1950s, dances were held in the dining hall, rather than the gym (behind the stage in Holloway Hall). These were always the formal dances associated with holidays, such as Valentine's Dance or Harvest Ball. Usually there was an elected queen and attendants and a special "throne" would be set up in the end of the room and flowers and decorations would be brought in the room. Never would anything be nailed into the paneling, though.

In September 1966 the new dining hall-student union, appropriately named the Ruth Powell Dining Hall, was opened and the old quarters in the south wing were assigned new duties. The kitchen became the infirmary. (During the '30s and '40s the infirmary had been on the second floor over the kitchen.) The dining hall was converted into a gallery for rotating art exhibits and was occasionally used for large meetings on campus. One of the last of these was the April 1968 meeting of the board of trustees when it made the hotly protested decision to close the Campus School at SSC. At the public portion of that meeting the old dining hall was filled to capacity with politicians, members of the community, faculty and students, all loudly objecting to the board's decision. Shortly after that, the Ward Wildfowl Museum, just beginning to organize and looking for a home, moved into the dining hall, and it became home to the Ward Museum until 1992.

Now it is the Great Hall. But, it always was.

Sylvia Bradley is an assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and co-director of the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture located in the Power Building. She is the author of a book chronicling the history of Salisbury State and an alumna of the institution. Throughout the academic year she writes about SSU's history and heritage.

Public Affairs Producer Joins WSCL Staff

Julianne Welby of Hyde Park, MA, has joined the staff of WSCL (89.5 FM) as public affairs producer. A recent graduate of Fordham University, Welby, a member of the National Honor Society, majored in communications. Over the past year she has worked as a newscaster and public affairs manager at WFUV in New York City.

Welby has had extensive experience as a journalist working on several university publications and producing a number of interview and magazine format radio programs.

At WSCL she continues with her journalism activities as WSCL's morning host of National Public Radio's Morning Edition. Included in her program are interviews and commentaries with and about individuals living on Delmarva and activities and organizations operating in the region.

Welby hopes to bring to the peninsula an alternative outlet for regional news and information that residents of the area previously had no access to.

Welby said, "News about crime and community problems is more than adequately covered by the other news media operating on Delmarva."

"I would like to provide positive information on the lives and activities of the residents of Maryland's Eastern Shore and Delaware," Welby said. "I want the audience to be as enthusiastic about my stories as I am about producing them."

Morning Edition is broadcast Monday-Friday from 6-9 a.m.

Psych Students Attend Conference in Atlanta

Dr. Adeline Tryon, director of the Child Study Center and assistant professor of psychology, traveled recently to the annual meeting of the Association for the Advancement of Behavior Therapy in Atlanta.

While in the past she has concentrated on presenting papers on childhood aggression at this meeting, this year she concentrated on introducing three SSU psychology seniors and one SSU psychology graduate student to the art of conventioning.

The students not only attended symposia of direct relevance to their work in the Child Study Center, but also sought out conversations with faculty and graduate student representatives of several graduate psychology programs to which they are applying. Tryon also attended an advanced methodology seminar on sequential analysis, a statistical tool that will help when analyzing the sequences of mother-child conversations collected on videotape last summer by her research team.

The students were delighted to run into Dr. Ed Delaney, also from SSU's Psychology Department, as they paused for a foot and burger break. Clearly, a good and informative time was had by all.

Travel to the convention was supported in part by awards to each of the students from the Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

Art Department Sale Raises Some $3,000

Hats off to the Art Department. Nearly $3,000 was earned at the recent 10th annual Scholarship Fund Sale held at the Guerrieri University Center during December.

Thanks to the continued support of area artists and University students, the Art Department is pleased to announce the availability of two $300-$500 scholarships to be awarded to incoming freshman majoring in art. Portfolios and applications for these scholarships will be due by mid-March.

The scholarship program is designed for incoming students who show exceptional artistic skill. Applications involve a portfolio review in at least two media and evidence of academic achievement. Students first must be admitted to the University to qualify.

Please contact Marie Cavallaro, Art Department chair, at 543-6270 for more information regarding scholarship applications and further information about art careers.

President's, Chancellor's Staff Councils Seek Input

The SSU President's Staff Advisory Council meets monthly to discuss issues of concern to SSU staff at the local and state levels. The council also coordinates activities with the University of Maryland System Council for University System Staff.

Any staff member with questions or concerns about campus or state personnel policies or other issues should contact one of the council members listed below. The council will discuss questions or concerns with Dr. Bellavance or the Personnel Office at regular meetings.

SSU staff council representatives are: Robert Meigel, Physical Plant; Lesley Dayton, Blackwell Library; Dennis Bradford, Public Safety Office; Linda Abresch, Math Department; Barry King, Dean of Students Office; Jackie Eberis, Financial Services Office; Jeanette Wolinski, Computer Services Office; and Jerry Waldron, Registrar's Office.

Minutes from the President's Staff Council meeting and the Chancellor's Council for University System Staff are on reserve for staff review in Blackwell Library at the circulation desk. During February the Chancellor's Council constitution and by-laws are also on reserve for staff review and comments.

The Chancellor's Council consists of staff from 13 UMS institutions. The council meets monthly and advises the chancellor on personnel issues relevant to UMS staff. The council is currently monitoring legislation which effects staff and reviewing a proposed pay plan for all system staff.

Gordy, Fields At Diversity Conference

University administrators Lawanda Dockins Gordy, assistant director of Guerrieri University Center operations, and John H. Fields, associate dean of students for minority affairs, will be presenters at the fifth National Conference on the Advancement of Student Diversity in Washington, D.C., March 3-6.

They will be conducting a workshop titled, "Cultural Diversity: A Unique Pre-college Orientation Program." The program was successfully piloted at SSU last summer. Fifteen incoming freshmen were invited to participate in the one-week residential program which exposed them to a variety of cultures through non-traditional classroom methods. Gordy and Fields will be sharing the nuts and bolts of this creative program with college and university representatives from across the country.

Pi Gamma Mu Accepts Nominations

Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society in the social sciences, is accepting nominations for initiation into the prestigious society.

The requirements for membership are as follows: is a junior, senior or graduate students in the upper 35 percent of the class; at least 21 semester hours in one or more of the five core areas (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology, international relations); is in some other social science disciplines such as social psychology, criminal justice or human geography; and has a grade point average of "B" or better.

Students who meet those qualifications please contact Dr. Greg Ference, Dr. Clara Small or the History Department Office by February 8.

Martha and Charles Fulton of Snow Hill (second and third from left, front row) met recently with many of the University students who are recipients of Fulton School of Liberal Arts Scholarships. The Fultons endowed the School of Liberal Arts in 1989 with a $2.5 million gift that allows Salisbury State to offer scholarships to outstanding liberal arts majors.

Chemistry Prof Experiment Could Turn Soybeans into Nylon

There's an old saying: "You can't get a silk purse from a sow's ear." A chemist on Maryland's Eastern Shore, however, is convinced he can get nylon from soybeans.

Dr. Fred Kundell, the Chemistry Department chair at SSU, says he's been bombarding edible soybean oil with oxygen molecules—a process called "catalytic oxidation"—in an effort to produce "nonanedioic acid," a basic component of nylon.

For much of 1993, Kundell and a senior undergraduate student, Keith Helinsky, have been running some basic tests which indicated to them that the reaction would work. Now they're testing which temperatures and pressures produce the best results.

A $3,000 grant of checkoff funds from the Maryland Soybean Board is helping Kundell continue his work. Other support for his research—in the form of equipment and supplies—has come from Perdue Farms Inc.'s local soybean oil refinery and DuPont, he said. While he's grateful to them for their support, he needed cash to continue his work.

"We were literally running out of money," Kundell said, "so we're very grateful for the checkoff funds. This is not a terribly expensive project, but the money will be used for chemicals and analyses."

His project will be re-evaluated by the Soybean Board by February to determine if his progress merits further funding. "The key criteria for using soybean oil for the production of nylon is price," he said. "We have to make it competitive."

If Kundell's experiments are workable at industrial levels, the payoff could be realized by more than soybean growers.

Today, most commercial nylon is made from petroleum products. Soybean-based nylon, because it's made from a renewable resource, would be more environmentally sound, he explained.

The soybean-based nylon will have different properties from today's petroleum-based nylon as well. "For example, it will be more stain resistant and it will have a lower melting point—which may or may not be an advantage," Kundell pointed out. "It will also be more elastic. The different characteristics mean, under different situations, the new nylon may have different applications."

There's no way of telling how much this technology can increase demand for soybeans this early in the game, he noted.

Arts Scholarships Offered to Students

Applications are now being accepted for the 1994-95 Herbert D. Brent Arts Scholarships, which are offered to high school seniors or current college students who show promise in the arts, either visual, performing, media, communication or written. Deadline for application receipt is Friday, March 4, at 5 p.m.

Up to $2,000 in scholarships will be awarded. Decisions are based on written applications, personal interviews, and either a portfolio or audition before a panel of professional artists.

The Brent Arts Scholarship Fund was established by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council in 1982 in memory of local arts patron Hebert D. Brent. Fiscal management of the fund is now under the Community Foundation of the Eastern Shore, and the scholarships are awarded by SWAC.

To be eligible for the award, a student must be a legal resident of Worcester, Wicomico or Somerset county who will be attending an accredited college in 1994-95, or else be a freshman, sophomore or junior currently enrolled at Salisbury State or the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

For a copy of the guidelines and an application form students may visit the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center or call SWAC at 543-ARTS.

Dining Services Offers Varied Semester Menu

University Dining Services sponsors an array of special dining opportunities for the campus community this spring.

The ever popular Brunch on the Hill features a varied menu typically including steamship round of beef, whole tom-turkey, Belgian waffle bar, pasta and shrimp salads, homebaked breads and freshly baked cakes and pies. Held at the Guerrieri University Center, Brunch on the Hill dates this semester are March 5, April 9 and May 14, all Saturdays from 11 a.m.-2 p.m. The cost is $7.95 for adults and $3.95 for children; credit cards are not accepted. Reservations are not required but will be entertained for parties of seven or more.

Six Buck Nights, where everything in the Gulls Nest goes for $1, are scheduled, all Wednesdays from 9 p.m.-12:30 a.m.: February 9, 16 and 23, March 9, April 6 and May 11. A DJ provides entertainment.

University Dining Services' initial Gourmet Dinner Series was so popular last fall that this spring's installments are already sold out. All 120 seats are gone for the series which opens with an Italian theme of February 18. SSU student Pam Taylor will entertain that night with an opera solo.

Other nights in the series and themes are March 11 (English), April 15 (French) and May 13 ("Hi Tech" or "Futuristic").

The Gourmet Dining Series is educationally driven with student servers in the catering department attending seminars about the culture, foods, beverages and techniques of food service for the featured country. In addition to the direct experience students receive working with customers at the tables, students are also involved with food preparation and in organizing appropriate entertainment for the evening.

University Dining Services sponsors many contests during the course of each semester and last fall Cynthia Lasner of Severn, MD, and Michele Howard of Mechanicsville, MD, previous winners at Bingo nights, won a grand prize drawing of a trip to the Bahamas.

For more information about University Dining Services programs during the semester call 543-6167.

Ference Published In Nebraska Journal

The latest edition of Nebraska History contains an article by Dr. Gregory C. Ference, assistant professor of history in the Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

Ference's article, "Slovak Immigration to the United States in Light of American, Czech, and Slovak History," explains the causes of Slovak emigration and the subsequent relationship by the immigrants and their descendants to the Old Country from the 1870s to the end of the Czechoslovakia on January 1, 1993. This piece, the only article focusing on the Slovaks, is one of 12 articles which cover history, literary criticism, cultural ethnicity, material culture, anthropology and comparative linguistics in the sold out special edition titled "The Czech-American Experience."

Besides Ference, scholars from across the United States and the Czech Republic contributed pieces. The articles grew out of presentations made at the Symposium on Czech Immigration held at the University of Nebraska at Lincoln in the fall of 1992. Nebraska was the logical place for the conference and the special edition of the journal since the history of Nebraska owes much to immigrants, especially the Czechs who were among the most numerous to the state.

Learn T'ai-chi Ch'uan at Home With Fusaro

It may be the answer to all your New Year's resolutions: a way to work toward fitness of body and mind without overspending your budget.

Dr. Ben Fusaro has a new instructional video for learning T'ai-chi Ch'uan at home. Unlike other such videos, Fusaro's focuses on teaching, rather than just demonstrating the "soft" martial art.

Dating back to the late 13th century, T'ai-chi Ch'uan is an ancient Chinese system of physical culture. It is different from the more well-known martial arts of Judo and Karate, whose practitioners concentrate their strength for bursts of power. T'ai-chi Ch'uan is a diffused mediational activity. Its goal is health and relaxation, rather than self defense.

Today, Tai-chi is the routine exercise of many of China's 800 million people. The series of movements, when performed well, are somewhat like a solo dance, and suggest swimming in air. The student seeks relaxation of the body and calmness of mind. Yet, for physical fitness, T'ai-chi is ideal: without strain or risk of injury, it exercises the three pumps of the circulatory system: the legs, the diaphragm and the heart.

Fusaro first became interested in T'ai-chi Ch'uan nearly 30 years ago. He has taught T'ai-chi since 1966 from the University of South Florida to the West Point Academy in New York. A professor of mathematics and computer science at SSU, he also teaches T'ai-chi there.

Fusaro's 90-minute instructional video takes the time to give students a full understanding of T'ai-chi. In addition to demonstrating the complete form and then breaking the lesson into five sections, he reviews the fundamental principles of T'ai-chi. The "home lesson" includes student participation and provides front, side and back views of the movements.

Tai-chi Ch'uan Instructional Video: Learn at Home with Dr. Ben Fusaro is available for $29.95 from the Book Rack in the Guerrieri University Center. Browseabout Books located at 800 South Salisbury Blvd. or by calling (800) TAI-CHI.

Dining Services Staff on Community Boards

Two staff members with University Dining Services (UDS) were recently named to positions in local community organizations.

Monte Bradley, director of UDS for the past 14 years, was appointed to the University of Maryland Eastern Shore's hotel and restaurant management industry and advisory council. John Desormeau, executive chef at SSU since 1990, was named secretary for the Delmarva Chefs Association, a chapter of the American Culinary Association.

Bradley, a 1960 graduate of Cornell University's Hotel School, is also on Wor-Wic Community College's hotel and restaurant advisory board. He is a past regional president of the National Association of College and University Food Services (NACUFS).

Bradley, a member of the Delmarva Chefs Association, the National Restaurant Association and the Maryland Restaurant Association, is a volunteer at the Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art.

Desormeau spent 10 years working at hotel restaurants for the Marriott Corp. in Washington, D.C., Richmond, VA, Ft. Lauderdale, FL, Crystal City, VA, and Bethesda, MD, leaving as an executive chef when he joined the SSU staff.

A 1979 graduate of the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, NY, one of the nation's most prestigious cooking schools, Desormeau is co-chair of NACUFS' Region II Culinary Excellence Committee. That committee is a resource for various food service units and restaurants on campus communities.

management dates back 30 years when he worked at the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of History and Technology. He had grown up in Landover, MD, a suburb of Washington, D.C., where his parents' idea of a good time was visiting the many art galleries and museums in the area.

A graduate of the University of Maryland College Park, where he majored in history and political science, Basile worked as a curatorial assistant at the Maritime Museum in St. Michaels in the mid-70s following a four-year stint in the U. S. Air Force. He coordinated his initial waterfowl exhibit while at St. Michaels and also found time to commute to the University of Delaware where he earned a master's degree in art and museum studies.

Basile was hired as the Ward Museum director in 1977 when it was housed in Holloway Hall on the SSU campus. He left the area in 1985 to become the director of the Genesee Country Museum in Rochester, NY. There he supervised a staff of 200 which welcomed over 300,000 visitors a year to the living history museum and its 55 buildings and art galleries set on 2,000 acres.

But the chance to return to the Shore and start the development operation at the then fledgling WSCL—and to avoid the heavy winter snow storms of upstate New York—brought Basile back to the area in 1987.

This latest opportunity to manage the campus art galleries at SSU is a dream-come-true.

"By creating a full-time gallery director position," said Basile, "Dr. Bellavance has continued his commitment to making SSU the cultural centerpiece of our community. From the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra to WSCL to fine programs in theatre, music and film to its excellent lecture series, the University has a long history of making a wide assortment of cultural activities available to everyone in the region."

"Certainly we hope to continue that cultural tradition with the two art galleries on campus," said Basile, who credited his predecessors who managed the galleries on a part-time basis with establishing the reputation for excellence they enjoy today. "In the last year Fulton Hall's University Gallery has exhibited lithographs by surrealist Joan Miro and rarely seen drawings by painter Edward Hopper. In the future we will continue to bring exhibits to the Shore which people might normally have to travel to urban centers to experience."

"We will also continue to provide a venue for regional artists and our own students to display their work," said Basile. "At the same time, the galleries will augment the educational programs at SSU, enhancing the teaching and learning opportunities for faculty and students."

Basile anticipates both the University Gallery and Atrium Gallery will host six exhibits a year.

Senior Portraits For Yearbook Scheduled

All seniors graduating in May should sign up between February 7-12 for senior portraits for the yearbook in the Guerrieri University Center at the information desk.

Photographs will be taken in the Choptank Room of the Guerrieri Center from February 15-20. Walk-ins may be available; however, to guarantee a portrait shoot sign up early. The sitting fee is $5 and a yearbook will be mailed to each senior in September but only if that senior is photographed.

If there are any questions or concerns, call 546-3210 (from off campus dial 546-6006 and ask to be transferred) or stop by the Evergreen Office (Room 229a) on the second floor of the Guerrieri Center.

Yearbooks for Sale

The Evergreen is taking orders for copies of the 1994 yearbook. Checks should be made payable to Salisbury State University in the amount of $15.50. Mail payment to SSU Box 3061.

Students should enclose an index card with their September mailing address where they would like the book shipped. There is no additional charge for shipping. All orders must be paid in full by March 25. Students, faculty and staff are eligible for the special price because of the large number of seniors who receive books.

Don't delay; no extra copies will be available this year.

History Honor Society Seeks Nominations

Phi Alpha Theta, the international honor society in history, is seeking nominations for its 1994 initiation.

Qualifications include junior, senior or graduate class standing with at least 12 hours of history classes beyond History 101 and 102, a minimum of 3.0 in these classes with an overall GPA of 3.0. In addition, students must rank in the top 35 percent of their class.

For more information and/or nominations contact Dr. Greg Ference at 543-6129, Dr. Clara Small or Dr. Jeanne Whitney at 543-6523, or the History Department at 543-6245 by February 18.

Student Health Insurance

Evidence of health insurance is not required in order to enroll for classes at SSU. Staff in the University's Student Health Services recommend students have health insurance coverage by obtaining coverage on their parents' or family's policy or by contacting an insurance company of choice for information and possible enrollment in a plan.

There is no health insurance policy available through the University.

the program since it began. The program is administered by the U.S. Information Agency under policy guidelines established by the presidentially appointed J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board and in cooperation with a number of private organizations. Scholarships are awarded through open competition, with final selections made by the Foreign Scholarship Board. Thirty-five foreign governments share in the funding of these exchanges.

Watercolors, Acrylic Glazing At Fulton Gallery

The Fulton Hall Gallery presents "Pointillistic Watercolors and Acrylic Glazings" by David Richards from February 11-March 10.

The exhibition shows Richards' work over the past 12 years. The show displays his earlier, lightly detailed watercolors, made up of thousands of dots, as well as the abstract glazings he is currently producing.

Educated at Kutztown University, some of his early inspiration came from Georges Seurat, whose pointillistic technique is similar to Richards' own. "I never used him as a model, but people compare our work regularly," Richards said. "I've learned a lot from his work along the way, but I don't follow his scientific approach to color. Using this method of painting was very time-consuming." He explained that he produced about eight pointillistic watercolors a year.

Several years ago he began looking at the landscape from a more abstract perspective. Continuing with his pointillistic technique he started moving in a more abstract direction until he began working with acrylic glazings. This enabled him to achieve a broader range of color and, to some extent, form with his work. No longer representational, his work deals with the relationship of colors layered on the paper surface.

Richards' work has been included in the American Watercolor Society Annual, the Audubon Annual, the Natural Arts Club Watercolor Annual and the Knickerbocker Annual. His unique style with watercolor has won many awards, including the Grumbacher Gold Medal and the Charvoz Percy P. Baker Award. He is represented by Newman Gallery in Philadelphia and Bryn Mawr.

The Fulton Hall Gallery is open Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Tuesday from 10 a.m.-8 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday from noon-6 p.m.

For more information about the Fulton Gallery exhibit or a complete listing of all lectures and cultural activities taking place at Salisbury State this spring, please call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Science and Symphony Joined in 'Contact 2001'

The Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University, the Richard A. Henson School of Science and Technology and NASA join together on Sunday, February 27, to create "Contact 2001: The Symphony and Science in the 21st Century." Dr. Thomas Elliot, director of the SSO, is pictured at left with Jim Leether, member of EXCEL and the Greater Salisbury Youth Symphony Orchestra. For more information about the event contact the SSO at 548-5587.

For many of us, especially kids, we expect our everyday scientific experiences to come with a musical accompaniment. Through television, movies and video games, children have been exposed to enough robots, rockets and rock 'n' roll to feel more aware of what the future holds than their parents do. But how do you help them discover the science behind the magic, and the rich, musical heritage that will help to give it all meaning?

If you're the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University, you begin with an idea. Then you find the partners to help you create "Contact 2001: The Symphony and Science in the 21st Century."

The SSO, in partnership with the Henson School of Science and Technology and the NASA-Wallops Island Flight Facility, has created Contact 2001 to build on the excitement and understanding of space exploration and to preserve an appreciation of the traditional symphony orchestra.

Beginning at noon on Sunday, February 27, Maggs Physical Activities Center will be transformed into a combination planetarium/amphitheater in which children of all ages will be invited to meet an astronaut and an astronomer, and take an up-close look at a symphony orchestra. Contact 2001 will also include a model of the Hubble space telescope and even a space suit. The EXCEL Program will provide a series of hands-on adventures in sound and light for more excitement in

Louisiana Chef Prepares Jambalaya To Benefit Habitat

Enjoy an authentic Louisiana-style prepared meal and help support the University's Habitat project at the same time.

The University community is invited to "Al's Louisiana Lunchtime Bash" on Monday, February 21, at noon in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center.

Prepared by Al Olinde, a gourmet chef from Louisiana whose wife Glenda works in University Dining Services, the menu features jambalaya, garlic bread, navy bean soup, freshly tossed salad, cookie tray and sweetened lemon tea.

Tickets are $10 each, $7 of which is tax deductible.

All proceeds benefit the SSU chapter of Habitat for Humanity on Maryland's Lower Eastern Shore. Help finance the University's commitment to build a Habitat home for a low-income family in Salisbury by attending "Al's Lunchtime Louisiana Bash"—and enjoy a delicious meal.

For tickets call Richard Pusey in the Financial Services Office at 543-6050, Richard Yobst in the Administrative Services Office at 543-6215 or Gains Hawkins in the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Biology

Applications for two 10-month, tenure-track appointments as assistant professor of biology with beginning dates of August 15 are now being accepted. A Ph.D. in biological sciences is required for each position.

One position requires a demonstrated expertise in invertebrate biology, the other requires a demonstrated expertise in plant ecology. Successful candidates must be able to participate in the instruction of introductory biology courses for majors and non-majors and upper division experiences for majors. Although teaching at the undergraduate level is the prime focus, it is expected that the successful candidate will actively pursue scholarly research. Salary is competitive and commensurate with experience.

A complete application must contain a current curriculum vitae, transcripts of all undergraduate and graduate work and three letters of recommendation. Deadline for receipt of application materials is February 25. Address correspondence to Dr. William Grogan, Chair, Invertebrate Biologist Search Committee, or Dr. Dan Sistrunk, Chair, Plant Ecologist Search Committee, Department of Biological Sciences, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. Department of Immigration and Naturalization Service authority to accept employment in this country. Demonstrated ability to communicate effectively in English, both oral and written, is essential.

Chemistry

The Department of Chemistry invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level beginning in the fall. A Ph.D. in chemistry and a strong commitment to teaching research at the undergraduate level are required. Teaching duties include general chemistry and General Education courses.

Applicants in any area of chemistry will be considered, but preference will be given to candidates with expertise complementing that of the department and with experience mentoring undergraduate research. Salary is commensurate with qualifications.

Send resume, three letters of recommendations and description of teaching and research goals by March 1 to Dr. E.T. Shaffer, Chemistry Search Committee, Chemistry Department, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. The Department of Chemistry at SSU is ACS certified and the University is a fully accredited, comprehensive institution.

Sous Chef

SSU seeks a professional sous chef to assist the executive chef in planning and directing the activities of the dining services kitchen in preparation of high quality production and presentation to include board program, catering and cash operations. The position requires an individual with experience as a department head in multifaceted kitchen operation serving large volumes. The person hired will be directly responsible for production guidelines estimating the scheduling and staffing of kitchen staff on a shift-by-shift basis (approximately 20 full-time and 20 part-time).

The successful candidate will hold a degree from an accredited culinary school, a minimum of two years as a department head and working chef certificate. Salary in the high $20,000s and has a full state benefit package.

Interested applicants should send a resume to Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801. Screening begins February 9 and continues until the piece is filled.

Geography/Regional Planning

A new tenure-track assistant professor/instructor position is available for fall in the Geography and Regional Planning Department. A Ph.D. is preferred; A.B.D. with dissertation in final stages will be considered.

Candidates with a strong background in geographic information systems/remote sensing are sought. Individuals should also have an interest in one or more of the following areas: water resources/hydrology, resource management and environmental/land use planning. Candidates must be committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching and directing/mentoring undergraduate research. The ability to communicate effectively in English, both orally and in writing, is essential.

Salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience. Send letter of application, curriculum vitae, transcripts and three letters of recommendation. Review of applications begins March 15 and continues until the position is filled. Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Authorization to accept U.S. employment.

Apply to J. Chapman McGrew, Chair, Faculty Search Committee, Department of Geography and Regional Planning, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Phone 543-6457; Fax 548-3318.

Athletics Training

SSU seeks an individual for a tenure-track position in athletics training. The person will work cooperatively with the head athletics trainer and the athletics training track coordinator in the supervision and instruction of student athletics trainers. Additional duties in the daily management of a competitive NCAA Division III athletics program will be assigned.

The successful candidate must have NATA certification, a minimum of three years of experience in athletics training, at minimum a master's degree in athletics training or related field, and be experienced in basic first aid and cardiopulmonary resuscitation. The candidate must show a proficiency in one or more of the areas of care, prevention, evaluation, rehabilitation and management of athletic injuries, assessment and/or administration/supervision of athletics training.

Rank is at the instructor level and salary is commensurate with qualifications and experience. Send letter of application, current vitae, official transcripts and names/addresses of three references to Chair, Search Committee, Athletics Training, Department of Physical Education, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be accepted immediately; the search remains open until the position is filled.

Homecoming Concert for Chamber Choir

A Germany Homecoming Concert will be performed Monday and Tuesday, February 14 and 15, at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall on the campus.

Twenty-four students, members of the Chamber Choir, traveled to Germany with Klaudia Thompson, instructor of modern languages, and Dr. Duane Karna, director of choral activities, during January's winter term and were in residence for two weeks at the Bavarian Music Academy in Marktoberdorf, Germany. Concerts were given in Bern Beuren and Marktoberdorf during the choir's stay with additional sightseeing in Salzburg, Austria and Munich, Germany.

The students also had the opportunity to sing

in the famous Wieskirche and the Hall of Mirrors at the Herrenchiemsee Palace outside of Munich. The students also studied German language and culture during their residency at the Music Academy.

The concert program will feature two motets from the Renaissance, "Adoramus Te" by Palestrina and "Cantate Domino" by Pitoni; a setting of the scriptural text, "First Corinthians 13"; "Four Motets" by Aaron Copland; two a cappella choral works by Vaclav Nelyhbel; American folksongs; and spirituals.

The performance is free and the public is invited. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Educational Rights, Privacy Act Notification

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974 gives students the right to inspect and review educational records maintained by the University. Additionally, a student may request the amendment of a record that the student believes to be inaccurate, misleading or otherwise in violation of the student's privacy.

Students maintain the right of consent to disclosures of personally identifiable information contained in the records of the student. SSU will assume the right, under the provisions of this act, to provide student directory information found in a student's educational record without prior consent of the student. For such purposes, directory information is defined as the student's name, address, telephone number, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of the athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees and awards received, the most recent previous educational institution attended and other similar information.

In the event a student desires more or less directory information released, the student should notify the Office of the Dean of Students in Room 212 of the Guerrieri University Center.

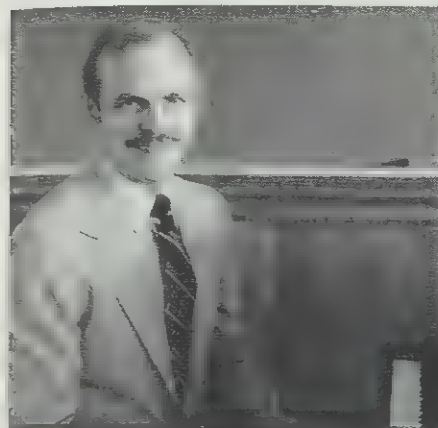

Students have the right to file any complaints about alleged failure to comply with Privacy Act requirements with the U.S. Department of Education. Copies of the SSU policy can be obtained in the Dean of Students Office.

CLEP Test

The College Level Examination Program (CLEP) test will be given on Wednesday, March 16. The registration deadline for the test is February 16. For further information contact the Admissions Office at 543-6161.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Zeigler Organ Recital at Asbury February 20

Dr. Ray Zeigler, associate professor of music, performs an organ recital at Asbury Methodist Church in Salisbury on Sunday, February 20, at 2 p.m.

Zeigler will be accompanied by tenor Dr. Duane Karna, assistant professor of music, oboist Mae Higgins and the SSU Brass Quintet.

The concert contains a variety of works from the United States, England, France and Germany. Pieces for organ alone will include works by Gordon Jacob, Jean Langlais, Jehan Alain, Maurice Duruflé and Ronald Arnett. Three short pieces written for musical clocks by Franz Joseph Haydn are also featured.

In addition to his teaching duties at SSU, Zeigler serves as organist and choirmaster for St. Alban's Episcopal Church in Salisbury, is a member of the Diocesan Music Commission for the Episcopal Diocese of Easton and for eight years has been the director of the Maryland Summer Center for the Arts, a Maryland State Department of Education partnership program for Gifted and Talented students.

At the request of the Maryland Arts Council and the State Department of Education, Zeigler is working with a commission which is beginning the process of researching the role of arts education in Maryland, at all levels, and advocating the strengthening of efforts in making the arts viable for everyone. His doctorate is from Penn State University.

Zeigler studied organ with George Ceiga at Penn State University and Leonard Raver, former organist with the New York Philharmonic and professor of organ at the Juilliard School. One of the works to be presented on the program was dedicated to Raver and composed by Louie White, professor of composition at Juilliard.

Oboist Higgins will play "Three English Voluntaries" for oboe and organ as well as "Fantasia" on "Picardy." Karna will sing three of the "Five Mystical Songs" by Ralph Vaughan Williams. The Brass Quintet will perform works by Robert Elmore, Sigfried Karg-Elert and Louie White. White's "Introduction and Chorale" was composed for and dedicated to the late Leonard Raver, Zeigler's teacher, and is among many organ works commissioned by Raver who has a library dedicated to his memory at the Juilliard School. Members of the quintet are Niko Lampieri and Chris Ward, trumpet; Stephanie Cyran, French horn; Tom Cheezum, trombone; and Tim Whittemore, tuba.

Other pieces for bagpipe, played by Paul Greacy, and folk instruments, performed by Big Blow and the Bushwackers, are also on the program. Big Blow and the Bushwackers performs an improvisation for various instruments and organ. These pieces are improvised on the spot based on themes submitted by the other performers in the concert. Members of the ensemble are Ted Poret, Mick Haensler, Don Plehn and Whittemore.

The concert is free and the public is invited. Everyone is invited to a reception for Zeigler in the main lounge of the Guerrieri University Center on the campus immediately after the concert.

For more information about the concert or to get a complete listing of all lectures and cultural activities taking place at Salisbury State this spring please call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Retired Perdue CEO Chairs SSU Foundation

Donald W. Mabe, retired president and chief executive officer of Perdue Farms, Inc., has been named chair of the SSU Foundation Inc. board of director's executive committee.

Mabe succeeds Henry H. Hanna III, commercial investment manager for AHM Long & Foster Realtors and Salisbury restaurateur, who served as chair from 1991-93. Hanna remains on the executive committee.

A native of Kernersville, NC, Mabe joined Perdue in 1957 as a broiler supervisor and went on to hold numerous positions within the company. He was named president in 1979, chief executive officer in 1983 and vice chairman in 1984. He retired in 1991.

In addition to his involvement with the SSU Foundation, Mabe is chairman of the board of trustees of Peninsula Regional Medical Center and chairman of the board of directors at the Mid-Delmarva YMCA. He has also been a member of the advisory board of First National Bank of Maryland, Delmarva Poultry Industry, the board of the National Broiler Council, and the board of directors of delmarva Power & Light Co. Mabe and his wife, Flo, live in Princess Anne. They have four children.

In addition to Mabe and Hanna, other members of the executive committee are Everett Conaway of Seaford, Klein Leister of Pocomoke City, Lloyd Beatty of Easton, Ellen Fretter of Federalsburg, Samuel W. Seidel of Salisbury and SSU Foundation Executive Director Robert Gearhart.

Members of the grant review committee are Evelyn Jefferson Fox of Salisbury, chair, Karen Harrison of Berlin, Nolan Owens of Salisbury, SSU Vice President of Academic Affairs K. Nelson Butler, Dr. Bellavance and Gearhart.

The investment committee members are Beatty, chair, Charles R. Fulton of Snow Hill, Richard A. Henson of Salisbury, Leister, Seidel, SSU Director of Business and Finance Richard Pusey, Bellavance and Gearhart.

The SSU Foundation is a nonprofit organization which raises private funding for numerous academic and cultural activities at the University not provided by state funds. Donations made through the Foundation have endowed schools, provided scholarships and grants for research, and funded the University Gallery, visiting lecturers, cultural events and field trips.

Ailey Dance Theatre Bus Trip Scheduled

On Wednesday, February 23, SSU is sponsoring a bus trip for students to the Grand Opera House in Wilmington, DE to see The Alvin Ailey Dance Theatre.

The Alvin Ailey troupe, celebrating its 35th anniversary, honors Ailey's vision of creating a company dedicated to the preservation and enrichment of the American modern dance heritage and the uniqueness of black cultural expression. The troupe embraces not just one dance technique, but many—modern, jazz, tap, ballet, Afro-Caribbean and more.

Sign-up for the trip begins at 8 a.m. Saturday, February 12, for full-time students; the cost is $20. Sign-up for part-time students, staff, faculty and guests begins Tuesday, February 15; the cost is $25. The charge covers transportation and ticket to the performance. All sign-ups take place at the information desk in the Guerrieri University Center.

The bus leaves the Dogwood entrance of the Guerrieri Center at 3 p.m.; a stop will be made for dinner en route to the theatre. Curtain time is 8 p.m. The bus leaves Wilmington directly after the performance and arrives at SSU near midnight.

Sign-up must be in person with SSU I.D. No food or beverages are allowed on the bus. Interstate Commerce regulations prohibit unscheduled stops for the purpose of picking up or dropping off passengers. Refunds will not be given for canceled seats unless the seat is filled.

For more information about the trip call 543-6006.

Ceramic Artist Displays Work In Atrium Gallery Exhibit

Ernest Satchell, an area ceramic artist and university professor, displays his newest work in the exhibit "Hot Earth in Cool Places" February 10-March 4. The exhibit of large stoneware vessels with richly embellished surfaces is in the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center Monday-Saturday from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. and Sunday from noon-4 p.m.

Satchell, visual arts coordinator at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, received his degrees in art education and ceramics at Towson State University and currently teaches jewelry sculpture and ceramics at UMES.

"Hot Earth in Cool Places" will consist of life-sized stoneware pottery with reduction glazes. Most will have classical, functional shapes with richly decorated surfaces, both incised and applied. Satchell's ongoing concern for human values will be of considerable importance in the exhibit.

"Art for me has been the one means at my disposal to draw attention to basic wrongs that have been perpetrated against the peoples of the world through war, famine, disease, ignorance, indifference and racism," said Satchell. Satchell will be available at the opening to share his philosophy with others on Thursday, February 10, from 4-6 p.m.

For more information on this and upcoming exhibits in the Atrium Gallery call 543-6006.

Ceramic Students Should Pick Up Pieces

Students who took ceramics last semester should pick up by February 14 any work left in the studio. After that date, the pieces become the property of the Art Department.

Student Handbook At Dean of Students Office

The Office of the Dean of Students has published a Student Handbook for the 1993-94 academic year. The handbook includes information on campus programs and services, student organizations and community resources. The handbook also features a 1993-94 calendar that includes intramural sign-up deadlines, athletic events, special events on campus and important academic deadlines.

Handbooks are available at the Dean of Students Office and Guerrieri University Center information desk during the year.

Automatic Teller Machine (ATM)

A Maryland National Bank automatic teller machine (ATM) is located at the north entrance of the Guerrieri University Center. The ATM will accept MOST, Cirrus, Plus, Visa, MasterCard, American Express and Discover cards. The ATM does not accept deposits. Checks are not cashed anywhere on campus.

Students with a college account at Maryland National Bank can make ATM transactions free of charge.

For information on how to get a Maryland National Bank ATM card and how to open a college account with unlimited ATM use, please contact Patricia Parker at the South Salisbury branch at 742-8671.

If banking with a financial institution other than Maryland National Bank, that institution may charge for using the on-campus ATM.

The Tidewater Environmental Health Association recently presented a check for $5,300 to Dr. Philip Creighton, dean of the Henson School of Science and Technology; the money was raised at the association's annual golf tournament in September. Proceeds go to the Wallace French Memorial Scholarship Fund for junior and senior students planning on a career in the field of environmental health.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

With just three weeks remaining in the season, the men's basketball team appears to be playing its finest ball of the season. The Gulls improved to 8-10 overall by winning their third straight game last Saturday night, defeating Lincoln 86-81. Dameron Ross and Kyle Jefferson each scored 24 points to help SSU avenge a one-point loss at Lincoln just two weeks earlier.

In addition to 48 combined points, Ross and Jefferson combined for 22 rebounds and 10 assists. Guards Tom Wolfe and Casey Musick each added 12 points, including three of five from behind-the-arc for Wolfe.

The Sea Gulls visit Wesley on Thursday evening before returning home for a Valentine's Day date with Trenton State on Monday, February 14.

The women's team, which plays eight straight road games over the final three weeks of the season, visits Mary Washington on Thursday evening and plays in the Marymount College Tournament on Friday and Saturday.

Junior center Kim Roth continues to enjoy a superb season for the Gulls, averaging team-bests of 15.8 ppg and 15.3 rpg. Roth is quickly moving in on 1,000 career rebounds. She moved into second place on SSU's all-time list last week, currently standing at 922. Her 15.3 average places her second in the most recent NCAA statistics, and she has registered a double-double (points-rebounds) in 17 of 18 games this year. The Gulls are 7-11 overall.

Jenny Shelley, the team's only senior, made her final game at the Maggs Center a memorable one last week, scoring a game and career-high 20 points as SSU defeated Wesley 73-57. The 5-2 guard also added three assists and four steals in 32 minutes of action.

Minor League Expert Lectures Here Feb. 17

Dr. Arthur Johnson, author of Minor League Baseball and Local Economic Development, lectures on Thursday, February 17, at SSU about the rewards and risks associated with bringing minor league baseball into a community.

Johnson's presentation, sponsored by the Department of Political Science, is at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. It is free and open to the public.

According to Johnson, who is chair of the Political Science Department at the University of Maryland Baltimore County, sport, including minor league baseball, is an object of public policy that communities can exploit to promote economic and social well-being—but not without risk.

Drawing on case studies of 15 locales including Fresno, CA, Birmingham, AL, Durham, NC, Buffalo, NY, Indianapolis, IN, and Colorado Springs, CO, Johnson systematically analyzes the political process by which communities decide to invest in stadiums for minor league baseball teams.

He explores such factors as the presence or absence of a development strategy as a guide in decision making, and the value to a community of a minor league team and its stadium. Johnson also describes the dynamics of minor league baseball franchise relocation, the importance of intergovernmental relations to stadium financing, and the organization and business of minor league baseball, including its formal relationship with major league baseball.

"If there can be such a thing as 'Bull Durham' or 'Field of Dreams' for economic developers, this is it," said Jerry Klinkowitz, executive secretary of the Waterloo (IA) Diamonds and editor of Writing Baseball, when discussing Johnson's book.

"In the past few years bush league baseball has gone big time, with consequent opportunities and responsibilities for operators and host communities alike," said Klinkowitz. Johnson's book has "all the facts and figures plus an overall structure that makes sense out of what to many people, even diehard fans, has seemed like chaos. (The book is) an essential resource for anyone interested in how the minor leagues work."

For more information about Johnson's lecture please call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Calcott Scholarships Offered Through AAUW

Applications are now being accepted for the Doris Gay Calcott Memorial Scholarship, offered by the Salisbury branch of the American Association of University Women.

The $1,000 scholarship was named in memory of the long-time Salisbury civic leader. Full-time junior or senior women attending SSU who are residents of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and show financial need may qualify.

Applications may be obtained from the Financial Aid Office, Holloway Hall, Room 243, and the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University, Room 212. The deadline for return of completed applications to the Dean of Students Office is March 4.

Calcott, who died in 1985, was president of the Salisbury branch of AAUW when it began its scholarship program 20 years ago. A vigorous supporter of the AAUW, she spearheaded its scholarship fund-raising drives, brought the American Field Service exchange student program to Salisbury, started the first senior Girl Scout group here and was active in the United Way.

For many years, Calcott was a writer for The (Salisbury) Daily Times.

McAuliffe Scholarship Deadline Is March 1

Applications for the Christa McAuliffe Scholarship are available in the Financial Aid Office, Holloway Hall, Room 243.

The $1,000 scholarship is for the 1994-95 academic year. Applicants must be Maryland residents enrolled in a program leading to teacher certification. Recipients must agree to teach in Maryland one year for each scholarship received. Deadline is March 1. Recipients must also be full-time students.

Scholarships Available For SSU Women

The Salisbury Branch of the American Association of University Women offers a $1,000 scholarship each year to an SSU junior or senior woman attending full time who is a resident of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and is in need of financial assistance.

Applications may be obtained from the Financial Aid Office in Holloway Hall, Room 243, or the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, Room 212. Deadline for return of completed applications to the Dean of Students Office is March 4.

Louise Moore Childcare Scholarship

The Louise Moore Childcare Scholarship has been established under the sponsorship of Tiny Tot Inc. The purpose of the scholarship is to provide financial assistance to students whose career goal is early childhood development.

Applicants must be planning a career in early childhood development; must have past experience working with children; and must complete an application for the scholarship. Applications can be obtained by calling Tiny Tot Inc. at 749-7294. Deadline is March 15.

Director, Student Activities and Organizations

SSU invites applications and nominations for the position of director, student activities and organizations.

Responsibilities include planning and implementing a comprehensive curricular program for undergraduate students; developing a student leadership and faculty organization advisor program; and building interest and opportunities for student involvement in community service.

Qualifications include a master's degree in higher education administration, student activities or related field and demonstrated skills in program development, leadership training, multicultural issues and communication. Applicants should have three or more years of broad professional student development experience with increasing responsibility for administration, supervision, budget and program development.

Salary range is $28,000-$32,000, with full state benefits package.

The 12-month position reports to the dean of students and is available immediately. Letter of interest, resume and the names, addresses and phone numbers of three current references should be mailed to Dean of Students Search Committee, Student Activities and Organizations, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Application screening begins March 11 and continues until the position is filled.

Global Business Trends Subject of Lecture

Global trends for the future will be the subject of a lecture given by a visiting international scholar on Thursday, February 17, at 3:30 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center's Nanticoke Room.

Dr. W. Harvey Hegarty, professor of business administration in the Graduate School of Business at Indiana University, will be on campus serving as a Visiting International Scholar at the Perdue School of Business.

The title of his presentation is "The Year 2000: Ever Increasing National and International Change." The talk will examine the growing economic, social and political interdependencies among nations and their implications for organizational decision makers.

Hegarty's teaching and research have spanned Australia, Europe, Latin America and Asia. His professional interests are in corporate strategy, international management and organization development. He has published widely on these topics in leading journals such as the Academy of Management Journal, Business Horizons, Decision Sciences, Journal of Applied Psychology and Journal of Management. Hegarty has also received the AMOCO Distinguished Teaching Award at Indiana University.

Hegarty's presentation is free and open to the public. For details contact Dr. Richard C. Hoffman of the Perdue School at 548-5398.

Administrative Specialist

SSU seeks an out-going, reliable person to serve as the administrative specialist to the director, Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council.

Duties include organizing meetings and conferences; dealing directly with various industry and government officials; administering education programs; and performing other administrative functions. This is a full-time contractual position (no paid benefits) paying $19,300-$21,700.

Minimum qualifications include a bachelor's degree in business or related area, working knowledge of WordPerfect and Lotus 1-2-3 and experience in public relations.

Qualified individuals may apply by submitting a cover letter and resume to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801, not later than February 16.

Kraft Presents Paper In Honolulu, Boston

Dr. Evan Kraft, an assistant professor of economics and finance in the Perdue School of Business, presented his paper "Does Separation Facilitate Effective Policy Making? The Cases of Slovenia, Croatia and Macedonia" at the 27th annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Slavic Studies in Honolulu and at the North American Economics and Finance Section of the Allied Social Science Association meetings in Boston in January.

The paper asks whether the successor countries in the former Communist world will be better able to stabilize their economies than the countries they came out of. On the one hand, greater ethnic homogeneity might lead to a less polarized electorate and greater popular support for stabilization measures. On the other hand, intensified ethnic conflict and the greater influence of large companies and pressure groups in smaller countries could make stabilization more difficult.

The Slovene case illustrates the more positive side of the picture. Slovenia has overcome many of the biggest political logjams that prevented reform and stabilization in the old Yugoslavia, driving inflation down in 1993 to its lowest level since 1978. While unemployment is rising, Slovenia's situation does not compare unfavorably to that of other post-Communist states.

Croatia and Macedonia, meanwhile, show the less positive side of the picture. Croatia, wracked by war, has been unable and perhaps unwilling to put its economic house in order. Macedonia, a poorer region of the old Yugoslavia, has suffered from the loss of subsidies from its wealthier partners in the old Yugoslavia and hostility of neighboring Greece.

Firm conclusions cannot be drawn, Kraft notes. Further research comparing the experience of former Yugoslav republics to that of former Soviet republics is the next task on his agenda.

learning. In the auditorium of Devilbiss Hall, next door to the gym, the film The Dream Is Alive will take visitors on a tour through space.

The orchestra, under the direction of Dr. Thomas G. Elliot, will perform music with an "intergalactic" focus, including themes from 2001: A Space Odyssey, Star Wars, Star Trek and E.T., plus a look through the eyes of Antonin Dvorak and his creation called The New World Symphony. More surprises follow when the orchestra and scientists team up for what might be the music of the 21st century.

In addition Dr. Jaylee M. Mead, an astronomer who is a consultant for NASA and recently retired from the NASA-Goddard Space Flight Center, will bring her listeners up to date on what scientists know about the universe around us, including the latest information from the Hubble space telescope. Like many scientists, Mead is an accomplished musician who also enjoys performing in amateur theater. Her audiences have found her entertaining, as well as enlightening.

In choosing the Maggs Center for Contact 2001, Elliot says he is putting his audience first. Rather than ask children to sit still in an auditorium (the event is targeted for fourth-through sixth-graders), he said, "we want our children of all ages (and that includes Grandma, Uncle Louie and Dad) to be able to stand or sit in the middle of the orchestra, next to a favorite instrument possibly, and watch as the musicians transform dots and lines, dashes and swirls into the music of the modern symphony orchestra."

The audience will then be invited to wander around "our planetarium" and observe some of the most sophisticated concepts and techniques that NASA has developed for entry into the 21st century. Experts will be on hand to explain some of the sophisticated equipment—including space suits and computers—that will take us into the future.

For the scientists at NASA, combining science and music is a natural. "The arts, especially music, are a very good avenue for getting kids interested in science," said Keith Koehler, public affairs specialist with the NASA-Wallops Island Flight Facility. "We try to express what science is about, and music is an excellent way of doing that."

"We are combining this innovative technology and the beauty of the University with the beauty and spiritual qualities of orchestral music," Elliot added. "This way, we hope the children will understand the importance of the arts, especially to the development and understanding of technology, as we continue to explore the mysteries of space. Both science and the arts are essential to our future."

Contact 2001: The Symphony and Science in the 21st Century begins at noon in the Maggs Center and in the auditorium of Devilbiss Hall. The admission fee of $2 will help to defray the expenses of the symphony orchestra. For more information, please contact the SSO at 548-5587.

Nature Walk Is For Stargazers

Furnace Town Historic Site in Snow Hill is the location for a 7 p.m. night walk on Friday, February 11. The nature walk, focusing on the stars and led by Kathy Jones and Kathy Fisher, is suitable for families with information selected for adults and children.

Walkers are encouraged to bring a flashlight, binoculars and, if possible, a telescope. Weather permitting, visitors will view Venus, Sirius, Mars and Capella. Stargazers will also be searching for the Orion Nebula and the Andromeda Galaxy.

Furnace Town's standard admission fee of $3 for adults and $1.50 for children will be charged. Furnace Town and Nature Conservancy members receive complimentary admission. For more information and to register please call 632-2032.

Donizetti Opera Broadcast on WSCL

Gaetano Donizetti's La Fille du Regiment will be broadcast live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday, February 19, at 1:30 p.m. over the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera International Radio Network. It will be heard locally over WSCL 89.5 FM.

Kathleen Battle will sing the role of Marie, with Rosalind Elias as the Marquise of Berkenfield, Frank Lopardo as Tonio, bass Bruno Pratico in his Texaco-Metropolitan Opera debut as Sulpice, and actress Bea Arthur, also in her Met broadcast debut, in the speaking role of the Duchess of Krakenthorp. Edoardo Muller will conduct, and the announcer for the broadcast will be Peter Allen.

Panelists on Texaco's Opera Quiz heard during the single intermission will be a Metropolitan Opera stage manager, Stephan Brown; writer on music and editor of The Metropolitan Opera Encyclopedia, David Hamilton; and Metropolitan Opera conductor, Richard Wotach. The great quizmaster will be editor-at-large for Stereo Review magazine, William Livingstone.

White Secretary For Language Conference

Arlene White, an assistant professor of modern languages at Salisbury State University, is serving the 1994 Northeast Conference on the Teaching of Foreign Languages as recording secretary. She recently attended a board of directors meeting in New York City.

The theme of the 41st annual meeting of the Northeast Conference, to be held April 7-10 in New York City, is "Teaching, Testing, and Assessment: Making the Connection." The conference consists of over 100 workshops and presentations and focuses on the profession's on-going commitment to developing communicative proficiencies and building cultural awareness in language students.

The Northeast Conference, the oldest and largest regional conference dealing with foreign language teaching, is sponsored annually by some 200 academic institutions at both college and secondary levels and by other organizations concerned with international studies. It is attended by nearly 3,000 foreign language educators from the United States, Canada and other countries.

Salisbury's Cost of Living Below National Average

A recent study by students in the Perdue School of Business indicates Salisbury enjoys an inflation rate considerably lower than the national average.

In the fall SSU's Department of Economics and Finance created a new learning experience for senior majors and minors in economics, the Applied Economics Workshop (AEW). The workshop conducted a major study of the cost of living in Salisbury.

In addition the workshop compared the cost of living in Salisbury to two other areas, Baltimore County and Hagerstown, MD. Baltimore County prices appear to be higher than Salisbury prices over a wide range of goods and services. However, consistent price differences between Salisbury and Hagerstown appeared in only a few of the categories studied.

To estimate the rate of inflation in Salisbury, workshop participants priced approximately 650 individual goods and services at over 100 different vendors. The overall inflation rate in Salisbury during October and November is estimated to be one-tenth of 1 percent. This would be equivalent to an annual rate of inflation of three-quarters of 1 percent. Transportation was the expenditure group in which prices rose most rapidly. This may be attributed in part to rapid price increases in some local airfares and the beginning of a new model year for automobiles. The very noticeable 4 percent decline in the apparel and upkeep expenditure group reflects large reductions on almost all items priced in that category.

The 0.75 percent annual inflation rate estimated for Salisbury falls substantially below the national inflation rate of 3.65 percent reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). Part of the difference may result from seasonal price declines which are excluded from the Consumer Price Index by BLS. However, the study found a lower rate of inflation in Salisbury in six of seven spending categories, which suggests that local prices did indeed rise less rapidly in late 1993.

In addition to estimating the rate of inflation in Salisbury, AEW also attempted to compare the local cost of living with that of Baltimore County. A major study of Salisbury and Baltimore County prices was conducted during November focusing on grocery store items, services, shelter and two durable goods.

Most grocery store items were found to be less expensive in Salisbury than in Baltimore County. The only category in which Salisbury prices were generally higher was fresh fruit and vegetables. In seven of eight service categories prices were at least 20 percent higher in Baltimore County than in Salisbury. The one exception in this group was video rentals. Based on a sample of apartment rents shelter appears to cost 50 percent more in Baltimore County. Finally AEW found new cars and trucks to be slightly more expensive in Salisbury and coffins to be substantially more expensive.

AEW also conducted a comparison of grocery and housing prices in Salisbury and Hagerstown during mid-September, which suggests little difference in the cost of living between the two cities.

The Applied Economics Workshop is intended to be a source of useful economic information to the community, which also provides Salisbury State students with applied experience in the field of economics. In conducting the cost of living study, students employed the same methods used by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. The members of the 1993 Applied Economics Workshop are Kent Dennis, Russ Hewitt, Steve Russell, Kara Towers and Carl Tyree. Dr. Benjamin B. Greene, Jr. served as data base administrator and advisor to the workshop.

CPPD Announces Staff Changes

High School. West will provide personal counseling services as well as relevant outreach programming.

In the near future the CPPD intends to announce the appointment of a new placement services coordinator. Linda Benson, who filled that position for over five years, resigned from the post in December in order to pursue other interests.

The Center for Personal and Professional Development provides personal counseling, career development counseling and job placement services to SSU students. All counseling is confidential and services are free of charge. The CPPD is located in the Guerrieri University Center, Room 263. Appointments with counselors may be made in person or by calling 543-6070.

The Center for Personal and Professional Development begins the spring semester with a variety of staff changes. Patricia Selig, who has been serving as a personal counselor in the center for more than two years, has been appointed to the position of career development specialist. Selig received her B.A. in psychology from George Washington University, her M.Ed. in guidance and counseling from SSU and has also pursued graduate work in psychology at SSU.

The CPPD has appointed Jerry West as a personal counselor. West received a B.S. in physical education from SSU and a M.Ed. in guidance and counseling from UMES. In addition he is certified by the state of Maryland as a professional counselor. His most recent position was as a guidance counselor for Laurel (DE)

Spanish Club Meeting on Feb. 17

El Circulo Quijote, SSU's Spanish Club, is having its first meeting of the spring semester on Thursday, February 17, at 4 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Plans for upcoming events will be discussed. All are welcome, no Spanish experience is necessary. Contact Eileen Anderer at 548-5887 for more information.

Seniors Graduation Application Deadline

All undergraduate students who plan to complete degree requirements in December 1994 or 1995 must complete an Application for Diploma by Friday, March 4, in the Office of the Registrar. The University no longer requires a graduation fee.

All applications must be approved by the chair of the student's major department. The purpose of the early application deadline is to allow time for each senior's records to be reviewed in detail prior to the last semester of attendance at the University. This ensures that students are aware of their academic status early enough to make any last minute adjustments in their plan of study.

Please return a completed Application for Diploma to the Office of the Registrar, Holloway Hall, Room 145, or mail it to the Office of the Registrar, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury MD 21801.

Student Health Insurance

Evidence of health insurance is not required in order to enroll for classes at SSU. Staff in the University's Student Health Services recommend students have health coverage on their parents' or family's policy or by contacting an insurance company of choice for information and possible enrollment in a plan.

There is no health insurance policy available through the University.

Look at U.S Cities Opens Spring Lecture Series

Dr. Lynn Curtis, president of the Milton S. Eisenhower Foundation, opens a spring lecture series that looks at critical issues as America approaches the 21st century.

Curtis will discuss "Investing in Children and Youth: Reconstructing Our Cities" on Wednesday, February 23, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

All lectures are free and the public is invited. For more information or to get a comprehensive schedule of all lectures and cultural activities taking place at SSU this spring, please call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Yearbooks for Sale

The Evergreen is taking orders for copies of the 1994 yearbook. Checks should be made payable to Salisbury State University in the amount of $15.50. Mail payment to SSU Box 3061.

Students should enclose an index card with their September mailing address where they would like the book shipped. There is no additional charge for shipping. All orders must be paid in full by March 25. Students, faculty and staff are eligible for the special price because of the large number of seniors who receive books.

Don't delay; no extra copies will be available this year.

All Things Considered Returns to WSCL

All Things Considered, the popular afternoon radio news program produced by National Public Radio, will be back on the air across the Delmarva Peninsula starting Wednesday, February 16. WSCL 89.5 FM will broadcast All Things Considered from 5-6 p.m. weekdays. WSCL had carried the program until late 1992 but then canceled it when the program's costs rose sharply.

Fred Marino, general manager, said All Things Considered costs WSCL nearly $24,000 a year. "It is the most expensive news program available today," Marino said, "and we are very pleased to be able to offer it to listeners again."

Marino said WSCL income has begun to recover from the recession, especially in corporate support, and to catch up with steadily rising program costs. "Businesses from Chincoteague to Dover have been extraordinarily loyal to WSCL," he said, "and WSCL's listeners continue to provide the largest single source of income. Those facts have given us confidence that we can once again provide All Things Considered to listeners."

WSCL 89.5 FM serves Delaware and the Eastern Shore of Maryland with classical music and in-depth news programming 24 hours a day. WSCL broadcasts from studios at Salisbury State University and transmitting facilities in Seaford, DE.

Future Employment Trends Subject Of Lecture

Frederic G. Withington, a former vice president of information systems for the international management consulting firm Arthur D. Little Inc., lectures on "No More Work or Leisure: Future Problems of Employment" this spring.

Withington, who has 40 years experience in information system technology, is now a New York City-based independent consultant to vendors and users of advanced information systems. His lecture, free and open to the public, is on Wednesday, March 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

His presentation, sponsored by the SSU Faculty Cultural Events Committee, is part of the spring lecture series "Issues and Challenges: Preparing for Life in the 21st Century."

Withington will initially assess forcing factors such as key technologies (information, communications, entertainment and transportation) and relevant demographic and economic forces. Then he will forecast the results.

The nature of future businesses will be addressed (and the new regulatory environment constraining them). The kinds of jobs available will be presented including lists of winners and losers. Finally implications will be summarized for individuals, academe and society as a whole.

At present most of Withington's consulting is with the U.S. Congress and the General Accounting Office. He is a member of its Executive Council on Information Systems; in that capacity he helps oversee the development of large information systems by Executive Department agencies.

From 1960 to 1986 he was employed with Arthur D. Little, the last six as a vice president. He participated in consulting studies for over 200 of the firm's clients, which included virtually every kind of vendor and user of data processing products and services.

Withington has written four books and over 40 articles and papers on information processing markets, technology and management. Various translated into eight languages, these have been published in most parts of the world.

Withington has been a Visiting Professor at the Harvard Business School and a Research Fellow at New York University.

Chamber Choir Enjoys Remarkable January Visit to Germany

They sang in the most beautiful rococo church in the world. They sang in a palatial Hall of Mirrors bigger than Versailles. They even sang in the Great Hall of Salisbury State University.

Who are they? Why SSU's own Chamber Choir, just back from a two-week visit to Bavaria, Germany, with a side trip to Salzburg, Austria. What better place to study music than the German Alps, birthplace of Mozart, the Christmas carol "Silent Night" and one of the most famous beer halls in Europe—Munich's Hofbrauhaus.

But this trip was no Daytona Beach blowout. At best a working vacation, "It was much like cramming for an exam," said Allison Dameron, an alto from Ocean Pines. For nearly five hours a day choir members were studying music and German language and culture at the Bavarian Music Academy, preparing for concerts. (The academy is 90 minutes southwest of Munich in the town of Marktoberdorf.)

Dr. Duane Karna, choir director, decided to concentrate on music new to German audiences. Lesser known works by Aaron Copland and Samuel Barber as well as American spirituals and folk songs were included. The German reviewer of the local Donnerstag newspaper called their performance "remarkable."

While exploring Bavaria's architectural treasures students were treated to unexpected musical plums. The 19th century Bavarian king, Ludwig II, nearly bankrupted his country with his passion for palaces. One Ludwig construction, Herren-Chiemsee, has a Hall of Mirrors bigger than the original in Versailles. When the Herren-Chiemsee guide learned his group of students were singers from America he insisted they give an impromptu performance in the

During their two-week stay in Germany SSU students toured some of Bavaria's architectural treasures. In the background is the famous Neuschwanstein Castle, which Walt Disney used as a model. famous room. "The acoustics were terrific!" beamed Craig Davenport, a tenor from Fruitland.

The choir also surreptitiously tested the acoustics of Bavaria's Wieskirche or "meadow church." "I sat in a dark hot room (at SSU) watching art history slides and listening to facts (about this church)," said Dameron, an art major. Considered an ultimate example of rococo architecture, it was empty of people when the choir walked in. They went to the nave, sang two hymns, then left. "I doubt a spiritual had ever been sung in that church before," Dameron added. "We performed a first."

Louisiana Chef Prepares Jambalaya To Benefit Habitat

Enjoy an authentic Louisiana-style prepared meal and help support the University's Habitat project at the same time.

The University community is invited to "Al's Louisiana Lunchtime Bash" on Monday, February 21, at noon in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri Center.

Prepared by Al Olinde, a gourmet chef from Louisiana whose wife Glenda works in University Dining Services, the menu features jambalaya, garlic bread, navy bean soup, freshly tossed salad, cookie tray and sweetened lemon tea.

Tickets are $10 each, $7 of which is tax deductible.

All proceeds benefit the SSU chapter of Habitat for Humanity on Maryland's Lower Eastern Shore. Help finance the University's commitment to build a Habitat home for a low-income family in Salisbury by attending "Al's Lunchtime Louisiana Bash"—and enjoy a delicious meal.

For tickets call Richard Pusey in the Financial Services Office at 543-6050, Richard Yobst in the Administrative Services Office at 543-6215 or Gains Hawkins in the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Zeigler Organ Recital At Asbury February 20

Dr. Ray Zeigler, associate professor of music, performs an organ recital at Asbury Methodist Church in Salisbury on Sunday, February 20, at 2 p.m.

Zeigler will be accompanied by tenor Dr. Duane Karna, assistant professor of music, oboist Mae Higgins and the SSU Brass Quintet.

The concert contains a variety of works from the United States, England, France and Germany. Pieces for organ alone will include works by Gordon Jacob, Jean Langlais, Jehan Alain, Maurice Durufle and Ronald Arnett. Three short pieces written for musical clocks by Franz Joseph Haydn are also featured.

Ailey Dance Theatre Bus Trip Scheduled

On Wednesday, February 23, SSU is sponsoring a bus trip for students to the Grand Opera House in Wilmington, DE to see The Alvin Ailey Dance Theatre.

All sign-ups take place at the information desk in the Guerrieri University Center.

For more information about the trip call 543-6006.

Johnson's presentation, sponsored by the Department of Political Science, is at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. It is free and open to the public.

For more information about Johnson's lecture please call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Director, Student Activities and Organizations

SSU invites applications and nominations for the position of director, student activities and organizations.

Responsibilities include planning and implementing a comprehensive curricular program for undergraduate students; developing a student leadership and faculty organization advisor program; and building interest and opportunities for student involvement in community service.

Qualifications include a master's degree in higher education administration, student activities or related field and demonstrated skills in program development, leadership training, multicultural issues and communication. Applicants should have three or more years of broad professional student development experience with increasing responsibility for administration, supervision, budget and program development.

Salary range is $28,000-$32,000, with full state benefits package.

The 12-month position reports to the dean of students and is available immediately. Letter of interest, resume and the names, addresses and phone numbers of three current references should be mailed to Dean of Students Search Committee, Student Activities and Organizations, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Application screening begins March 11 and continues until the position is filled.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

McAuliffe Scholarship Deadline Is March 1

Applications for the Christa McAuliffe Scholarship are available in the Financial Aid Office, Holloway Hall, Room 243.

The $1,000 scholarship is for the 1994-95 academic year. Applicants must be Maryland residents enrolled in a program leading to teacher certification. Recipients must agree to teach in Maryland one year for each scholarship received. Deadline is March 1. Recipients must also be full-time students.

Calcott Scholarships Offered Through AAUW

Applications are now being accepted for the Doris Gay Calcott Memorial Scholarship, offered by the Salisbury branch of the American Association of University Women.

The $1,000 scholarship was named in memory of the long-time Salisbury civic leader. Full-time junior or senior women attending SSU who are residents of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and show financial need may qualify.

Applications may be obtained from the Financial Aid Office, Holloway Hall, Room 243, and the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, Room 212. The deadline for return of completed applications to the Dean of Students Office is March 4.

Calcott, who died in 1985, was president of the Salisbury branch of AAUW when it began its scholarship program 20 years ago. A vigorous supporter of the AAUW, she spearheaded its scholarship fund-raising drives, brought the American Field Service exchange student program to Salisbury, started the first senior Girl Scout group here and was active in the United Way.

For many years, Calcott was a writer for The (Salisbury) Daily Times.

Scholarships Available For SSU Women

The Salisbury Branch of the American Association of University Women offers a $1,000 scholarship each year to an SSU junior or senior woman attending full time who is a resident of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and is in need of financial assistance.

Applications may be obtained from the Financial Aid Office in Holloway Hall, Room 243, or the Dean of Students Office, Guerrieri University Center, Room 212. Deadline for return of completed applications to the Dean of Students Office is March 4.

Louise Moore Childcare Scholarship

The Louise Moore Childcare Scholarship has been established under the sponsorship of Tiny Tot Inc. The purpose of the scholarship is to provide financial assistance to students whose career goal is early childhood development.

Applicants must be planning a career in early childhood development; must have past experience working with children; and must complete an application for the scholarship. Applications can be obtained by calling Tiny Tot Inc. at 749-7294. Deadline is March 15.

Piece by Darlene McArthur

Student Exhibit Sculptural, Ceramic Art

The campus community is invited to an exhibit of sculptural and ceramic art by local artist Darlene McArthur. The exhibit, held in the offices of George Miles & Buhr Architects & Engineers is on Friday, February 25, from 5-8 p.m. Among the pieces to be exhibited are hand-built pottery, welded rusted metal sculpture and wood sculpture made of "found" and "architectural" elements.

McArthur is a graduating senior in the SSU fine arts program. She has previously exhibited in the Maryland Federation of Arts Emerging Artists' Exhibit in Annapolis (1993), Salisbury City Arts Weekend (1993) and the Globe Theatre in Berlin, MD (1993).

George Miles & Buhr is located at 206 West Main St. on Salisbury's Downtown Plaza. Parking is available in the public parking lot between the library and the plaza, with entrance on Camden Street, one door west of Channel 47. Refreshments will be served.

Metropolitan Museum Of Art Bus Trip

The University is sponsoring a bus trip for students to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City on Friday, February 25.

The cost, $12 for full-time students and $15 for all others, covers transportation but not admission to the museum. Sign up at the information desk in the Guerrieri University Center. Sign up, with an SSU I.D., must be in person.

The bus leaves the Dogwood Drive entrance of the Guerrieri Center at 6:30 a.m. and arrives back at SSU at approximately 11 p.m. Brief stops will be made for breakfast and dinner.

Models Needed

Models are needed for drawing and painting classes. Contact the Art Department at 543-6270.

Art Professional's Market Held March 16

The fourth annual Art Professional's Market will be held on Wednesday, March 16, from 10 a.m.-8 p.m. in the Great Hall in Holloway Hall.

A variety of local and regional businesses and individuals involved in the visual arts will be available to discuss their work on an informal basis. The purpose of this gathering is to inform students and the general public of the various professions and careers in the visual arts.

Artists will discuss the general and specific nature of their profession; how art is a part of their business and what non-art related matters they deal with; how their education prepared them for their career; what kind of on-the-job training they acquired; whether or not they must regularly upgrade their skills; and the necessary and unnecessary elements of their education.

Trip to Walters Gallery, ACC Crafts Exhibition

The Art Institute & Gallery in Salisbury is sponsoring a motor coach trip to the Walters Art Gallery, the American Craft Council's Juried Fine Craft Exhibition and Haussner's Restaurant in Baltimore on Saturday, February 19. Participants can select to spend the day either at the Walters or the ACC Exhibition; lunch is optional. The trip leaves at 8:45 a.m. from the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center and returns to Salisbury at 7:30 p.m. with no dinner stop.

At the Walters Art Gallery a new exhibit is on display. "River of Gold" features 200 pre-Columbian treasures for the Sitio Conte site in central Panama. This site, excavated during a 1940 University of Pennsylvania excavation, is one of the richest ceremonial burial sites in the New World. This final resting place of a powerful ancient chief contained the spectacular achievements of ancient goldsmiths from A.D. 700-1000, including nose ornaments, gold sheathed ear rods, whale bone pendants and more. Also on view is Henry Walters' extensive 22,000 piece permanent collection, featuring works from all periods: Greek, Roman, Egyptian, Christian, Gothic, Renaissance, Old Masters and 19th century. There will be a guided tour for the AI&G group of highlights from the collection at 2 p.m.

At the American Craft Council's juried exhibition visitors can see some of the nation's finest contemporary crafts including furnishings, utensils, fabrics, jewelry, toys and ornaments. Over 1,000 artists, working in all media—wood, fiber, glass, leather, metal and clay—are represented.

For lunch tour participants have the option of being on their own in the Inner Harbor, or joining the group at Baltimore's famous Haussner's Restaurant. Haussner's specializes in European cuisine and is home to a private 19th century fine art collection, featuring original paintings, etchings, china and sculpture. A $15 fixed price menu is available for tour participants. A la carte is also available.

Cost, per person, for the bus is $20 for members and $25 for non-members. In addition participants will pay either $4 for the Walters (including the guided tour) or $6 for the ACC Crafts Exhibition. In addition, those wanting the fixed price menu at Haussner's will pay $15.

For more information or reservations call the AI&G at 546-4748.

Art Institute & Gallery Benefit

"Tea for Two," a benefit for the Art Institute & Gallery is on Sunday, February 27, at the home of Dr. Hilda Houlihan in Salisbury.

Enjoy an afternoon of fine desserts, in the style of a fine English tea, while listening to romantic songs performed by Phyllis Oldham, Doug Smith, Peter Palmer, Duane and Kathy Karna, Lynne Rosenthal, Ev Cook, David Lawson and Jeff Baer, some favorite local singers and musicians.

There are two seatings: 1 p.m. or 3 p.m. Price is $15 per person.

Call 546-4748 for reservations or send a check to: AI&G, P.O. Box 193, Salisbury, MD 21803.

Seniors Graduation Application Deadline

All undergraduate students who plan to complete degree requirements in December 1994 or Winter Term 1995 must complete an Application for Diploma by Friday, March 4, in the Office of the Registrar. The University no longer requires a graduation fee.

All applications must be approved by the chair of the student's major department. The purpose of the early application deadline is to allow time for each senior's records to be reviewed in detail prior to the last semester of attendance at the University. This ensures that students are aware of their academic status early enough to make any last minute adjustments in their plan of study.

Please return a completed Application for Diploma to the Office of the Registrar, Holloway Hall, Room 145, or mail it to the Office of the Registrar, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury MD 21801.

Paul Douglas Teacher Scholarship

Applications for the Paul Douglas Teacher Scholarship are available in the Financial Aid Office for the 1994-95 academic year. Awards can be up to $5,000 per year.

Applicants must be Maryland residents and full-time students and must agree to teach two years for each year they receive the award. Deadline to apply is March 31.

Holloway Hall and rest of campus was pelted with ice and snow last week as Delmarva continues to endure one of its most severe winters in recent memory. Kathy Pusey, a member of the public relations staff, took the photo above.

Wellness Workshops for Women in March

During March Kathryn Reading, a counselor in the Center for Personal and Professional Development, is offering a series of workshops designed especially for women.

The first workshop, "Women and Fatigue," is on Wednesday, March 2. During the program participants are provided with information regarding why women are particularly prone to fatigue. Issues to be covered include nutrition, exercise, smoking, drugs, and alcohol and stress. All participants receive a self-assessment tool to assist them in analyzing their particular fatigue problems.

The second workshop in the series, "Finding Balance in Our Lives," lasts for two sessions, consecutive Wednesdays, March 9 and 16. The workshop is targeted particularly at women who are trying to balance the demands of school and work with the demands of family, self and the community. The focus of the workshop is on developing realistic expectations, saying "no," setting priorities and establishing goals.

"Learning to Love Your Body," the third workshop, is on Wednesday, March 23. The focus is why women in our culture hate their bodies. Discussion focuses on topics such as getting over the love/hate relationship with mirrors and scales, and appreciating what the body does, understanding the body as it moves through the years.

All workshops are on Wednesdays at noon in the Manokin Room of the Guerrieri University Center. For more information on any of the workshops, stop by CPPD, Guerrieri Center, Room 263, or call 543-6070.

Ulm To Discuss Alcohol Research

Dr. Ronald Ulm, a professor of psychology, will present some results of his recent sabbatical/post-doctoral fellowship in substance abuse to the public on Friday, March 11. The talk, titled "A New Biopsychosocial Perspective in the Treatment of Alcohol Dependence," will be given in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall from 4-5 p.m. and will be followed by an informal social hour in the Social Room from 5-6 p.m.

Ulm spent a year, from July 1992 through July 1993, with the Substance Abuse Unit of the Department of Psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania studying the latest research in the treatment of substance abuse. The Treatment Research Unit of the University of Pennsylvania uses a multimodal approach to the treatment of substance abuse by combining the latest research in biological, psychological, sociological and spiritual factors involved in successful treatment.

Ulm has collaborated for more than 15 years with Dr. Joseph Volpicelli of the University of Pennsylvania in unravelling the role of endogenous opiates in alcohol dependence. The original research with animals has developed into current treatment of chronic alcoholic patients using an opioid blocking agent called Naltrexone. Combined with standard psychosocial therapy, the use of Naltrexone has proven to be of substantial benefit in helping to prevent relapse in alcoholics during the initial stages of their recovery. In the past year, two separate sets of double-blind, placebo controlled clinical trials with different populations of alcoholics have demonstrated the effectiveness of this new treatment approach.

As part of a continuation of his involvements with alcohol research, Ulm will present the results of animal research indicating the role of opioid in alcohol dependence at the 150th convention of the American Psychiatric Association in May. His talk, titled "Opioid and Alcohol Self-administration in Animals," will be part of a larger symposium titled "Opioid Involvement in Alcohol Dependence." A second paper, "The Effects of Morphine on Ethanol Consumption: Effect of Prior Ethanol Exposure," will be presented at a poster session of the same convention. In addition, Ulm will co-author a third paper to be presented at the College of Problems in Drug Dependence to be held at the Breakers Hotel in West Palm Beach, FL from June 18-23. This paper is titled "The Effects of Morphine on Selection of Sucrose and Ethanol."

Health Services Offered to All Students

The Student Health Services (SHS) staff welcomes new and returning students to campus. It is here to assist in the transition to college.

SHS is an outpatient ambulatory setting offering a variety of health services and wellness education. Health services are available to all full-time, on- and off-campus students, as a part of the regular schedule of fees paid prior to each semester. Part-time students may choose to pay the same fee to access unlimited services throughout the semester.

Student Health Services is located on the south side of Holloway Hall. Week-day hours are as follows: Monday, 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m.; Tuesday, 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m.; Wednesday, 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m.; Thursday, 8:30 a.m.-5:30 p.m.; and Friday 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

The hours are posted at the entrance and are published in a variety of ways around the campus. On-call emergency service information is also posted at the entrance and in SHS literature.

New and transfer students were mailed a health history questionnaire, an immunization form, a letter explaining the requirements as well as a brochure detailing services and staff. Please return the completed materials to Student Health Services, if that has not been done yet.

President's, Chancellor's Councils Seek Input

The SSU President's Staff Advisory Council meets monthly to discuss issues of concern to SSU staff at the local and state levels. The council also coordinates activities with the Chancellor's Council for University of Maryland System Staff.

Any staff member with questions or concerns about campus or state personnel policies, or other issues, should contact one of the council members. The council will discuss questions or concerns with Dr. Bellavance, or the Personnel Office, at regular meetings.

SSU staff council representatives are: Robert Meigel, Physical Plant; Lesley Dayton, Blackwell Library; Dennis Bradford, Public Safety Office; Linda Abresch, Math Department; Barry King, Dean of Students Office; Jackie Eberts, Financial Services Office; Jeanette Wolinski, Computer Center; and Jerry Waldron, Registrar's Office.

Minutes from the President's Staff Council meeting and the Chancellor's Council for University System Staff are on reserve for staff review in Blackwell Library at the circulation desk. During February the Chancellor's Council constitution and by-laws are also on reserve for staff review and comments.

The Chancellor's Council consists of staff from 13 UMS institutions. The council meets monthly and advises the chancellor on personnel issues relevant to UMS staff. The council is currently monitoring legislation which effects staff and reviewing a proposed pay plan for all system staff.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Despite the frigid weather and less-than-ideal outdoor conditions, the men's lacrosse team is quickly approaching its season opener. The Gulls, 13-1 last year, have been busily preparing for their February 26 visit to Hampden-Sydney that will officially begin the '94 season.

Coach Jim Berkman, entering his sixth year at SSU with an overall record of 60-13, welcomes back 32 lettermen this spring. Attackman Jason Coffman, a first-team all-American as a freshman last year, will guide the offense once again. Newcomers Sean Radebaugh, Jake Bergey and Paul Smith are among those who could join Coffman on attack.

Seniors Ryan Murphy and Dod Poe highlight the midfield unit. Murphy was a third-team all-American last spring, while Poe is a three-year letterwinner with 32 career goals and 34 assists. Dan Mergott, Todd Cliggett and Chris Bellotte are other top returnees among the midfielders.

Sophomore Chris McQueeney will assume a leadership role on a rebuilt defensive unit. Seniors Sean O'Connell and Tom McAuliffe are likely to fill bigger roles this year.

Erik Miller, an honorable mention all-American last year, returns in the nets. He started all 14 games in goal last year while averaging 10.6 saves/game.

A tradition of winning is part of the equation for the Sea Gulls as they enter the '94 season. SSU has the best winning percentage in Division III over the last three years, with a record of 40-4. The Gulls have completed undefeated regular season campaigns in two of the last three years, and sat atop the Division III poll for most of the '93 season.

SSU's first home game will be on March 12 against Ohio Wesleyan.

Institute for Retired Persons Offers $500 Scholarship

The Institute for Retired Persons (IRP) has established two awards of $500 each to be given to two full-time juniors in any major field of study at SSU whose permanent home is in one of the lower Eastern Shore counties of Somerset, Wicomico or Worcester and whose grade point average for each of the past three semesters is at least a 3.0.

The students must also demonstrate leadership ability along with University and/or community service and submit a brief essay as to why they would appreciate receiving the award. The deadline for completed applications is Thursday, March 10. Applications may be picked up at the Dean of Students Office (Guerrieri University Center, Room 212).

General Job Fair Upcoming Feb. 23

The annual General Job Fair is on Wednesday, February 23, from 1-4 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center. There will be over 40 employers participating. An employer directory will be available in the Center for Personal and Professional Development which gives a description of each organization as well as the type and location of job opportunities. Students are encouraged, but not required, to bring copies of their resume to give to prospective employers at the Job Fair. For more information please contact CPPD at 543-6070.

Conflict Resolution Center Gets Grant

The Center for Conflict Resolution at SSU was recently awarded a grant of $3,300 from the Peace Development Fund of Amherst, MA, for its outstanding community service.

"We are delighted to support the vitally important work the Center for Conflict Resolution is doing in Salisbury," said Ravi Khanna, executive director of the Peace Development Fund. "We receive hundreds of proposals for funding from worthy organizations across the United States. The Center for Conflict Resolution stood out as one which was especially effective and well focused."

SSU students are trained by the Center for Conflict Resolution, then given the opportunity to teach in local schools. This grant will fund conflict resolution training for the entire Pemberton Elementary School.

"We are so pleased to be able to provide this service to Pemberton Elementary School," said Joan Maloof, acting director of the center. "SSU and Pemberton Elementary have a long history of working together successfully. Principal Bowman has supported the work of the center from the very beginning. Together we are teaching these students violence prevention skills which will be useful for their whole lives."

Death In Venice Aired Over WSCL

This season's new production of Benjamin Britten's Death in Venice will be broadcast live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday, February 26. The broadcast begins with a precurtain feature at 1 p.m. over the Texaco-Metropolitan Opera International Radio Network and is followed at 1:30 p.m. by the opera, which is performed with one intermission. It will be heard locally over radio station WSCL 89.5 FM.

Anthony Rolfe Johnson will be heard as Gustav von Aschenbach, Thomas Allen will sing the seven nemesis roles, and David Atherton will conduct. Jeffrey Gall will sing the Voice of Apollo, and Bernard Fitch will be heard as the Hotel Porter. The "Lady of the Pearls" will be danced by Karin von Aroldingen, and "Tadzio" will be danced by Jeffrey Edwards.

Death in Venice, based on the famous novella of the same name by Thomas Mann, has been broadcast only once before from the Metropolitan Opera—during the 1974-75 season when the Metropolitan presented the opera's American premiere. The announcer for the broadcast will be Peter Allen.

Humphrey Burton, a television producer and director, who worked with Britten on several television projects in the 1960s and '70s, will host the precurtain feature with the director of Death in Venice, Colin Graham. Graham directed the 1973 world premiere of the opera at the Metropolitan the following season. Joining them will be David Atherton, the conductor of this new production, tenor Anthony Rolfe Johnson and baritone Thomas Allen.

Panelists on Texaco's Opera Quiz heard during the single intermission will be critic, lecturer and record reviewer Thor Eckert, Jr.; Tony Award-winning American playwright Terrence McNally; and artist manager and broadcast producer for radio station WOSU-FM in Columbus, OH, Christopher Purdy. The quizmaster will be Edward Downes.

Outdoor Club Plans Spelunking Trip

The next Outdoor Club trip is spelunking in Franklin, WV. The trip is Friday, March 4, to Sunday, March 6. The cost is approximately $10. Caving equipment will be provided by the club.

Interested in a fantastic spring for less than $100? Enjoy a week of canoeing in Florida or a week of hiking on the Appalachian Trail for under $100.

The Outdoor Club meets every Monday at 9 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A in the Guerrieri University Center.

Membership for the spring semester is $5. For additional information contact Claudine Roussel at 742-5085.

International House Available for Use

The International House, located on 305 West College Ave., is now open for interested groups. Those who would like to hold a meeting or an event in the house should contact the house manager (Andrew, 219-3236).

Reservation sheets are available in the International House or in the Guerrieri University Center, Room 242 E. For more information please contact Andrew or Agata Liszkowska at 543-6313.

Yearbooks for Sale

The Evergreen is taking orders for copies of the 1994 yearbook. Checks should be made payable to Salisbury State University for $15.50. Mail payment to SSU Box 3061.

Students should enclose an index card with their September mailing address where they would like the book shipped. There is no additional charge for shipping. All orders must be paid in full by March 25. Students, faculty and staff are also eligible for the special price.

To call the Evergreen Office from a campus phone dial 63210. From an off-campus phone dial 543-6006 and ask to be transferred to ext. 63210.

Policy on Closing Due To Inclement Weather

Should inclement weather result in classes being cancelled, information will be given to all local radio and television stations. Students can receive information concerning cancellations by listening to local stations.

The institutional policy with regard to closing is that unless there are the most dire circumstances the institution will remain open for business. Students, staff and faculty members must exercise their best judgement about whether they attend class or report to work. Different conditions prevail for each individual under inclement weather situations so the decision should be essentially an independent one.

If you do not hear an announcement about cancellation of classes, then classes and events will be held as scheduled. Please do not call Public Safety about cancellation notices so that office can assist with emergency needs.

Sailing Seminar Offered on March 11

The SSU Sailing Club in conjunction with ESSA is sponsoring a seminar on "Go Fast Sailing" with Will Keyworth of North Sails and Dave Flynn of Sobstad Sails on Saturday, March 12, from 9:30 a.m.-noon in Fulton Hall, Room 111.

The campus community is invited. The seminar is not only for racers but everyone who wants to get maximum performance out of their boats or beat that summer squall to the harbor.

SSU German instructor Klaudia Thompson also had her language students observing the daily life of the countryside. Thompson, who was born in Germany, was struck by the highly regulated environmental laws enacted recently. The air was cleaner but Germans were beginning to chafe at restrictions. For example, people, even funeral homes, could not burn clothing with polyester in it.

Fortunately, no fires were set at the music academy. The first week the SSU group shared the facility with German students. Soon they were strumming guitars and singing folk songs together in the academy's wine cellar and sliding down the hall on comforters. "It made us realize people aren't as different," Dameron said. Thompson agreed. "Even Munich is starting to look more like an American city," she noted, a trend throughout Europe.

Students also visited Dachau, some 20 minutes by train outside of Munich. The tour of the infamous camp where over 50,000 inmates died moved many to tears. Ryan Harbaugh, a junior physics major from Huntingtown, MD, spoke to Germans about the camp: "They said they were very sorry for it.... It was a horrible thing and they realize it," he said quietly. It "makes you value your own peaceful life," he added. "I'm glad I went."

Dr. James Hatley, an SSU philosophy professor whose daughter, Jennifer, sang with the choir, sensed a new maturity in her after the European trip. "Jennifer and the other students experienced a new level of intensity in their education. They saw how varied and lovely the world really is."

At one Bavarian church the priest was impressed by the choir. He asked them to encore a Latin hymn then blessed them in German: "May you have happy marriages and many children," Thompson translated, an unexpected benediction which left the students smiling.

COOL Clearinghouse

COOL Clearinghouse serves as an information network to help individuals and groups interested in community service opportunities match themselves with community organizations which use volunteers. This project is sponsored by COOL-SSU, a student organization affiliated with the Campus Outreach Opportunity League. Organizations using this service are solely responsible for the conduct of sponsored service activities, including training and supervision. Volunteers assume sole responsibility for their conduct and for any risks associated with service activities. COOL Clearinghouse (410)543-6080.

Rendine—Receives Alumni Appreciation Award, Helped Start Career Day

SSU has bestowed its Alumni Appreciation Award on Paul Rendine (SSU '74), who has become well-known locally for his contributions to the University and to the community.

Immediate past president of SSU's Alumni Association board of directors, chairman (and formerly Eastern Shore chairman) of the Maryland Governor's Committee on Employment of People with Disabilities and columnist for The (Salisbury) Daily Times, Rendine has also managed to build a successful business as an investment counselor. After nearly 20 years in the business, he opened his own brokerage firm a year ago.

Rendine merged his interests in business and the success of SSU graduates when he helped create an annual Career Day for the University. Started in 1987, the event draws on the experiences of successful SSU alumni who return to campus for a day to give students a preview of the challenges of the "real world" that awaits them after graduation.

"We wanted a way for alumni to make a contribution," Rendine said of the creation of the first Career Day. "The University at the time needed to improve links with the community and wanted to put together a real-time/real-world program to give students an idea of what to expect when they meet with real life."

"All of us have said, 'If I knew then what I know now...' We wanted a way to

Major Lithography Exhibit Opens in Fulton Gallery

Fifty views of the human figure created by 10 contemporary artists will be one view at the Fulton Hall Gallery from March 11 through April 14.

"Faces and Figures: Prints from the Tamarind Lithography Workshop," an exhibition circulated by the National Lending Service of the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C., explores an extraordinary range of individual approaches to the lithographic medium and to depicting the human form. All prints were created during the decade from 1960 to 1970 at the Tamarind Lithography Workshop in Los Angeles.

"We are very pleased to be able to present this exhibition which provides an opportunity for the public to view a fascinating range of work from this important American printmaking venture that served as a major catalyst for the renaissance of lithography in America," said Kenneth Basile, director of University galleries.

The exhibition includes lithographs by Jose Luis Cuevas, Leon Golub, Allen Jones, John Paul Jones, Michael Mazur, James McGarrell, Nathan Oliveira, Robert Andrew Parker, Rufino Tamayo and June Wayne. Images in the show range from sleek, colorful single figures in interior settings by Allen Jones to multi-figure narratives in complex environments by McGarrell.

Tamayo's abstracted figures in delicate colors and Wayne's ethereal environments contrast with the dark, moody black and white interpretations of John Paul Jones and Mazur. Conflict and violence are the subject of prints by Golub. Cuevas uses the medium to create fantastic creatures based on the story of the Marquis de Sade. In an autobiographical Hollywood Series, Parker pays homage to the time he spent working at the Los Angeles Studio.

The Tamarind Lithography Workshop was founded in 1960 by artist June Wayne with support from the Ford Foundation. The dual purpose of the Tamarind program was to train master printers in the highly demanding craft of lithographic printing and to introduce this printmaking technique to artists unfamiliar with the process.

During the 10 years of its activity, Tamarind awarded 103 grants to artists, including 71 to printer trainees. Approximately 2,900 works were produced over this period. The workshop closed in 1970. Renamed the Tamarind Institute, it was restructured and reopened under the auspices of the University of New Mexico, where it continues today.

Silent Auction To Benefit Habitat

A three-week long Silent Auction in April will benefit the Habitat project on campus. The goal is to raise $10,000 which would almost complete the fund-raising efforts necessary for the construction of the home.

Coordinated by the Public Relations Office, members of the campus community are encouraged to donate items, either goods or services, for the auction by March 25. Examples of donations include furniture, art objects, baked goods, lawn care, a weekend at a condominium, income tax services, dinner in one's home, babysitting services, tutoring, typing, fishing trip, hunting trip, tickets to a sporting or cultural event, etc.

After all items have been donated, an auction booklet will be prepared during spring break. These booklets will then be disseminated on campus beginning Monday, April 4. Bids on items then will be reported to the Public Relations Office over the next three weeks until the auction concludes Friday, April 22, at 5 p.m.

The first bid reported to the Public Relations Office will be considered the official bid on an item. Subsequent bids must be at least 10 percent higher.

In order for this final fundraiser for the Habitat project to be successful, members of the campus community need to be as resourceful as possible with their donations.

To donate an item for the auction or for more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Future Employment Trends Subject Of Lecture

Frederic G. Withington, a former vice president of information systems for the international management consulting firm Arthur D. Little Inc., lectures on "No More Work or Leisure: Future Problems of Employment" this spring.

Withington, who has 40 years experience in information system technology, is now a New York City-based independent consultant to vendors and users of advanced information systems. His lecture, free and open to the public, is on Wednesday, March 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

His presentation, sponsored by the SSU Faculty Cultural Events Committee, is part of the spring lecture series "Issues and Challenges: Preparing for Life in the 21st Century."

Withington will initially assess forcing

Seniors Graduation Application Deadline

All undergraduate students who plan to complete degree requirements in December 1994 or Winter Term 1995 must complete an Application for Diploma by Friday, March 4, in the Office of the Registrar. The University no longer requires a graduation fee.

All applications must be approved by the chair of the student's major department. The purpose of the early application deadline is to allow time for each senior's records to be reviewed in detail prior to the last semester of attendance at the University. This ensures that students are aware of their academic status early enough to make any last minute adjustments in their plan of study.

Please return a completed Application for Diploma to the Office of the Registrar, Holloway Hall, Room 145, or mail it to the Office of the Registrar, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury MD 21801.

Paul Douglas Teacher Scholarship

Applications for the Paul Douglas Teacher Scholarship are available in the Financial Aid Office for the 1994-95 academic year. Awards can be up to $5,000 per year.

Applicants must be Maryland residents and full-time students and must agree to teach two years for each year they receive the award. Deadline to apply is March 31.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Wellness Workshops for Women in March

During March Kathryn Reading, a counselor in the Center for Personal and Professional Development, is offering a series of workshops designed especially for women.

The first workshop, "Women and Fatigue," is on Wednesday, March 2. During the program participants are provided with information regarding why women are particularly prone to fatigue. Issues to be covered include nutrition, exercise, smoking, drugs, and alcohol and stress. All participants receive a self-assessment tool to assist them in analyzing their particular fatigue problems.

The second workshop in the series, "Finding Balance in Our Lives," lasts for two sessions, consecutive Wednesdays, March 9 and 16. The workshop is targeted particularly at women who are trying to balance the demands of school and work with the demands of family, self and the community. The focus of the workshop is on developing realistic expectations, saying "no," setting priorities and establishing goals.

"Learning to Love Your Body," the third workshop, is on Wednesday, March 23. The focus is why women in our culture hate their bodies. Discussion focuses on topics such as getting over the love/hate relationship with mirrors and scales, and appreciating what the body does, understanding the body as it moves through the years.

All workshops are on Wednesdays at noon in the Manokin Room of the Guerrieri University Center. For more information on any of the workshops, stop by CPPD, Guerrieri Center, Room 263, or call 543-6070.

Institute for Retired Persons Offers $500 Scholarship

The Institute for Retired Persons (IRP) has established two awards of $500 each to be given to two full-time juniors in any major field of study at SSU whose permanent home is in one of the lower Eastern Shore counties of Somerset, Wicomico or Worcester and whose grade point average for each of the past three semesters is at least a 3.0.

The students must also demonstrate leadership ability along with University and/or community service and submit a brief essay as to why they would appreciate receiving the award. The deadline for completed applications is Thursday, March 10. Applications may be picked up at the Dean of Students Office (Guerrieri University Center, Room 212).

Outdoor Club Plans Spelunking Trip

The next Outdoor Club trip is spelunking in Franklin, WV. The trip is Friday, March 4, to Sunday, March 6. The cost is approximately $10. Caving equipment will be provided by the club.

Interested in a fantastic spring for less than $100? Enjoy a week of canoeing in Florida or a week of hiking on the Appalachian Trail for under $100.

The Outdoor Club meets every Monday at 9 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A in the Guerrieri University Center. Membership for the spring semester is $5.

For additional information contact Claudine Roussel at 742-5085.

SSU Lacrosse 1994 Season Outlook

With a tradition of success firmly in place, expectations are high once again for the Sea Gull lacrosse team. SSU is 60-13 in five years under Coach Jim Berkman, including 40-4 during the last three years. The Gulls have enjoyed perfect regular season campaigns in two of the last three seasons, and have spent considerable time at the very top of the USILA Division III poll.

A closer look at the '94 Sea Gulls, position-by-position:

Attack
Berkman's bombers should once again provide plenty of firepower this season. Last year's freshman sensation Jason Coffman (51g-38a), a first-team USILA all-America, is back to spearhead the attack. Coffman will be surrounded by plenty of talented, albeit new faces.

Sean Radebaugh, a junior transfer from Essex JC, appears to be a strong candidate for the first unit. Freshman Jake Bergey should also make an immediate impact, as will transfer Paul Smith, the leading JUCO scorer in the nation in 1992 with over 100 points. Senior Trent Wisnaukas (7g-5a) returns as a strong crease attackman. Michael Orton adds a valuable left-handed weapon.

"We have a lot of guys who can score," Berkman said. "There's good size and experience among our top players on attack. It's a very solid unit filled with good athletes."

Midfield
Four experienced returnees highlight the offensive midfield unit. Senior Ryan Murphy (10g-14a), a third-team all-America in 1993 and the team's MVP, will lead the No. 1 line. He will probably be joined by senior Dod Poe (9g-17a), a converted attackman with outstanding athleticism. Dan Mergott, last year's fourth leading scorer with 26 points, moves back to the midfield after playing alongside Coffman on attack last year. Senior Todd Cliggett (11g-9a) rounds out the top four.

"These guys are all excellent athletes," said Berkman. "They're good feeders who hang onto the ball very well. They add another dimension to our offense."

Team Captain Chris Bellotte is the most experienced among the top four defensive middies. His speed is an asset to the transition game. Junior Matt Marchetti and sophomore Matt Agee are returning lettermen. Freshman Scott Melvin figures to provide additional strength.

Freshman Brendon Bellotte, Chris' brother, will join senior Ron Anson as the top long-sticks. Andy Kolchins, another freshman, should also see action.

Berkman said: "Our defensive and long-stick middies all have real good speed. The midfield unit as a whole is one of the better groups we've had in recent years."

Defense
Although just a sophomore, Chris McQueeney is targeted as the leader of a Sophomore attackman Jason Coffman, a first-team all-American last season, will help lead the Sea Gulls in their '94 opener at Hampden-Sydney this Saturday.

SSU 1994 Men's Lacrosse Schedule

Date	Opponent	Site	Time

rebuilt defense. With the loss of all three starters from '93, new players should emerge as key performers on the backline. Seniors Sean O'Connell and Tom McAuliffe, both backups in '93, will assume bigger roles. Junior transfer Rob Schmitt will probably make the biggest impact among the newcomers. Freshman Jay Owen will also play.

"We have to replace some great players on defense, but there is definitely ability here," said Berkman. "How quickly the defense matures will probably be a key to our overall team success this year."

Goalie

Senior Erik Miller, an honorable mention all-America last year, returns in the nets. He started all 14 games last year while averaging 10.6 saves/game with a .676 save percentage. Berkman has the luxury of two experienced backups behind Miller, senior Russ Hewitt and junior Tom Murrell.

"Erik is one of the top goalies in the nation," Berkman said. "He's excellent both in and out of the cage. Russ and Tom have also worked very hard in the offseason to give us good depth at the position."

Johnson Visits Hungary, Italy

Dr. Richard L. Johnson, assistant professor of music and director of wind studies, recently returned from a 28-day research journey to Budapest, Hungary and several cities in Italy. Johnson, with the support of a grant from the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, was able to continue his investigation of 19th century European wind literature.

While in Budapest Johnson was the guest of Maj. Laszlo Marosi, conductor of the Central Wind Orchestra of the Hungarian Army and professor of music at the Liszt Academy. During his visit Johnson spent four days at the Orszago Szechenyi Konyutar, the national institute for research in Hungary, in search of wind music by 19th century Hungarian composers Bela Kellar and Joseph Gungl. While a guest at the Liszt Academy of Music Johnson had the opportunity to observe several music classes offered to students in the Hungarian Army. During one visit, Johnson was asked to lecture the class regarding American composers' approach to contemporary composition.

During his stay in Hungary Johnson was also the guest of the internationally recognized Hungarian composer Frigyas Hidas. Johnson was able to acquire several wind compositions by Hidas, including a promise to compose a concerto for solo euphonium and band which will be dedicated to Johnson and the SSU Wind Sinfonia. The composition is to be completed by the fall.

In Italy Johnson was the guest of Marino Anesa, who is recognized as the historical authority of Italian band music. Anesa has written five major texts on the history of the Italian band. While in Saronno, Italy Johnson received 29 wind scores of various 19th and early 20th century Italian band composers from Anesa.

Johnson also had the opportunity to spend a period of time at the Biblioteca Statale and Museo Civico in Cremona, Italy investigating original wind manuscripts of the Italian operatic composer Amilcare Ponchielli. Some 200 such manuscripts were made available to Johnson for his perusal. While in Cremona he also was given the opportunity to visit the Stradivarian Exhibit currently part of the Museo Civico of Cremona.

While in Italy Johnson continued his investigation of Ponchielli's wind music with a visit to the G. Verdi Biblioteca de Conservatorio in Milano. He also had the opportunity to visit Teatre alla Scala and the Museo Teatre in the metropolitan center of the city. Johnson was able to observe numerous historical artifacts belonging to such operatic composers as Giuseppe Verdi, Gioachino Rossini, Amilcare Ponchielli and La Scala conductor Arturo Toscanini.

Miller To Coordinate Cultural Programming

Pamela Taylor Miller has accepted the position of assistant to the director of programming. Miller has a B.A. in music from Salisbury State and has been active on campus with the Music and Theatre departments.

Miller provides assistance to the director of the Guerrieri Center in planning, organizing and administering an arts and lectures program. Her duties include performing administrative tasks, dealing with speakers, artists and agents, and arranging details of the Guerrieri Center programs.

Contact Miller at 543-6100 from 9 a.m.-3 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Maryland's Youngest Emerging Artists at AI&G

Coming to the galleries of the Art Institute and Gallery of Salisbury (AI&G) are the works of students in grades K-12 from across the state of Maryland. The art will be on display through March 11.

In the Yost Gallery the Maryland State Arts Education Association's traveling exhibition will showcase art from the entire state.

Pastel, photography, printmaking and paintings were selected for their technical merit.

Showing concurrently in Gallery One is art from Wicomico County 11th and 12th graders participating in the visual and performing arts class at Wicomico High School.

The AI&G is located in downtown Salisbury on Rt. 50 and Lemmon Hill Lane. The hours are from noon-4 p.m., Monday through Saturday, with extended hours available for groups. For further information please call 546-4748.

Taylor Present Wayfinding Research

Drs. Brennen and Ann Taylor will make a joint presentation at the upcoming 11th annual conference of the International Association of Psychosocial Rehabilitation Services in Albuquerque, NM.

Their research, titled "Generating a Sense of Community Among Multiple Handicaps: A Wayfinding Perspective," describes a model for disabled psychiatric individuals to access urban community health care by mass transit.

Through case studies the Taylors analyze wayfinding training which result in the development of formal and informal community networks. Implications of wayfinding with multiple handicapped persons are articulated within the context of the American With Disabilities Act and the International Rehabilitation Movement.

Brennen Taylor is an assistant professor of social work while Ann Taylor is an assistant professor of education.

Student Placement Needs Met by CPPD

As the spring semester begins the Center for Personal and Professional Development is completing a search for a new placement coordinator. Functioning without a coordinator has let the staff busy but still anxious to meet the needs of both graduating seniors and postgraduate students.

The CPPD is sponsoring two job fairs, featuring approximately 100 employers, hosting over 40 employers for on-campus interviewing and has scheduled 21 workshops on resume writing and interviewing skills. The center is also continuing its credentials file service for students, maintaining hundreds of current job listings, providing student access to Career Network, and supplying up-to-date information on national career options. The entire campus community should encourage senior-year students to take advantage of these on-campus services.

Because the CPPD is short staffed, it is temporarily unable to meet the requests of faculty for presentations in senior seminar classes. Faculty should direct students to CPPD regularly scheduled workshops or contact the CPPD Office for information packets that can be used in classes. Faculty are invited to schedule their classes on placement issues for late March and April when the new placement coordinator is available.

Faculty, staff and students should contact the Center for Personal and Professional Development at 543-6070 for all questions concerning the job search process.

Rotary Offers $10,000 Teaching Grant

Applications are now being accepted for a Rotary Teaching Grant in Developing Countries. The $10,000 grant is for three to five months of teaching service in a developing country.

The grant is offered through Rotary International District 7630, which includes the 40 Rotary Clubs in Delaware and Maryland's Eastern Shore. Applicants from SSU can apply through the local Wicomico Rotary Club.

To qualify for the grant an applicant must have held an academic appointment for at least three years in a community college, four-year college or university; demonstrated excellence in teaching or research in a field applicable to international relations or international development; shown evidence of ability to serve as a Rotary goodwill ambassador; and demonstrated language efficiency in the host institution.

An applicant's address must be in District 7630, and the grant is available to both Rotarians and non-Rotarians.

The deadline to apply is June 1.

Applications and a list of the developing countries identified by Rotary are available in the Public Relations Office in Holloway Hall, Room 264. For more information call 543-6030.

Atrium Exhibits Bunting Drawings

Drawings by Buddy Bunting of Gloucester, VA, will be on view at the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center March 10-25.

Bunting received his Master of Fine Arts from Boston University and his Bachelor of Fine Arts from the Maryland Institute. He has also been the recipient of numerous awards for his work as an artist.

His art is directly related to the community in which he lives, a rapidly changing rural Virginia. Bunting feels he lives in a "landscape of cultural indifference. Living in this environment has reshaped the attitudes and instruments of my work."

Bunting is drawn to things such as the simplicity of antique bird carvings, 19th century popular illustrations, newspaper and advertising images, and the stark and graphic content of local story-telling. Being aware of such common art forms has offered a wealth of new ways to work and observe the landscape. He points out that his "work is in some ways a testament to a subtle culture which, like so many others in this country, is hard at the business of erasing its unwritten history."

His drawings are spare, almost simple. They exist in a state of crudity which the artist considers openness. Bunting said, "It is important that the drawings remain remote from my own understanding, at least at first."

The Atrium Gallery is open from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from noon-4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

For more information contact the Atrium Gallery at 543-6271.

Sea Gull Sports Schedule

Thursday, Feb. 24	Women's Basketball at Notre Dame	7 p.m.
	Men's Basketball vs. Frostburg State (HOME)	7:30 p.m.
Saturday, Feb. 26	Men's Lacrosse at Hampden-Sydney	1 p.m.
Monday, Feb. 28	Men's Basketball at Beaver	8 p.m.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Paced by Dameon Ross' 46-point explosion last Saturday night, the men's basketball team held off Chowan for an 84-82 victory at home. The win was the team's sixth in the last seven games, and lifted the Gulls to .500 for the first time this season. SSU is 11-11.

Ross hit 18 of 33 field goal attempts, added four treys and converted six of seven free throws against Chowan. His 46-point output was a personal career-high and the third highest single-game total in SSU history. Andre Foreman holds the school-record with 52 points against Wesley in 1992.

By averaging 32.5 points and 8.8 rebounds in four games last week, Ross was named the ECAC Player-of-the-Week.

Ross and fellow seniors Tom Wolfe and Jon Evans will be making their final home appearances this Thursday as SSU hosts Frostburg at 7:30 p.m. The Gulls close out the season on Monday at Beaver College in Philadelphia.

The women's team (7-13 overall) closes out its season on Thursday with a visit to the College of Notre Dame in Baltimore. The Gulls dropped their only game last week, losing 77-72 at Wesley despite 21 points from Sarah Jones.

Junior center Kim Roth continues to rank among the national leaders in rebounding. Her 15.2 average places her fourth in the most recent NCAA Division III statistics. Roth's 32-rebound performance against Lynchburg on December 16 is still the best single-game effort in Division III this season.

Prejudice Reduction Workshop Here March 5

Pacem in Terris and the National Coalition Building Institute/Delaware chapter are offering a prejudice reduction workshop on Saturday, March 5, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. in Fulton Hall, Room 203.

"Welcoming Diversity: A Workshop on Prejudice Reduction" is a one-day, experiential workshop that shows participants how to identify the misinformation people carry about themselves and others, how to heal the emotional wounds resulting from mistreatment, and how to reclaim the power to challenge all forms of discrimination. It uses a model of prejudice reduction developed by Cherie R. Brown, founder of the National Coalition Building Institute in Washington, D.C.

The leader of the workshop is Dr. Robert (Buck) C. Buchanan, a National Coalition Building Institute national associate and the director of the Delaware chapter. He is assisted by Chris Jackson, a trainer at the DuPont Co. and a Delaware chapter associate.

The workshop is open to persons 16 and older. Registration for individuals is on a sliding scale from $20 to $50; there is a special rate of $15 for teachers and youth. Scholarship aid is available upon request. The cost is $50 for registrants sponsored by government, university or business. Registration includes lunch.

The workshop has been approved by the Delaware Department of Public Instruction for two-fifths in-service credit for teachers.

To register or for more information call the Pacem in Terris Office at (302) 656-2721. The deadline for registration is Wednesday, March 2.

Noises Off! In March at Wi-Hi

The Community Players present Noises Off! on March 4 and 5 at 8:15 p.m. and March 6 at 2:15 p.m. at Wicomico High School Auditorium. The production is directed by Sharon Benchoff.

For ticket information call 543-ARTS.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HIH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Math Club News

The next Math Club meeting is on Tuesday, March 8, at 3:45 p.m. in the Power Professional Building, Room 188. The film N is a Number will be shown. Math majors or those interested in mathematics are invited for refreshments every second and fourth Tuesday at 3:45 p.m. in Power Building Room 117. Help plan a party or picnic and come up with ideas for Math Awareness Week.

and master printer and helped to foster an unprecedented period of craftsmanship and inventiveness in American lithography. Many printers from Tamarind moved on to found other leading print workshops," said Ruth Fine, curator of modern prints and drawings at the National Gallery. Fine and Carlotta Owens, assistant curator in the department, selected the works in the exhibition.

A supple medium well suited to individual artistic expression, lithography was invented in the late 18th century. The process involves drawing images on heavy limestone slabs or specially prepared metal plates. The drawings are then chemically treated by a process based on the antipathy of oil to water. Finally, pressure from a printing press transfers the images from the stone or plate onto paper.

The National Gallery of Art's collection includes more than 2,200 works from the Tamarind Lithography Workshop, primarily gifts from Lessing J. Rosenwald and from Dorothy J. and Benjamin B. Smith.

The Gallery is open Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Tuesday, 10 a.m.-8 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday, noon-6 p.m.; and closed Friday.

For more information about the exhibit please call the Fulton Gallery at 543-6271.

let current SSU students in on what grads had learned," he said.

The program has enjoyed the support of both alumni, who participate in both the organization and the presentation of Career Day, and the administration. SSU Director of Alumni Relations Nancy Wagner said that the event, as well as Rendine's other work on the Alumni Association board of directors, has given a boost to the University. "The backbone of any university is its alumni," she said. "Their support and participation is vital. "Paul Rendine has been very special for us."

Rendine is pleased to see the recent progress of SSU's Alumni Association, from the growth of Career Day to plans for an Alumni House. He feels confident that today's SSU students will want to follow in his footsteps.

"The University has a good reputation among the business community on the East Coast," he said. "Students can be confident that a resume that says 'SSU grad' will be well received because of the work the University has been doing for the past 10 years or more."

"And as long as they are aware that SSU gave them positive things to work with, they'll have good reason to contribute when their turn comes."

The University presents the Alumni Appreciation Award each year at its fall commencement. For more information about alumni activities, contact the Alumni Relations Office at 543-6042.

CURRENT ON-CAMPUS RECRUITING

SWAC Announces New Grants Deadline

The Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council (SWAC) has announced a "New Funding New Opportunity" special one-time only grants deadline. Friday, March 18, is the deadline for these grants which are for new arts programs in the community.

Any new arts program sponsored by a non-profit, tax-exempt organization is eligible for funding but distinct preference will be given to proposals that bring artists into non-traditional sites and develop arts linkages with new audiences.

"We have documentation of some exciting programs from around the country and we'd like to assist in the creation of similar programs here," said Davina Grace Hill, SWAC executive director. "If a photographer wants to work in a residency situation with a foster care agency, if a theatre company wants to work with an at-risk juvenile population, or if a sculpture wants to work with a recycling club, we now have funds available to assist their efforts."

All SWAC grant funds must be matched and cannot be the sole source of income for a project. For these "New Funding New Opportunity" grants the match is one-to-one, meaning that grant seekers can apply to SWAC for half the total cost of the project. All projects must begin no later than June 1.

Artist may develop a proposal and have a host agency submit the grant; or the non-profit agency may develop an idea and then find the artist who can implement the concept. SWAC will assist in the development of proposals and welcomes inquiry phone calls.

Grants will range between $300 and $1,000 each. A panel, made up of community arts participants, will review the applications and make funding recommendations to the SWAC board of directors on April 12. The final funding decisions rest with the SWAC board. Notification of funding decisions will be available by mid-April.

For more information or to pick up application forms please call 543-ARTS or visit the Arts Council Office in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Students To Work With Children Sought

The LEADS (Letting Education and Discipline Succeed) program returns to campus this semester. The program matches SSU students who volunteer to serve as mentors with elementary school students in the community.

Mentors spend a minimum of one hour each week working one-on-one with a child. Program goals include helping children increase their self-esteem and academic performance. Eighty SSU student mentors from many different academic disciplines logged hundreds of hours last year.

Students interested in serving as LEADS mentor may pick up an application at the Office of the Dean of Students, Room 212, in the Guerrieri University Center.

COOL Clearinghouse

COOL Clearinghouse serves as an information network to help individuals and groups interested in community service opportunities match themselves with community organizations which use volunteers. This project is sponsored by COOL-SSU, a student organization affiliated with the Campus Outreach Opportunity League. Organizations using this service are solely responsible for the conduct of sponsored service activities, including training and supervision. Volunteers assume sole responsibility for their conduct and for any risks associated with service activities. COOL Clearinghouse (410)543-6080.

Perdue School Scholarships Available for 1994-95

The Perdue School is now soliciting applications for the following scholarships for the 1994-95 academic year: the Craig N. Piepenbring Scholarship ($500 for the year, to a rising sophomore or rising junior); and the Purchasing

Management Association Scholarship ($750 for the year, to a rising junior or rising senior).

Application forms and details are available at Holloway Hall, Room 113. Application deadline is March 4.

Buckle Up SSU, Seat Belts Save Lives

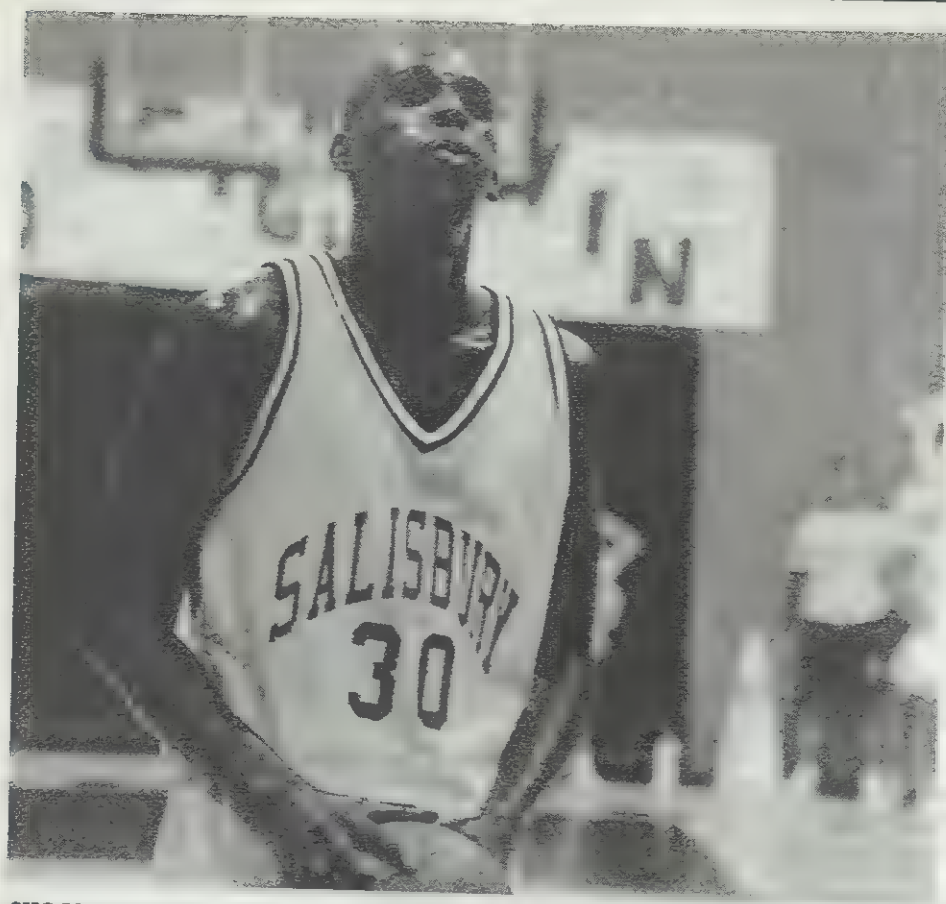

Members of the University community are urged to "buckle up" when driving or riding as a passengers in a motor vehicle.

Last year SSU attained an 83.3 percent usage rate. As a result, the University received recognition from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the Maryland Committee for Safety Belt Use Inc. The University's goal is 100 percent usage.

Statistics show that traffic deaths rank as the No. 1 killer of Americans between the ages of six months and 33 years, and that the probability of being involved in a motor vehicle accident is 86 percent during a lifetime.

Please "buckle up."

SHOOTING STAR Senior guard Dameon Ross rode a 130-point scoring spree right onto the pages of Sports Illustrated. Ross, who averaged 32.5 ppg last week, including a career-best 46 points against Chowan, is this week's SI Small College Player-of-the-Week. The February 28 issue is on newsstands now.

NASA Astronomer Brings Fascination of Space, Music to 'Contact 2001'

Most of us are fascinated by the endless possibilities of space. But few have had the front-row seat from which to see it all unfold that Dr. Jaylee Mead has had. As an astronomer for NASA at the Goddard Flight Center, Mead has shared her knowledge with fellow scientists around the world. As the featured speaker at "Contact 2001: The Symphony and Science in the 21st Century," she'll share it with area school children.

Contact 2001 is an afternoon of music and scientific discovery set to unfold Sunday, February 27, in Maggs Physical Activities Center. The program invites children and adults to take an up-close look at a symphony orchestra, at a model of the Hubble space telescope and at other evidence of space exploration.

Mead brings a joy of discovery and a love of theater to her role as astronomer/teacher. While she has retired from NASA, she continues to prepare and distribute information to astronomers that helps them to separate the known from the unknown among distant stars, planets and galaxies. The tools of her trade represent state-of-the-art computer and communications technology. Mead's experience and her depth of knowledge as an astronomer will be obvious to her audience; her fondness for the performing arts will likely benefit them in a more subtle way. She has been a regular performer in Goddard's amateur theater organization since it was organized in 1970, most recently as Berthe in their fall 1993 performance of Pippin. As a result, Mead is comfortable before a crowd and readily shares the excitement she finds in space exploration.

In her 30-plus years at NASA, Mead has been in on the agency's glory days and has taken part in its quieter accomplishments.

"For me, and for many people, the high point was seeing a person step on the moon," she said. "Before that, when we were trying just to hit the moon, I'd stay up until all hours to watch it on television. When we made the first landing, I could hardly wait to see if the spacecraft would sink into the moon, would stand or topple over."

As the technology continued to advance, the universe has unfolded: objects that once were fuzzy have, for example, revealed themselves to be pairs of stars. "It's exciting to share those discoveries with friends and colleagues," she said.

Mead says she is looking forward to participating in Contact 2001 and the side-by-side presentation of symphony and science. The combination is a natural for her, as many of her friends share her talents in both music and science. The theater group at Goddard is accompanied regularly by an orchestra: both groups made up of scientists.

"Many people who are gifted in science are also talented musically," she said. Both are very absolute, with clear definitions; yet both require creativity, whether in the interpretation of data or of a musical composition. She added, laughing, "It may be that people in these fields have fairly healthy egos."

Contact 2001 is the brainchild of Dr. Tom Elliot, musical director of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU, and represents a partnership between the SSO, the Henson School of Science and Technology and the NASA/Wallops Flight Facility. An admission fee of $2 will help to defray the expenses of the symphony orchestra. For more information please contact the SSO at 548-5587.

Retirement Seminar Scheduled June 2,3

The Maryland Retirement Agency is conducting a two-day preretirement seminar here on June 2 and 3.

Employees within five years of being eligible to retire from state service who would like to attend the seminar should contact the Personnel Office, Holloway Hall, Room 222 (543-6035) for an application or additional information.

Fiddler's Picnic At Furnace Town

Furnace Town Historic Site in Snow Hill is the scene of an "Old Fiddler's Picnic" on August 20.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Frank Perdue Discusses Keys To Business Success

Salisbury State knows well the generosity of Frank Perdue. Eight years ago, his multimillion dollar gift launched the University's Perdue School of Business. Soon, however, the nationally-known poultry magnate will share with SSU and others in the Salisbury community a most precious commodity: the secrets of his success.

Perdue talks about the keys to successful business leadership at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, March 15, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The lecture is free and the public is invited.

The story of Frank Perdue and Perdue Farms Inc. is one that combines high regard for tradition and the lessons of history with a willingness to lead and innovate. Perdue was born the year his father Arthur entered the table egg business; at age 10 he was charged with caring for 50 chickens. He went on to operate his own egg business, earning $10 to $20 per month. He left it behind to enter college.

When he rejoined the family business in 1939, Frank Perdue was one of three employees, counting his father. The operation grew from selling eggs to hatching and growing broilers. Nine years later, he took over leadership of Perdue Farms, which by then had 40 employees, had pioneered in crossbreeding and was supplying broilers to industry giants like Swift and Armour.

Today, Perdue chickens are sold under the company's own name and Perdue Farms is the country's fourth-largest poultry producer. The company employs 13,500 people and processes over 7 million chickens each week. The many new breeding and processing methods his company has introduced have established Frank Perdue's reputation as an industry leader.

Perhaps the only innovation he resisted was the one that has made him a celebrity. In 1971 Perdue decided to set aside his reluctance to become the company's spokesman and put his faith in the ad agency he had chosen. As Alan Pesky, former vice chairman of Scali, McCabe, Stoves, International recalled, "He wasn't sure he would be comfortable or believable, but he agreed to do it. It came out marvelous because the copy captured what Frank really believes about his product."

Today, Perdue continues to be active in

Phil Bosserman, Gentle Scholar, Is Off to Japan

In 1960 Phil Bosserman jeopardized his job to become the second white man in Kansas City, KS, to join the NAACP. Then a 29-year-old father of three and fresh out of graduate school, Bosserman had moved to Kansas City for his first real job—full-time pastor of a Methodist Church. Shortly after arriving, a black lawyer moved his family into the all-white neighborhood. Tensions were high. Bosserman's wife, Sue, with children in tow, visited the lawyer's house to welcome them. Sue liked the new family and invited them to the parish house for dinner. But across the street the head of the church board was watching. He and other church members made it clear to the new pastor and his wife that blacks were not welcome. Bosserman's reaction—sign up at the NAACP.

"I'm still a member," he smiled, 34 years later. And he is still an ordained Methodist minister: his church has changed with the times. But the traumatic year in Kansas City was a turning point in his life. Church hierarchy did not support him, but someone else did: the president of nearby Baker University. He asked the clergyman to join his faculty. Bosserman accepted and never looked back.

After 19 years at SSU, the 62-year-old sociology professor still looks ahead. Just retired from SSU, he flies to Japan this week to establish a new sociology program for Hiroshima Women's University.

His students there may well count their blessings. Bosserman has been on the cutting edge of some of the most important social movements of the past 30 years, and rubbed shoulders with the best. At Boston University in the late 1950s where he earned his Doctorate of Sociology, it was not unusual for him to see Martin Luther King, Jr., also a student, passing in the hallways.

Chilling Tale of Sweeney Todd Comes to SSU Stage

John Warren As Sweeney Todd

"Don't sit in the chair!" a horrified audience shouted to the heroine during a British performance of "Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber of Fleet Street."

What's so frightening about a barber's chair? And who is Sweeney Todd anyway? On Friday, March 11, area audiences have the chance to discover the secrets of the "demon barber" in SSU's Theatre's production of C.G. Bond's rowdy retelling of the classic English thriller.

"This is not family fare," said the play's director, Dr. Andrew Hepburn. But teenagers old enough for horror movies might appreciate the macabre tale—if they're not afraid of razors.

A few clues to this Victorian mystery: A London barber is unjustly convicted and transported to Australia by a wicked judge who coveted his wife. Upon his return the barber takes revenge by slitting

Dr. Dan R. Sistrunk

Dr. Dan R. Sistrunk, 54, assistant professor of biology, died this weekend of a heart attack at his home in Waterview near Nanticoke.

"Dan Sistrunk was a valued colleague from the Biology Department. He worked well with students and was very much appreciated as a faculty member," said Dr. Phillip Creighton, dean of the Henson School of Science and Technology.

"Dan was a well-liked teacher," said Dr. Thomas Jones, chair of the Biology Department. "He loved teaching and students loved him." Sistrunk, a botanist, had taught at the University since 1972.

He is survived by two children, William N. "Nat," a student at the University of West Virginia, and Jennifer, a student at Frostburg State University.

Born May 25, 1939 in Converse, LA, he earned a B.S. and M.S. from McNeese State University in Lake Charles, LA, and a Ph.D. from Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge. His specialties were plant anatomy and morphology. He was also a U.S. Marine Corps veteran.

At Salisbury he had served as a consultant on botanical issues for local government and recently had done research on the growth of cypress trees in the area.

A memorial service will be held on Thursday, March 3, 11 a.m. at Messick Funeral Home in Bivalve. Contributions in his memory may be made to the Nature Conservancy of Maryland.

Rotary Offers $10,000 Teaching Grant

Applications are now being accepted for a Rotary Teaching Grant in Developing Countries. The $10,000 grant is for three to five months of teaching service in a developing country.

The grant is offered through Rotary International District 7630, which includes the 40 Rotary Clubs in Delaware and Maryland's Eastern Shore. Applicants from SSU can apply through the local Wicomico Rotary Club.

To qualify for the grant an applicant must have held an academic appointment for at least three years in a community college, four-year college or university; demonstrated excellence in teaching or research in a field applicable to international relations or international development; shown evidence of ability to serve as a Rotary goodwill ambassador; and demonstrated language efficiency in the host institution.

An applicant's address must be in District 7630, and the grant is available to both Rotarians and non-Rotarians.

The deadline to apply is June 1. Applications and a list of the developing countries identified by Rotary are available in the Public Relations Office in Holloway Hall, Room 264. For more information call 543-6030.

Atrium Exhibits Bunting Drawings

Drawings by Buddy Bunting of Gloucester, VA, will be on view at the Atrium Gallery located in the Guerrieri University Center March 10-25.

His art is directly related to the community in which he lives, a rapidly changing rural Virginia. Bunting feels he lives in a "landscape of cultural indifference. Living in this environment has reshaped the attitudes and instruments of my work."

Bunting is drawn to things such as the simplicity of antique bird carvings, 19th century popular illustrations, newspaper and advertising images, and the stark and graphic content of local story-telling. Being aware of such common art forms has offered a wealth of new ways to work and observe the landscape. He points out that his "work is in some ways a testament to a subtle culture which, like so many others in this country, is hard at the business of erasing its unwritten history."

The Atrium Gallery is open from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from noon-4 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

For more information contact the Atrium Gallery at 543-6271.

Assertion Seminar Rescheduled for March 18

The assertion seminar sponsored by the Perdue Center for Professional Development ("Assertion: The Key to Personal Effectiveness") has been rescheduled for Friday, March 18, at Salisbury State from 8:30 a.m.-3:30 p.m. The seminar was originally scheduled for Friday, February 11, but was postponed due to the ice storm. The fee of $65 per person includes all course materials, continental breakfast and lunch.

The speakers are Carolyn Stegman and Mitzi Perdue. There are still openings for those interested in registering. For more information and to register contact Renee Stephens, 1-800-999-7232 or 548-4505.

Perdue School Scholarships Available for 1994-95

The Perdue School is now soliciting applications for the following scholarships for the 1994-95 academic year: the Craig N. Piepenbring Scholarship ($500 for the year, to a rising sophomore or rising junior); and the Purchasing

Management Association Scholarship ($750 for the year, to a rising junior or rising senior).

Application forms and details are available at Holloway Hall, Room 113. Application deadline is March 4.

Retirement Seminar Scheduled June 2,3

The Maryland Retirement Agency is conducting a two-day preretirement seminar here on June 2 and 3.

Employees within five years of being eligible to retire from state service who would like to attend the seminar should contact the Personnel Office, Holloway Hall, Room 222 (543-6035) for an application or additional information.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Students To Work With Children Sought

The LEADS (Letting Education and Discipline Succeed) program returns to campus this semester. The program matches SSU students who volunteer to serve as mentors with elementary school students in the community.

Mentors spend a minimum of one hour each week working one-on-one with a child. Program goals include helping children increase their self-esteem and academic performance. Eighty SSU student mentors from many different academic disciplines logged hundreds of hours last year.

Students interested in serving as LEADS mentor may pick up an application at the Office of the Dean of Students, Room 212, in the Guerrieri University Center.

Math Club News

The next Math Club meeting is on Tuesday, March 8, at 3:45 p.m. in the Power Professional Building, Room 188. The film N is a Number will be shown. Math majors or those interested in mathematics are invited for refreshments every second and fourth Tuesday at 3:45 p.m. in Power Building Room 117. Help plan a party or picnic and come up with ideas for Math Awareness Week.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Computer Bowl Attracts Students From Throughout Shore

On Friday, March 4, 17 teams of high school students and their coaches from the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia will descend on the Guerrieri University Center, microcomputers and surge suppressors in hand, to compete in the fifth annual Eastern Shore Computer Bowl, co-sponsored by Delmarva Power and the Department of Mathematics and Computer Science.

Students are tested on their general knowledge of computers and programming and on their abilities to design and implement computer programs. Working in teams of four, students attempt to solve problems on the computer, not by running existing software but rather by designing, developing and testing the software themselves—from scratch.

The 30-minute literacy test, a 50-question, multiple choice test for which each team score represents the average of the four individual scores of team members, is followed by the programming competition in which each team attempts to design, implement and test computer programs to solve 21 problems, weighted according to level of difficulty, over a two-hour period. In order to earn points for a correct computer program, a team must demonstrate the program's correctness to its team judge by running the program on data sets supplied by the judge. The judges include math and computer science faculty and volunteers from the Computer Services Office.

According to Co-director Mary Lou Malone, "Students experience additional challenges by working together as a team to solve problems. This teamwork, so common in the real world of computers in general and software development in particular, presents its own set of organization and communication problems. The programming part of the competition is weighted more than the computer literacy part because we want to emphasize problem solving and teamwork." Delmarva Power generously awards $1,500 in cash prizes and plaques to schools which place in the top three. Students on the top three teams receive U.S. Savings Bonds.

While students are testing, their coaches are attending presentations on "Genetic Algorithms" and "Graphics in PowerBasic" by Dr. Robert Tardiff (Math and Computer Science Department) and Dr. Harry Suber (TrendLogic Associates). Following the programming competition, the students, coaches, and SSU faculty and student volunteers attend a buffet luncheon and awards presentation. Each student receives an official Eastern Shore Computer Bowl T-shirt and a certificate of participation. According to Michael Hoy, public relations consultant for Delmarva Power, "We are pleased to support quality educational experiences for the young people in our community. The Eastern Shore Computer Bowl is a competition where everyone ends up a winner."

SSU Bus Trip to Metropolitan Opera

The University is sponsoring a bus trip to the Metropolitan Opera at the Lincoln Center in New York City on Friday, March 18, to see Il Barbiere di Siviglia (The Barber of Seville). This is the fourth trip that SSU has offered to the Lincoln Center and each has been a huge success.

The bus leaves the Dogwood parking lot of the Guerrieri University Center at 8 a.m. No food or beverages are allowed on the bus. There is a brief breakfast stop in Wilmington, DE, and the bus discharges all passengers at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York at approximately noon. Everyone is free to spend the afternoon at the museum or at other attractions and proceed on their own to the Lincoln Center for the 8 p.m. performance. The bus leaves New York immediately after the show and returns to Salisbury at approximately 4 a.m.

The charge for the trip is $20 for full-time students and $25 for part-time students, faculty, staff and guests. The charge includes bus and opera tickets only. Food and transportation in New York are not included. Sign-ups must be made in person with SSU I.D. No one is allowed to buy more than two tickets. Sign-up begins on Monday, March 7, at the Guerrieri Center information desk for full-time students only. Part-time students, faculty, staff and guests may sign up beginning Wednesday, March 9.

There is no refund for cancellations unless the seat can be filled. For more information call the information desk at 543-6006. The Guerrieri Center is open Monday-Saturday from 8 a.m.-10 p.m. and Sunday from noon-10 p.m.

'Mostly Mozart' Concert Features UMES Flutist

"Mostly Mozart," a concert featuring University of Maryland Eastern Shore flutist Doug Smith, is on Sunday, March 13, at 2 p.m. at SSU.

Smith is accompanied by pianist Sheila McDonald, a fine arts faculty member at UMES, and Phyllis Mauney, the principal harpist with the U.S. Marine Corps Band in Washington, D.C. The concert, free and open to the public, is in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Smith graduated from the University of Michigan School of Music with a Bachelor of Music in woodwind instruments, with a double performance major in flute and clarinet.

Having been raised and educated in the schools of Anne Arundel County, he returned to his native Annapolis as flutist and soloist with the U.S. Naval Academy Band and performed with the Annapolis Symphony. He received the Master of Music and Doctor of Musical Arts in flute performance from Catholic University. He has studied flute with Britton Johnson of the Baltimore Symphony, Murray Panitz of the Philadelphia Orchestra and Wallace Mann of the National Symphony as well as the famed Jean-Pierre Rampal and Alain Marion in France.

Smith has been teaching at UMES since 1973 where his duties include private woodwind instruction and music theory and history. He was adjunct faculty with SSU for nine years and has been director of music at Bethesda United Methodist Church in Salisbury for the past 18 years. Smith is also the artistic director and conductor of the Easton Choral Arts Society.

He has lectured, adjudicated and concertized and conducted in several different fields in this country and abroad.

The featured work in the concert is the Concerto in C Major for Flute and Harp (K. 299) written by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart in 1777 for the Duke de Guines (whom Mozart described as an incomparable flutist) and his daughter who played the harp "magnifiquement." The piece has a decided French flavor in its use of dance and ballet rhythms since that art was so popular in France and being written for French audiences.

Though the flute was not Mozart's favorite instrument, he wrote for it whenever commissioned. The single concerto second movement Andante exists because of his receipt of the one-third down payment for a new concerto: no more money was forthcoming, therefore no more concerto can be heard today.

Other piano and flute works are definitely by Mozart but on the original manuscripts held in Salzburg, Austria the notation "for solo flute" had been scratched out and replaced with the notation "violin."

The concert features two other short sonata movements by earlier composers whose writings and compositions most certainly influenced Mozart's musical growth; J.C. Bach, the youngest son of the master Johann Sebastian, and Giovanni Platti, the Italian composer first attributed with using the sonata form.

For more information on the concert contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Sports Management Internship

SSU anticipates an internship in collegiate sports management. Qualifications include a bachelor's degree and a candidate who needs the internship to fulfill graduation requirements for a master's degree.

General responsibilities include assisting the professional staff in the coordination of all phases of operation of the Maggs Physical Activities Center. Specific responsibilities may include assisting in scheduling student employees, scheduling the facility for various practices and activities, coordinating evening facility supervision, assisting in administration of athletic events, supervising special events, taking inventory, evaluating programs, using computers, preparing a newsletter and other duties as assigned. Appointment is for nine months beginning September 1. Stipend is $8,000.

Deadline for applications is April 15 or until the position is filled.

Send a letter of interest, resume, and two letters of recommendation to Dr. Thomas P. Sticher, Facilities Coordinator, Maggs Physical Activities Center, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Variety Show Performers Sought

Calling all jugglers, tap dancers, piano players, gospel singers, rock stars and other talented people. The SSU Auditoria Services Department is gearing up for the fourth annual Variety Show. The Variety Show, or V4 for Short, is on Friday, April 8, and Saturday, April 9, in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

To be in V4 performers must audition on Monday, March 21, or Tuesday, March 22. Sign-up lists to audition will be posted in the lobby of WSCL in Caruthers Hall starting Monday, March 14.

Proceeds from this year's show go toward the SSU Habitat for Humanity project. V4 is designed to feature the students, faculty, staff and alumni of Salisbury State. The Variety Show is presented in a professional format featuring three mistresses and three masters of ceremonies. This year for the first time the Variety Show will have a jazz pit band. A few more members are needed to help with the pit band. All groups must have at least half of the performers associated with the University.

For more information and a copy of the V4 calendar and V4 guidelines please call Tony Broadbent at 548-4597.

Outdoor Club Plans Spelunking Trip

The next Outdoor Club trip is spelunking in Franklin, WV. The trip is Friday, March 4, to Sunday, March 6. The cost is approximately $10. Caving equipment is provided by the club.

Interested in a fantastic spring for less than $100? Enjoy a week of canoeing in Florida or a week of hiking on the Appalachian Trail for under $100.

The Outdoor Club meets every Monday at 9 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A in the Guerrieri University Center.

Membership for the spring semester is $5. For additional information contact Claudine Roussel at 742-5085.

Deadline for application is April 15. The position is open July 1.

Send letter of application, resume and three letters of reference to Search Committee, Racquet Sports Coordinator c/o David A. Brown, Director of Campus Recreation, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Writers-on-the-Shore Literary Festival Series

The Writers-on-the-Shore 1994 Spring Literary Festival at SSU features several distinguished writers reading from their works. All readings are on Thursdays, beginning March 10, at 8 p.m. in Fulton Hall, Room 111.

Poet Gerald Costanzo opens the festival with a reading from his works on March 10. His first collection of poems, In the Aviary, a Devins Award winner, was published by the University of Missouri Press in 1975. His most recent work, Nobody Lives on Arthur Godfrey Boulevard, appeared last year from BOA Editions. Costanzo has been the recipient of two Fellowships in Creative Writing from the National Endowment for the Arts and two Pushcart Prizes.

Melville Scholar and editor Hershel Parker lectures on April 14. The recipient of both Woodrow Wilson and Guggenheim Fellowships, he is a graduate of Lamar University and the recipient of advanced degrees from Northwestern University.

While holding a University of Delaware Center for Advanced Study fellowship he authored the book, Flawed Texts and Verbal Icons: Literary Authority in American Fiction, which works on the relationships between textual evidence and literary criticism and theory as well as between editorial theory and creativity.

In 1991 Parker served as president of the Melville Society and is now working on the third, three-volume edition of The New Melville Log and a full-scale narrative biography of Melville.

Jan Freeman, a poet from western Massachusetts, reads from her works on April 21. Her first book, Hyena, was published last year by Cleveland State University Press. According to a reviewer for The Women's Review of Books the book was "a stunning debut," and recommended her readings: "Part-song, part-shout, part-whisper, Freeman's performance (and that's the right word) was one of the most impressive I'd ever heard."

Her works have also appeared in numerous magazines including Ms., Cosmopolitan and The American Poetry Review.

The series continues on May 5 with a reading by poet Toi Derricotte. The recipient of the Folger Shakespeare Library Poetry Committee Book Award Derricotte is the publisher of three collections: The Empress of the Death House (1978), Natural Birth (1983) and Captivity (1989). Published by the University of Pittsburgh Press she is also the recipient a Fellowship in Creative Writing from the National Endowment for the Arts and the 1993 Distinguished Pioneering of the Arts Award from United Black Artists Inc.

The series concludes on May 19 with a reading from the SSU student publication, Scarab, by student poets and fiction writers with a major writer to be announced.

The Writers-on-the-Shore lecture series is sponsored by the English Department and the Guerrieri University Center.

Art Professional's Market Held March 16

The fourth annual Art Professional's Market is on Wednesday, March 16, from 10 a.m.-8 p.m. in the Great Hall in Holloway Hall.

A variety of local and regional businesses and individuals involved in the visual arts are available to discuss their work on an informal basis. The purpose of this gathering is to inform students and the general public of the various professions and careers in the visual arts.

Artists discuss the general and specific nature of their profession; how art is a part of their business and what non-art related matters they deal with; how their education prepared them for their career; what kind of on-the-job training they acquired; whether or not they must regularly upgrade their skills; and the necessary and unnecessary elements of their education.

Some of the businesses and individuals participating in the art professions market include: Ann Worthington, quiltmaking; Don Carlson, wood sculpture; Jo Craemer, bird carving naturalist; Richard Prout, papermaking, bookbinding; Susan Stockman, jewelry maker; Ed Cox, airbrush artist; Janet Simms, graphic artist; Drew Steis, Arts Calendar magazine; Marcy Wolpe, serigrapher; Steve Hicks, photographer and graphic artist; Cleary Design; Robert "Mac" MacElroy, owner, Art Express; Debbie Rus, graphic artist, Robin English Advertising and Design; Davina Hill, president, Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council; Marge Violetta, artist; Gerry Gerlitzki, graphic artist; Sherwood McGrath, silkscreen, Bemco; Cecille Steinreid, artist; Delmarva Friendship Rugcrafters; Casey Foltz, artist; Madeleine Shinn, graphics engineer; Guy Shover, artist; Jim Rehak, designer, painter, cartoonist; Mary Rose Rehak, portraits; Peter Loonam, painter, graphic artist; Jeanne Anderton, photographer; Carol Bloodsworth, director Publications Office, Salisbury State University; Tracy Causey Jeffrey, gallery owner, The Finer Side; Norman Pospisil, visual information specialist; Tom Frey, wood sculptor; Hamilton Large, stained glass; Angela Herbert Hodges, artist, Art Institute & Gallery Artists' Co-op; Ron Artman, stained glass; Martha Hudson, artist; Jerome Ryan, painter; Paul Kratzer, graphic designer, owner, Paul Kratzer and Co.; Janice Bailey, owner, Arts & Crafts Shoppe; Greg van de Visser, graphic artist, Economy Printing; John Gencel, photographer; Classic Custom Framing; and SSU's Center for Personal and Professional Development.

English Assistantships

The English Department anticipates assistantships (covering tuition plus approximately $4,200) for graduate students pursuing the M.A. in English (writing or literature option).

The writing option is a two-year program of study (33 credit hours) which involves courses in language and rhetoric as well as related areas. The literature option involves mainly literature courses plus required courses in language, rhetoric and literary criticism (33 credit hours).

Teaching assistants teach two sections each semester in the freshman English program. GRE scores are required.

For information call Dr. William Horne, Department of English, at 543-6445 or FAX 543-6068. Please specify option. All requests for information must be received by March 18.

Homelessness Exhibit At Caruthers March 7

The Salisbury State Program Board presents Shooting Back at Homelessness by photographer and photojournalist Jim Hubbard on Monday, March 7, at 7 p.m. in Caruthers Hall Auditorium.

His work on a Pulitzer-nominated project, Plight of the Homeless Families, sparked an interest in photography by some of his younger subjects. This inspired him to begin educating less fortunate children in the world of photography. Hubbard believed that by teaching children photography and other creative skills he could give them a fighting chance in their violent world.

In February 1989 the Shooting Back Educational and Media Center was founded. The children are now able to learn video, dark room and photography skills from professional photojournalists. Photographers from The Washington Post, The New York Times, Newsweek and other organizations volunteer to teach their craft to the area's homeless children. The center is also working to develop scholarships, internships, and special college and university programs for promising at-risk youth.

Hubbard and his volunteers organized an exhibition at the Washington Project for the Arts. The exhibition attracted over 20,000 viewers in a three-month period and is currently on a nationwide tour.

Medical School, Is It For You?

On Friday, March 4 at 1:30 p.m. Dr. Milford Foxwell, associate dean of admissions at the University of Maryland School of Medicine, speaks on "Medical School Admissions for the 1990s." All students with a career interest in medicine or any of the health professions should make every effort to attend.

The health professions area is a rapidly growing segment of society and the educational demands are increasing continually. Foxwell presents tips to help students prepare for health professions schools, explains the admissions process and gives a brief overview of medical school—what it's like, the curriculum, options, etc.—after which he is available for a question and answer session.

SSU, UMES Students Team Up To Provide Tax Support

While most of us dread tax season, it can be especially daunting to elderly taxpayers. For others, a limited education has left them ill equipped to read and understand the complicated instructions that come in the mail with their 1040 tax form.

A group of SSU and University of Maryland Eastern Shore students are helping to turn confusion into caring.

As participants in the IRS's VITA (Voluntary Income Tax Assistance) program, these students will spend at least 30 hours each in the program.

Again this year, SSU students in the Franklin P. Perdue School of Business who have completed the tax course required for their accounting majors and have passed and IRS training program will complete tax returns for more than 800 people in the lower Eastern Shore. For the first time SSU students are being assisted by UMES students.

The VITA students work at five sites on the lower Shore: Wicomico County Social Services, Blackwell Library at SSU and public libraries in Ocean City, Princess Anne and Cambridge. VITA students are at the Wicomico County Social Services on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 12:30-4:30 p.m. They are at Blackwell Library on Thursdays from 5-9 p.m. and Saturdays from noon-4 p.m.

For the people who bring in their taxes and get free help, the service is more than helpful. Yet the real winners may be the students themselves.

Maggie Jones is one who thought so. She was a student and team captain, she supervised eight to 10 other students, making sure they reported to work and had all the information they needed to answer the clients' questions. The first hand experience she gained has become an important part of her education.

"One really good aspect," she said, "is that we learn to bring together all the skills and techniques we learned in undergraduate work on a client basis."

"When I go into an accounting firm, I can say to myself, 'I already know how to work with clients.'"

The VITA teammates operate like a CPA firm in many ways. There is a supply team, to make sure all the necessary forms are on hand, and a quality control team ensures that the work done is the best possible. There is also a marketing team whose job is to inform the taxpayers that the service exists. In addition practicing professionals from the accounting community have volunteered to help when needed. SSU's Modern Languages Department has supplied translators for non-English speaking taxpayers.

The structure for the program was established by accounting professor Joseph Quinn, but carrying it out is largely up to the students themselves.

Quinn manages to provide support, but gives the students room to learn. "As faculty coordinator," he said, "I get it started. But then I try to stand back from it."

For Roger Young participating in VITA was just one of the many things he values from his years as an accounting major at SSU. Young graduated in May 1990 and went on to earn the prestigious Sells Award: presented to the top 100 scorers among the 75,000 who take the CPA test nationwide. Young is one of three Sells Award recipients that the Perdue School of Business is proud to count among recent graduates.

Young says his years at SSU provided him with valuable preparation for his professional life. "I can't say enough about the accounting staff at the Perdue School."

John Stern, a partner at Pigg, Krahel Stern and Co. P.A., says that SSU interns have played a key role in the firm's recruitment and hiring process. He says that SSU interns usually join the firm after graduation. "We've been pleased with the caliber of the students we see from the Perdue School at SSU," he said.

All of which is good news for Professor P. Douglas Marshall, who chairs the Accounting and Legal Studies Department at the Perdue School. In fact the only people who have been frustrated by the school may be the recruiters who come from out of town looking for talented graduates.

Marshall said, "We typically have had difficulty filling recruiters' calendars. By senior year, our students have found jobs."

"Friday's Lesson," a lithograph on nacre paper by American artist John Paul Jones, will be one of the works exhibited in Fulton Gallery "Faces and Figures: Prints from the Tamarind Lithography Workshop" March 11-April 14.

Workshop Series For Women Continues

A series of wellness workshops designed especially for women continues in March with the two-session workshop "Finding Balance in Our Lives." All workshops in the month-long series are offered by Kathryn Reading, a counselor in the Center for Personal and Professional Development.

"Finding Balance in Our Lives" is scheduled for consecutive Wednesdays, March 9 and 16, from noon-1 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The workshop is targeted at women who are trying to balance the demands of school and work, family, self and community. The focus of the workshop is on developing realistic expectations, saying "no," setting priorities and establishing goals.

A third workshop, "Learning to Love Your Body," is on Wednesday, March 23. For more information on any of the workshops stop by the CPPD, Guerrieri Center, Room 263, or call 543-6070.

return the barber takes revenge by slitting the throats of his clients, who are then turned into meat pies by his industrious associate, Mrs. Lovett.

Wrote critic T.E. Kalen, "'Sweeney Todd' is one giant step for vegetarianism."

Sweeney is also one of the best known characters in English melodrama/thrillers. At least six stage versions of his story have been produced since the first in 1847. Based on a tale from a "penny dreadful," the Victorian equivalent of today's supermarket tabloid, the original source is unknown. It may have been inspired by a Parisian barber who executed a series of bizarre murders which managed to shock the public during the French Revolution—no mean feat.

Broadway composer Stephen Sondheim has called the Bond script, produced in England in 1973, "the most expert and the most unnerving" version of the story. Sondheim liked it so well that he and director Hal Prince turned it into a musical which practically swept the Tony Awards in 1979.

SSU's production is not the Sondheim-Prince collaboration, but there is music: interludes and special effects created by "Big Blow and the Bush Wackers." This unique quartet plays everything from ethnic to homemade instruments in a far-ranging repertoire.

The SSU production also boasts costumes by Norma West, a St. Louis designer who regularly works with both the Repertory Theatre and Opera Theatre of St. Louis. She is currently artist-in-residence with the SSU theatre program.

Set design is by Gerry Patt, lighting by Chip Custis. Leading the cast is John Warren as Sweeney Todd and Heather Smith as Mrs. Lovett, with Don Atkinson, Becky Ford, Bill Magee, Michael Nordstrom, Virginia Stubbs and Phil Urso.

Performances are Friday-Saturday, March 11-12; and Wednesday-Saturday, March 16-19 at 8 p.m., with matinees on Sundays, March 13 and 20 at 2 p.m., in Fulton Hall Theatre.

Tickets are $6 general admission, $4 for senior citizens and non-SSU students. The performance is free for SSU students, faculty and staff. For reservations call the Theatre Box Office at 543-6228.

And remember, don't sit in the chair.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

It was the first game of the spring sports season, and it started in typical fashion for the men's lacrosse team. Behind three goals and two assists from all-American Jason Coffman and one goal and seven assists from newcomer Sean Radebaugh, the Sea Gulls defeated Hampden-Sydney 14-9 on the road last Saturday. The win was SSU's 25th straight in regular season play, dating back to the second game of the 1992 season.

Ryan Murphy added three scores for the Gulls, Paul Smith had two goals and one assist and Todd Cliggett netted two goals. SSU plays Roanoke, the last team to beat the Gulls in a regular season contest, this Sunday at Loyola High School in Baltimore.

The women's basketball team closed out its season with a pair of losses last week, falling to Cabrini 66-53 and Notre Dame 95-94.

SSU finished the year 7-15 overall. Junior center Kim Roth scored a career-high 31 points against Notre Dame, and finished as the team's top scorer and rebounder for the year at 16.0 ppg and 14.9 rpg.

The men's basketball team has won eight of its last nine heading into its season finale this week at Beaver College. The Gulls improved to 13-11 overall with a pair of record-setting wins against Wesley and Frostburg last week. SSU sank a school-record 18 three-point field goals in a 129-82 win at Wesley, then converted a record 42 free throws in 47 attempts three nights later in a 115-100 win over the Bobcats.

Junior forward Kyle Jefferson scored a career-high 35 points in the win over Frostburg, while senior Dameon Ross tallied 60 points in the two games and earned ECAC Player-of-the-Week honors for the second straight week.

Met Opera Performance

Francis Poulenc's Dialogues of the Carmelites is broadcast live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday, March 12, at 1:30 p.m. on WSCL, 89.5 FM.

American conductor Kent Nagano makes his Met broadcast debut leading the work. Dawn Upshaw is heard as Blanche de la Force, Teresa Stratas as Mme. Lidoine, Heidi Grant Murphy as Sister Constance, Helga Dernesch as Mme. de Croissy, Florence Quivar as Mother Marie, Gary Bachlund as the Chevalier de la Force and James Courtney as the Marquis de la Force. The opera is sung in the English translation by Joseph Machlis. Peter Allen is the announcer for the broadcast.

During the single intermission Nimet Habachy, host of New York radio station WQXR's New York at Night, discusses Dialogues of the Carmelites. Texaco's Opera Quiz will complete the intermission with quizmaster Edward Downes and panelists Martin Bernheimer, music critic for The Los Angeles Times; Phillip Gainsley, a trial lawyer, writer and lecturer on music theater, and frequent contributor to Opera News magazine; and George Jellinek, host of radio station WQXR's nationally syndicated program The Vocal Scene and the author of the soon to be published History through the Opera Glass.

Silent Auction To Benefit Habitat

A three-week long Silent Auction in April will benefit the Habitat project on campus. The goal is to raise $10,000 which would almost complete the fund-raising efforts necessary for the construction of the home.

Coordinated by the Public Relations Office, members of the campus community are encouraged to donate items, either goods or services, for the auction by March 25. Examples of donations include furniture, art objects, baked goods, lawn care, a weekend at a condominium, income tax services, dinner in one's home, babysitting services, tutoring, typing, fishing trip, hunting trip, tickets to a sporting or cultural event, etc.

After all items have been donated, an auction booklet will be prepared during spring break. These booklets will then be disseminated on campus beginning Monday, April 4. Bids on items then will be reported to the Public Relations Office over the next three weeks until the auction concludes Friday, April 22, at 5 p.m.

The first bid reported to the Public Relations Office will be considered the official bid on an item. Subsequent bids must be at least 10 percent higher.

In order for this final fundraiser for the Habitat project to be successful, members of the campus community need to be as resourceful as possible with their donations.

To donate an item for the auction or for more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

As one of the first administrators of the Kennedy Administration's Peace Corps in the early 1960s he served under Sargent Shriver in Africa where he visited Albert Schweitzer's hospital. In 1967 after his wife was stricken with multiple sclerosis, he moved his family to Tampa, FL, hoping the mild climate might lead to remission. Observing firsthand the growing culture of leisure there, he wrote about its social implications. His insights garnered a Fulbright to Paris and made him a sought-after lecturer in both America and Europe for the next two decades. ("Phil is the only man I know with a bank account in Poland," joked Dr. Ed Steffes, a long-time colleague.)

In 1975, following Sue's death and his remarriage to Carol Pokrant, now an academic counselor at SSU, the Bossermans brought their combined families, totaling seven children, to the Eastern Shore. He also brought with him a life-long commitment to peace and social justice.

"Phil is a true pacifist," said Joan Maloof, director of the Center for Conflict Resolution and Peace Making which Bosserman established here in 1991. Started with seed money from the Schuman Foundation headed by Bill Moyers, through the direction of Washington Post columnist Colman McCarthy, the center has been working closely with area schools to teach children alternatives to violence. Again, Bosserman was on the cutting edge.

His trip to Japan is unexpected; he was solicited by the university there. But with U.S.-Japanese ties growing steadily (the study of Japanese language in this country has nearly doubled, according to a recent survey) he is again in the vanguard.

But how will this gentle clergyman-scholar with a blazing pioneer spirit fare in conservative, secular Japan? How will an acclaimed teacher who taught his daughter Beth—"We're all in it together. There are no divisions (nor excluded peoples)"—be received in a culture where the word for "foreigner" is synonymous with "barbarian?"

"Phil is the prototype of what I consider a good teacher," said SSU President Thomas Bellavance. "He'll do just fine."

marketing Perdue Farms products and chairs the executive committee of the company's board of directors. His son James Perdue was recently named chairman of the board, and Robert Turley was named company president.

Taking a personal interest in his product is a trait Perdue says he learned from his father. And his overall business philosophy is simple: "I'm interested in being the best, rather than the biggest," he said. "Expansion and diversification are okay if they have a positive effect on quality. I'll not do anything that detracts from product quality."

The Great Leader Lecture Series offers Perdue School students and members of the local business community the opportunity to learn from the leaders of some of the country's largest and most successful corporations. Past lecturers include the presidents and CEOs of Campbell Soup Company, Dresser Corporation Inc., Sysco Inc. and Norfolk Southern Corporation. For more information call the Perdue School at 543-6316.

Unique Casebooks By English Professors Spotlight Women Short Story Writers

A series of books edited by two SSU English professors is breaking publishing ground, according to a senior editor at Rutgers University Press. Titled Women Writers: Texts and Contexts and published by Rutgers, these new volumes edited by Dr. Connie Richards, chair of the English Department, and her colleague, Dr. Thomas Erskine, focus on women writers.

Called "casebooks," such texts traditionally consist of a literary work accompanied by critical essays and a brief biography of the author. Casebooks are popular in university classes across the country; well-known publishers like Norton and Prentice Hall have had series for years.

But casebooks usually focus on novels by men. "This is a first; it's unique," said Leslie Mitchner of Rutgers. The casebooks for which Richards and Erskine are series editors spotlight short stories by women who are not part of the mainstream literary pantheon. Including Native-American Leslie Marmon Silko, Japanese-American Hisaye Yamamoto, African-American Alice Walker and seven others—most of the names are new to readers raised on Hemingway, Faulkner and Fitzgerald.

Rutgers has invested in a 7,500 first printing—some three times greater than

Artists Demonstrate Skills, Craft at Professionals' Market

Jim Rehak, a professional designer, painter and cartoonist (left), is one of the art professionals who will be meeting with students to discuss opportunities for employment during SSU's Art Professionals' Market on Wednesday, March 16. One-on-one communications will be available with him and some 40 other art professionals. Pictured (right) is SSU alum Shawn Dewey.

A day devoted to exploring the connections between the business of art and the education of artists is expanding.

The fourth annual Art Professionals' Market at Salisbury State, scheduled for Wednesday, March 16, now includes an open house in the Art Department in Fulton Hall. The department's studios allow visiting artists to give even more demonstrations, workshops and presentations than they have in the past, said Marie Cavallero, Art Department chair. The Great Hall of nearby Holloway Hall, however, still remains headquarters for the market. The public is cordially invited to all events which are scheduled from 10 a.m.-8 p.m. at both locations.

Demonstrations include paper making, marbling, book binding, jewelry making, quilt making, ceramics, photography and print making, among others. More than 40 artists and arts business people from both on and off the Eastern Shore will be participants—a record number, Cavallero said. Two of the latest include ceramicist Josie DAVIS of Exmore, VA, and photographic expert George Holzer of Saff Tech Arts of Oxford.

Janet Sieff of Art Institute International (AII) will also explain the junior year exchange SSU offers. Salisbury is the only AII university in Maryland. AII affiliation allows SSU students to pursue in-depth study at art institutes in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Ft. Lauderdale, Dallas, Atlanta, Houston, Denver and Seattle.

The day concludes with a special photography panel discussion and slide presentation in the Holloway Hall Social Room, scheduled for 6 p.m.

The Art Professionals' Market is made possible in part by support from the Art Department, the Fulton School of Liberal Arts and a grant from the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council, awarded by the Maryland State Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts.

For more information contact John Cleary, Department of Art, at 543-6274 or 543-6270, or Beth Hébert at 742-8790.

U.S. Health Care Topic of Lecture

Dr. Martha Livingston, a community health professor at the State University of New York College at Old Westbury, lectures on "U.S. Health Care: A Vision for the 21st Century."

Livingston, who advocates a Canadian-style single-payer solution to the U.S. health care crisis, teaches and researches U.S. health care, comparative health care systems, international health, health policy, medical ethics and women's health. Her lecture, free and open to the public, is on Tuesday, March 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Livingston's presentation, part of the spring lecture series "Issues and Challenges: Preparing for Life in the 21st Century," is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

"As the United States approaches the 21st century," said Livingston, "we are alone among the major industrialized nations in not guaranteeing health care to all as a human right. While many Americans go without the most basic

The University is sponsoring a bus trip to the Metropolitan Opera at the Lincoln Center in New York City on Friday, March 18, to see Il Barbiere di Siviglia (The Barber of Seville). This is the fourth trip that SSU has offered to the Lincoln Center and each has been a huge success.

The bus leaves the Dogwood parking lot of the Guerrieri University Center at 8 a.m. No food or beverages are allowed on the bus. There is a brief breakfast stop in Wilmington, DE, and the bus discharges all passengers at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York at approximately noon. Everyone is free to spend the afternoon at the museum or at other attractions and proceed on their own to the Lincoln Center for the 8 p.m. performance. The bus leaves New York immediately after the show and returns to Salisbury at approximately 4 a.m.

The charge for the trip is $20 for full-time students and $25 for part-time students, faculty, staff and guests. The charge includes bus and opera tickets only. Food and transportation in New York are not included. Sign-ups must be made in person with SSU I.D. No one is allowed to buy more than two tickets. Sign-up begins on Monday, March 7, at the Guerrieri Center information desk for full-time students only. Part-time students, faculty, staff and guests may sign up beginning Wednesday, March 9. There is no refund for cancellations unless the seat can be filled. For more information call the information desk at 543-6006. The Guerrieri Center is open Monday-Saturday from 8 a.m.-10 p.m. and Sunday from noon-10 p.m.

'Mostly Mozart' Concert Features UMES Flutist

"Mostly Mozart," a concert featuring University of Maryland Eastern Shore flutist Doug Smith, is on Sunday, March 13, at 2 p.m. at SSU.

Smith is accompanied by pianist Sheila McDonald, a fine arts faculty member at UMES, and Phyllis Mauney, the principal harpist with the U.S. Marine Corps Band in Washington, D.C. The concert, free and open to the public, is in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Frank Perdue Discusses Keys to Business Success

Salisbury State knows well the generosity of Frank Perdue. Eight years ago, his multimillion dollar gift launched the University's Perdue School of Business. Soon, however, the nationally-known poultry magnate will share with SSU and others in the Salisbury community a most precious commodity: the secrets of his success.

Perdue talks about the keys to successful business leadership at 11 a.m. on Tuesday, March 15, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The lecture is free and the public is invited.

Variety Show Performers Sought

Calling all jugglers, tap dancers, piano players, gospel singers, rock stars and other talented people. The SSU Auditoria Services Department is gearing up for the fourth annual Variety Show. The Variety Show, or V4 for Short, is on Friday, April 8, and Saturday, April 9, in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

To be in V4 performers must audition on Monday, March 21, or Tuesday, March 22. Sign-up lists to audition will be posted in the lobby of WSCL in Caruthers Hall starting Monday, March 14.

Proceeds from this year's show go toward the SSU Habitat for Humanity project. V4 is designed to feature the students, faculty, staff and alumni of Salisbury State. The Variety Show is presented in a professional format featuring three mistresses and three masters of ceremonies. This year for the first time the Variety Show will have a jazz pit band. A few more members are needed to help with the pit band. All groups must have at least half of the performers associated with the University.

For more information and a copy of the V4 calendar and V4 guidelines please call Tony Broadbent at 548-4597.

Policy on Closing Due To Inclement Weather

Should inclement weather result in classes being cancelled, information is given to all local radio and television stations. Students can receive information concerning cancellations by listening to local stations.

The institutional policy with regard to closing is that unless there are the most dire circumstances the institution remains open for business. Students, staff and faculty members must exercise their best judgement about whether they attend class or report to work. Different conditions prevail for each individual under inclement weather situations so the decision should be essentially an independent one.

If you do not hear an announcement about cancellation of classes, then classes and events are held as scheduled. Please do not call the Public Safety Office about cancellation notices so that office can assist with emergency needs.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

WICO Radio Spree Benefits Epilepsy Assn.

The Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore (EAES) and WICO, 1320 AM, are sponsoring their first "Radio Spree." The two-day fund-raising event is on March 5 and 6 from 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

During the fundraiser, listeners will have the opportunity to call in pledges in order to obtain merchandise and gift certificates at reduced rates. Local businesses in the Salisbury and Ocean City area are being asked to donate merchandise in return for on-the-air recognition of their support of the event. Corporate sponsorships are also being sought.

Gift certificates include green fees to nearby golf courses, lunches and dinners at area restaurants, deep muscle massages, tanning sessions, memberships at local health clubs, car washes, flowers, round-trip tickets to Atlantic City, oil changes, pizza, bowling, billiards and more.

Buckle Up for Love!

Equestrian Club Sponsors Clinic, Show

The Equestrian Club is holding two exciting events in April. The first is a Centered Riding Clinic with Sandra Cabell on Friday, April 1, and Saturday, April 2.

The Centered Riding Technique begun by Sally Swift enhances all riding styles. Cabell, one of 11 senior centered riding instructors trained by Swift, completed her apprenticeship in 1986 and has been honing her skills since. She particularly enjoys explaining and demonstrating how the body's natural movements can compliment, accommodate and influence the movement of the horse. In fall 1992 she began her training as a teacher of the Alexander Technique which stresses body awareness and mobility.

The cost of a 2 1/2 hour session is $35 with a discount to club members. SSU students receive free admission for auditing; the non-student fee is $10. Refreshments, stall accommodations and school horses to ride in the clinic are available. Space is limited.

The second event, a benefit horse show for the Joseph House Village, is on Saturday, April 9, at Unicorn Stables on Mt. Hermon Church Road in Salisbury. This Open Pleasure Show offers 30 classes and eight divisions for Western and English riders, both children and adults. The entry fee is $6 per class and a schooling time over fences is available for $5 for five minutes just before the show starts at 8 a.m. and again during lunch. There are refreshments and a raffle as well as an exhibition featuring vaulting and a musical kur. Spectators are welcome at no charge.

The Joseph House Village Inc., which opened in 1991 on Lake St. in Salisbury, is a transitional housing facility for the homeless. While living at the Village, residents are assisted in obtaining the needed education, job training, community living skills and emotional healing that enable them to become contributing citizens to the community.

Volunteers and sponsors are needed and ads are being solicited for the program to be passed out that day.

For more information on the events or for membership forms, please call the president of the club, Sharon Miner, at 546-2941.

Met Trip Canceled, Refunds Forthcoming

The bus trip to the Metropolitan Museum of Art on Friday, March 4, was canceled due to weather conditions in New York on the advice of both the National Weather Service and the bus company.

Those scheduled to go on the trip will receive a refund check directly from the State of Maryland in approximately four to six weeks. The Guerrieri University Center staff apologizes for any inconvenience this may have caused.

Yearbook Club Photos

Club photos for the yearbook will be taken on March 10 and 11 from 2-9 p.m. both days.

If your club or organization has not gotten its photo taken or would like new members to be included in the photo, sign up at the Guerrieri University Center information desk from Wednesday, March 2 to Wednesday, March 9.

John Warren as Sweeney Todd

Dressed To Kill

"It's a gutsy show," said costume designer Norma West, straight faced. "I like the story." Actually, Sweeney Todd, at Salisbury State University Theatre through March 20, is more gutsy than most people realize.

Set in Victorian London, it involves both serial murder and cannibalism. For the West the Fleet St. location is less My Fair Lady, more The Lower Depths. "My favorite period is grungy," West laughed.

With her Master of Fine Arts in costume design from Illinois State University, she has worked with the Illinois Shakespeare Festival, Old Globe Theatre and Santa Fe Opera as well as theaters in St. Louis, her home base. "I enjoy the pretty stuff," she said "but I like plays with meat and strong characters." Meat—Sweeney Todd has that.

Call the SSU Theatre Box Office at 543-6228 for information and reservations.

Exhibit About Delmarva During the Depression

The Julia A. Purnell Museum in Snow Hill has a special photograph exhibition, "Delmarva Memories: 1930s," which reflects everyday life here in the Depression. For more information please call 632-0510.

Outdoor Club Has $100 Spring Trip

Enjoy a week of canoeing in Florida or a week of hiking on the Appalachian Trail for under $100 during spring break.

The Outdoor Club meets every Monday at 9 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room A in the Guerrieri University Center. The cost of membership for the spring semester is $5. Come and see what the club is all about.

For additional information contact Claudine Roussel at 742-5085.

African Dance Technique Class

Kick off your shoes, put on comfortable clothes and get ready to move. An African dance technique class is on Monday, March 14, from 6-8 p.m. in Maggs Physical Activities Center.

Taught by Eva Anderson, artistic director of the Baltimore Dance Theater, she twice has been awarded the Maryland State Arts Council's choreography fellowship for creative excellence. "Anderson's choreography works.... Each step and move has an economy and grace and style, giving just enough to catch the eye and spark the imagination," said Metropolitan Magazine.

Because the class is at beginner's level no experience is necessary. Senior members of the Baltimore Dance Theater accompany Anderson and help demonstrate techniques. BDT's master drummer also provides live musical accompaniment on authentic African instruments. The master class concludes with a question and answer session with Anderson and the dancers.

The event is sponsored by the Dance Company and Office of Minority Affairs. It is also supported in part by a grant from the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council. General admission is $3 for adults, $2 for teens/youth under 12. SSU students, faculty and staff are admitted free.

Beverages will be sold for 50 cents. "We invite everyone to expand their horizons by exploring aspects of African culture and having fun in the process," said Victoria Hutchinson, Dance Company director. For further information please call the University dance program at 543-6353.

Adriana Lecouvreur Broadcast on WSCL

Francesco Cilea's Adriana Lecouvreur will be broadcast live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday, March 19, at 1:30 p.m. on WSCL (89.5 FM).

Mirella Freni has the title role, with Stefania Toczyska as the Princess de Bouillon, Luis Lima as Maurizio and Sherrill Milnes as Michonnet. Italian conductor Roberto Abbado makes his Met broadcast debut leading the work, and Peter Allen is the announcer for the broadcast. The opera was last broadcast from the Metropolitan Opera during the 1982-83 season.

The first intermission features a roundtable discussion on "Acting in Opera" with panelists including stage and opera director Frank Galatic, who received a Tony Award for the Steppenwolf Theatre production of The Grapes of Wrath; music writer, actor, singer and vocal teacher Conrad L. Osborne; and others. Tony Award-winning American playwright Terrence McNally moderates.

Texaco's Opera Quiz is heard during the second intermission with critic, lecturer and record reviewer Thor Eckert, Jr. as the guest quizmaster, and panelists Cori Ellison, senior music editor of Stagebill magazine; Father Owen Lee, professor of classics at St. Michaels College; and author, lecturer and translator William Weaver, whose English language edition of the Verdi-Boito correspondence will be published later this year by the University of Chicago Press.

Sports Management Internship

SSU anticipates an internship in collegiate sports management. Qualifications include a bachelor's degree and a candidate who needs the internship to fulfill graduation requirements for a master's degree.

General responsibilities include assisting the professional staff in the coordination of all phases of operation of the Maggs Physical Activities Center. Specific responsibilities may include assisting in scheduling student employees, scheduling the facility for various practices and activities, coordinating evening facility supervision, assisting in administration of athletic events, supervising special events, taking inventory, evaluating programs, using computers, preparing a newsletter and other duties as assigned. Appointment is for nine months beginning September 1. Stipend is $8,000.

Deadline for applications is April 15 or until the position is filled.

Send a letter of interest, resume, and two letters of recommendation to Dr. Thomas P. Stichter, Facilities Coordinator, Maggs Physical Activities Center, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

English Assistantships

The English Department anticipates assistantships (covering tuition plus approximately $4,200) for graduate students pursuing the M.A. in English (writing or literature option).

The writing option is a two-year program of study (33 credit hours) which involves courses in language and rhetoric as well as related areas. The literature option involves mainly literature courses plus required courses in language, rhetoric and literary criticism (33 credit hours).

Teaching assistants teach two sections each semester in the freshman English program. GRE scores are required.

For information call Dr. William Home, Department of English, at 543-6445 or FAX 543-6068. Please specify option. All requests for information must be received by March 18.

Affirmative Action, To Do or Not To Do

Peer Educators for Diversity is sponsoring a panel and group discussion about affirmative action. In addition to presenting the law's history, the group intends to discuss how people feel about affirmative action.

The event is on Wednesday, March 16, in Nanticoke Room A in the Guerrieri University Center at 8:30 p.m. All members of the campus community are encouraged to attend.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Workshop Addresses Issues Pertinent To Black Women

A workshop that analyzes a black woman's uniqueness and vitality is coming. "For Black Women Only," sponsored by the Office of Minority Affairs, provides a forum where black women can challenge and explore their beliefs on relationships, sisterhood, stereotypes and health.

The workshop, in discussion format, focuses on the dynamics of black male/female relationships, rebuilding sister-to-sister unity and self-esteem, provides accurate statistics that destroy myths associated with stereotypes, and addresses health issues relevant to black women.

"For Black Women Only" is on Saturday, April 16, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Continental breakfast and lunch will be served. Please RSVP by March 18 to Valerie McAdams in the Office of Minority Affairs. Space is limited. For more information please contact McAdams at 548-5300, Madeline McShaw at 543-6171 or Monica Triplett at 543-6199.

Waters' Poems, Book Soon To Be Published

During January, Dr. Michael Waters, a professor of English, was a Resident Fellow at the Virginia Center for the Creative Arts where he worked toward the completion of a new volume of poems.

Several new poems completed there will appear in the fall issue of The American Voice, a feminist literary journal published in Louisville, KY. Also forthcoming is a small book, Green Ash, Red Maple, Black Gum, from the Published in Heaven Chapbook Series of White Fields Press. The press specializes in limited editions and has published chapbooks by Allen Ginsberg, Lawrence Ferlinghetti & Amiri Baraka in their series.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

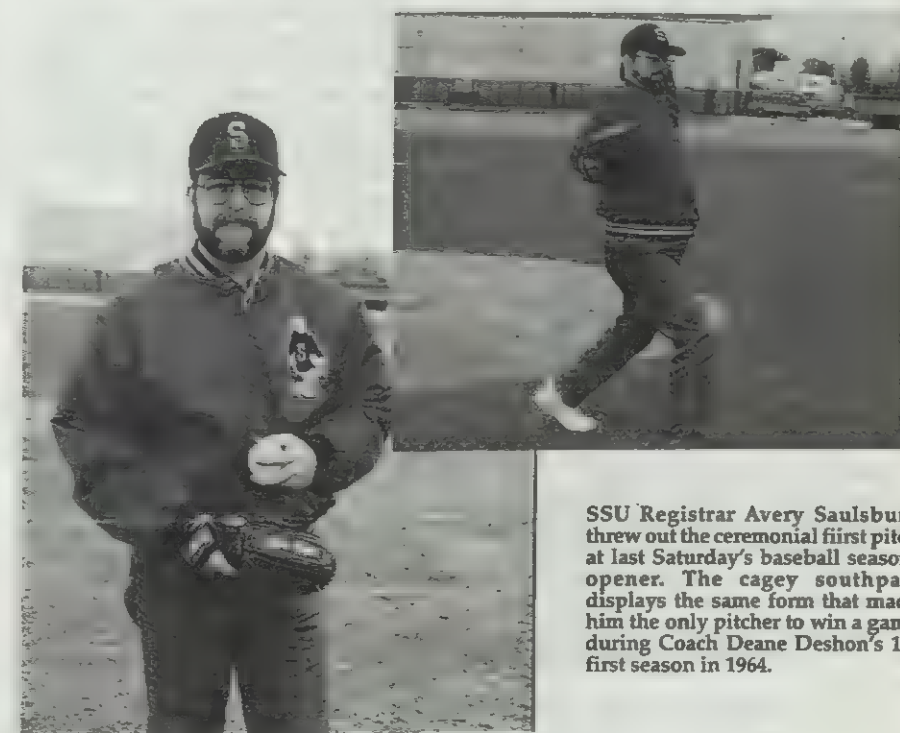

It was a dramatic and successful opening weekend for the baseball team last Saturday and Sunday. The Gulls rallied from a 5-0 deficit on Saturday to defeat Rutgers-Camden 11-6, then scored twice in the bottom of the ninth on Sunday to beat St. Mary's 8-7.

Saturday's heroes included reliever Lee Stanley, who hurled 5 and 1/3 innings of two-hit ball to keep Rutgers in check during SSU's rally. Offensively, DH Jonathon Joines was 3-5 with three RBI and Brian Hollamon finished with four hits in five at-bats.

Mike Franklin proved to be the man-of-the moment on Sunday as he delivered a bases-loaded double into the right centerfield gap to plate the tying and winning run in SSU's last at-bat. Senior Pat Fachtet contributed another strong relief appearance, keeping St. Mary's scoreless over the final 2 1/3 innings. Joines collected three more hits on Sunday and finished the opening weekend with six hits in nine at-bats.

The men's lacrosse team provided some excitement of its own last Sunday, holding on for a slim 14-13 victory over Roanoke. Midfielder Ryan Murphy paced the Gull attack with four goals and Sean Radebaugh added three scores. Goalie Erik Miller made 11 saves, including two in the closing minute to preserve the lead. The victory was SSU's 26th straight in regular season play, dating back to the second game of the 1992 season. The Gulls, ranked third in the nation, host fourth-ranked Ohio Wesleyan at Sea Gull Stadium on Saturday.

Three other SSU squads make their '94 debuts this week. The men's tennis team begins Coach Dean Burroughs' final season at home against Widener on Tuesday. The softball team plays its first game under new coach Deanna Parks on Wednesday, and the women's lacrosse team hosts Washington & Lee and Lynchburg this weekend.

SSU Registrar Avery Saulsbury threw out the ceremonial first pitch at last Saturday's baseball season-opener. The cagey southpaw displays the same form that made him the only pitcher to win a game during Coach Deane Deshon's 1-8 first season in 1964.

President's, Chancellor's Councils Seek Input

The SSU President's Staff Advisory Council meets monthly to discuss issues of concern to SSU staff at the local and state levels. The council also coordinates activities with the Chancellor's Council for University of Maryland System Staff. Any staff member with questions or concerns about campus or state personnel policies, or other issues, should contact one of the council members. The council discusses questions or concerns with Dr. Bellavance, or the Personnel Office, at regular meetings.

SSU staff council representatives are: Robert Meigel, Physical Plant; Lesley Dayton, Blackwell Library; Dennis Bradford, Public Safety Office; Linda Abresch, Math Department; Barry King, Dean of Students Office; Jackie Eberts,

Financial Services Office; Jeanette Wolinski, Computer Services Office; and Jerry Waldron, Registrar's Office.

Minutes from the President's Staff Council meeting and the Chancellor's Council for University System Staff are on reserve for staff review in Blackwell Library at the circulation desk. During February the Chancellor's Council constitution and by-laws are also on reserve for staff review and comments.

The Chancellor's Council consists of staff from 13 UMS institutions. The council meets monthly and advises the chancellor on personnel issues relevant to UMS staff. The council is currently monitoring legislation which effects staff and reviewing a proposed pay plan for all system staff.

SSU Baseball -- 1994 Season Outlook

Anybody who understands baseball knows that there is no secret to winning. Regardless of the overall strength at all the other positions, pitching holds the key to a team's ultimate success. And for the SSU diamondmen, improving a team ERA of 6.90 last season is the most important priority in 1994.

The Sea Gulls did a number of other things well last season, finishing with a respectable .262 batting average while also showing good power and defense. In fact, SSU finished sixth in the nation in double plays turned (32 total, 1.14/game) and 14th in home runs (26 total, 0.93/game). Regardless, the key to improving on 1993's 12-16 record rests with the hurlers.

"I think we've got a stronger pitching staff than last year," said Deane Deshon, entering his 31st year as head coach of the Sea Gulls. "Our season hinges on how they do."

Deshon will depend on a seven-man staff this year, highlighted by two returning right-handed seniors. Bill DeAtley (3-2, 3 saves in '93) is probably in the starting rotation, while Pat Facht (2-2), who started in the rotation last season, will probably serve more in relief this year.

Mike Sullivan, a junior lefthander, assumes a full-time pitching role this year after splitting time between the mound and the outfield in '93. Sullivan's live arm and nearly flawless pitching work last year (6.1 innings, no earned runs) prompted the switch.

Four newcomers, Jim Berwick, Lee Stanley, Chris Yagesh and Keith Zukowski, round out the staff. All four could see action as starters or relievers.

Among the everyday positions, the infield returns three of five starters who helped set a new team record for double plays. Senior Jerry Nicklow (.203, 4 HR, 10 RBI) is counted on for greater offensive production.

Sophomore Damon Garrison (.346 in 26 ABs last year) is slated to take over full time at shortstop. Junior Brian Hollamon, SSU's 1993 MVP, moves from short to third. He batted .325 while leading the team in hits (29), runs (17) and RBI (21). Newcomers Bill Fennelly and Matt Merritt are both slated to see considerable action as well. One of the two will probably start the season at second base.

"Our infield defense, which was pretty good last year, should be even better this season," said Deshon. "My goal for the team is to field .950, and I think we have the skill to do that."

Junior Ed Stephen, looking to bounce back after an injury plagued '93 season, is the only returnee among the catchers. Freshman Bill Ewe was impressive in preseason drills and could see considerable duty.

"I really can't tell who will be No. 1 behind the plate," said Deshon. "However, it's such a critical position that we have to utilize the best defensive player."

In the outfield, two of three positions probably belong to seniors David Shull and Mike Franklin. Shull hit .313 while finishing third on the team in hits (21) and fourth in walks (10).

Franklin, who tied for the team-lead in walks (11), looks to improve his .227 average.

Junior Mike Brogden may have the inside track on the third starting spot since his bat appears to be too valuable to keep out of the lineup. Despite hitting just .216, Brogden had three homers and 10 RBIs in just 37 at-bats. Kevin Powell and transfer Jonathon Joines are also available.

"This is an older ballclub with plenty of experience," said Deshon. "These guys are anxious to have fun and be successful this season. I think we've got tough outs throughout the lineup, top to bottom, and we should be able to duplicate our power of last year."

SSU's season-opener on March 5 kicks off an early run of six straight home games. In all, the Gulls play 11 of their first 12 games in their refurbished home park. Already among the best Division III facilities in the East, offseason improvements to Sea Gull Field include a new astroturf infield and a new scorer's booth/press box behind home plate.

Traditional rivals Frostburg State, Wesley and Virginia Wesleyan return to the '94 slate. Having now joined the Capital Athletic Conference, Salisbury's schedule also features games against most of its CAC opponents, namely Mary Washington, St. Mary's, York, Catholic and Gallaudet.

The annual spring trip through Virginia and North Carolina features five games in five days to close out the first month of the season.

Children's Literature Conference Big Success

The Department of Education recently sponsored its annual Children's Literature Conference. Over 250 educators, librarians, students and children's literature enthusiasts from four states attended the all-day conference. The conference committee—Dr. Patricia Richards (chair), Dr. John Wolinski, Dr. Jack Wulff, Dr. Amy Meekins, Dr. Debra Panian and JoAnne Mulcahy—was delighted with the turnout, not to mention the weather.

Dr. Elinor Ross, professor of education at Tennessee Technological University, was the keynote speaker. Her presentation, "Literature Across the Curriculum," will be published as a Phi Delta Kappa "Fastback" publication later this year. Her attendance was sponsored by Phi Delta Kappa.

The featured author was Bill Martin, Jr. He spent the day signing his books for conferees and gave an outstanding presentation after lunch. He concluded the event by telling and dramatizing one of his own stories.

Other featured presenters were Sallie Barker, Dr. Carolyn Bowden, Raggatha Calentine, Jeannette Daly, Vida Daly, Kimberly Doggett, Dr. Bruce Foster, Dr. Roland Frank, Susan Frank, Kathleen-Jacobi-Karna, Marilyn Kieffaber, Sharon Miner, Cindy Orban, Dr. Debra Panian and Larry Points.

Dance Company Performs in Ocean City

The Dance Company recently performed its Contra Dance Suite for an Ocean City convention of small museum administrators.

Eight members of the company performed in authentic Civil War period costumes the selection of 19th century American heritage dances. The students were Michelle Blake of S. Setauket, NY; Sarah Daniels of Basking Ridge, NJ; Kristin Ena of Pasadena; Cristina Fuentes of Baltimore; Catherine Kress of Waldorf; Jennifer Ruff of Pasadena; Valerie Slunt of Baltimore; and Jennifer Twigg of Camp Hill, PA.

Artistic Director Victoria Hutchinson researched the era's dance history and reconstructed the four dances performed.

The Virginia Reel, probably the most popular of the "contra" or "longway" dances, was performed in the "family style," with all participants active throughout. The Blackberry Quadrille is a grand march; the company performed instructions for The Tempest, a New England contra. The tune of Soldier's Joy, one of the classics of square dancing, was used for the contra dance of the same name. Spanish Circle Waltz dates back to the Civil War period and has remained a favorite with folk dancers.

Membership in the Dance Company is the highest ever with 46 members. For further information contact Hutchinson at 543-6353.

Final Workshop In Series for Women

The final wellness workshop in the March series directed toward women is on Wednesday, March 23, from noon-1 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Kathryn Reading, a counselor in the Center for Personal and Professional Development directs the workshop "Learning to Love Your Body."

The workshop focuses on why women in our culture hate their bodies. Discussion addresses getting over the love/hate relationship with mirrors and scales, appreciating what the body does and understanding the body as it moves through the years. Information is available regarding eating disorders as well.

For more information on the workshop stop by the CPPD, Guerrieri Center, Room 263, or call 543-6070.

No Major Changes In Liberal Studies

In the Liberal Studies Program there will be change of majors during the two weeks of preregistration (April 4-14). Dr. James C. Lackie and Carol A. Bosserman will see only their advisees during preregistration. Non-liberal studies advisees should see their appropriate advisor during this period.

Purnell Museum Deals Fundraiser

The Julia A. Purnell Museum in Snow Hill has a card party fundraiser on Thursday, March 17. The party is in two sessions, the first from 1-4 p.m., the second from 8-11 p.m. Eleven tables are available at each session for foursomes to enjoy the exhibits of the museum while playing their favorite card games. In addition the museum provides desserts, snacks and coffee at both sessions.

Door prizes and chances to win other special prizes add to the party atmosphere. Special prizes include cakes and a lunch for two at the Snow Hill Inn.

The cost of each session is $5; to reserve a seat, please call 632-0515.

care, we are spending more money on health care than any other nation.

"After a brief examination of the health care crisis, we will critically examine the solution offered by President Clinton and Congressional leaders, discuss alternative solutions such as the Canadian-style single-payer system, and develop a vision of what we would like health and health care for all Americans to look like as we enter the new millennium," said Livingston.

A member of the board of directors of the New York chapter of Physicians for a National Health Program and the steering committee of the New York Jobs with Justice Health Care Campaign, Livingston has spoken to a wide array of audiences about health care reform. She lived and studied for several years in the Province of Saskatchewan, Canada.

For more information about Livingston's lecture or to get a listing of all lectures and cultural events taking place at Salisbury State this spring please call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Attention May 1994 Graduates

Because of the increasing number of graduates, and the seating capacity of the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, the University Graduation Committee issues tickets for guests attending each graduation ceremony. Tickets were first issued for the December 1992 graduation.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets.

Please note the following dates and deadlines:

Feb 28-March 4 Place order for caps, gowns and announcements.

April 26-29 Pick up caps, gowns, announcements and tickets at the graduation center in the Book Rack. Students who are not able to pick up their graduation items because they are student teaching outside the area or otherwise not on campus may contact Nancy Watson or Lisa Gray at the Book Rack (543-6085) to make special arrangements. Please return any tickets not needed to the Guerrieri University Center information desk.

May 18-27 If extra guest tickets do become available they will be distributed at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first come, first served basis. During this time do not anticipate more than one ticket per graduate.

May 28 Graduation exercises are at 10 a.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

More information on the foregoing will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the newsletter, Flyer and MAX for details.

Study Abroad Workshops Scheduled

Have you ever wondered about exotic places? Have you ever wanted to travel to different countries? Have you ever wanted to learn another language? Have you ever wondered about study abroad?

The offices of Modern Languages and International Student Services are pleased to introduce the first Study Abroad Workshop. It takes place on Thursday, March 17, and Friday, March 18. During the two-part workshop, students from SSU and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore have the opportunity to learn about some of the intricacies of studying abroad.

The first part is on Thursday at 3:30 p.m. in the Great Hall. International students and American students who have studied abroad share their experiences on how to choose the best program, complete the paperwork and how it really feels to be abroad. Also representatives from the Financial Aid Office and the Registrar's Office answer questions pertaining to their offices. Door prizes and refreshments are provided by the American Institute for Foreign Study.

AIFS has played an important role in the study abroad opportunities at SSU. Since the University signed a consortium with AIFS in 1993, it has become much easier for students to become involved in a well organized, nationally recognized and credited program. Written tips on where to go and whom to see will be handed out during the workshop.

Deedee Aleccia, a regional representative of AIFS, is available on Friday, March 18, from 7:30-9 a.m. in the lobby of the Powell Dining Hall. She is also conducting two one-hour sessions in the Pocomoke Room (Guerrieri University Center) from 10-11 a.m. and noon-1 p.m.

Brochures on AIFS programs on study abroad are available on the second floor of the Guerrieri Center, outside of Room 242F. For more information on the workshop or any study abroad programs please see Agata Liszkowska in Guerrieri Center, Room 242E, or call 543-6313.

Racquet Sports Coordinator

The University is seeking a racquet sports coordinator who will have teaching, coaching and administrative duties.

The successful candidate needs experience in coaching varsity tennis, teaching physical education activity classes and managing an indoor and outdoor tennis facility. Candidates should have a master's degree in physical education or related field, previous college level coaching experience with proven ability to recruit, and a minimum of three years teaching and administrative experience.

Remuneration for the position is negotiable depending on experience and qualifications. Availability of a benefit package is to be determined.

Deadline for application is April 15. The position is open July 1.

Send letter of application, resume and three letters of reference to Search Committee, Racquet Sports Coordinator c/o David A. Brown, Director of Campus Recreation, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Salisbury and the Henson School of Science and Technology are sponsoring a first-time competition, ChemComp, between high school chemistry students on Saturday, April 16, at Devilbiss Science Hall. Shown (left to right) are Morgan Hazel of Salisbury's Pepsi-Cola Bottling Company; Mary Antliffinger-Norton of the Chemistry Department; and Dr. Fred Kundell chair of the Chemistry Department.

Pepsi, Henson School Sponsor Chemistry Competition

A first-time competition between high school chemistry students is scheduled for Saturday, April 16, at Devilbiss Science Hall at Salisbury State University.

ChemComp, which is sponsored by the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Salisbury and the Henson School of Science and Technology, features six events designed to test the chemistry knowledge of competing students in a fun and upbeat atmosphere.

"We know we have many excellent high school chemistry teachers and students on the Delmarva Peninsula," said Dr. Phillip Creighton, dean of the Henson School, "and this competition will give them a chance to meet with each other. The competition itself is designed to compliment the topics covered in high school chemistry as well as challenge the students with new topics."

In "It's Elementary" clues are given to identify an element; with "Puzzling Formulas" students use a spectra to piece together a chemical's structure; in "Bureau of Standards" titrations are completed to determine the concentration of a standardized base; in "Chemonopoly" students utilize general chemistry knowledge to obtain "chemical and physical properties"; in "Cashew Calorimetry" the number of cashews needed to energize a climb of two flights of stairs are determined; and in "Electromagnetic Window" hands-on exercises illuminate the topic of electromagnetic radiation.

Following the morning session of competitions a Pizza Hut pizza and Pepsi lunch will be served on campus. A spectacular chemistry show coordinated by SSU chemistry professors Ed Senkbeil and Wayne Shelton highlights the afternoon session. An awards presentation completes the event.

Teams from all Delmarva high schools are eligible to participate with a limit of 25 teams. Teams are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis.

To register or for more information contact Mary Antliffinger-Norton in SSU's Department of Chemistry at 548-3572.

normal. "We're taking a risk," said Mitchner.

Fortunately, they also are riding the crest of publishing's two biggest waves: women's studies and multiculturalism. And with African-American Toni Morrison becoming the first black woman to win the Nobel Prize for literature, the timing couldn't appear better. If the series expands beyond American writers, four major British publishing companies are interested in picking it up, Richards said.

Before further additions, however, the first 10 volumes must do well, and Mitchner has concerns. With a tight economy, many students are having trouble paying for tuition, let alone books. An average paperback price of $8 and high quality production make the Rutgers series both affordable and sturdy. Students selling used books in record numbers, however, could kill long-term sales.

But short-term prospects look good. Of the first four volumes released a couple of months ago, Charlotte Perkins Gilman's The Yellow Wallpaper, edited by Richards and Erskine, and Leslie Silko's Yellow Woman, edited by Melody Graulich, are selling "well, very well," Mitchner said. Interestingly, the two other books on Flannery O'Connor's A Good Man is Hard to Find and Katherine Anne Porter's Flowering Judas, the two "traditional" authors included in the series, are doing just "okay."

For Richards and Erskine, however, the experience has been more than okay. "In 22 years of teaching this is the most professionally exciting thing I've done," said Richards.

"It's been exhilarating," said Erskine, who also has taught courses on women and film.

Workshop Helps 'Find Those Elusive Ancestors'

Do you sometimes feel your ancestors deliberately tried to cover their tracks? Do you wonder if even J. Edgar Hoover could have found your Granny Lizzie? Have you found three "Charles Who-ers" when you really only wanted one grandfather?

The Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture is offering a series of workshops to coincide with the annual Lower Shore Genealogical Society's Symposium. On Thursday, May 6, beginning researchers in family history or experienced genealogists are invited to attend the following morning sessions beginning at 10 a.m.

"The Public Record": What kinds of official records were generated by the colonial and 19th-century government in Maryland, Delaware and Virginia?

"Land Records": What kinds of records were generated relating to land holdings, and what kinds of information might one derive from them?

"Where They Lived": How can we learn more about our history by examining the buildings and homes our ancestors erected?

"Personal Records": What kinds of personal records were generated and how does one use them to learn more about our ancestors.

After a lunch break the afternoon sessions begin at 1 p.m. with:

"The Religious Records": What kinds of records were generated by churches on Delmarva from 1634-1900?

"Court Records": What kinds of information might one derive from a study of the various court records from the 1600s to 1900?

A hands-on workshop utilizing these records follows, using an exercise manual, with staff, directors and volunteers giving personal assistance to participants. The Research Center has a collection of approximately 1,000 reels of microfilmed public records and vital statistics, as well as manuscript collections focusing on Somerset, Worcester and Wicomico counties in Maryland, Accomac and Northampton counties in Virginia and Sussex County in Delaware. Maps, personal papers, the Archives of Maryland and photographs are also contained in the collection.

Attendance is limited to the first 35 registrants, and the fee is $35. It is free for students and faculty.

Additionally participants may register for independent work on Friday, May 6, and receive individual assistance from the staff archivists for an additional fee of $20.

Lecture Addresses Human Genetics Research

Dr. Eric Juengst, a program director for the "Human Genome" project with the National Institutes of Health, discusses "Maps and Compasses in Human Genetics: Where Are We and Where Are We Going?" on Tuesday, April 5, at 7:30 p.m.

The lecture, part of the spring series "Issues and Challenges: Preparing for Life in the 21st Century," is in the Wicomico Room in the Guerrieri University Center. Sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the lecture is free and the public is invited.

Juengst is the director of the Program on Ethical, Legal and Social Implications for the National Center for Human Genome Research at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, MD. His presentation will reflect the latest research in the Genome project and the challenges of managing new advances in human genetics.

Juengst graduated Phi Beta Kappa in 1978 from the University of the South in Sewanee, TN, with a B.S. degree in biology. He received a master's degree in ethics in 1982 and a doctoral degree in the philosophy of medicine in 1985 from the Department of Philosophy at Georgetown University. After teaching medical ethics for three years at the University of California at San Francisco, Juengst spent two years as assistant professor of humanities at Pennsylvania State University before accepting his current position at the National Institutes of Health in 1990. He was named a fellow of the Kennedy Institute of Ethics at Georgetown University in 1991.

Juengst's numerous articles and book chapters include "Priorities in Professional Ethics and Social Policy for Human Genetics" in the Journal of the American Medical Association and "Human Genome Research and the Responsible use of New Genetic Knowledge" with DNA pioneer James D. Watson, Ph.D., in the International Journal of Bioethics. He also edited The Meaning of AIDS: Implications for Medical Science, Clinical Practice and Public Health Policy (New York: Praeger Press, 1989) with Barbara Koenig, Ph.D., and the soon to be published Historical and Philosophical Programs in Human Genetics (Dordrecht, Holland: D. Reidel Press).

Juengst has lectured widely on ethical issues, particularly those related to genetic research and AIDS. His professional memberships include the American Philosophical Association, the Society for Health and Human Values, and the International Society for the History, Philosophy, and Social Studies of Biology. He also serves on the editorial board of Human Gene Studies of Biology and the advisory board of the Journal of Medicine and Philosophy.

McBrien Writes on Humor in Marriage

An article on using health forms of humor in marriage and couples counseling by SSU's Dr. Robert J. McBrien has been published in a special issue on marriage and couples counseling of Individual Psychology: The Journal of Adlerian Theory, Research and Practice.

McBrien's article, "Laughing Together: Humor as Encouragement in Couples Counseling," defines healthy humor that encourages couples. He defines toxic humor as put down humor which is based on hostility, sarcasm and negative criticism and has been shown to impair the individual's health as well as damage the couple's relationship. Healthy humor treats everyone as equals, has the power to heal, is suitable for use during counseling and therapy and is a powerful homework assignment for couples choosing to strengthen their relationships.

A nationally certified counselor, McBrien has been a student of the optimistic psychology of Alfred Adler for over 30 years. He has taught graduate courses in guidance and counseling at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore. A member of the North American Society of Adlerian Psychology, he has presented "Humor as Encouragement" workshops at several Adlerian conferences held on the East Coast.

He is the director of the Center for Personal and Professional Development.

Three Openings for Area Director Positions

The University has three openings for area director positions in the Residence Life Office.

Duties include recruitment, selection and supervision of resident assistant and resident director staff, delivery of educational programs and services, handling of disciplinary cases and sanctions, and general administrative duties within two to three residence halls.

This is a live-in position on a 12-month appointment. Salary is competitive. A health insurance allowance, furnished apartment, utilities and meal plan are provided. A master's degree in college student personnel, higher education, counseling or related field and two-three years live-in experience are required. Multicultural emphasis and/or application of student development theory is desirable.

Send cover letter, resume and names of three references to Mr. Tony D'Antonio, Assistant Director of Housing for Residence Life, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Applications will be processed beginning immediately and continue until position is filled. The University will be accepting resumes at NASPA. Non-U.S. citizens must have U.S. immigration and Naturalization Certification to accept employment.

Sports Management Internship

SSU anticipates an internship in collegiate sports management. Qualifications include a bachelor's degree and a candidate who needs the internship to fulfill graduation requirements for a master's degree.

General responsibilities include assisting the professional staff in the coordination of all phases of operation of the Maggs Physical Activities Center. Specific responsibilities may include assisting in scheduling student employees, scheduling the facility for various practices and activities, coordinating evening facility supervision, assisting in administration of athletic events, supervising special events, taking inventory, evaluating programs, using computers, preparing a newsletter and other duties as assigned. Appointment is for nine months beginning September 1. Stipend is $8,000.

Deadline for applications is April 15 or until the position is filled.

Send a letter of interest, resume, and two letters of recommendation to Dr. Thomas P. Stichter, Facilities Coordinator, Maggs Physical Activities Center, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Racquet Sports Coordinator

The University is seeking a racquet sports coordinator who will have teaching, coaching and administrative duties.

The successful candidate needs experience in coaching varsity tennis, teaching physical education activity classes and managing an indoor and outdoor tennis facility. Candidates should have a master's degree in physical education or related field, previous college level coaching experience with proven ability to recruit, and a minimum of three years teaching and administrative experience.

Remuneration for the position is negotiable depending on experience and qualifications. Availability of a benefit package is to be determined.

Deadline for application is April 15. The position is open July 1.

Send letter of application, resume and three letters of reference to Search Committee, Racquet Sports Coordinator c/o David A. Brown, Director of Campus Recreation, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Contractual Secretary

SSU has an opening for a full-time contractual secretary/receptionist in the Department of Education.

The person will exercise initiative in performing various duties as required such as filing, typing, answering phone, etc. Computer experience is preferable. Must possess ability to handle multiple and detailed priorities efficiently in a busy office. This is a 40-hour contractual position with no paid benefits. Salary is $6.50 per hour.

Interested applicants should submit a resume and complete an application in the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall, no later than Monday, March 21.

Equipment Room Manager

Salisbury State is seeking applications for the position of equipment room manager. This is a full-time contractual position with no paid benefits.

This is a full-time (40 hrs/week) contractual position with no paid benefits. Salary: $9 per hour. Make application not later than March 30 to the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Portfolios Are Due for Art Awards

The deadline for portfolios of SSU art students who wish to apply for several art awards or candidacy to the Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) program is approaching.

Portfolios are due no later than Tuesday, April 5, in the Art Department in Fulton Hall, Room 200.

The awards, which include a cash grant, are the Walter Thurston Memorial Award in photography and the Lewis Hess Award in art. The Art Department also gives meritorious awards.

The Thurston Award ($500) is for students planning to use photography in a future career. Applicants must be full-time junior or senior art majors, be completing or have completed nine hours in photography at SSU with a B average or better in those courses, submit a portfolio of photos or slides demonstrating a variety of skills, and include written statements about the work submitted. Previous Thurston Award winners are excluded.

The Hess Award ($100) applicants must be full-time junior or senior art majors who have been enrolled during the preceding two semesters. Applicants must have a minimum 3.0 grade point average in art, submit a portfolio demonstrating a variety of art skills and techniques, and include written statements about works in the portfolio.

Departmental Meritorious Awards ($50) applicants must have completed a minimum of 30 semester hours of art at SSU. They must submit a portfolio with a maximum of 10 pieces demonstrating outstanding abilities and include written statements about each piece.

All recipients of awards will be listed in the Honors Convocation program. Awards are presented Friday, May 6, at the Honors Convocation which starts at 3:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall.

Applications for awards as well as B.F.A. candidacy are available in the Art Department. For more information contact Art Department chair Marie Cavallaro at 543-6270.

SSU Artists In City Arts Event

The visual arts and artists of Salisbury State come front and center during City Arts Weekend March 16-20.

The faculty of SSU's Department of Art have created a special show of their works which will be on display at University Square Plaza. University Square Plaza is a shopping center on Rt. 13 south, across the street from the main campus. The faculty exhibit may be seen Wednesday through Saturday, March 16-19, from noon-4 p.m.

In addition the University Gallery in Fulton Hall and the Atrium Gallery in the Guerrieri University Center have exhibits running during regular gallery hours.

As part of City Arts Weekend, a special Gallery Night reception will be held on Friday, March 18, from 5-9 p.m. at all three gallery spaces.

Exhibiting faculty include Jeanne Anderton, John Patrick Barrett, James Burgess, Marie Cavallaro, John Cleary, Michel Demanche, John Gencel III, Marie Halverson, Donald R. Harter, Kent Kimmel, Dean Peterson, Lucy Rabine, Frederick A. Ropko, Ernie Satchell, Madeleine Shinn and Marcy Wolpe.

The University Gallery continues to exhibit "Faces and Figures: Prints from the Tamarind Lithography Workshop," a National Gallery of Art circulating exhibition. The Atrium Gallery exhibits landscape drawings by Virginia artist Buddy Bunting.

During City Arts Weekend Dr. Kota Chandrasekhara is donating space for the faculty exhibit at University Square Plaza.

All three exhibitions are free. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Women's, Gender Studies Minor Meeting

There is a general meeting to discuss the development of a women's studies/gender studies minor on Thursday, March 17, from 3:30-4:30 p.m. in Fulton Hall, Room 128.

A number of people in different departments expressed interest in the last meeting but were unable to attend. For any questions please contact Judith Pike in the Department of English at 543-6440.

Summer Arts Calendar Deadline Approaching

The deadline for Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council's quarterly publication, Accent on the Arts, the summer issue which covers the months of May, June, July and August, is Friday, April 1. Any organization wishing to have listings or articles included in the upcoming issue should have the information in SWAC's office no later than 5 p.m. on April 1.

Information required for the listings includes event name, location, date, time, sponsors, contact name and day-time phone number. The information must be in writing and complete. Incomplete listings will not be included.

Accent on the Arts showcases the cultural offerings of a three county region, encompassing Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset counties. The "Southern Eastern Shore Calendar," the listing of cultural activities in the region, is the centerpiece of the publication. The listings portion is made possible by a grant from the Department of Economic and Employment Development, through the Wicomico County Department of Convention and Visitors Bureau and the Wicomico County Council.

Accent on the Arts is published four times a year and is distributed directly to 1,000 members and affiliates of SWAC. About 3,000 copies are also distributed to restaurants, hotels and business offices for area visitors and tourists.

For more information call SWAC at 543-ARTS.

Scholarships Available To New Art Majors

Interested in a career in art? A limited number of scholarships are being offered to incoming freshmen and transfer students who intend to major in art.

Scholarships vary from $300-$500 with the opportunity to renew for the following year, for a total of four years. Prospective students may apply for a scholarship at the time of application to the University. To receive a scholarship application form, please call the Art Department at 543-6270. The application as well as a portfolio of work are both due by Wednesday, March 23.

The portfolio may include up to 15 pieces in three to five different media. Applicants also may include slides of those works which they could not otherwise bring. More specific information about portfolio deadlines and guidelines will be sent with the application form.

Scholarship recipients will be notified in early April. Scholarships are awarded pending acceptance to SSU.

SSU offers both a B.A. and B.F.A. in art. Please contact the Art Department for further information on programs and offerings.

Senkbeil Authors Lab Safety Article

Dr. Edward G. Senkbeil, professor of chemistry in the Henson School of Science and Technology, recently authored a paper appearing in the international publication, Journal of Hazardous Materials.

The article, "Laboratory Safety Course in the Chemistry Curriculum," describes the development and design of the course presently taught as a requirement for chemistry majors at SSU. Although laboratory safety is considered a significant aspect of a chemist's background, less than 5 percent of all colleges and universities offer a required safety course as a part of their chemistry curriculum.

Senkbeil's article describes a course that not only requires students to become familiar with safety topics and issues, but also to perform laboratory inspections and to complete CPR/First Aid training. The course has become a valuable component of the SSU chemistry curriculum and has served as a model for other colleges and universities. According to Senkbeil, the course has been successful in developing skills and attitudes for working with chemicals in a responsible and confident way.

Study Abroad Workshops Scheduled

Have you ever wondered about exotic places? Have you ever wanted to travel to different countries? Have you ever wanted to learn another language? Have you ever wondered about study abroad?

The offices of Modern Languages and International Student Services are pleased to introduce the first Study Abroad Workshop. It takes place on Thursday, March 17, and Friday, March 18. During the two-part workshop, students from SSU and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore have the opportunity to learn about some of the intricacies of studying abroad.

The first part is on Thursday at 3:30 p.m. in the Great Hall. International students and American students who have studied abroad share their experiences on how to choose the best program, complete the paperwork and how it really feels to be abroad. Also representatives from the Financial Aid Office and the Registrar's Office answer questions pertaining to their offices. Door prizes and refreshments are provided by the American Institute for Foreign Study. AIFS has played an important role in the study abroad opportunities at SSU. Since the University signed a consortium with AIFS in 1993, it has become much easier for students to become involved in a well organized, nationally recognized and credited program. Written tips on where to go and whom to see will be handed out during the workshop.

Deedee Aleccia, a regional representative of AIFS, is available on Friday, March 18, from 7:30-9 a.m. in the lobby of the Powell Dining Hall. She is also conducting two one-hour sessions in the Pocomoke Room (Guerrieri University Center) from 10-11 a.m. and noon-1 p.m. Brochures on AIFS programs on study abroad are available on the second floor of the Guerrieri Center, outside of Room 242F. For more information on the workshop or any study abroad programs please see Agata Liszkowska in Guerrieri Center, Room 242E, or call 543-6313.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

No News Next Week

The SSU News will not be published on Thursday, March 24 because of spring break. The next deadline for the newsletter is Friday, March 25, at noon.

U.S. Health Care Topic of Lecture

Dr. Martha Livingston, a community health professor at the State University of New York College at Old Westbury, lectures on "U.S. Health Care: A Vision for the 21st Century."

Livingston, who advocates a Canadian-style single-payer solution to the U.S. health care crisis, teaches and researches U.S. health care, comparative health care systems, international health, health policy, medical ethics and women's health. Her lecture, free and open to the public, is on Tuesday, March 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Livingston's presentation, part of the spring lecture series "Issues and Challenges: Preparing for Life in the 21st Century," is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

"care, we are spending more money on health care than any other nation."

"After a brief examination of the health care crisis, we will critically examine the solution offered by President Clinton and Congressional leaders,

Attention May 1994 Graduates

Because of the increasing number of graduates, and the seating capacity of the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, the University Graduation Committee issues tickets for guests attending each graduation ceremony. Tickets were first issued for the December 1992 graduation.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets.

Please note the following dates and deadlines:

April 26-29 Pick up caps, gowns, announcements and tickets at the graduation center in the Book Rack. Students who are not able to pick up their graduation items because they are student teaching outside the area or otherwise not on campus may contact

Nancy Watson or Lisa Gray at the Book Rack (543-6085) to make special arrangements. Please return any tickets not needed to the Guerrieri University Center information desk.

May 18-27 If extra guest tickets do become available they will be distributed at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first come, first served basis. During this time do not anticipate more than one ticket per graduate.

May 28 Graduation exercises are at 10 a.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

More information on the foregoing will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the newsletter, Flyer and MAX for details.

Veronique Bourgois and Christine Destexhe

Belgium Grad Students Teaching Marketing

Veronique Bourgois and Christine Destexhe, both from Belgium, are currently teaching an international marketing class at the Perdue School of Business.

Their internship concludes their master's degree in intercultural management at the Institut Catholiques des Hautes Etudes Commerciales of Brussels.

Bourgois obtained her Bachelor in Business and Finance at the Business School of ICHC where her thesis subject concerned "European Competition." In the meantime she has followed a program titled "European Affairs" for which she received a certificate. In February and March 1993 she worked for the Belgian Ministry of Economic Affairs and for the European Council where she attended a part of the enlargement negotiations between the European Union and some of the EFTA countries. During three years, 1989-1992, she was an active member of the International Association of Students in Economic and Sciences.

Destexhe graduated from the Law School (University of Louvain in Belgium) and obtained her legal instructor certificate. Her specialization is commercial and international law. She worked as a lawyer in an attorney's office in Belgium in 1992 and in one in Italy in 1993. She was also a director in a fruit canning factory in Belgium between 1990 and 1992. She was class representative in her law school, student representative in the Economic and Social Department, vice president of the student council at her university, radio compere, amateur journalist in a magazine published by foreign students and art exhibition organizer.

Bourgois and Destexhe are assisting Perdue School faculty member Dr. Memo Diriker. They also work at the European American Business Institute, located at the Power Professional Building in Salisbury. The institute provides consultancy on projects concerning cooperation, trade exchanges and joint ventures between American companies, large or small, and European ones.

La Boheme Aims March 26 on WSCL

Puccini's La Boheme will be broadcast live from the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday, March 26, at 1:30 p.m. on WSCL (89.5 FM).

Romanian soprano Angela Gheorghiu makes her Met broadcast debut as Mimì, with Diana Soviero as Musetta, Richard Leech as Rodolfo, Timothy Noble as Marcello, Mark Oswald as Schaunard, Kevin Short as Colline, and Francois Loup in the two roles of Benoit and Alcindoro. The conductor is Carlo Rizzi, and the announcer for the broadcast is Peter Allen.

During the first intermission Susan Stamberg, special correspondent for National Public Radio, who was co-host of NPR's All Things Considered, is host for Part 2 of a "Technical Roundtable--From Design to the Stage" [Part 1 aired on January 15] with guests Joseph Clark, technical director of the Metropolitan Opera; Stephen Diaz, master carpenter of the Met; Douglas F. Lebrecht, chagman and head of the scenic department of the Metropolitan; and Michael Yeargan, designer of the new production of Verdi's Othello at the Met.

Guest quizmaster for "Texaco's Opera Quiz," heard during the second intermission, is conductor and musicologist Will Crutchfield. Panelist are music critic for the Dallas Morning News, John Ardoin; consultant to the Metropolitan Opera's Marketing Department and Box Office, Alfred Hubay; and host of WQXR's nationally syndicated The Vocal Scene, George Jellinek.

Human Aging Course Offered

Do you plan on getting old? Do you know someone who is? Do you want to know what happens and what to do about it? Then register for Biology of Human Aging.

Biology of Human Aging (Biol. 219) will be offered in the fall semester. This three credit course is designed for students who have a interest in the aging process or who plan to pursue careers where knowledge of the physical changes occurring in older adults may be important. Examples include careers in health care, sociology, social work, recreation, education, and psychology. Though the course is designed for non-biology majors, either Biology 101 or Biology 215 and 216 are prerequisites.

Biology of Human Aging will concentrate on what happens as people grow older, and will carefully distinguish between inevitable age changes and avoidable abnormal and disease changes. Some common abnormal and disease conditions will also be explored. Other topics will include the reasons and methods for studying aging and the interrelationships between biological age changes and other types of changes, such as psychological, social, and economic changes. The text for the course was written by Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna, the instructor for the course, and is entitled Human Aging: Biological Perspectives.

This course can apply towards a minor in biology, and it is required for a minor in gerontology. It does not satisfy General Education requirements.

Revolutionary War Topics Discussed at Furnace Town

On April 9 and 10 "Music, Mayhem, and Morality in Revolutionary Maryland," a project funded by the Maryland Humanities Council, takes place at Furnace Town Historic Site in Snow Hill. The project is sponsored by the Wicomico Historical Society and Furnace Town Foundation and takes place with the annual Revolutionary War Encampment.

Throughout the weekend scholars share with the public interesting topics of the past. Dr. Jessie Fleming, recently retired from Salisbury State, discusses "The Language of Music" and the part each note played in our history. Barry Neville, of Eastern Shore Community College, recreates a non-Anglican religious service.

Philip Goldsborough, a local favorite, shares his own personal family history of Crisfield and Smith Island. Richard Swartout presents a re-creation of the dilemma of an Anglican during the Revolution from the pulpit of John Rosse of All Hallows Church. Over both days, Dr. Charles Camp shares the folklore and folklife of the past with all who visit.

Furnace Town is open for the encampment from 11 a.m.-7 p.m. on Saturday and 11 a.m.-5 p.m. on Sunday. The encampment begins to dismantle at 3 p.m. on Sunday. Furnace Town's daily special event site admission of $5 per adult and $1.50 per child includes all activities of the day. There is free parking available and food sold on site.

For directions and information please call 632-2032.

For more information on the events or for membership forms, please call the president of the club, Sharon Miner, at 546-2941.

Workshop Addresses Issues Pertinent To Black Women

A workshop that analyzes a black woman's uniqueness and vitality is coming. "For Black Women Only," sponsored by the Office of Minority Affairs, provides a forum where black women can challenge and explore their beliefs on relationships, sisterhood, stereotypes and health.

The workshop, in discussion format, focuses on the dynamics of black male/female relationships, rebuilding sister-to-sister unity and self-esteem, provides accurate statistics that destroy myths associated with stereotypes, and addresses health issues relevant to black women.

"For Black Women Only" is on Saturday, April 16, from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. Continental breakfast and lunch will be served. Please RSVP by March 18 to Valerie McAdams in the Office of Minority Affairs. Space is limited. For more information please contact McAdams at 548-5300, Madeline McShaw at 543-6171 or Monica Triplett at 543-6199.

Final Workshop In Series for Women

The final wellness workshop in the March series directed toward women is on Wednesday, March 23, from noon-1 p.m. in the Manokin Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Kathryn Reading, a counselor in the Center for Personal and Professional Development directs the workshop "Learning to Love Your Body."

The workshop focuses on why women in our culture hate their bodies. Discussion addresses getting over the love/hate relationship with mirrors and scales, appreciating what the body does and understanding the body as it moves through the years. Information is available regarding eating disorders as well.

For more information on the workshop stop by the CPPD, Guerrieri Center, Room 263, or call 543-6070.

No Major Changes In Liberal Studies

In the Liberal Studies Program there will be no change of majors during the two weeks of preregistration (April 4-14). Dr. James C. Lackie and Carol A. Bosserman will see only their advisees during preregistration. Non-liberal studies advisees should see their appropriate advisor during this period.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

March Madness at SSU may take on a whole new meaning if the Sea Gull lacrosse teams continue their early-season streaks. Barely two weeks into the season, both Gull teams find themselves unbeaten with 3-0 records.

Supporters of the men's team are probably not surprised by Salisbury's perfect start, even if two of the three wins have come against ranked opponents. After all, Coach Jim Berkman's squad has a 27-game regular season winning streak and has been the winningest program in Division III over the past four seasons.

Jason Coffman's goal off Dod Poe's assist with six seconds remaining last Saturday not only moved SSU past Ohio Wesleyan, 11-10, but also earned Salisbury its third 3-0 start in the past four seasons. Ho-hum, status quo.

For the women's team meanwhile, the 3-0 beginning is a completely new experience. The women have never started with three straight wins. Week-end wins over Washington & Lee (5-4) and Lynchburg (13-10) give Coach Dawn Chamberlin's team renewed confidence heading into a formidable stretch in the schedule.

The Sea Gulls play their next four on the road, including visits to Trenton State, Ithaca and Cortland State. Strong efforts could help SSU match its best ever start, a 7-1 run to open the 1986 season.

The baseball team is now 3-2 for the season following a weekend split with 11th-ranked Eastern Connecticut State. The Gulls nipped the Warriors 6-5 last Saturday, but fell 14-10 in Sunday's slugfest. In addition to 24 runs, Sunday's game saw the two teams combine for 25 hits, 25 walks, 10 pitchers, six wild pitches and five errors.

Two other spring sports kick into action this week as the men's tennis team and women's softball squad play their season openers. The tennis team has four matches scheduled for week one, while the softball team follows Wednesday's home opener against Catholic with a weekend visit to the Virginia Wesleyan Tournament.

Community Service Recognition Reception

COOL-SSU has announced the second annual Community Outreach Recognition Program Reception, which is on Monday, April 25, at 7 p.m. in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall.

The purpose of the program is to recognize individuals and groups from SSU who have engaged in community service activities during the 1993-94 academic year. Awards are given to individual students, faculty and staff, student organizations, residence hall groups and faculty who use community service activities connected with coursework.

Nomination forms are available at the Office of the Dean of Students and must be submitted by Wednesday, April 6. All nominees receive certificates at the reception in addition to the presentation of awards for each category. If there are any questions contact Barry King at 543-6080.

Science Students Attend OC Meeting

Environmental health students Troy Johnson and Michael Hall, accompanied by SSU assistant professor of environmental health, Dr. Elichia Venso, recently attended the 1994 Maryland Public Health Pesticide Applicator Meeting at the Sheraton Hotel in Ocean City.

The annual meeting addresses public health issues involving environmental pests, such as mosquitos and flies, and the application of pesticides for control. Among the presentations attended by the students and Venso was an address by Dr.

William Grogan, professor of entomology at SSU. Other speakers on the agenda included representatives of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, the Delaware Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Control, and the U.S. Department of the Interior.

Johnson is a resident of Dover, DE, and a graduate of Caesar Rodney High School. Hall is a graduate of Laurel (DE) Senior High School. In May Hall will be the first to graduate from SSU's new environmental health program.

Staff Council Seeks Input on CUSS Constitution

Minutes from the President's Staff Council meeting and the Chancellor's Council for University System Staff are on reserve for staff in Blackwell Library at the circulation desk. During March the Chancellor's Council constitution and by-laws are also on reserve for staff review and comments.

The Chancellor's Council consists of staff from 13 UMS institutions. The council meets monthly and advises the chancellor on personnel issues relevant to UMS staff. The council is currently reviewing a proposed pay plan for all System staff. The plan is currently being reviewed by the System vice presidents for administration and details will be forthcoming. The plan is scheduled to be phased in with classified staff adopting the plan in July 1995.

The SSU President's Staff Advisory

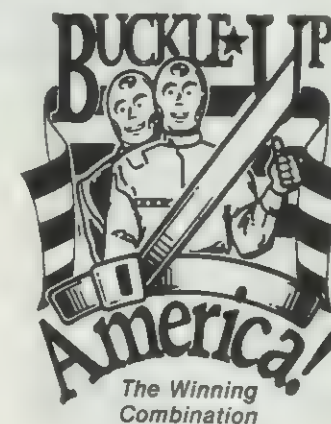

Council meets monthly to discuss issues of concern to SSU staff at the local and state levels. The council also coordinates activities with the UM System Council for University System Staff. Any staff member with questions or concerns about campus or state personnel policies, or other issues, should contact one of the council members listed below. The council discusses questions or concerns with Dr. Bellavance or the Personnel Office at regular meetings.

SSU Staff Council representatives are: Robert Meigel, Physical Plant; Lesley Dayton, Blackwell Library; Dennis Bradford, Public Safety Office; Linda Abresch, Math Department; Barry King, Dean of Students Office; Jackie Eberts, Financial Services Office; Jeanette Wolinski, Computer Services Office; and Jerry Waldron, Registrar's Office.

SSU-UMES Joint Social Planned

A get-together with the SSU Forum members and the UMES Assembly and Senate takes place in the foyer of the University Gallery in Fulton Hall on Friday, March 18, at 4:30 p.m. Refreshments are provided. All members of both universities are invited to attend to meet and interact.

For more information contact Paul Scovell, chair of the SSU Forum, at 543-6260.

COOL Clearinghouse

COOL Clearinghouse serves as an information network to help individuals and groups interested in community service opportunities match themselves with community organizations which use volunteers. This project is sponsored by COOL-SSU, a student organization affiliated with the Campus Outreach Opportunity League. Organizations using this service are solely responsible for the conduct of sponsored service activities, including training and supervision. Volunteers assume sole responsibility for their conduct and for any risks associated with service activities. COOL Clearinghouse (410)543-6080.

Nature Walk
At Furnace Town

Furnace Town Historic Site in Snow Hill continues its series of nighttime nature walks on Friday, March 18. "Nocturnal Animals and Scales and Tales" begins at 7 p.m. in the R. Frank Jones Museum and concludes about 9 p.m. The walk is suitable for families, with information selected for adults and children.

Furnace Town's admission fee is $3 for adults and $1.50 for children. Furnace Town and Nature Conservancy members receive complimentary admission. For more information and to register please call 632-2032.

Yearbooks for Sale/Senior Portrait Submissions

To purchase yearbooks send checks made payable to Salisbury State University in the amount of $15.50 to SSU Box 3061 along with an index card with the delivery address on it. This offer is for underclassmen, faculty and staff. Seniors receive a free book only if they have a senior portrait taken or submitted. Seniors do not need to pay for a yearbook if they had a senior portrait taken; one will be mailed free to their home in September 1994.

Seniors who did not take advantage of senior portrait week (February 14-19) and would still like to be in the yearbook have until March 25 to have a professional portrait taken at another studio (Wall-Mart, Olan Mills—a buffed blue or brown background must be chosen, street clothes only, no cap and gown or photos with props please) and submit to the yearbook. Name should be on the back of the wallet-size photo. On a 8 1/2" x 5 1/2" piece of paper write name, September mailing address, major/minor, organizations, awards, honors, varsity sports and any jobs to be included in the yearbook caption. No photos will be accepted after March 25.

Easter Egg Hunt
At Purnell Museum

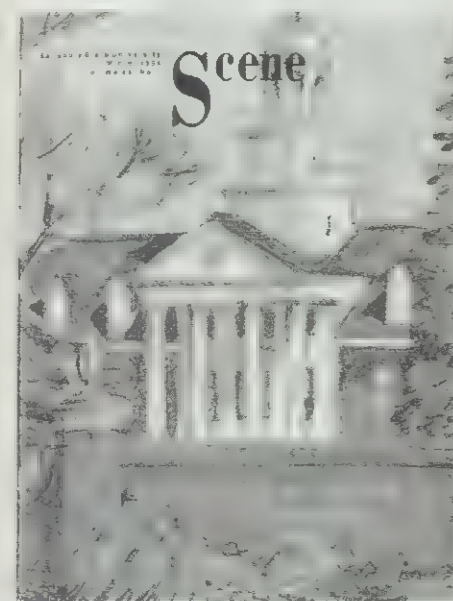

The Julia A. Purnell Museum in Snow Hill is holding an Easter egg hunt for children ages 5 and under on Saturday, April 2. The event is at the museum from 9-11 a.m. Children can enjoy special decorations, delicious refreshments and the thrill of the hunt.

Children and their parents can also enjoy the Purnell Museum as they hunt for eggs filled with candy and toys. Young artists can create their own Easter decorations and celebrate the coming of spring.

The museum's time Time Travel Trunk will be open and ready to show children what life was like 150 years ago. Parents are invited to enjoy the museum and the festivities with their children.

The egg hunt will be held rain or shine. Admission to the museum is 50 cents for children (infants free) and $2 for adults. For further information please call 632-0515.

Scene Available

The Alumni magazine publication, the Scene, is now available through the Alumni Office. The Scene features articles about the new "Alumni House", the '60's lecture series, "Flashbacks: A Retrospective of the '60s," "SSU in the '60s" and "60 years of Theatre." For your copy of the Scene call the Alumni Office at 543-6042.

Summer Arts Program
For Talented, Gifted

For the first time, children with special talents in the arts may study in a unique program on Maryland's Eastern Shore. This summer SSU is one of 12 centers in Maryland offering retreats for children. Part of the Maryland Summer Centers' Network for Gifted and Talented Students, this is the first time an Eastern Shore center has offered the fine and performing arts curriculum.

SSU's state-of-the-art facilities in a recently constructed $16 million arts building "is one reason why we were selected for this prestigious program," said Dr. Kent Kimmel, SSU professor of art and director of the summer center. "And I think the Eastern Shore location is another plus. Students are able to leave the heat of the city to come to a vacation haven." Salisbury is 30 miles west of the Atlantic resorts, Ocean City and Assateague Island, and 20 miles east of the Chesapeake Bay.

"Shore students who live here," Kimmel added, "have the bonus of making new friends and working with innovative teachers right in their own back yard."

Fourth Variety Show
Features 14 Acts

The Auditoria Services Office presents the fourth annual Variety Show on Friday, April 8, and Saturday, April 9. The Variety Show, V4 for short, starts at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The event is open to the public.

Profits from V4 go toward the SSU Habitat for Humanity project. The SSU Habitat chapter hopes to be the first university to raise the funds and complete a Habitat home in one year. April 15 is the anniversary day for the project and V4 could be the event that helps the SSU Habitat chapter to reach its goal.

This year's Variety Show, for the first time, is going to have a pit band. The Incredible One Night Band will play music before the show and throughout the evening. The band's leader, SSU student Tim Starnes, will help give the show a Late Night With David Letterman type of atmosphere.

V4 features 14 different acts. The first act is a music and dance piece from Jesus Christ Superstar. Martha Pfeiffer, an SSU alumna, has agreed to resurrect, so to speak, the routine from a successful January performance. Demonstrating the variety of talent at Salisbury State, the show will have a classical piano performance, a collection of dance acts (including a few featuring the hip-hop style), a comedian and diverse vocal performances.

The show will be hosted by three masters and three mistresses of ceremonies. The mistresses will be Jennifer Gordy, Heather Smith and Amber Wright; the master of ceremonies will be Jim Bennett, John Thomas and Will Wells. John Andrews, an SSU alumnus, will be the show's stage manager and the lighting design will be by Anthony Blake. The costs for V4 are being underwritten by the Salisbury State Program Board and the Guerrieri University Center. Flowers are provided by Flowers Unlimited, the tuxedos by Phillips Men's Shop.

Advance $2 tickets for V4 are on sale at the Guerrieri Center information desk. The remaining tickets will be sold at the door for $4. There will also be a chance to donate more money to the SSU Habitat for Humanity Project in the Holloway Hall lobby. For group tickets or information, please call V4 director, Tony Broadbent, at 548-4597.

Radical Environmentalist Lectures Here April 19

Dave Foreman, co-founder of the radical environmental organization Earth First!, gives a lecture and slide presentation titled "In Defense of the Wild" on Tuesday, April 19, at 7:30 p.m.

Foreman's presentation, free and open to the public, is in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Foreman has been one of the most prominent and articulate advocates for preventing the destruction of the Earth's remaining wild areas. He possesses an unparalleled expertise on the importance of taking action now. Disgust with the slow pace of environmental preservation led Foreman to join with four others in 1989 to form Earth First! Their motto—"No compromise in defense of Mother Earth!" After 10 years, he left the organization to more directly serve as an advocate for conservation biology issues. He is now chairman of "The Wildlands Project," dedicated to developing a North American wilderness recovery plan.

In his lecture Foreman argues that human beings are causing massive changes in the biosphere of the planet and that our activities have become a threat to the very process of evolution, citing that "we may lose one third of all species in the next 40 years." He says that we need to devise a new relationship between ourselves and the natural world. He also proposes a diverse array of approaches and tools to use in defense of biodiversity.

Foreman has spent the last 21 years as a professional conservationist. He joined the Wilderness Society's elite corps of field representatives in 1973 roaming the Southwest deserts and the halls of Congress, investigating wilderness areas and advocating their preservation on Capitol Hill. He is the author of Confessions of an Eco-Warrior

The deadline for portfolios of SSU art students who wish to apply for several art awards or candidacy to the Bachelor of Fine Arts (B.F.A.) program is approaching.

Portfolios are due no later than Tuesday, April 5, in the Art Department in Fulton Hall, Room 200.

The awards, which include a cash grant, are the Walter Thurston Memorial Award in photography and the Lewis Hess Award in art. The Art Department also gives meritorious awards.

The Thurston Award ($500) is for students planning to use photography in a future career. Applicants must be full-time junior or senior art majors, be completing or have completed nine hours in photography at SSU with a B average or better in those courses, submit a portfolio of photos or slides demonstrating a variety of skills, and include written statements about the work submitted. Previous Thurston Award winners are excluded.

The Hess Award ($100) applicants must be full-time junior or senior art majors who have been enrolled during the preceding two semesters. Applicants must have a minimum 3.0 grade point average in art, submit a portfolio demonstrating a variety of art skills and techniques, and include written statements about works in the portfolio.

Departmental Meritorious Awards ($50) applicants must have completed a minimum of 30 semester hours of art at SSU. They must submit a portfolio with a maximum of 10 pieces demonstrating outstanding abilities and include written statements about each piece.

All recipients of awards will be listed in the Honors Convocation program. Awards are presented Friday, May 6, at the Honors Convocation which starts at 3:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall.

Applications for awards as well as B.F.A. candidacy are available in the Art Department. For more information contact Art Department chair Marie Cavallaro at 543-6270.

Workshop Helps 'Find Those Elusive Ancestors'

Do you sometimes feel your ancestors deliberately tried to cover their tracks? Do you wonder if even J. Edgar Hoover could have found your Granny Lizzie? Have you found three "Charles Who-ers" when you really only wanted one grandfather?

The Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture is offering a series of workshops to coincide with the annual Lower Shore Genealogical Society's Symposium. On Thursday, May 6, beginning researchers in family history or experienced genealogists are invited to attend the following morning sessions beginning at 10 a.m.

Attendance is limited to the first 35 registrants, and the fee is $35. It is free for students and faculty.

Additionally participants may register for independent work on Friday, May 6, and receive individual assistance from the staff archivists for an additional fee of $20.

Community Service Recognition Reception

COOL-SSU has announced the second annual Community Outreach Recognition Program Reception, which is on Monday, April 25, at 7 p.m. in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall.

The purpose of the program is to recognize individuals and groups from SSU who have engaged in community service activities during the 1993-94 academic year. Awards are given to individual students, faculty and staff, student organizations, residence hall groups and faculty who use community service activities connected with coursework.

Nomination forms are available at the Office of the Dean of Students and must be submitted by Wednesday, April 6. All nominees receive certificates at the reception in addition to the presentation of awards for each category. If there are any questions contact Barry King at 543-6080.

Small Grants, Stipends for 1994

The Office of Grants and Sponsored Research is again awarding small grants and stipends designed to help faculty members complete research for manuscripts, carry out small research studies or assist in the preparation of a formal request for external funding. The funding is in the $1,200-$1,500 range with appropriate justification.

If interested in applying for one of these awards, please call the Office of Grants and Sponsored Research at 548-5395 for an application packet. Proposals are due in the office by Monday, April 4. Applications received after that date will not be reviewed. Decisions will be announced during the first week in May.

Great Poker Playoff

The first "Great Poker Playoff" on Saturday, April 9, at the Salisbury Moose Lodge 654 on Snow Hill Road from 7-11 p.m. benefits the Epilepsy Association of the Eastern Shore (EAES).

For a $50 entrance fee, players have the opportunity to enjoy a night of cards while helping a good cause. Monetary prizes will be awarded to the top seven winners.

If interested contact Mary Furnanage at EAES, Monday-Friday, 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m., at 543-0665.

SSUNewsletterGuidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.

7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.

8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.

9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.

10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Equipment Room Manager

Salisbury State is seeking applications for the position of equipment room manager. This is a full-time contractual position with no paid benefits.

Responsibilities include supervising all phases of equipment room operations for 20 NCAA Division III varsity sports and campus recreation programs; overseeing uniform and equipment purchases and supervising all laundry operations. A bachelor's degree is preferred. Previous equipment room experience is highly desirable. Salary is commensurate with experience and qualifications.

Interested candidates should submit a letter, resume and list of references to Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Ave., Salisbury, MD 21801. Screening of applicants begins April 1 and continues until the position is filled.

Met Opera Broadcast On WSCL

Richard Wagner's Der Fliegende Holländer will be broadcast live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera International Radio Network on Saturday, April 19, at 2 p.m.

Hildegard Behrens is Senta with James Morris as the Dutchman. The role of Erik is sung by Klaus Konig, Daland by Jan-Hendrik Rootering, the Steersman by Paul Groves and Mary by Sondra Kelly. Hermann Michael conducts and the announcer is Peter Allen.

The precurtain feature is a discussion of Der Fliegende Holländer by Metropolitan Opera conductor, Richard Weitach.

Attention May 1994 Graduates

Because of the increasing number of graduates, and the seating capacity of the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, the University Graduation Committee issues tickets for guests attending each graduation ceremony. Tickets were first issued for the December 1992 graduation.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets.

Please note the following dates and deadlines:

April 26-29 Pick up caps, gowns, announcements and tickets at the graduation center in the Book Rack. Students who are not able to pick up their graduation items because they are student teaching outside the area or otherwise not on campus may contact

Nancy Watson or Lisa Gray at the Book Rack (543-6085) to make special arrangements. Please return any tickets not needed to the Guerrieri University Center information desk.

May 18-27 If extra guest tickets do become available they will be distributed at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first come, first served basis. During this time do not anticipate more than one ticket per graduate.

May 28 Graduation exercises are at 10 a.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

More information on the foregoing will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the newsletter, Flyer and MAX for details.

World Watch Researcher Discusses Environmentally Sound Economy

"Environmental trends are now shaping the evolution of the global economy," according to State of the World 1993, the 10th annual assessment of the world's condition by the Washington, D.C. based Worldwatch Institute.

"Efforts to protect the ozone layer, conserve biodiversity and stabilize the climate will affect virtually all industries and open unprecedented business opportunities in the next decade," said one of the study's authors, Christopher Flavin, vice president for research at Worldwatch Institute.

Flavin discusses that report and its implications when he lectures on Wednesday, April 13, about "Saving the Planet: How to Shape an Environmentally Sustainable Global Economy."

Flavin's presentation, part of the spring lecture series "Issues and Challenges: Preparing for Life in the 21st Century," is at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Free and open to the public, the lecture is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

"Industries ranging from construction to chemicals, metals to manufacturing, may be reshaped in the years ahead," said Flavin in the State of the World 1993.

"The broader effects of this new industrial revolution will be measured in the trillions of dollars, including investments in solar power, new transportation systems and cleaner industrial processes.

"The environment is now a powerful market force in its own right," said Flavin. "The challenge for government is to supplement regulations with environmental taxes and other measures that help the market shape a sustainable economy."

Swim Lessons Offered for Children

SSU offers a swimming program for small group lessons for children starting Saturday, April 23. Classes are limited to four children per group. Classes are 40 minutes and taught by a certified instructor.

Register for classes at the Cashier's Office in Holloway Hall. Please indicate age and approximate skill level when signing up. Minimum age is 4 years.

The cost for five classes is $25. Classes are on April 23 and 30 and May 7, 14 and 21. Times are 8:20-9 a.m., 9:10-9:45 a.m. and 9:50-10:25 a.m. There is a limit of 16 children per time.

For more information call Dr. Rosie Baretta at 543-6357.

The Writers-on-the-Shore 1994 spring literary festival at SSU features several distinguished writers reading from their works. Melville scholar and editor Hershel Parker reads from his works on Thursday, April 14, at 8 p.m. in

Lecture Addresses Human Genetics Research

Dr. Eric Juengst, a program director for the "Human Genome" project with the National Institutes of Health, discusses "Maps and Compasses in Human Genetics: Where Are We and Where Are We Going?" on Tuesday, April 5, at 7:30 p.m.

The lecture, part of the spring series "Issues and Challenges: Preparing for Life in the 21st Century," is in the Wicomico Room in the Guerrieri University Center. Sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the lecture is free and the public is invited.

Juengst is the director of the Program on Ethical, Legal and Social Implications for the National Center for Human Genome Research at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, MD. His presentation will reflect the latest research in the Genome project and the challenges of managing new advances in human genetics.

For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Day Manager

The Guerrieri University Center has an opening for day manager. Duties include the training, scheduling and supervision of several student coordinators, some recordkeeping, cash control and on-site supervision of the center, as necessary.

Successful candidates must be knowledgeable in WordPerfect 5.1, with some knowledge of graphics. This is a part-time contractual position (no paid benefits), averaging 20 hours per week. Salary is $6.89 per hour. High school education is required, some college preferred. Experience in facilities management is desirable. Screening begins March 28 and continues until the position is filled.

Applications are being accepted in the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Biology (3)

The Biology Department invites applications for the following three faculty positions beginning in August: plant science with a strong background in plant anatomy/morphology required (tenure-track position at the assistant professor level); anatomy and physiology with a background in vertebrate biology (contractual position for three year-term as visiting assistant professor); and microbiology with a background in ecology preferred (contractual position for a three-year term as visiting assistant professor). All three positions require teaching courses in General Education and in the biology major.

Candidates must be committed to excellence in undergraduate teaching, directing/mentoring undergraduate research and maintaining scholarly activity. Salary is competitive and commensurate with experience.

Forward curriculum vitae and three letters of recommendation by April 30 to Dr. Mark Holland (assistant professor) or Dr. Harry Womack (visiting assistant professors), Biology Department, Salisbury State University, Salisbury MD 21801.

Habitat Auction Begins, Bargains Galore

A silent auction to raise funds for SSU's Habitat for Humanity project begins Monday, April 4, and runs through Friday, April 22.

Items to bid on include gift certificates (Giant Food, The Athlete, La Roma, Salisbury Cleaners, Adam's Ribs, Nacho Pete's, etc.), savings bonds, posters, paintings, tickets to an Orioles game and a NASCAR event, fuel oil, CDs, cakes and much more. Need a lacrosse stick, check the auction booklet. Need a bat house emblazoned with the Orioles logo, get an auction booklet. There's even a Honda mulching mower available.

Well over 120 items have been donated ranging in value from $5 to $950. The beginning bid on most items is half its retail value, ensuring some great bargains.

To get a copy of the Habitat auction booklet call the Public Relations Office. Bidding and post-auction instructions are in the booklet. After an initial bid is placed on an item, the subsequent bid must be at least 10 percent higher.

For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Bus Trip To Philadelphia Orchestra

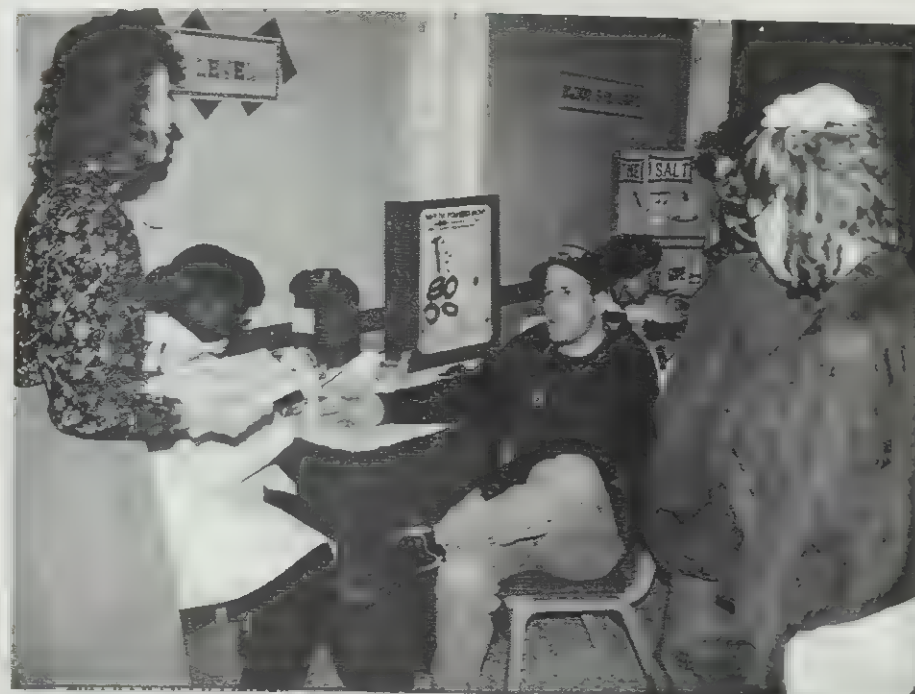

The University is sponsoring a bus trip to the Philadelphia Orchestra on Friday, April 8, featuring Christopher Eschenbach as conductor and Pinchas Zukerman on violin. The orchestra will be performing Schumann's Overture to Die Brau von Messina, Berg's Violin Concerto, and Beethoven's Symphony No. 7.

The bus leaves the Dogwood parking lot of the Guerrieri University Center at 8 a.m. No food or beverages are allowed on the bus. There is a brief breakfast stop in Wilmington; the bus discharges all passengers in Philadelphia in time for lunch before the 2 p.m. performance. The bus leaves Philadelphia immediately after the show and after a brief stop for dinner returns to Salisbury at approximately 8 p.m.

The charge for the trip is $20 for full-time students and $25 for part-time students, faculty, staff and guests. The charge includes bus and symphony ticket only. Food is not included. Sign-ups must be made in person with SSU I.D. No one is allowed to buy more than two tickets. Sign up at the Guerrieri Center information desk (543-6100). There is no refund for cancellations unless the seat can be filled. This is a popular trip and seats will fill quickly.

It's a Girl for 'Pop-pop' Pusey

Ashley Kara Jones, daughter of Jennifer (SSU Class of '90) and Michael Jones, was born March 18. She weighed 6 lbs., 12 oz. and measured 20 inches. Ashley is the first grandchild for Joan and Richard Pusey, director of business and finance at SSU.

Students participated in National Nutrition Week "Fuel for Fitness" activities in the Maryland Room of the Powell Dining Hall recently. Karla Beardsley, University Dining Services registered dietitian, supplied information on weight control; Student Health Services staff monitored blood pressures; a nursing student tested for iron levels; and physical education staff provided body fat percentage information. University Dining Services provides nutrition information on an on-going basis to students who participate in the meal plan.

Med Tech Sponsors TB Symposium

In the 1600s John Bunyan described tuberculosis this way: "The captain of all these men of death that came against him to take away, was the Consumption, for it was this that brought him down to the grave."

Three hundred years after Bunyan the medical establishment thought it had succeeded in virtually eliminating tuberculosis in the United States. In the last decade, however, the number of cases has increased dramatically. From 1985 to 1992, the CDC (Centers for Disease Control, Atlanta) reported a 20 percent growth. AIDS, substance abuse, homelessness, poverty, immigration and other factors have contributed to the rise.

Equally alarming is the increasing number of tuberculosis bacterium developing resistance to antibiotics traditionally used to treat the disease. An estimated 10 percent of TB bacterium strains now have such resistance. Even higher percentages are being seen in large urban populations.

The Department of Medical Technology holds a symposium on these and related issues on Friday, April 8, in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. "Because of the seriousness of the crisis, the public is invited to participate," said Cynthia Cowall, program coordinator and faculty in the Medical Technology Department.

The day begins with a welcome by William J. Nagel, M.D., a pulmonologist at Peninsula Regional Medical Center. He is followed by Dr. David Henderson, National Institutes of Health; Dr. Patricia Charache, Johns Hopkins University; Dr. David Parenti, George Washington University; and Dr. Diane Matuszak, Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. "These speakers are exceptionally expert in the many facets of tuberculosis," said Cowall.

They will focus on cooperation among health care professionals for the diagnosis, treatment and prevention of the disease. Particular emphasis will be placed on the detection and treatment of drug resistant strains of the bacterium.

"We think the symposium is of particular interest to laboratory scientists, nurses, physicians, public health personnel, corrections officers and anyone associated with the disease or treatment of patients," Cowall added. Included will be a special display by Baxter Scientific Corporation showing safety products for health care personnel who work with the organisms or patients infected with TB.

Besides Baxter, the symposium is funded in part by grants from the Richard A. Henson School and Science and Technology and the Salisbury State University Foundation, Inc. The registration fee of $15 covers materials, lunch and refreshments. Inquiries should be addressed to Cowall, Department of Medical Technology, at 543-6331 or 543-6365.

Maryland State Nursing Applications

Applications for the State Nursing Scholarship are available in the Financial Aid Office (Holloway Hall, Room 243).

Applicants must have a cumulative GPA of a 3.0, be a Maryland resident, be enrolled in a program leading to a nursing degree or diploma and be enrolled for at least six credit hours per semester.

Awards can be up to $2,400 per academic year. Recipients must serve as a nurse on a full-time basis one year for every year they receive assistance. Application deadline is June 30.

Perdue School Students Need to Preregister

All Perdue School students are reminded that preregistration for the fall is between April 4-15. Students must sign up for an appointment with their advisors during that period of time.

Only students eligible to be admitted into the professional programs in the Perdue School will be permitted to preregister for 300/400-level Perdue School courses.

Spring Art Classes Beginning at AI&G

Beginning the week of April 4, the Art Institute & Gallery in Salisbury will offer several art and drama classes for adults, teens and children. Classes in drawing, art appreciation, drama, cartooning, creative art, working with clay, watercolors and oil painting will be offered during the day and evenings and weekends. Cost of the classes varies from $30-$70. For a free brochure or more information call 546-4748, or stop by the AI&G on Route 50 & Lemmon Hill Lane, in downtown Salisbury.

Methods Courses Admissions Outlined

As preregistration approaches, please remember that in order to take methods classes education students must apply to the Professional Teacher Education Program.

The requirements for admission to the program are as follows: completed application (available in Caruthers Hall, Room 148); overall GPA of 2.5 including transfer courses, GPA of 2.75 in academic major (secondary majors only); grades of C or better in English 101 and 103, CMAT 250, Education 300 and 305, Math 103 (ELED majors only); and passing scores on the general knowledge and communications skills tests of the National Teachers Exam (NTE).

Unless students meet all of these requirements they may not register for methods classes. Please be aware that waivers are granted.

Applications are available in the Department of Education, Caruthers Hall, Room 148. The applications must be turned in to one's advisor during preregistration. Failure to do so results in students being dropped from any methods classes for which enrolled.

Students should see their advisor for further information.

Human Aging Course Offered

Do you plan on getting old? Do you know someone who is? Do you want to know what happens and what to do about it? Then register for Biology of Human Aging.

Biology of Human Aging (Biol. 219) will be offered in the fall semester. This three credit course is designed for students who have a interest in the aging process or who plan to pursue careers where knowledge of the physical changes occurring in older adults may be important. Examples include careers in health care, sociology, social work, recreation, education, and psychology. Though the course is designed for non-biology majors, either Biology 101 or Biology 215 and 216 are prerequisites.

Biology of Human Aging will concentrate on what happens as people grow older, and will carefully distinguish between inevitable age changes and avoidable abnormal and disease conditions will also be explored. Other topics will include the reasons and methods for studying aging and the interrelationships between biological age changes and other types of changes, such as psychological, social, and economic changes. The text for the course was written by Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna, the instructor for the course, and is entitled Human Aging: Biological Perspectives.

This course can apply towards a minor in biology, and it is required for a minor in gerontology. It does not satisfy General Education requirements.

Larson Trio Presents Jazz Concert

The Robert Larson Trio presents a jazz concert on Sunday, April 17, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Free and open to the public, the event is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

The Robert Larson Trio performs jazz in the tradition of Bill Evans, Keith Jarrett and Tommy Flanagan, with modern influences such as Monty Alexander, Benny Green, Chick Corea and Herbie Hancock. Each member of the group contributes significant ideas to form the finished product, and the collective improvisation explored by Evans 30 years ago is a goal sought by these musicians as well. Original pieces, as well as great jazz compositions by Duke Ellington, Thelonious Monk, Evans and others, make up the trio's repertoire. Well-loved standards by composers such as Cole Porter and George Gershwin are also performed.

Larson was raised and educated in the Northwest, studying the early piano style of Evans while in graduate school at the University of Oregon. He moved to the East Coast in 1982 to accept a position at Shenandoah University in Winchester, VA. In 1988, Larson was appointed as director of jazz studies at Shenandoah, and the following year assumed directorship of the Jazz Ensemble. In that time, the ensemble has performed in Sweden, Japan and mainland China, as well as at various festivals and conventions in the mid-Atlantic region.

Larson has continued to perform on a regular basis in Washington, D.C. and the Virginia and Maryland suburbs, appearing with the finest musicians from D.C., as well as working as a solo pianist. Studio work, performances at jazz clubs such as Blues Alley and University teaching keep him active in the Washington music scene.

Harris plays string bass and bass guitar. He is a graduate of the music school at East Carolina University and is currently studying bass with Michael Richmond, a jazz faculty member at New York University.

Glenn Harris lives in the Maryland suburbs of Washington, D.C., where he works as a free-lance musician, appearing throughout the mid-Atlantic region, including the Eastern Shore. He has worked with entertainers such as Rich Little, Red Skelton, Robert Goulet and Hal Linden. He has worked in a variety of styles and musical settings, including the concert stage, jazz clubs and cabaret shows. He has also appeared with the Ringling Brothers circus in Baltimore, Washington and Richmond.

Harris served four years in Air Force bands, including the last year of his tour as the bass player for the big band NORAD Commanders in Colorado Springs, CO.

In his daytime identity, Harris works for NASA at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, MD.

Drummer Stan McMullen is a native of Virginia, obtaining a music degree from James Madison University. While in school, McMullen served as the house session drummer for Alive Studios in Harrisonburg, VA, recording all styles, from West Virginia country to New York bebop. He has performed for a variety of events, including the 1978 and 1979 Miss Virginia pageants, and has served multiple stints with East Coast touring groups in the R&B and jazz fusions idioms.

Since relocating to the Washington, D.C. area in 1984, he has worked as a free-lance musician in live and session playing environments. Highlights include session work on the television program "America's Most Wanted" sound track, and live performances at the Kennedy Center and some of the Washington area's finest jazz clubs. He is currently a member of the Mark Brandt Group. They are planning the release of their first CD in 1994.

A reception follows the concert in the Guerrieri Center lounge.

For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Voice Student First In Competition

Evelyn Cook, a private voice student of Dr. Duane Karna placed first in her voice category (continuing education level) at the Maryland/District of Columbia NATS Student Auditions sponsored by the National Association of Teachers of Singing recently at American University in Washington, D.C.

Cook participated in the musical theater/continuing education category and is now eligible to participate in the regional NATS auditions held in April at James Madison University in Harrisburg, VA.

Cook grew up in southern New Jersey and sang in the New Jersey All-State Chorus for two years and was a member of the Haddonfield Choral Society. A graduate of Brevard College in North Carolina, she is currently working towards her elementary education major at SSU and is a soloist and choir member of both the Salisbury Choral Society and the Emmanuel Wesleyan Church Choir. Other voice students of Karna participating in the state audition were Amy Whiting (Delmar), Dr. Lee May (Salisbury), Alison White (Millsboro, DE), Gina Marie Adamo (Salisbury) and Jennifer Wills (Salisbury). During the 1993 state auditions held at the University of Maryland Baltimore County, Wills, a music major at SSU, placed first in her category of sophomore college-level women.

New Student Experience Positions Available

A limited number of students are being hired to assist with the New Student Experience (testing, advising and registration) for new students and their families. Fall semester sophomores, juniors and seniors will be needed to work June 20-23, June 27-June 30 and July 6-7.

Applicants should be in good academic standing, involved with extracurricular and/or co-curricular activities, knowledgeable about programs, services/organizations on campus and articulate about SSU. A brief training program will be required.

Interested students should fill out an application at the Work Experience Office in the Administrative Services Building. Deadline for application is Saturday, April 16.

Waldron Presents Conference Session

Jerry Waldron, associate registrar, recently presented a session dealing with computer assisted academic advising at the SCT Student Information Systems (SIS) Users Conference in Anaheim, CA. It was a national users conference for institutions using Systems Computing Technology/Information Associates Corporation (SCT/IA) administrative computer software.

Waldron is also serving as the chair of the Student Records Advisory Team, representing SIS student records/registration users nationally to the software companies product development division.

Business Graduates Give Perdue School High Marks

"How satisfied are you with the education you received?" That's an important question to Dean Richard Bebee and the Perdue School of Business Alumni Association.

They survey their SSU business alumni annually to measure their reactions and track the school's performance from year to year. The answers they're getting are gratifying. Results of the latest poll indicate nearly 200 graduates who got their business degrees between 1973 and 1987 are extremely positive. When they look back at their education after years of business experience, they feel they were well prepared to meet the challenges and demands they faced.

Over 90 percent of these Perdue School of Business graduates agreed the quality of instruction was good, and their faculty were knowledgeable in their field and incorporated that knowledge into the classroom. They were equally positive about the breadth and depth of the business courses they took. Ninety percent felt their business studies had prepared them well for their careers. Four out of five said their Perdue School education made them competitive with graduates of other business schools.

"These are the kinds of results a business dean loves to see, but there's still plenty of work to be done," Bebee commented. "We're going to continue our drive to integrate an international business perspective into every course, broaden and extend our coverage of social, ethical and environmental business issues, and intensify computer applications even more throughout the entire business curriculum."

The alumni reactions show the Perdue School of Business has a successful performance history on which to base Bebee's agenda for the future. Encouraged by the positive feedback from their former students, the business faculty and staff are also looking forward to the challenge of the future.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The men's lacrosse team, ranked second in the nation, ran its regular season win streak to 30 straight with a 20-10 defeat of Franklin & Marshall last Saturday. Sophomore Jason Coffman tallied seven goals and four assists to lead the offense. Sean Radebaugh added four goals and Mike Orton and Paul Smith each scored twice.

The Gulls take to the road for games against Randolph-Macon and Guilford before returning home to face Greensboro on April 9.

The women's lacrosse team improved to 4-2 with a 12-9 win over Ithaca last weekend. Candice Blanchette and Crissy Fellona each scored four goals to pace the Gulls, who rallied from a 6-5 halftime deficit. Freshman Susan Fatz added three goals for SSU, while goalie Shawna Block made eight saves. The Sea Gulls return to action on April 9 at home against Goucher.

The baseball team began its five-game spring break trip with a 7-5 win at Hampden-Sydney last Saturday. Jerry Nicklow's solo homer in the eighth, his first dinger of the year, snapped a 5-5 deadlock. Pat Facht picked up his third win of the season in relief, hurling two-hit ball over the final 3 and 2/3 innings. The Gulls (6-7 overall) were rained out at Lynchburg on Sunday, but finish the road trip with games at Guilford, Methodist and Christopher Newport.

The softball team takes a 5-5 record into its spring break. SSU split a twinbill with Stockton State last Saturday, capturing the first game 9-2 before dropping the nightcap 6-4. Freshman Tracy Layfield pitched a complete game three hitter in winning the opener. She also knocked in three runs with a bases loaded triple.

Trailing 4-1 in the second game, the Gulls nearly rallied for the sweep. RBI hits by Jen Bowman and Becky Keller tied the game in the bottom of the seventh, but Stockton scored twice in the eighth for the win.

The track team needed just one day of competition to earn its first qualifier for the 1994 NCAA Outdoor Championships in May. Freshman Stacie Gado, in her first collegiate throw, registered a distance of 134'9" in the javelin at the Battleground Relays, surpassing the required qualifying mark by three inches. Other SSU highlights included a new school record in the women's 4 x 200 relay, and a second place finish by the men's 4 x 200 relay squad.

WSCL Broadcasts Othello on April 2

Giuseppe Verdi's Othello will be broadcast live from the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday, April 2, at 1:30 p.m. on WSCL (89.5 FM).

Plácido Domingo sings the title role, with Carol Vaness as Desdemona, Sergei Leiferkus as Iago and Paul Plishka as Lodovico. Russian conductor Valery Gergiev makes his Texaco-Metropolitan Opera broadcast debut leading the work. The season's new production (which had its premiere last month with the same cast as the broadcast) is by Elijah Moshinsky, the sets are designed by Michael Yeargan, the costumes by Peter J. Hall, and the lighting by Duane Schuler. The announcer for the broadcast is Peter Allen.

Multimedia Presentation-Program for SSU/UMES Faculty

Dr. Fred Hofstetter, professor and director of the University of Delaware's Instructional Technology Center, presents "PODIUM," a presentation program which lets teachers create multimedia lesson plans, on Saturday, April 23, starting at 9 a.m. in Fulton Hall, Room 111.

PODIUM can call up full-motion video, stereo sound, maps, slides, charts, pictures and text at precisely the right moment during a class. Hofstetter says that anyone who can edit text can learn how to operate PODIUM by simply using a text editor to put in lesson plans. PODIUM automatically creates a hypermedia environment with navigation options that give the presenter instant access to tens of thousands of slides, audio clips and movies.

Hofstetter is a specialist in multimedia computing for music composition, desktop publishing, interactive video, digital television, compact disc, computer-based instruction and classroom media projection. He authored the GUIDO "Ear Training Lessons," "Making Music on Micros," "Computer Literacy for Musicians" and the just released Wadsworth book Multimedia Presentation Technology. A recipient of many grants and awards Hofstetter is the principal investigator of the "Videodisc Music Series" funded by the National Endowment for the Humanities and winner of a gold

CINDY Award.

He founded the Association for Technology in Music Instruction and has published in the Journal of Computer-Based Instruction, Journal of Research in Music Education, College Music Symposium, Music Educator Journal, Electronic Learning, Creative Computing, Technological Horizons in Education, Tech Trends and Academic Computing. He has presented lectures and workshops in Europe, Africa, Australia, Canada, the United States and the Pacific Rim.

Hostetter's presentation is funded by a grant obtained by Dr. Gene White of SSU and Dr. Sally Bing of UMES. As part of the April 23 presentation, Bing will demonstrate how she applied PODIUM to create a lesson for her introduction to psychology class. Faculty will have an opportunity to explore how they can use multimedia in their classroom presentations and individually or in groups work on projects in Instructional Media's multimedia design area. Sign-up sheets will be available for July and August project proposals using PODIUM and other multimedia packages.

Register early for the program which formally introduces an exciting new approach to classroom presentation at SSU. Questions about the day's program can be directed to Mary Gillespie at 543-6232.

From SUMMER ARTS, page 1

The two-week summer program is open to students throughout Maryland, as well as out-of-state. They need not be in gifted and talented classes to apply. Instead, applicants are selected following an audition/interview.

The SSU classes are for children entering grades six through nine in the fall. Participants choose a curriculum in either chorus, dance, drawing and painting, experimental photography, music technology, orchestra, printmaking, sculpture and clay, or theatre. From July 31-August 13 they live on campus in residence halls under the supervision of a college counselor. Classes, taught by arts professionals and University professors, average 12 students. Individual attention, critical and creative thinking, and the sense of living in an artists' community are all emphasized.

The cost, which includes room, board and instruction for two weeks, is $375 for Maryland residents, $650 for out-of-state students. Scholarships are available.

The deadline for application is April 29. To receive a brochure and application write Linda Shipp, Maryland Summer Center for the Arts, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Ave., Salisbury, MD 21801, or call 543-6387. Minorities and children with disabilities are encouraged to apply.

Talking With...Examines Women's Lives

Four unique women whose take on life is out of the ordinary come alive in the SSU production of Talking With... by Jane Martin.

This one-woman show by senior communication arts major Amy Black is Friday-Saturday, April 15-16, at 8 p.m., and Sunday, April 17, at 2 p.m. in Fulton Hall Theatre. Admission is free to the 50-minute play.

Talking With... was first presented by the Actors Theatre of Louisville in 1982 and later transferred to the Manhattan Theatre Club in New York, where it received favorable reviews.

Originally a two-act production with 11 monologues by 11 different actresses, Black has selected four of the most varied for her solo work. She portrays three generations of women: a majorette, an out-of-work actress, a formerly boring housewife and an old woman who wants to live in McDonald's.

Amy Black

"These are all fabulous roles," said Black. "The characters are not your average, normal woman in our world." Although Martin's writing is comic more often than not, the stories include serious adult themes, and some may not be suitable for children, she added.

Black was last seen on stage as Annie Sullivan in The Miracle Worker. She also appeared as Anybodys in West Side Story, Grandma in The Grapes of Wrath and Lisa in Boy's Life. She has the featured role of Susan Johnston, Heidi's best friend, in the upcoming production of The Heidi Chronicles in May at SSU. Black's one-woman show is part of an independent study in performance taught by Dr. Robert Wesley. Technical director is Anne Downey and stage manager is Lee Stanford. The production is sponsored by the Department of Communication Arts. For more information call 543-6030.

Condition of Schools In America Examined

Dr. Gerald Bracey, an expert at interpreting school-related data, discusses "The Greatly Exaggerated Death of Our Schools" on Wednesday, April 27.

Bracey's presentation, part of the spring lecture series "Issues and Challenges: Preparing for Life in the 21st Century," is at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Free and open to the public, the lecture is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

Bracey's talk examines what the data really say about the condition of American schools.

"While there are serious problems in American schools," said Bracey, "especially in inner city and poor rural schools," the schools as a whole are functioning better than ever. Given the deterioration in other social institutions, this performance is quite remarkable.

"Data to corroborate this allegation will come from trends in SAT scores, achievement test scores and educational attainment," said Bracey, "as well as a reexamination of international comparisons in mathematics, science and reading."

Bracey is recognized as a pioneer in the area of alternative assessment has written numerous articles on the subject. He conducted a series of alternative assessment workshops in 1990 in various Colorado cities for the Colorado Association of School Executives.

Bracey also maintains an active interest in the use of information technology in education. He serves on the national advisory committee of the Hague-based Second International Study of Computer Use in Education and is a member of The Mecklenburger Group, a nationwide group of a dozen technology-oriented educator-consultants.

For the last nine years, Bracey has

PSAC Update: Parking Fee and Sidewalks

The President's Staff Advisory Council (PSAC) met recently with Dr. Bellavance and Richard Pusey, director of business and finance, to discuss concerns or questions raised by staff. Highlights of these discussions are published in the SSU News to keep staff informed. The full minutes of the meetings are on reserve at Blackwell Library.

"The parking fee was doubled this year when we have not seen a salary increase in three years. There was no communication with us as to why the fee was doubled."

Pusey indicated that all of the UMS campuses had to return money to the UMS. SSU's budget from the state only represents about 37 percent of our total budget. The University had to raise the rest. The additional money generated from the parking fee increase was used as part of the money returned to the UMS. PSAC members indicated that if the campus had been notified as to the need for the increase, the campus community would probably have been a lot less resentful about it.

"Installing brick sidewalks when employees have had no raises seems like an extravagance and has upset many employees."

Dr. Bellavance indicated that the sidewalks had to be replaced anyway. He wanted brick sidewalks for aesthetic reasons and stressed the importance of how the campus looks in terms of recruiting students, faculty and staff.

Members of the PSAC are Linda Abresch, Dennis Bradford, Lesley Dayton, Jackie Eberts, Bob Meigel, Jerry Waldron and Jeanette Wolinski. Abresch and Waldron also represent SSU on the Council of University System Staff. Staff who have questions or concerns related to either campus or system policy may contact any PSAC member.

Attention May 1994 Graduates

Because of the increasing number of graduates, and the seating capacity of the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, the University Graduation Committee issues tickets for guests attending each graduation ceremony. Tickets were first issued for the December 1992 graduation.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets.

Please note the following dates and deadlines:

April 26-29 Pick up caps, gowns, announcements and tickets at the graduation center in the Book Rack. Students who are not able to pick up their graduation items because they are student teaching outside the area or otherwise not on campus may contact

Nancy Watson or Lisa Gray at the Book Rack (543-6085) to make special arrangements. Please return any tickets not needed to the Guerrieri University Center information desk.

May 18-27 If extra guest tickets do become available they will be distributed at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first come, first served basis. During this time do not anticipate more than one ticket per graduate.

May 28 Graduation exercises are at 10 a.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

More information on the foregoing will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the newsletter, Flyer and MAX for details.

Swim Lessons Offered for Children

SSU offers a swimming program for small group lessons for children starting Saturday, April 23. Classes are limited to four children per group. Classes are 40 minutes and taught by a certified instructor.

Register for classes at the Cashier's Office in Holloway Hall. Please indicate age and approximate skill level when signing up. Minimum age is 4 years.

The cost for five classes is $25. Classes are on April 23 and 30 and May 7, 14 and 21. Times are 8:20-9 a.m., 9:10-9:45 a.m. and 9:50-10:25 a.m. There is a limit of 16 children per time.

For more information call Dr. Rosie Baretta at 543-6357.

Pi Gamma Mu Accepts Nominations

Pi Gamma Mu, the international honor society in the social sciences, is accepting nominations for initiation into the prestigious society. The requirements for membership are as follows: is a junior, senior or graduate student in the upper 35 percent of the class; has at least 21 semester hours in one or more of the five core areas (history, political science, economics, sociology/anthropology, international relations); is in some other social science disciplines such as social psychology, criminal justice or human geography; and has a grade psychology, criminal justice or human geography, and has a grade point average of "B" or better.

Students who meet those qualifications please contact Dr. Greg Ference, Dr. Clara Small or the History Department Office by Friday, April 15.

Radical Environmentalist Lectures Here April 19

Dave Foreman, co-founder of the radical environmental organization Earth First!, gives a lecture and slide presentation titled "In Defense of the Wild" on Tuesday, April 19, at 7:30 p.m.

Foreman's presentation, free and open to the public, is in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

In his lecture Foreman argues that human beings are causing massive changes in the biosphere of the planet and that our activities have become a threat to the very process of evolution, citing that "we may lose one third of all species in the next 40 years." He says that we need to devise a new relationship between ourselves and the natural world. He also proposes a diverse array of approaches and tools to use in defense of biodiversity.

For more information please call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Maryland State Nursing Applications

Applications for the State Nursing Scholarship are available in the Financial Aid Office (Holloway Hall, Room 243).

Applicants must have a cumulative GPA of a 3.0, be a Maryland resident, be enrolled in a program leading to a nursing degree or diploma and be enrolled for at least six credit hours per semester.

Awards can be up to $2,400 per academic year. Recipients must serve as a nurse on a full-time basis one year for every year they receive assistance. Application deadline is June 30.

World Watch Researcher Discusses Environmentally Sound Economy

"Environmental trends are now shaping the evolution of the global economy," according to State of the World 1993, the 10th annual assessment of the world's condition by the Washington, D.C. based Worldwatch Institute.

"Efforts to protect the ozone layer, conserve biodiversity and stabilize the climate will affect virtually all industries and open unprecedented business opportunities in the next decade," said one of the study's authors, Christopher Flavin, vice president for research at Worldwatch Institute.

Flavin discusses that report and its implications when he lectures on Wednesday, April 13, about "Saving the Planet: How to Shape an Environmentally Sustainable Global Economy."

Flavin's presentation, part of the spring lecture series "Issues and Challenges: Preparing for Life in the 21st Century," is at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Free and open to the public, the lecture is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

For more information about Flavin's presentation or a complete listing of all lectures and cultural events at Salisbury State this spring please call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Salisbury State and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore recently held a social for faculty from both campuses to meet and share their thoughts and ideas on their respective institutions. Some 100 faculty from SSU and UMES attended the function. Pictured (left to right) are: Dr. Gerald Johnson, chair of the Department of Fine Arts at UMES; Dr. Philip Luft, associate professor of mathematics at SSU; and Dr. Richard Johnson, chair of the SSU Department of Music.

Valorie Gilbert Active in World Population Issues

Valorie Gilbert, an instructor of biology, recently participated in the development of the Tampa Declaration, the United States position on world population issues.

The Tampa Declaration, which urges universal availability and accessibility to family planning by the year 2000, was developed by representatives of non-governmental agencies. The U.S. position will be presented at a United Nations meeting on world populations issues in Cairo, Egypt in September, with approximately 190 nations participating.

"The primary goal of the 1994 International Conference on Population and Development (ICPD) should be to provide the services needed to achieve population stabilization at the lowest level possible," stated the Tampa Declaration.

"Only through the realization of (universal availability and accessibility of family planning by the year 2000) can there be an equitable balance between the world's human numbers and a diverse and healthy biosphere capable of sustaining future generations with a reasonable quality of life. We believe that major emphasis in each country on the empowerment of women and gender equality will hasten achievement of this goal."

The world's population is 5.6 billion, growing by nearly 100 million each year and is on course to double in less than 40 years.

"In its Amsterdam Declaration," stated the Tampa Declaration, which was signed by Valorie Gilbert and her husband Joseph Gilbert, vice president of administration, "the International Forum on Population and Development composed of experts from 79 countries called for a doubling of international family planning expenditures from $4.5 billion to $9 billion annually by the end of the century. The current United States government administration has pledged to meet its share of this cost; the ICPD declaration should call on all government to meet their share of the project."

To obtain a copy of the Tampa Declaration call Valorie Gilbert at 543-6494.

Puccini's Tosca Airs On WSCL

Giacomo Puccini's Tosca will be broadcast live from the Metropolitan Opera House on Saturday, April 16, at 1:30 p.m. on WSCL (89.5 FM).

Maria Guleghina sings the title role, with Luciano Pavarotti as Cavaradossi, James Morris as Scarpia and Christian Badea conducting. The announcer for the broadcast is Peter Allen.

During the first intermission Anthony Tommasini, writer of musical criticism for the Boston Globe, discusses "Tosca, Not a Shabby Little Shocker." Edward Downes is quizmaster for "Texaco's Opera Quiz," heard during the second intermission with panelists Thor Eckert, Jr., a critic, lecturer and record reviewer; Stuart Hamilton, artistic director and founder of Toronto's "Opera in Concert" series; and Patrick Smith, editor of Opera News magazine.

Hate Speech Panel Discussion Set

"You Can't Say That...Can You?," a discussion of hate speech is on Wednesday, April 12, at 8:30 p.m. in the Guerrieri University Center, Nanticoke Room A.

Peer Educators for Diversity Awareness is sponsoring a panel and group discussion on the topic of hate speech on a college campus.

What is covered under the First Amendment rights? Who decides? What do you do with a person who steps over the line? How do you deal with groups who are offended by comments not covered by hate speech policy? These questions and more will be covered by panelists representing different points of view regarding their feelings on hate speech.

All members of the campus community are encouraged to attend.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

For the first time in recent years, the women's lacrosse team has cracked the national rankings. The Sea Gulls stand seventh in latest BRINE/IWLCA Division III poll, released on March 29. SSU is 4-2 on the season, and plays again on Saturday against Goucher.

The men's team, meanwhile, continues to hold its number two ranking in the men's poll. SSU is now 8-0 overall following a pair of lopsided wins during spring break. The Sea Gulls crushed Randolph-Macon and Guilford by similar 27-3 scores last week. Salisbury hosts Greensboro College on Saturday.

The baseball team returned from its spring trip with a 7-8 record. The Gulls closed their trip through the South with a bang, registering a 21-9 victory over Christopher Newport. Mike Franklin (two-run shot) and Ed Stephen (grand slam) delivered homers in the game. SSU resumes play on Saturday with a visit to St. Mary's.

The men's tennis team won one of three matches played during its spring trip, defeating Carnegie-Mellon but losing at Methodist and UNC, Wilmington. Bobby August (6-1) and Ben Gibson (5-1) suffered their first singles losses of the season against Wilmington. SSU has three matches this week.

The softball team ends a two-week layoff this Saturday when it visits Mary Washington. The Gulls, 5-5 overall, last played on March 26, splitting a double-header with Richard Stockton College.

The men's and women's track teams host their first home meet of the season next Wednesday, April 13. The Sea Gulls will welcome Columbia Union for a dual meet beginning at 3 p.m.

Faculty Housewarming Pot Party

The faculty pot party and housewarming date for the new kiln facility has been set for Wednesday, April 27 (rain date Wednesday, May 4). The new kiln facility is located northeast of Fulton Hall adjacent to the tennis courts. Faculty and staff are invited to participate firing pottery in the traditional raku fashion. There will be artworks available for sale with proceeds going to the Art Scholarship Fund.

Disabled Student Issues Workshop

PROUD (Progressively Reaching Out To Understand Disabilities), a student organization, in conjunction with the Dean of Students Office is sponsoring a faculty sensitivity workshop relative to disabled student issues on Tuesday, April 12. The workshop is from 1-3:30 p.m. in room Nanticoke A of the Guerrieri University Center.

Peggy Hayeslip, director of special services for Essex Community College, is the presenter. She has many years of experience in the field and comes highly recommended. Some of the areas she will address follow: teaching strategies for faculty; American Disabilities Act and its application to the classroom; coping techniques for the disabled; simulation activities; and classroom accommodations for the physically and learning disabled student.

Hayeslip will also be available to address specific concerns and issues. This event is free and open to the public. For more information, please call the Dean of Students Office at 543-6080.

written monthly columns on educational and psychological research for the periodicals Phi Delta Kappan and Electronic Learning.

In recent years Bracey has become known as a policy analyst as well as a researcher and writer. His work in this area—"Why Can't They Be Like We Were?"—drew the attention of The New York Times, The Washington Post, Education Week and USA Today, as well as the wrath of the Bush Department of Education. "The Second Bracey Report" on the Condition of Public Education was featured in a long interview on National Public Radio's Morning Edition. "The Third Bracey Report" occasioned a number of speaking engagements around the country.

After serving as research psychologist in the early education research group at Educational Testing Service, Bracey became the associate director of the Institute for Child Study at Indiana University in Bloomington. In 1965 and 1966 Bracey spent a year abroad, living in Hong Kong and traveling widely in Southeast Asia, the Middle East and Europe, then returning to finish his doctorate.

Since then, he had held a strong desire to travel without itinerary until the money ran out. In 1973 he resigned his position at Indiana and made the wished-for sojourn for a period of four years. Returning to his native Virginia, he became the director of research, evaluation and testing for the Virginia Department of education and five years later, moved to a similar position at Cherry Creek School District near Denver.

Bracey is a native of Williamsburg, VA and attended the College of William and Mary there as an undergraduate, before going on to obtain a Ph.D. in psychology from Stanford University.

For more information about Bracey's presentation or a listing of all lectures and cultural events at Salisbury State this spring, please call the SSU Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Dr. Bellavance recently gave a framed letter from President Clinton congratulating Salisbury State on being selected as one of 105 colleges and universities chosen to be a part of the Federal Direct Student Loan Program to Beverly Horner, director of financial aid. The new federal loan program is expected to save taxpayers money by giving students a more generous repayment schedule that should lower the default rate. The program starts with the 1994-95 academic year. Horner played a pivotal role in securing the program for SSU students.

Habitat Auction Begins, Bargains Galore

A silent auction to raise funds for SSU's Habitat for Humanity project begins Monday, April 4, and runs through Friday, April 22.

Items to bid on include gift certificates (Giant Food, The Athlete, La Roma, Salisbury Cleaners, Adam's Ribs, Nacho Pete's, etc.), savings bonds, posters, paintings, tickets to an Orioles game and a NASCAR event, fuel oil, CDs, cakes and much more. Need a lacrosse stick, check the auction booklet. Need a bat house emblazoned with the Orioles logo, get an auction booklet. There's even a Honda mulching mower available.

Well over 120 items have been donated ranging in value from $5 to $950. The beginning bid on most items is half its retail value, ensuring some great bargains.

To get a copy of the Habitat auction booklet call the Public Relations Office. Bidding and post-auction instructions are in the booklet. After an initial bid is placed on an item, the subsequent bid must be at least 10 percent higher. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Human Aging Course Offered

Do you plan on getting old? Do you know someone who is? Do you want to know what happens and what to do about it? Then register for Biology of Human Aging.

Biology of Human Aging (Biol. 219) will be offered in the fall semester. This three credit course is designed for students who have a interest in the aging process or who plan to pursue careers where knowledge of the physical changes occurring in older adults may be important. Examples include careers in health care, sociology, social work, recreation, education, and psychology. Though the course is designed for non-biology majors, either Biology 101 or Biology 215 and 216 are prerequisites.

Biology of Human Aging will concentrate on what happens as people grow older, and will carefully distinguish between inevitable age changes and avoidable abnormal and disease changes. Some common abnormal and disease conditions will also be explored. Other topics will include the reasons and methods for studying aging and the interrelationships between biological age changes and other types of changes, such as psychological, social, and economic changes. The text for the course was written by Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna, the instructor for the course, and is entitled Human Aging: Biological Perspectives.

This course can apply towards a minor in biology, and it is required for a minor in gerontology. It does not satisfy General Education requirements.

Methods Courses Admissions Outlined

As preregistration approaches, please remember that in order to take methods classes education students must apply to the Professional Teacher Education Program.

The requirements for admission to the program are as follows: completed application (available in Caruthers Hall, Room 148); overall GPA of 2.5 including transfer courses, GPA of 2.75 in academic major (secondary majors only); grades of C or better in English 101 and 103, CMAT 250, Education 300 and 305, Math 103 (ELED majors only); and passing scores on the general knowledge and communications skills tests of the National Teachers Exam (NTE).

Unless students meet all of these requirements they may not register for methods classes. Please be aware that waivers are not granted.

Applications are available in the Department of Education, Caruthers Hall, Room 148. The applications must be turned in to one's advisor during preregistration. Failure to do so results in students being dropped from any methods classes for which enrolled.

Students should see their advisor for further information.

New Student Experience Positions Available

A limited number of students are being hired to assist with the New Student Experience (testing, advising and registration) for new students and their families. Fall semester sophomores, juniors and seniors will be needed to work June 20-23, June 27-June 30 and July 6-7.

Applicants should be in good academic standing, involved with extracurricular and/or co-curricular activities, knowledgeable about programs, services/organizations on campus and articulate about SSU. A brief training program will be required.

Interested students should fill out an application at the Work Experience Office in the Administrative Services Building. Deadline for application is Saturday, April 16.

Larson Trio Presents Jazz Concert

The Robert Larson Trio presents a jazz concert on Sunday, April 17, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Free and open to the public, the event is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

The Robert Larson Trio performs jazz in the tradition of Bill Evers, Keith Jarrett and Tommy Flanagan, with modern influences such as Monty Alexander, Benny Green, Chick Corea and Herbie Hancock. Each member of the group contributes significant ideas to form the finished product, and the collective improvisation explored by Evans 30 years ago is a goal sought by these musicians as well. Original pieces, as well as great jazz compositions by Duke Ellington, Thelonious Monk, Evans and others, make up the trio's repertoire. Well-loved standards by composers such as Cole Porter and George Gershwin are also performed.

A reception follows the concert in the Guerrieri Center lounge.

For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Multimedia Presentation For SSU/UMES Faculty

Dr. Fred Hofstetter, professor and director of the University of Delaware's Instructional Technology Center, presents "PODIUM," a presentation program which lets teachers create multimedia lesson plans, on Saturday, April 23, starting at 9 a.m. in Fulton Hall, Room 111.

PODIUM can call up full-motion video, stereo sound, maps, slides, charts, pictures and text at precisely the right moment during a class. Hofstetter says that anyone who can edit text can learn how to operate PODIUM by simply using a text editor to put in lesson plans.

PODIUM automatically creates a hypermedia environment with navigation options that give the presenter instant access to tens of thousands of slides, audio clips and movies.

Register early for the program which formally introduces an exciting new approach to classroom presentation at SSU. Questions about the day's program can be directed to Mary Gillespie at 543-6232.

Guest Choreographers Add Luster To Spring Dance Concert

The re-creation of two early 20th century modern dances and an 1895 classical ballet give an historic sheen to SSU's Spring Dance Concert.

This year's performance features the work of three guest choreographers. Two, Ed Groff and Suzanne Nece, hold prestigious awards from the American College Dance Festival Association (ACDFA); their works were performed at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

The trio is rounded out by Salisbury's own Mary Norton who has been a soloist with the Delaware Regional Ballet.

"I am delighted choreographers of this caliber are working with our students to present dance for Eastern Shore audiences," said Victoria Hutchinson, Dance Company director.

The one-hour concert is Wednesday, April 27, and Friday and Saturday, April 29-30, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Eight dances will be performed.

The Furies, choreographed by Isadora Duncan in 1906 to music from Orfeo and Eurydice by Gluck, was first staged by Groff under the direction of Gemze de Lappe, one of a handful of authentically trained Duncan dancers who has been responsible for keeping Duncan's dances in repertory. A renowned movement analyst, dance educator and ACDFA board member, Groff has presented dance works, taught and spoken at conferences in Seattle, Boston, New York, Rotterdam, Berlin, Hong Kong, Tokyo, Lausanne, Prague and Berlin. He is an assistant professor at Temple University where he coordinates its Bachelor of Fine Arts program in dance.

New York City choreographer Nece premieres The Scattering, a large group work based on an athletic blend of modern, hip hop and urban street dance styles. A magna cum laude graduate in dance from Virginia Commonwealth University, Nece has presented in North Carolina, Texas and New York City. Her credits there include the original one-act, Pearl, performed at the Village Gate Theater, Judson Memorial Church and Brooklyn's Downtown Cafe Choreographer's Showcase.

Norton presents Tchaikovsky Waltz from Act I of Swan Lake (1895). Choreographed in the romantic style and manner of Marius Petipa, the "father" of classical ballet, Waltz honors the 100th anniversary of composer Tchaikovsky's death. Norton began her ballet training at age three under the tutelage of LaNada Strom and currently teaches ballet at SSU and the Business School Receives AACSB Accreditation For Undergraduate and Graduate Programs

The Perdue School of Business officially joined the ranks of the nation's premier business schools. The University was notified that the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) voted accreditation to both the undergraduate and graduate divisions of the Perdue School.

Out of more than 1800 business programs throughout the country, only 273 have such accreditation, according to Dr. Richard F. Bebee, Perdue School dean.

"To earn accreditation of both undergraduate and graduate programs at the same time is a major accomplishment--and very difficult to do," said SSU President Thomas E. Bellavance. In Maryland only the University of Maryland College Park, University of Baltimore and Loyola College have both accredited graduate and undergraduate programs.

AACSB approval culminates a strenuous effort by both Salisbury State's business faculty and University administration, an effort which has literally spanned years. "They achieved excellence the old-fashioned way--they earned it," Bellavance said. "And as the name of SSU's business school indicates, we have Frank Perdue's generous endowment to thank for the phenomenal success of the Perdue School of Business. Without that we would not be awarded national accreditation."

In 1986 poultry magnate and SSU alumnus Perdue endowed the school for $2.5 million, providing resources needed to compete, expand programs and qualify for accreditation. Today the Perdue School has some 1,000 students studying for bachelor's degrees in accounting, business administration, economics and information systems management. Over 100 graduate students study in the Master of Business

It's 'Anchors Aweigh' for Four Nursing Students

Despite military draw-downs and cutbacks, four Salisbury State students have head starts on their careers in the Navy. The nursing students, all members of the class of '95, have earned four of the only 100 scholarships being offered nationwide by the U.S. Navy.

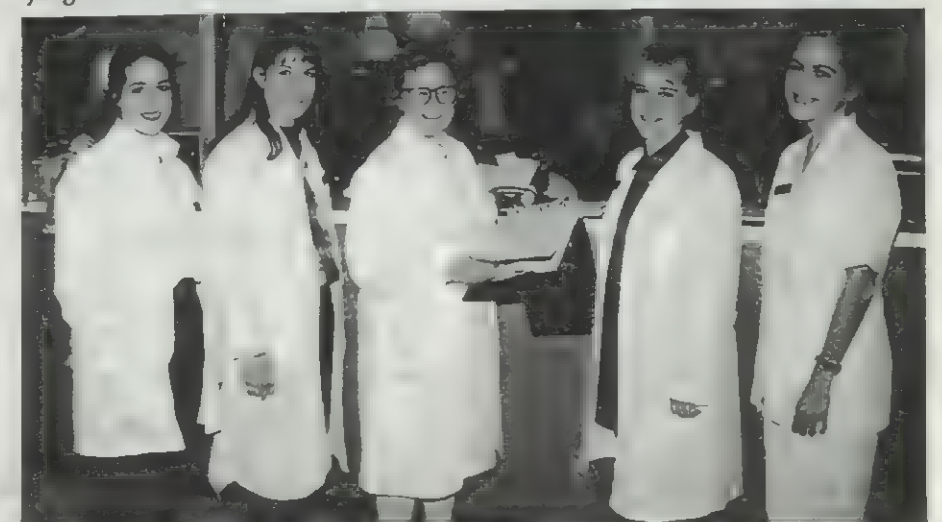

Commander Pam Heim recruited three of the students and says that she is impressed with how well SSU students have done in the program. In an effort to bring young professionals into the service, the Navy offers two-year stipends to students working toward degrees in nursing, pharmacy, physical therapy and law, among other fields. With a limited number of scholarships available, competition can be tough. The four SSU women not only excelled academically but physically; they also have participated in extracurricular activities that demonstrated to the Navy judges their well-rounded characters.

Each of the four women describes feeling both excited and anxious about entering the military.

Tammy Young, of Fallston, MD, is already getting a glimpse of military life. The terms of her scholarship, even more competitive than the one her three classmates have earned, place her on active duty. For now, the Navy has assigned her to SSU, to complete work on her nursing degree. She also attends monthly meetings at the recruitment office in Hyattsville.

A junior in college, she is now receiving benefits now that most students have yet to worry about. "Because of this program, my education is paid for," she said. "And I have medical and dental insurance." With these bases covered, the questions on her mind now are about how well she will do. Like most students

SSU offers a swimming program for small group lessons for children starting Saturday, April 23. Classes are limited to four children per group. Classes are 40 minutes and taught by a certified instructor.

Register for classes at the Cashier's Office in Holloway Hall. Please indicate age and approximate skill level when signing up. Minimum age is 4 years.

The cost for five classes is $25. Classes are on April 23 and 30 and May 7, 14 and 21. Times are 8:20-9 a.m., 9:10-9:45 a.m. and 9:50-10:25 a.m. There is a limit of 16 children per time.

For more information call Dr. Rosie Baretta at 543-6357.

Attention May 1994 Graduates

Because of the increasing number of graduates, and the seating capacity of the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, the University Graduation Committee issues tickets for guests attending each graduation ceremony. Tickets were first issued for the December 1992 graduation.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets.

Please note the following dates and deadlines:

April 26-29 Pick up caps, gowns, announcements and tickets at the graduation center in the Book Rack. Students who are not able to pick up their graduation items because they are student teaching outside the area or otherwise not on campus may contact

Nancy Watson or Lisa Gray at the Book Rack (543-6085) to make special arrangements. Please return any tickets not needed to the Guerrieri University Center information desk.

May 18-27 If extra guest tickets do become available they will be distributed at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first come, first served basis. During this time do not anticipate more than one ticket per graduate.

May 28 Graduation exercises are at 10 a.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

More information on the foregoing will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the newsletter, Flyer and MAX for details.

Condition of Schools in America Examined

Dr. Gerald Bracey, an expert at interpreting school-related data, discusses "The Greatly Exaggerated Death of Our Schools" on Wednesday, April 27.

Bracey's presentation, part of the spring lecture series "Issues and Challenges: Preparing for Life in the 21st Century," is at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Free and open to the public, the lecture is sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee.

Bracey's talk examines what the data really say about the condition of American schools.

"While there are serious problems in American schools," said Bracey, "especially in inner city and poor rural schools," the schools as a whole are functioning better than ever. Given the deterioration in other social institutions, this performance is quite remarkable.

"Data to corroborate this allegation will come from trends in SAT scores, achievement test scores and educational attainment," said Bracey, "as well as a reexamination of international comparisons in mathematics, science and reading."

Teaching Committee Sets April Meetings

The Ad Hoc Committee on Teaching meets April 15, 22 and 29 in the Fulton Hall Dean's Conference Room from 1:15-2:10 p.m. All are welcome to attend.

Talking With... Examines Women's Lives

Four unique women whose take on life is out of the ordinary come alive in the SSU production of Talking With... by Jane Martin.

This one-woman show by senior communication arts major Amy Black is Friday-Saturday, April 15-16, at 8 p.m., and Sunday, April 17, at 2 p.m. in Fulton Hall Theatre. Admission is free to the 50-minute play.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

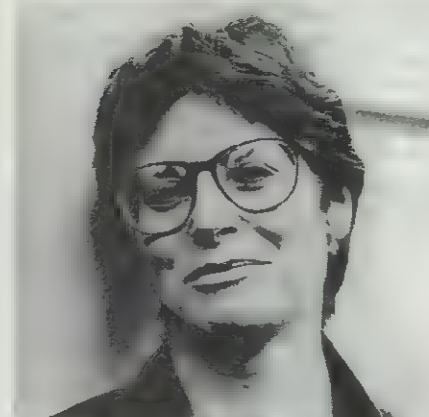

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

The Writers-on-the-Shore 1994 spring literary festival at SSU continues with a reading by poet Jan Freeman on Thursday, April 21, at 8 p.m. in Fulton Hall, Room 111. For more information about the series contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

SSU Fulbright Scholar Presents Paper In Romania

Jim Welsh, associate professor of English, who is currently serving as a Fulbright lecturer at the Alexandru I. Cuza University in Romania, was one of two presenters discussing "The Structure and Purpose of the American University System" at a meeting of the Teachers' Romanian-American Club, held at the Casa Corpului Didactic in the city of Jassy on March 18. His co-presenter was Dr. Bernard W. Klein, former chancellor of the University of Michigan at Dearborn who also once served as city manager in Detroit and is now teaching management on a Fulbright fellowship to Romania.

They described the American university system by drawing comparisons between the University of Michigan and the University of Maryland systems in terms of funding and structure and went on to explain the concept of general education requirements and faculty control over the curriculum. In Romania the curriculum and graduation requirements are established by the Ministry of Education, and are much more rigid. "In Romania university students are required to take 10 courses every semester and after their regular final examinations in their senior year are required to submit a 60-page senior thesis and then to pass a series of comprehensive examinations," Welsh said.

Welsh is teaching five classes of the fourth-year (senior) students specializing in English and other foreign languages. "The students and faculty here are more overworked than their counterparts in America," he observed, "but their dedication and their language skills are very impressive. Almost all university students in Romania are bi-lingual, and many of them are competent in English and French, as well as Romanian." Welsh will continue teaching at Cuza University through the spring term.

Gospel Choir Concert On April 16

On Saturday, April 16, the SSU Gospel Choir holds its 10th anniversary concert. The festivities begin in Caruthers Auditorium at 6 p.m.

In an attempt to bring something new to the campus, the concert consists solely of contemporary Gospel music. A special appearance will be made by the Delaware State Gospel Choir along with local choirs and soloists in the area. The concert is free and open to everyone.

Faculty Performances In Great Hall April 22

The SSU Development Committee invites the campus community to an evening of entertainment and conversation on Friday, April 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall. Come join the celebration and enjoy the talent of University faculty and staff.

The program includes Dr. Michael O'Loughlin, Irish and American folk and folk heroes; Dr. Ron Dotterer, Dr. Duane Karna and Dr. Ray Zeigler, trio; Dr. Ben Fusaro and Furahaa Saba, T'ai Chi and the Tao Te Ching; Dr. Ed Steffes, "Selections for Piano"; Dr. Polly Stewart, "More Mountain Songs"; and Dr. Paul Greacy, "Scot Rites for Bagpipe." The master of ceremonies is Dean DeFino.

Cost is $2 per person. Feel free to bring a guest.

Please purchase tickets from any member of the Faculty Development Committee: Dr. Elizabeth Curtin or Dr. Jeanne Whitney (Holloway Hall); Dr. Ben Fusaro (Power Building); Dr. Frances Kendall (Fulton Hall); and Dr. Mark Frana (Devilbliss Hall).

A reception follows in the Social Room with spirits, nonspirits, and hors d'oeuvres.

PSAC Discusses Pay Disparity Issues

The President's Staff Advisory Council (PSAC) has met recently with Dr. Bellavance and Richard Pusey, director of financial services, to discuss concerns or questions raised by staff. Highlights of these discussions are published in the SSU News to keep staff informed. The full minutes of the meetings are on reserve at Blackwell Library.

Some staff have stated that a disparity exists between the salaries of female and male staff performing the same or similar duties.

Pusey looked at everyone's salaries and asked those who are concerned to go to the Personnel Office or their supervisor. Males and females don't have to be paid the same dollar for dollar. Faculty and administrators have salary scales.

In recent years the starting salaries for new staff have risen with the labor market rate, while the salaries of experienced staff have remained frozen. In some cases, new staff now earn as much, or even more, than experienced staff performing similar or more complex duties.

Pusey went through the dates of hire and looked through employees and their particular grades. There was only one case that stood out. Those hired from 1990-93 are in the middle to lower-end of their scale. If there are others that he does not know about, please bring them to his attention.

Scholarship Available In Plant Science

The Sprig and Twig Garden Club of Dover is offering a $1,000 scholarship to a student residing on the Delmarva Peninsula. The purpose of the scholarship is to recognize excellence in ornamental horticulture, plant science and other related areas. Preference will be given to a student in his or her junior or senior year majoring in one of the above mentioned fields. Applications are due Friday, April 29. Applications are in the Financial Aid Office (Holloway Hall, Room 243).

Habitat Art Auction Set for April 23

The 1994 Habitat for Humanity Art Auction is on Saturday, April 23, in the Great Room of Holloway Hall on campus. The evening begins with refreshments at 6 p.m.

Silent auction items are provided for viewing and bidding interest. At 7 p.m. a live auction of paintings, provided by local artists, including several styles such as wildfowl, stills, modern, landscapes, impressionism and others follows.

Included are several hand-sculpted items provided by local artists and the Ward Waterfowl Museum. The proceeds from the evening will assist the University in its efforts to support the humanitarian work for Habitat for Humanity.

For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

'Love and Lust, A Christian Perspective'

The Newman Club has invited Martha Ogburn, a Christian family counselor from Salisbury, to give a lecture titled, "Love and Lust from the Christian Perspective."

Ogburn will present the traditional Christian view of sexuality and its proper role in a balanced, moral society. A clear statement of traditional Christian views will highlight how far modern American ideas about proper sexual conduct have changed in the last 30 years. Do society's new concepts about love and sex represent a liberation from oppressive regulations of the past, or do they simply lead to a life of strife and disappointment?

The Newman Club invites anyone interested in these issues to Ogburn's presentation and to discuss these issues following her speech.

The lecture and discussion are on Monday, April 18, from 8:30-10 p.m. in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Folklore, Education Analyzed at Meeting

On the weekend of April 29-May 1, the Middle Atlantic Folklife Association holds its annual meeting at Salisbury State University. Folklorists from throughout the mid-Atlantic region will gather for presentations and information-sharing on "Folklore and Education," the theme for this year's meeting.

The SSU Department of English and the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture are co-sponsors of the event.

The main sessions, on Saturday, April 30, begin at 9:15 a.m. in the Guerrieri University Center and end at 3:15 p.m. A fee of $6 will be assessed; scholarships are, however available.

For further information call Dr. Polly Stewart at 548-4241 by Thursday, April 21.

Soroptimist's Scholarship For Education Majors

Applications for the Anne Matthews Scholarship are in the Financial Aid Office (Holloway Hall, Room 243). An award of $1,000 will be given to a woman, Wicomico County resident, preparing for a vocation in the field of education. Applications are due on or before Tuesday, May 10.

African American Heritage Festival

Planning is underway for the third annual African American Heritage Festival on Sunday, September 11, at Shad Landing in the Pocomoke River State Forest and Park.

The day begins with an 8 a.m. service, Rev. Harvey Chase of Cambridge speaking, followed by a "Rev. Charles A. Tindley Riverside Breakfast" from 9:30-11 a.m.

Gospel choirs are featured throughout the day, including the University of Maryland Eastern Shore Gospel Choir and the Ebenezer United Methodist Choir of Snow Hill. Storytelling, poetry and speakers focus on African-American themes. At 3 p.m. the Rev. Joe Henry of St. Michael is featured speaker.

Craft vendors offer a variety of unique items, including art, jewelry, clothing and gift items. Eastern Shore homestyle cooking, prepared by local churches and civic organizations, will be on sale.

To obtain more information or to receive a craft or food vending packet, call Gabe or Diana Purnell at 641-1988. Volunteers are needed as well.

Faculty Housewarming Pot Party April 27

The faculty pot party and housewarming date for the new kiln facility has been set for Wednesday, April 27 (rain date Wednesday, May 4). The new kiln facility is located northeast of Fulton Hall adjacent to the tennis courts. Faculty and staff are invited to participate firing pottery in the traditional raku fashion. There will be artworks available for sale with proceeds going to the Art Scholarship Fund.

New Student Experience Positions Available

A limited number of students are being hired to assist with the New Student Experience (testing, advising and registration) for new students and their families. Fall semester sophomores, juniors and seniors will be needed to work June 20-23, June 27-June 30 and July 6-7.

Applicants should be in good academic standing, involved with extracurricular and/or co-curricular activities, knowledgeable about programs, services/organizations on campus and articulate about SSU. A brief training program will be required.

Interested students should fill out an application at the Work Experience Office in the Administrative Services Building. Deadline for application is Saturday, April 16.

Physical Plant Hangs Banners

The Physical Plant will hang banners for campus organizations as long as the banner format is followed. Organizations must submit a banner form, available at the information desk or the Student Activities Office Guerrieri Center, Room 242A, and a work order to the Physical Plant 10 days prior to the hang up date. These forms ensure that the Physical Plant will put the banner up and take it down at the correct times.

For more information contact the Student Activities Office at 543-6125.

Network Manager

The Office of Computer Services seeks an individual to assume the duties of network manager.

Duties include serving as the focal point within computer services for all end-user network support. This includes acquisition, configuration, installation and maintenance of hardware and software supporting end-user access to the campus network. This individual will also be responsible for developing end-user training and documentation for network applications. This individual will be responsible for supervising support for the campuswide network, file servers and other distributed system activities.

Working knowledge of VMS, UNIX, MS-DOS and MAC OS is required. A thorough understanding of networking protocols including DECnet, LAT, TCP/IP, Pathworks and Novell as well as common microcomputer based application packages is required.

Minimum qualifications include a baccalaureate degree in computer science or a related field and three years applicable experience providing network hardware and software support to end-users. Individuals being selected for final consideration will be required to submit official college transcripts.

Salary is in the mid-30s, with an excellent benefits package.

Send letter of application, resume and names of three professional references to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Avenue, Salisbury, MD 21801. Screening of applications begins on April 25 and continues until the position is filled.

Lecturer Discusses Environmental Risks For Minorities

Since the mid-1980s, recognition has been growing that people of color in both urban and rural areas may be exposed to potentially much higher levels of environmental risks than the American population as a whole.

On Monday, April 18, at 7 p.m. Dr. Edwardo L. Rhodes discusses "Environmental Justice: New Challenges at the National and Local Levels." His talk is in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. Admission is free and the public is invited.

Rhodes is well-qualified to speak on environmental issues and social policy. He is visiting scholar at the Environmental Protection Agency's Office of Environmental Justice in Washington, D.C. He also is senior fellow at George Mason University's Institute of Public Policy and on faculty at the School of Public Environmental Affairs at Indiana University.

Rhodes points out that the potential risks to minority communities take several forms, including the increased likelihood of living closer to hazardous material disposal and treatment facilities and enduring a greater chance of exposure to environmental hazards such as lead poisoning.

Even more disturbing, while these conditions of risk have existed for quite some time, only within the last several years have the general public and political leadership begun to recognize their existence or place a high priority on addressing them.

Such conditions may be examples of racially motivated public and private decision making, i.e., "environmental racism," said Rhodes, or in the case of hazardous material disposal and treatment sites, they may be simply located in areas where the cost of land is low and where geology favors disposal. Thus conditions may not be racially motivated, but result from simple economic and physical forces.

The situation is complex and environmental issues in general have historically held a relatively low priority within the minority community while more pressing issues such as drugs, crime and unemployment have been in the forefront.

Regardless of historical reasons, "the fact remains that minority communities will probably continue to face exposure to increased risk," said Rhodes. What may be the most important issue to explore is what policy guidelines or steps can be taken to ensure that future decision-making is as equitable as possible and what minority and economically depressed communities can do to protect themselves.

For more information about Rhodes' presentation please call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Pfeiffer Writes, Stars in 'Sentimental Comedy'

The backstage and back-stabbing world of English Restoration Theatre comically comes alive as SSU presents An Apology for the Life of an Actor.

Performances of this one-man show about "Colley Cibber, Esq.," are Friday and Saturday, April 15-16, at 8 p.m. in the television studio of Caruthers Hall. Sponsored by the theatre program, admission is free. Because space is limited, however, patrons will be seated on a first-come, first-served basis.

Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer, director of University theatre, wrote this monodrama about one of the most famous personalities of the 18th century social scene. Cibber was born in London in 1671. Against his father's wishes he went into theatre but scored a major success only when he wrote his first play, which included the first good role for himself—the fop, Sir Novelty Fashion. Cibber rose to fame playing such fops and fools.

A shrewd businessman, he parlayed his earnings into a share of the Drury Lane Theatre, which he later sold at great profit.

Considered the father of "sentimental comedy," Cibber continued to both write and act. He cultivated a good nature and good social image, rising to the highest levels of English society. Lord Chesterfield, the most famous conversationalist of the age, was among his closest friends. Cibber's loyalty to the Hanoverian monarchy was ultimately rewarded by his appointment as Poet Laureate of England.

Cibber's many detractors, however, found him both fatuous and false. Among them were poet and satirist,

Dr. T. Paul Pfeiffer as Colley Cibber, Esq.

Alexander Pope, his most biting critic.

"The play recreates the feeling of life in London society at that time through the eyes of a very funny English actor," said Pfeiffer. "When he died in 1757 a remarkable period in English theatre history came to an end."

This is an encore performance for Pfeiffer, who first premiered Apology in the spring of 1992 at SSU. A shortened version of the play also has been presented at Union College in Cincinnati.

Administration program. The business school's physical plant, which underwent a multimillion dollar renovation in 1990, is housed in the north and east wings of Holloway Hall, a campus landmark.

In 1992 the Initial Accreditation Committee of the AACSB visited the Eastern Shore campus. According to Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs, the AACSB was impressed by several aspects of the business school and of the University. "Our facilities, programs, the quality of our students and scholarship of our professors, coupled with their enthusiasm and strong commitment to excellence and learning, all I think left an indelible mark."

The accreditation team also noted the strong support the school received from the local business community, Bebee said.

"It has been a truly outstanding effort," noted the school's founder, Frank Perdue. "To get to this point has taken vigorous effort. Thom Bellavance and Rich Bebee have showcased the Perdue School at its very best. I also know the accreditation process has taken countless hours on the part of the faculty coordinated by George Rubenson (associate dean of the Perdue School). I applaud their efforts.

"Accreditation is important," Perdue continued, "because it means that the AACSB certifies we are providing defined quality education to our students. To put the importance of this in perspective, remember less than 25 percent of the business schools are accredited. And graduates of accredited schools have an easier time getting jobs."

Steve Wooters, a 1993 graduate of the Perdue School, put it this way: "AACSB accreditation is a reminder that choosing Salisbury State University ... was one of my better decisions."

"We now have an ongoing responsibility to our students and to our community to maintain this benchmark of excellence," Butler added.

Institutions outside of Maryland with AACSB accreditation include Harvard, Yale, the University of Delaware, the University of Chicago, Georgetown, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the College of William and Mary.

about to leave the protection of school, Young is anxious to find out what kind of nurse she will be. Heim and the others involved in awarding her scholarship are less concerned.

For Jennifer Anderson, seeing the world in the Navy will take her away from her Salisbury home for the first time. As a member of a military family, however, she has an inkling of what to expect. Her father served in the Marines, her brother is an Air Force officer and both grandfathers served in World War II. Two weeks after her SSU graduation, Anderson will become an ensign and begin her Navy training.

Not only has her family provided some insight, her recruiter has also been a good source of information. "Pam has been very up-front about the program and the experience," Anderson said. "She told her to call her if we had any questions, and I have."

Rebecca Hafeman has been paying for her education and now feels rewarded for her hard work. Having left her family behind in Wisconsin to attend SSU, she is ready to travel farther. "We will get to do things in the Navy that we couldn't do on our own," she said. "We get to travel, of course. But there is also a lot more room for advancement."

Like Hafeman, Jennifer Broschard is also impressed by the Navy's offer to help pay for further education. Both women hope one day to return to school and become nurse practitioners.

Maintaining the busy schedule she keeps today should prepare Broschard for her combining continued education with her Navy career. In addition to keeping up with SSU's rigorous nursing program and being "really involved" in her sorority, Alpha Sigma Tau, she works 30 hours each week in Ocean City. That doesn't leave much time for her boyfriend, a student at University of Maryland Baltimore County, but they'll make up for that when they get married after graduation.

Because she began working on her application for the scholarship while at home in Somers Point, NJ, Broschard has been working with a recruiter in the Navy's Philadelphia office, Lt. Cmdr. Ellen Jones. Like Heim, Jones is impressed by the performance of SSU's students in the scholarship competition. Of the 100 "seats" open to the class of '95, many are going to ROTC students. There are only 50 scholarships available to the class of '96.

Dr. Karen Badros directs SSU's Nursing Department and is pleased to see the high quality of the program recognized by the Navy. "These students (who win the Navy scholarships) are the cream of the crop," she said. "This is a real feather in our cap."

Badros is also pleased to see her students taking advantage of opportunities like this one. She adds that the department is currently working with the Army on a program to identify SSU as one of the elite schools Army ROTC scholarship recipients can attend.

Eastern Shore Ballet Theatre and choreography for productions of Godspell and West Side Story.

Cantus, a lyric modern dance choreographed by Hutchinson, represented Salisbury State at the mid-Atlantic region of the American College Dance Festival in March in Louisville, KY. Over 55 works representing 35 colleges and universities were presented. Hutchinson also performs the seminal Witch Dance, created in 1926 by Mary Wigman, founder of German Expressionist modern dance. "The work was lost because methods for preserving the dance were not available," said Hutchinson. Then in the 1970s dance historians began investigating remaining clues. Using fragments of the dance found on a 1929 sound film and a 1933 German text, Hutchinson has reconstructed Witch Dance with mask and costume created by Jim Henson Associates. Salisbury percussionist Tom Clark shares the stage and provides live accompaniment.

Two student-choreographed works from the fall Dance Showcase also are presented. Selected by a panel of judges on the basis of creativity and technical merit, the winners are The Dance, a ballet by Kristy Ena, and For the Boys, a tap dance by Jennifer Twigg. Ena, a senior from Pasadena, MD, is an elementary education major. Twigg, a junior from Camp Hill, PA, is an art major. Both are among SSU's first group to be graduating with a minor in dance. Also on the program is "The Things I Do" choreographed by students Karen Turner and Amber Wright.

Admission is $6 for adults, $4 for teens and senior citizens, and free for children under 12. Tickets are sold at the Guerrieri University Center, all Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council ticket outlets and at the door the night of performances. For further information, call the SSU Dance Program at (410) 543-6353.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

The men's lacrosse team inched closer to its much-anticipated regular-season showdown with top-ranked Nazareth College with an 18-7 win over Greensboro College last Saturday. The Gulls, 9-0 overall and ranked second in the nation, visit Nazareth, in Rochester, NY, on Sunday.

Nazareth and Salisbury have held the top two spots in the weekly USILA poll since the first week of the season. Nazareth improved to 6-0 last Saturday with a 12-9 win over St. Lawrence. The Sea Gulls defeated the visiting Golden Flyers 10-7 at Sea Gull Stadium last year. Coach Jim Berkman's team will have one final tuneup prior to Sunday's game with a Tuesday home contest against St. Mary's.

The women's lacrosse team continues to hold its number seven spot in the women's rankings. The Gulls improved to 5-2 by ending a two-week layoff with a convincing 22-4 victory over visiting Goucher last Saturday. Candice Blanchette tallied six goals and Tracy Bantel added three to pace the Salisbury attack. Shawna Block stopped 11 shots in goal. The Gulls play their final regular-season home game this Saturday, hosting cross-state rival Frostburg at 1 p.m.

The men's and women's tennis teams compete in the Capital Athletic Conference Championship Tournament this weekend. The men's event will be played in Fredericksburg, VA, while the women's championship is in Baltimore.

The baseball team won its third straight game last Sunday, improving to 9-8 with a 7-6 win over Mary Washington. Mike Sullivan hurled seven strong innings and Pat Facht picked up his fourth win in relief. SSU is back on the road with a doubleheader at Frostburg State this Saturday.

The softball team also returns to the road with a weekend visit to Bridgewater College. The Gulls, 6-8 overall, won one of four last weekend, splitting a twinbill at Mary Washington before dropping a pair at Chowan on Sunday.

The track teams will get a final warmup before the conference championships at this Saturday's Catholic University Cardinal Classic. The SSU men then travel to Mary Washington for Tuesday's CAC Championship. The women's championship will be hosted by Salisbury State on Wednesday.

Seldomridge Discusses Heart Healthy Style

Lisa Seldomridge, assistant professor of nursing, recently spoke at the Ocean Pines Department of Parks and Recreation.

Her interactive presentation, "Keeping Your Heart Healthy," emphasized a proactive plan for understanding blood cholesterol levels, reading labels for wiser food choices and participating in a regular exercise program. Seldomridge is a member of the Salisbury State's Speaker Bureau.

Gilchrest Speaks

Congressman Wayne Gilchrest speaks on "The Value of Wilderness" on Monday, April 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. He spent part of 1986 with his family living in the Idaho wilderness where he worked for the forest service in the Bitterroot National Forest.

Bus Trip Scheduled For Arena Stage

Salisbury State is sponsoring a bus trip to the Arena Stage in Washington, D.C. on Tuesday, April 26, to see A Room of One's Own starring Eileen Atkins.

Atkins' portrayal of novelist and essayist Virginia Woolf is a moving exploration of art and society, imagination thwarted, the triumph of the creative mind. The show's title reflects Woolf's thesis that "a woman must have money and a room of her own if she is to write fiction." It is based on two historic lectures that Woolf gave at Cambridge University in 1928, and the book that grew out of them. The material, adapted and directed by Patrick Garland, explores the historic, social and emotional background of women.

When Atkins performed A Room of One's Own at New York's Lamb's Theatre in 1991, the accolades were universal. The New York Times' Mel Gussow called the show "an event of theatrical magnitude," and John Simon of New York Magazine said the performance "combines great ideas, inspired acting and a helluva good time."

The bus leaves the Dogwood parking lot of the Guerrieri University Center at 2:30 p.m. for the 7:30 p.m. curtain time and returns at 1 a.m.. Food and beverages are not allowed on the bus. There is time to have dinner (on-your-own) before the show.

The charge for the trip is $15 for full-time students and $20 for part-time students, faculty, staff, alumni and guests. The charge includes bus and theatre ticket only; food is not included.

Sign-ups must be made in person with an SSU I.D. Members of the campus community may sign up one guest (who does not have to be affiliated with the University). No one will be allowed to buy more than two tickets.

Sign-ups begin Monday, April 11, at the Guerrieri Center information desk for full-time students only. Part-time students, faculty, staff and alumni may begin signing up on Wednesday, April 13. There are no refunds for cancellations unless the seat can be filled.

National Gallery Bus Trip April 29

SSU is sponsoring a bus trip to the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C. on Friday, April 29.

The bus leaves the Dogwood parking lot of the Guerrieri University Center at 8:30 a.m. and arrives in Washington at approximately 11:30 a.m. Food and beverages are not allowed on the bus. There are a variety of things to enjoy on one's own before the bus leaves Washington. Estimated return to SSU is 6:30 p.m.

The charge for the trip is $10 for full-time students and $12 for part-time students, faculty, staff and alumni. The charge covers only the cost of transportation; food and transportation are not included.

Sign-ups must be made in person with an SSU I.D. Members of the campus community may sign up one guest (who does not have to be affiliated with the University). No one is allowed to buy more than two tickets.

Sign-up begins on Wednesday, April 13, at the Guerrieri Center information desk for full-time students only. Part-time students, faculty, staff and alumni may begin signing up on Friday, April 15. There is no refund for cancellations unless the seat can be filled.

Community Service Teleconference April 22

"Building Partnerships for Community Service and Learning," a national teleconference originally broadcast in November, will be shown at 2:30 p.m. on Friday, April 22, in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Sponsored by the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators, the program features nationally renowned educators including Arthur Levine, Catherine Milton, Suzanne Mintz and Erin Swezey. Members of the University community are invited, however, space is limited.

Please call the Office of the Dean of Students at 543-6080 to reserve a seat.

Cycling to Recycling, University Environmental Effort Evident Everywhere

In response to rapidly growing student interest, many colleges and universities are adding courses in environmental studies to their catalogs. At SSU they've been teaching lessons in the environment-in and out of the classroom for more than 20 years.

From Introduction to Environmental Health to Public Policy Analysis, from Wilderness Experience to Environmental Mathematics, SSU offers 16 courses to students interested in the subject. Perhaps more important, however, are the lessons being taught by example.

"There is a manual now available to college students for them to assess the energy management and environmental awareness of their institutions," says SSU Vice President for Administration Joseph K. Gilbert. "I hope our students will use it. They'll find SSU is way ahead." And that there is much more going on than meets the eye.

This past March, for example, one of the busiest months on campus, the University recycled nearly half its total waste: 47 percent of the tin and aluminum cans, newspapers, cardboard, white office paper, yard and food waste, glass and plastic that would otherwise have been headed for the landfill. Uneaten food from the students plates now goes to compost at an area farm. Unserved food is recycled as leftovers, then turned over to be distributed to the needy.

Recycling is long-standing tradition at SSU. A program to collect and recycle cans and bottles began in 1972-years before the national trend-as a joint effort by students from SSU and area high schools and the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. in Salisbury. According to Dr. Fred Kundell, who has been instrumental in SSU's recycling and other programs since before that time, that first program was ultimately turned over to Wicomico County and continues as the longest-running recycling effort in the country.

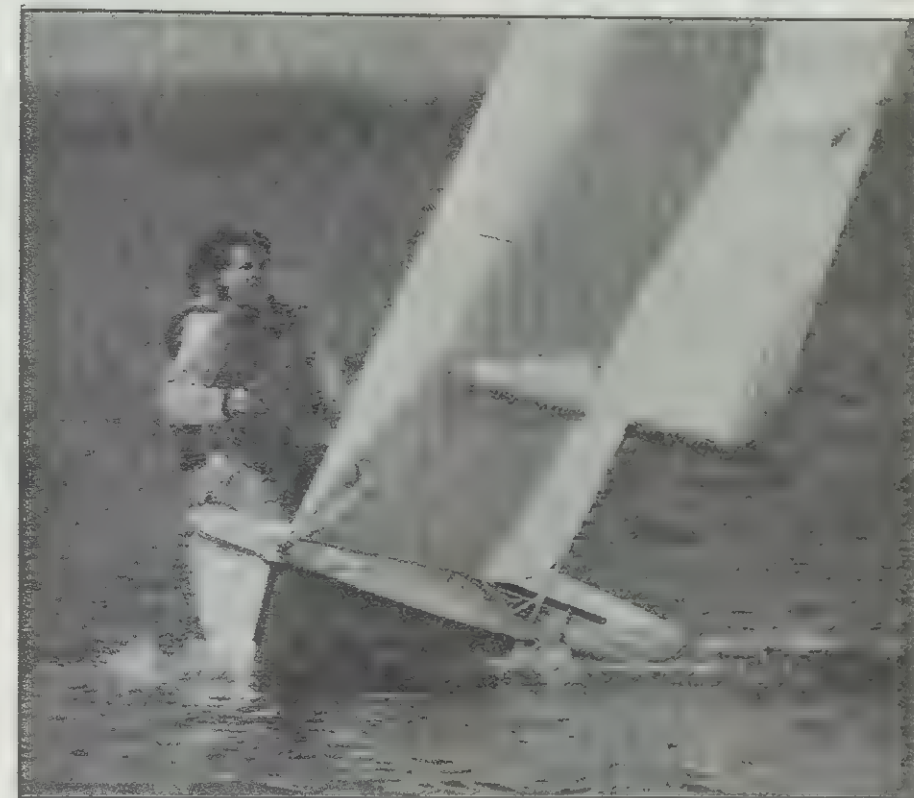

SSU students may not be aware of all of the University's efforts, but they come into contact with the evidence nearly everywhere they go on campus, every day. And if it isn't there now, it soon will be, as the University pursues an aggressive program to replace old equipment with more energy-conscious gear.

Sailing Out of Obscurity SSU Club Sport Thriving

Two-day travel weekends, water as a field of play and book work combine to make sailing an unusual and obscure club sport at Salisbury State. But it's surprisingly successful.

"There are 42 schools in our region from Long Island to Virginia," said volunteer coach Del Walter, who stores the team boats in his Tyaskin yard near the Nanticoke River. "There's a strong interest in the sport among our students. We teach students to sail, then race."

Senior Art Show Opens in Fulton Gallery

The 21st Senior Art Exhibit by students in the Department of Art opens Saturday, April 30, at the University Gallery in Fulton Hall. A public reception honoring these young artists is from 7-9 p.m. in the gallery.

This year's graduating class of 33 have created works in a wide variety of media. In two-dimensional studio art, drawings and paintings in pencil, pastel, charcoal, conte (a dry drawing medium), watercolor, acrylic and oil will be exhibited. Printmaking displays include lithography, etching, silkscreen and relief.

Photography includes black and white, hand-colored and colored Polaroid transfers.

Three-dimensional works draw from wood, clay, plaster, fiber and imaginative objects.

In the graphic design/visual communication areas, student works focus on the production of commercially-oriented projects, often used for product promotion.

At SSU students enroll in a core group

Sailing as a club sport started three years at SSU with two boats. The Sea Gulls currently have six boats. They plan to have nine boats in the fall. There are 40 students on the roster, including 20 who are active and 12 who are truly competitive, according to Walter.

"This is the first year we've had a women's team," said Walter. "Women have an advantage in that a lighter two-person of art courses plus and an area of art concentration for either a Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Fine Arts.

Other concentrations include arts administration, where gallery management is a major focus. That involves making appropriate contact with artists and their agents to ensure their works are exhibited appropriately; many hours in hanging shows; perusing artists' portfolios and exhibits at other galleries; and gathering information about art of various periods.

In art education, future teachers learn ways to use art to stimulate student creativity.

Art majors concentrating in administration and education are still required to study the core curriculum and participate in the exhibit.

Gallery hours for the senior art showing are Monday and Wednesday through Friday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; Tuesday from 10 a.m.-8 p.m.; and weekends from noon-6 p.m. The exhibit continues through May 20. For more information please contact the Art Department at 543-6270.

Bus Trip Scheduled For Arena Stage

Salisbury State is sponsoring a bus trip to the Arena Stage in Washington, D.C. on Tuesday, April 26, to see A Room of One's Own starring Eileen Atkins.

Signup at the Guerrieri Center information desk. There are no refunds for cancellations unless the seat can be filled.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Soroptimist's Scholarship For Education Majors

Habitat Art Auction Set for April 23

The 1994 Habitat for Humanity Art Auction is on Saturday, April 23, in the Great Room of Holloway Hall on campus. The evening begins with refreshments at 6 p.m.

Silent auction items are provided for viewing and bidding interest. At 7 p.m. a live auction of paintings, provided by local artists, including several styles such as wildfowl, stills, modern, landscapes, impressionism and others follows.

Included are several hand-sculpted items provided by local artists and the Ward Waterfowl Museum. The proceeds from the evening will assist the University in its efforts to support the humanitarian work for Habitat for Humanity.

For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Physical Plant Hangs Banners

The Physical Plant will hang banners for campus organizations as long as the banner format is followed. Organizations must submit a banner form, available at the information desk or the Student Activities Office Guerrieri Center, Room 242A, and a work order to the Physical Plant 10 days prior to the hang up date. These forms ensure that the Physical Plant will put the banner up and take it down at the correct times.

For more information contact the Student Activities Office at 543-6125.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Classical Guitar Concert by Peabody Student

Stephen Turley

Peabody Conservatory student Stephen Turley performs a Classical Guitar Concert on Sunday, May 1, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the event is free and open to the public.

Turley, guitar student of Manuel Barrueco, made his European debut as a top place receiver in the 1991 Nicolo Paganini International Guitar Competition, held in Moneglia, Italy. Soon the local Italian newspaper printed of his "firm technique and artistic personality rich of expression and poetry." In doing so he was the first American ever to receive a top place in the competition.

Born in New Haven, CT, Turley began to play the guitar at age 12 as therapy that was used to help him cope with the death of his father in 1980. He attended the Neighborhood Music School as the first guitarist to receive a Letter of Commendation from the school. Throughout his early years, Turley has been called "a major talent." After performing at the National Guitar Workshop in 1986, he was invited to play for the Professor of Guitar at the Peabody Conservatory, Ray Chester. He was the first place winner in the Senior String Division of the Baltimore Music Club Competition, the youngest recipient of the Hos Award in Guitar for Outstanding Achievement, and won first place in the Unger Foundation Awards.

Turley has performed throughout the United States, including Boston, New Haven, Baltimore, Washington, D.C., San Francisco and Dallas, among other cities, all before the age of 20. Turley has been a featured performer with the acclaimed violinist Herbert Greenberg, concertmaster of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra on the Candlelight Concert Society Series in Columbia, MD; the young Artist's Recital Series of the Norfolk Chamber Music Festival; and concerts of the Baltimore Classical Guitar Society. He has also performed with the internationally acclaimed guitarist Eliot Fisk. He has been a featured soloist with orchestras across the United States and an active chamber musician. In October 1990 in Baltimore, he premiered the performance of Christian Colberg's "Mi Angel" for solo guitar and string orchestra, written and dedicated especially for Turley.

In February 1992 he was admitted into the Artist's Diploma Program of the Peabody Conservatory.

A reception in the Guerrieri Center lounge immediately follows the concert.

For more information please call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Dig the Music at Furnace Town

Furnace Town Historic Site's Mini-Concert series swings into its sixth season on Sunday, April 24, with the music of Swing Shift/RFD. Held beneath the pavilion, the concert begins at 3 p.m. and is included in Furnace Town's daily site admission. The mini-concert series is sponsored in part by the Worcester County Arts Council, Maryland State Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Swing Shift/RFD is led by Jim Mitchell. The group plays several of Mitchell's originals, with emphasis on standard jazz representative of the swing era—with an occasional TV theme, Ellington tune or Latin beat. The group gathered a following during its appearances with RFD Delmarva. In addition to Mitchell, the group features Van Williamson on guitar, Jim Miller on trumpet and flugelhorn, Otello Meucci on sax, Carroll Brown on bass and Tom Clark on drums.

Also on April 24 is the first of 10 public archaeology digs. Working at the site of an early 19th century building, volunteers learn the techniques of digging, a bit of the history of Furnace Town and actually work to uncover artifacts from the past. Dress for the weather and be prepared for sitting in the dirt, getting dirty hands and swatting resident insects. Diggers must be present at 1 p.m. for training, and can dig until 4 p.m. A $5 dig fee includes historic site admission.

Furnace Town is located five miles north of Snow Hill and 16 miles south of Salisbury off Route 12.

Call 632-2032 for additional information.

Choral Concert Set for May 15

The Salisbury Choral Society, SSU Chamber Choir and SSU Wind Sinfonia perform a Percy Grainger Celebration on Sunday, May 15, at 2 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

The choral music will be accompanied by a brass ensemble, woodwind ensemble and full concert band. Dr. Richard Johnson conducts; the chorus was prepared by Dr. Duane Karna. Both are on the music faculty at SSU.

Tickets are $8 for adults and $6 for senior citizens and students. SSU faculty, staff and students can attend free with ID. For information call the Music Department at 543-6385.

New Community Singers To Sing for Habitat

On Saturday, April 30, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, May 1, at 2 p.m. in James M. Bennett High School's Auditorium, Salisbury's own New Community Singers will present a concert of classic and contemporary Broadway show music, the performance to benefit Habitat on Maryland's Lower Shore.

This year's concert is titled "Broadway! Now and Then" and features the music of Andrew Lloyd Webber and Rodgers and Hammerstein.

"Lloyd Webber is the most creative musical force on Broadway today," said Virginia Russell, the music director of the ensemble. "When we were selecting music for the show we realized that singing just his most popular music would more than fill up a program, so we decided to limit our contemporary selections to Lloyd Webber. It's quite a list of hits."

Among the Webber staples offered in the first half of the program, the singers, accompanied by a combo of local musicians, will perform "Don't Cry For Me, Argentina" from Evita, "Love Changes Everything" from Aspects of Love, "I Don't Know How To Love Him" from Jesus Christ Superstar, "Angel of the Night" from Phantom of the Opera and the beloved "Memories" from Cats.

"We'll also do lesser know Webber numbers such as the rollicking 'Macavity the Mystery Cat' from Cats and the haunting love song 'Wishing You Were Somehow Here Again' from Opera," Russell said. "It's a musically varied menu by this genius of contemporary Broadway theater."

The second half of the concert will feature music from Rodgers and Hammerstein's Showboat, including "Why Do I Love You," "Only Make Believe" and the powerful "Old Man River."

Founded in 1971 by Russell, the New Community Singers have contributed to the Shore's cultural vitality for 23 years, presenting musical programs ranging from Bach to rock.

Tickets for the concert are $6, or $7 at the door. Tickets can be purchased by calling Habitat on Maryland's Lower Shore offices at 564-1551.

Gullapalooza II Concert Benefits Habitat

WSUR, SSU's student-run radio station, sponsors Gullapalooza II, a charity concert benefitting the SSU chapter of Habitat for Humanity.

The concert is on Saturday, April 30 (rain date May 7), from 11 a.m.-7 p.m. in front of the Powell Dining Hall in the center of the campus. Admission is free and the public is invited; however, donations to Habitat will be accepted.

Performers include Boondoggle, Anojoke, Laughing Colors, Bovox Clown, Gladbag, 18 Days, Lazy Susan and Skunks. Last year's Gullapalooza raised over $1,500 for Habitat.

Additional sponsors of the event are University Dining Services and Pepsi-Cola of Salisbury.

For more information call WSUR at 543-6195.

Gilchrest Discusses Value of Wilderness

Wayne Gilchrest

First District Congressman Wayne Gilchrest (R-MD) speaks on "The Value of the Wilderness" on Monday, April 25, at 7:30 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

"As a Congressman, I have learned of the many threats to our nation's wilderness areas, from air and water pollution to ecotourism," said Gilchrest. "The value of these lands in maintaining the biological integrity of the landscape cannot be understated."

"The past management regime has consistently devalued the protection of recreational, wildlife and aesthetic values when maintaining these areas," he said. "Legislative efforts must better address the public's increasing aspirations of natural resource preservation. Reforms will be necessary to ensure that these valuable resources are conserved and sustained into the long-term for generations to come. We must end the mismanagement of lands surrounding wilderness areas, stop incompatible uses on these lands and where possible, establish networks of wilderness."

"As you may know," said Gilchrest, "I spent part of 1986 with my family living in the Idaho wilderness where I worked for the Forest Service in the Bitterroot National Forest. Through this experience, I gained a greater appreciation of the sanctity of our federal lands and the environment. I look forward to working with the environmental community to protect this country's invaluable wilderness."

The presentation is free and open to the public. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

PSAC Update: Longevity Pay, Secretarial Classifications

The President's Staff Advisory Council (PSAC) met recently with Dr. Bellavance and Richard Pusey, director of business and finance, to discuss concerns or questions raised by staff. Highlights of these discussions are published in the SSU News to keep staff informed. The full minutes of the meetings are on reserve at Blackwell Library.

Classified staff would like an update on the status of your proposal to use "longevity pay" as a vehicle to increase the salaries of those staff who are at the top of their pay grades. This plan was described briefly at the employee picnic in June.

The longevity pay proposal is no longer being considered since the new pay plan which is being worked on is projected to provide progression within pay grades and thus remedy this problem.

Academic department secretaries have voiced concern about the cap on secretarial classifications in their areas. Currently department secretaries can be classified no higher than office secretary III, while secretaries in the deans' offices and administrative secretaries can become administrative aides.

Pusey indicated that the current perspective is that the level of the person worked for has some bearing on the level of the secretary. The current assignment for secretaries is not to exceed 10 faculty to one secretary. Administrative aides report to the deans. The job scope of the deans' secretaries is greater. Pusey checked our secretarial levels against those at Frostburg State and Towson State and, in each instance, he indicated that SSU is in line with their secretarial classifications. SSU secretaries are classified lower than those at larger institutions. Bellavance indicated that he feels the cap on secretarial classifications in academic departments is appropriate.

Members of the PSAC are Linda Abresch, Dennis Bradford, Lesley Dayton, Jackie Eberts, Bob Meigel, Jerry Waldron and Jeanette Wolinski. Abresch and Waldron also represent SSU on the Council of University System Staff. Staff who have questions or concerns related to either campus or system policies may contact any PSAC member.

Come Dressed To Kiln at Faculty Pot Party

All are cordially invited to attend and participate in the long lost Art Department's faculty pot party on Wednesday, April 27, from 9 a.m.-2 p.m. in the brick building behind Fulton Hall east of the tennis courts.

Featured is the newest member to the ceramic area, "The kiln building." The new gas and Raku kilns are ready to cook—"a true housewarming" for glazing and firing in the age old Japanese traditional techniques of Raku. Participants learn about this while creating their own decorations and participating in an immediate method of firing. Students will be on hand to guide guest faculty and friends through the glazing and firing procedures. All works completed may find homes with the designer.

Art works will also be on display representing the term projects.

For more information call the Art Department at 543-6270.

Welsh Gives 'Great' Lecture

Associate Professor Jim Welsh of the English Department gave an invited lecture on March 28 at the Universitatea "Stefan cel Mare" (Stephen the Great University) in southern Bucovina in the Carpathian Mountains. His lecture posed the question "Are Media Barbarians Storming the Fortress of Culture?"

Stephen the Great University is located in the city of Suceava and named for the 15th-century prince who defeated the Turks and first unified the Romanian state. Stephen the Great is buried at the Putna Monastery which he founded in the year 1466 north of Suceava and very near what is now the border of the Ukraine in what used to be the Soviet Union.

Welsh was one of two Fulbright lecturers invited to speak in Suceava. The other was David Boxer of Humboldt State University in California, who gave a slide presentation of "Pictures of the Beat Generation." Boxer is currently teaching at the University of Bucharest. Welsh is teaching American studies at the A.I. Cuza University in Iasi, Romania.

Directors Sought For AI&G Board

The Art Institute & Gallery, a regional non-profit fine arts center, is seeking applications for three vacant positions on its board of directors. An art background is not necessary. Board members meet the third Monday evening of every month and are not paid.

The Art Institute & Gallery produces exhibits by regional fine artists and holds fine art classes for children and adults, as well as several other educational programs throughout the year. Established nine years ago (previously the Wicomico Art League), the AI&G is a young and growing organization. Staffed by two part-time employees, the organization operates through an active board of directors, 80 volunteers and scores of artists, coming from all over the Delmarva Peninsula.

Persons interested in learning more about the AI&G and its board can write AI&G Board, P.O. Box 193, Salisbury, MD 21803. Phone calls can be directed to Lynne Rosenthal, administrative director, at 546-4748 or Max Verbits, board chairman, at 749-3260. To be considered for a director position, please send a resume and a letter of intent.

Forum on Underpass Set for April 21

A public forum to discuss a projected underpass near the intersection of Route 13 and Bateman St. in Salisbury will be held Thursday, April 21, at 7 p.m. in the Great Hall in Holloway Hall.

Representatives from the Maryland State Highway Administration and SSU will provide information about the underpass with construction scheduled to begin this summer.

The forum is open to the public. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Guest Choreographers Add Luster To Spring Dance Concert

The re-creation of two early 20th century modern dances and an 1895 classical ballet give an historic sheen to SSU's Spring Dance Concert.

This year's performance features the work of three guest choreographers. Two, Ed Groff and Suzanne Nece, hold prestigious awards from the American College Dance Festival Association (ACDFA); their works were performed at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

The trio is rounded out by Salisbury's own Mary Norton who has been a soloist with the Delaware Regional Ballet.

"I am delighted choreographers of this caliber are working with our students to present dance for Eastern Shore audiences," said Victoria Hutchinson, Dance Company director.

The one-hour concert is Wednesday, April 27, and Friday and Saturday, April 29-30, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Eight dances will be performed.

Admission is $6 for adults, $4 for teens and senior citizens, and free for children under 12, SSU faculty, staff and students with ID. Tickets are sold at the Guerrieri University Center, all Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council ticket outlets and at the door the night of performances. For further information, call the SSU Dance Program at (410) 543-6353.

Norman Concert Simulcast on WSCL, MPT

Legendary opera and concert artist Jessye Norman stars in a Live From Lincoln Center simulcast on Wednesday, April 27, at 8 p.m. on WSCL (89.5 FM) and Maryland Public Television.

Norman's performance surveys the lives and times of such historical women as Cleopatra, Joan of Arc and Delilah. Hosted by Hugh Downs, the program includes music of Samuel Barber, Franz Liszt, Henry Purcell, Camille Saint-Saens and Richard Strauss. Interspersed throughout the broadcast are Norman's own comments on the women represented and her descriptions of the dramatic sequences of the works being performed.

Norman is joined in the concert by the Orchestra of St. Luke's led by British conductor Jane Glover.

Khazeh at Conference On International Course

Dr. Kashi Khazeh, associate professor of finance, recently attended a conference about "Administrative Strategies for Internationalizing the Business School." The conference was at the University of South Carolina.

Khazeh received a fellowship to attend the conference from the Center for International Business Education and Research in the College of Business and Management at the University of Maryland College Park.

Community Service Teleconference April 22

"Building Partnerships for Community Service and Learning," a national teleconference originally broadcast in November, will be shown at 2:30 p.m. on Friday, April 22, in the Pocomoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Sponsored by the National Association of Student Personnel Administrators, the program features nationally renowned educators including Arthur Levine, Catherine Milton, Suzanne Mintz and Erin Swezey. Members of the University community are invited, however, space is limited.

Please call the Office of the Dean of Students at 543-6080 to reserve a seat.

Why Not Call Her Sadie?

Dr. Francis Kane, chair of the Philosophy Department, has invited Gains Hawkins, director of public relations, to become founding member of SSU's newest support group, Over-Populators Anonymous (O-PA). Hawkins officially qualified for O-PA on Wednesday, April 6, when his fourth child, Casey Brooks, was born in Peninsula Regional Medical Center. Casey, who weighed 8 lbs. 12 oz. and is 20 1/2 inches long, and her mother, Holly, are in excellent health.

Chamber Choir Performance May 2, 3

The SSU Chamber Choir performs its Spring Concert on Monday and Tuesday, May 2 and 3, at 8 p.m. in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall.

Free and open to the public, the concert features the works of Stephen Foster, Vaclav Nelyhbel, Gabriel Faure and John Rutter, and American folksongs. For more information call the SSU Music Department at 543-6385.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

It was SSU men's lacrosse at its very best last Sunday afternoon as the Gulls bombed top-ranked Nazareth 21-2 in Rochester, NY. Sean Radebaugh and Jason Coffman led the offense with four goals each, while Tom McAuliffe, Chris McQueeney, Ron Anson, Rob Schmitt and Sean O'Connell keyed a stellar defensive performance. Salisbury State, ranked second in the nation heading into the game, improved to 11-0 while also stretching its winning streak to 34 straight regular season games, dating back to 1992. The Sea Gulls renew their annual rivalry with Washington College this Saturday, visiting the Shoremen in Chestertown at 1:30 p.m.

The women's lacrosse team upped its record to 6-3 with an 8-5 win over Frostburg State last Saturday. The Gulls outscored the visiting Bobcats 4-1 in the pivotal second half. Crissy Fellona scored three goals while Jenny Shelly and Susan Fatz netted two each. Shawna Block recorded 21 saves in goal for the Gulls.

The men's tennis team placed second among eight teams in last week's Capital Athletic Conference Championship Tournament, finishing with 29.5 overall points. Host Mary Washington won the title with 37 points. Catholic, third with 19 points, and Goucher, fourth with 16, were SSU's closest challengers for second place. Michael Daw, Matt Salisbury and Bobby August all placed second in their respective singles draws. The Gulls did claim two of the three doubles championships however, winning at number two (Mark Terrell-Matt Salisbury) and number three (Bobby August-Tom Wolfe).

The women's tennis squad finished fifth in the Women's CAC Championship, also played last weekend. Mary Washington took top honors, followed by Catholic, York, and Goucher. Sue Douglass was the team's top singles performer, winning the consolation bracket in the number five singles flight.

The men's track team won first place at last Saturday's Cardinal Classic at Catholic University. Top performances included first place finishes in the 200 and 400 meters for Jason Anderson, first place in the 100 for Tony McCray, and first place in the discus for Brian Evans.

The women's team placed third at the same meet. Stacie Gado and Kirsten Owings were the team's top finishers, winning first in the javelin and long jump, respectively. Both SSU squads are at home this Saturday as they host the annual SSU Invitational.

The baseball team improved to 11-9 overall with a weekend sweep of Frostburg State on the road. Chris Yagesh and Bill DeAtley combined on a two-hit shutout to win the first game, while the Gulls broke a 1-1 deadlock with 14 runs in the eighth inning to win the second game 15-2.

WSCL Wins Cruise for Two Giveaway

Delmarva's classical music radio station, WSCL (89.5 FM), is well-known for its blend of Mozart and NPR news. Lately it is also becoming a popular place for listeners to plan their winter vacations. So popular, that on its most recent cruise through the Panama Canal, the Queen Elizabeth 2 carried more passengers who booked passage through WSCL than any other public radio station in the country. And that meant a bonus for WSCL.

WSCL and about two dozen other public radio stations work with Cruise Holidays, a California travel agency, to sell transcanal cruises aboard the Cunard Line ship each January. The stations get a share of the profits in return for promoting the cruise. These classical music cruises feature nightly performances by internationally-known artists. Victor Borge starred on the 1994 voyage.

As the QE2 sailed from Florida to California this year, there were 26 WSCL listeners on board. That was more than any other radio station represented, qualifying WSCL for a free cruise for two persons on the next sailing from Fort Lauderdale to Los Angeles. Cruise prices vary, depending on accommodations chosen, but the least expensive passage for two costs about $4,500.

The station hasn't decided yet what to do with its bonus, according to Lucy Davis, WSCL membership coordinator. "We want to use it to thank our loyal listeners and at the same time, raise some revenue for the station," she said. Exactly how hasn't been worked out but Davis said an announcement will be made soon. Meanwhile, the 1995 QE2 cruise through Panama begins January 8 and promotion for the trip will start later this year, probably in September.

WSCL broadcasts classical music and news from SSU to Delaware and Maryland's Eastern Shore 24 hours a day.

Bus Trip to See Orioles Vs. Toronto

The University is sponsoring a bus trip to see the Orioles play Toronto on Monday, May 9.

The bus leaves the Dogwood parking lot of the Guerrieri University Center at 4 p.m. and arrives at Orioles Park at Camden Yards about 6:15 p.m. with plenty of time to watch the players warm up before the game at 7:35 p.m. The bus returns to SSU immediately after the game and is expected to arrive at campus 1 a.m.

The charge for the trip is $10 for full-time students and $15 for part-time students, faculty, staff and alumni. The charge covers the cost of transportation and admission to the game. Food is not included.

Sign-ups must be made in person with SSU I.D. Those signing up can purchase a ticket for one guest (who does not have to be affiliated with the University). No one is allowed to buy more than two tickets.

Sign-up begins on Monday, April 25, at the Guerrieri Center information desk (543-6006) for full-time students only. Part-time students, faculty, staff and alumni may begin signing up on Wednesday, April 27. There are no refunds for cancellations unless the seat can be filled.

Ethics from Feminist Viewpoint Is Subject Of Philosophy Symposium

The Philosophy Department announces its 14th annual Spring Symposium to be held on Saturday, April 23, in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall.

This year's topic, "Care vs. Justice: Feminist and Traditional Approaches to Ethics," will explore some of the new challenges that a feminist perspective brings to the traditional ethics based on rights and justice. Speakers are Joy Knoeger-Mappes of Frostburg State University and Frank Ambrosia of Georgetown University.

The program gets underway at 9:15 a.m. Following the speakers' presentation and lunch, an afternoon panel of faculty and invited guests will respond. The public is invited. The program is co-sponsored by the Philosophical Society and the Student Government's Program Planning Board. For further information, call the Philosophy Department at 543-6038.

Math Professors Present Paper

Dr. Donald Cathcart, professor of mathematics and computer sciences, and Dr. Michael Folkoff, associate professor of geography, presented a joint paper at the 14th annual Microcomputer in Education Conference at the Arizona State University on March 14-16.

The paper, "Integrating Biology, Geography and Mathematics with Spreadsheets," was presented twice, in two one-hour sessions. The presentation focused on the use of spreadsheet computer software for developing mathematical models using examples in biology, geodesy and climatology. The purpose of the national conference is to foster the integration of technology, mathematics and science in K-12 education.

Thoreau Society Executive Director

The Thoreau Society, a Concord, MA-based, 50-year-old, not-for-profit organization, dedicated to the advancement and philosophy of Henry David Thoreau and his writings, seeks applicants for the position of executive director of the society.

Responsibilities include daily operation of the society and its properties; development, care and display of the society's collections; membership development, grant-writing and fund-raising; development of educational programs; sales and merchandizing of books and memorabilia; representing the society to the public; and coordinating board meetings and the society's annual meeting.

Salary is commensurate with professional experience and credentials; a housing option is negotiable.

Candidates should respond with letter of interest and a detailed resume, including at least three references and salary history, to Joseph Gilbert, Vice President of Administration, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801, by June 1.

DiGiovanna Presents Talk on Aging

Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna, associate professor of biology, recently presented a talk on aging to some 35 members of the Institute for Retired Persons. The title of the talk was "Aging: What It Is: What It's Not; What to do About It," which is the main theme of his recently published book and his upcoming course on human aging.

After presenting definitions of aging including the six types of aging, DiGiovanna explained why aging is important to life expectancy and quality of life. He pointed out that many of the adverse changes that occur with advancing age can be minimized by avoiding factors and choices that result in abuse, misuse and disuse of the body.

He also clarified when aging begins, how fast it occurs and why aging is often associated with abnormal and disease conditions.

He concluded with suggestions on how to reduce abnormal and disease conditions and why such steps should be undertaken throughout life. IRP members and DiGiovanna then engaged in a lively discussion of age-related changes and experiences.

morning shower is most likely taken using a water-saving shower-head. At breakfast, they find a weekly reminder to "eat what you take for Earth's sake." The disposable dishes they once ate from have been replaced with china plates, stainless steel flatware and cloth napkins.

As they cross campus, students are likely to meet up with SSU police officers on bicycle and in propane-powered campus vehicles. Both of these measures are paying off in savings to the environment and to the University budget. Only a year after their introduction, the propane-powered cargo vans and trucks, for example, already cost as little to operate as their gasoline-powered counterparts.

Police officers at SSU began patrolling the campus on bicycles for reasons that have little to do with engine emissions or pollution. According to SSU Public Safety Director Jim Phillips, the bicycle patrols began 12 years ago, when fitness was a higher national priority than environmental health. The officers who initiated the change soon discovered additional benefits: the campus was designed for walking and has no roads on its interior. Bicycles gave the officers better mobility and brought them closer to the students they protect.

Today, bicycling is the choice of more than half the officers on campus. Phillips adds that his department has instituted other energy-saving policies in recent years: all of their radios, flashlights and pagers are powered by rechargeable batteries, for example.

Behind the scenes, energy use on campus has gone high-tech. As new buildings are constructed, state-of-the-art cooling and heating systems are introduced. The best example of this can be found in Fulton Hall, where an ice thermal storage system provides heating and cooling that has proven most efficient not only for the building itself, but for the campus as a whole. Sam Kamand, director of project management, explains that during the night, the system builds ice which melts during the day, cooling the building. Because its greatest energy demand occurs in overnight, off-peak hours, the electricity used to power the system costs less. Kamand's estimates show the University saves approximately $18,000 each year on energy costs.

The savings from systems like these are used to benefit the older buildings on campus, as boilers are gradually being replaced and a computerized environmental system is phased in across campus. The computer system tracks and controls energy use in the buildings now on line, taking advantage of off-peak hour cooling and heating opportunities wherever possible.

Innovations like those in Fulton Hall pay for themselves within two years. And they don't end there. As the University makes plans for design and construction of "The Commons," a new dining facility, research continues to develop systems that will not only give the campus a new "energy efficient building" but will also improve energy use in the Guerrieri University Center next door. Design work continues, but already plans call for abundant natural light, light sensors in offices so that they will be dark when not in use and variable-drive air pumps that will be run when energy rates are at their lowest. Even the kitchen that serves the new dining facility will be put to work, its rejected heat used to warm the rest of the building.

Meanwhile, work to upgrade the University environment gains new energy daily. New courses are in development to educate SSU students in the best ways to conserve and protect the resources we have. And the University's own resources, including historic Holloway Hall, are being given new life, as old energy systems wear down and are replaced with new, more efficient ones.

boat is a faster two-person boat. But women are at a disadvantage when strength comes into play on windy days."

The SSU team competes throughout the school year. They face some of the best competition in the country, including Navy, Old Dominion and Walter's alma mater, St. Mary's. Other strong programs include Christopher Newport, Virginia, George Washington, Loyola, Washington College and Delaware.

"It's a different sport in that it involves a whole weekend of travel almost every weekend during the fall and spring," said Walter. "We leave at 4 a.m. on Saturday and return to campus late Sunday night. Not a lot of students can consistently fit this competition into their schedules."

Flying Juniors, a 14-foot, two-person boat, is the vehicle of choice in this sport. The competition involves a lot of athleticism and teamwork. SSU's standout sailors include Greg Barow, Derek Merz, Michelle Combs and Tracy Conway.

"The difference between a Navy and us is that Navy sailors have been sailing all their lives," said Walter. "At places like Navy and St. Mary's, sailing is considered a major sport. But we're doing a great job of catching up to the established powers. We even have guest speakers conduct seminars, and book work. It only takes two or three exceptional sailors to gain recognition for a school.

"The real secret for a sailor is to be able to do everything pretty well," said Walter. "Each leg of the triangle race has particular skills involved in maneuvering around buoys. A race can last anywhere from 15 to 40 minutes. Finesse and control are keys."

Walter said he puts in 1,500 hours a year in as a volunteer coach for the team.

"I bring organization and over 20 years of sailing experience as a coach for the team," said Walter. "We drill students on boat handling and speed. Teamwork is the most difficult aspect of sailing to coordinate. At least a dozen physical details need to come together."

Walter's goal for the team is to be ranked in the Top 10 in the country one day. Individually, SSU sailors are given the opportunity to be as good as they can be through development.

"The SSU administration has been extremely supportive of the sport," said Walter. "It takes a lot of money to send five to nine sailors and a coach on a two-day weekend every weekend. It can get expensive. We're accepting boat donations. We'll sell the boat to get income for the program. We give students the opportunity to leave school with a lifetime sport."

NASA Scientist Here To Discuss Hubble Space Telescope

Dr. Edward Weiler, program scientist for the Hubble Space Telescope (HST), visits SSU in May to discuss one of NASA's most historic projects including the HST's first servicing mission and early science images.

Weiler's presentation features dramatic in-orbit images of the astronauts repairing the Hubble Telescope. He will also share some of the Hubble's initial science images and discuss several "before and after" comparisons.

Weiler presents his program on Thursday, May 5, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is free and open to the public. The lecture is jointly sponsored by the Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council and SSU's Henson School of Science and Technology.

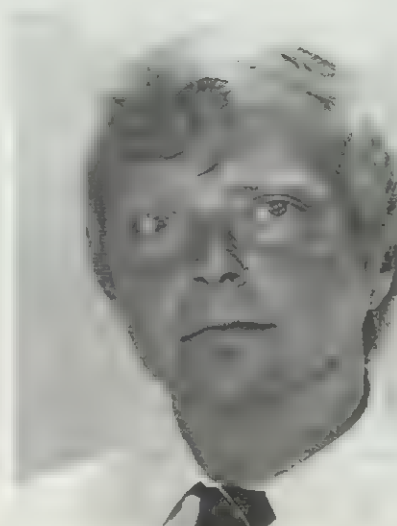

The Hubble Space Telescope was designed to be the first of the great space observatories. It was launched on April 24, 1990 aboard the Space Shuttle and placed in an Earth orbit approximately 376 miles in altitude. The expected life of the telescope is about 15 years, with instrument changeouts every three to five years.

A few months after its launch a flaw was discovered on the 2.4 meter primary mirror which prevented the HST's optical system from focusing all light into a tiny point. Although this prevented the HST from reaching its full potential of studying the faintest possible objects, it did not preclude other unique and scientifically exciting observations.

The flaw was repaired during the Hubble's first servicing mission on December 13. That mission demonstrated the feasibility of the in-orbit servicing concept and restored the HST spacecraft to robust good health.

Perhaps of greatest interest, however, it allowed new optical components to be installed in the observatory, which correct for the well-known spherical aberration

Walston, Maryland Teacher Of Year, Is Convocation Speaker

Bonnie Walston

SSU will honor some 600 outstanding scholars and student leaders at its 69th annual Honors Convocation on Friday, May 6, at 3:30 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

"Honors Convocation is that time of the year when we salute those students who have distinguished themselves in their academic and student leadership pursuits," said Dr. K. Nelson Butler, vice president of academic affairs. "Through their efforts they gain individual recognition, but also give rise to pride from their family and friends and the University."

The Honors Convocation, which dates back to the founding of the University in 1925, this year recognizes students in nearly 60 different areas of academic life. These awards reflect organizations as diverse as international honor societies to the Wall Street Journal to local patrons and clubs saluting civic leaders such as Sam and Marilyn Seidel and the late Doris Gay Calcott.

According to tradition, each year the Honors Convocation Committee chooses a member of the SSU Alumni Association to give the address. Bonnie L. Walston, a 1975 graduate of Salisbury State and the 1993-94 Maryland Teacher of the Year, is this year's Honors Convocation speaker. The title of her speech is "Learning Is for a Lifetime."

"My belief," said Walston, a special education teacher and reading specialist at Parkside High School, "is that if we are truly going to reach our nation's objective of having every adult American literate and possessing the knowledge and skills necessary to compete globally, then it is vital that we promote literacy from infancy."

Acting on that belief and as vice president of the Eastern Shore Reading Council, she initiated "Books for Babies," a literary project to promote the goal. Through her efforts and those of the Reading Council, 2,500 book packets are provided annually to Peninsula Regional Medical Center's nursery department so that every baby born at the hospital will receive the book, "The Little Engine That Could." Parents receive information emphasizing the importance of daily reading and talking with their children.

State Superintendent Nancy S. Grasmick said, "Because she works a special kind of magic ... her students have a positive attitude toward learning. Bonnie Walston exemplifies the very finest qualities of an exceptional teacher—enthusiasm for teaching and learning, dedication to professional growth and the ability to motivate students and engage them in learning."

Walston, who earned her M.Ed. from SSU in 1992, won a $25,000 Milken Family Foundation National Education Award in conjunction with her state award. She also received $2,000 from the Maryland Business Roundtable Foundation.

An emergency medical technician at the Salisbury Fire Department, in 1991 she saved the life of a Parkside student who was the victim of an act of violence at the school. She is also active in her church, helping with food bank

Chamber Choir Performs Spring Concert

The Chamber Choir performs its annual Spring Concert on Monday and Tuesday, May 2 and 3, at 8 p.m., in the Great Hall of Holloway Hall. The concert is free and the public is invited.

The program consists of John Rutter's "O Clap Your Hands" and "Five Childhood Lyrics," Orlando di Lasso's "Echo Song," Alice Parker's arrangement of "Hark! I Hear the Harps Eternal," Gabriel Faure's "Pavane" sung in French, "Three Portraits of Stephen Foster" arranged by Edwin Fissinger, "Mary, Molly and June" for chorus and percussion by Vaclav Nelyhbel, and two American folksongs conducted by Niko Lampieri (a senior music major at SSU), "Polly Wolly Doodle" and "Oh Dear! What Can the Matter Be?"

The evening performances are identical both nights.

Classical Guitar Concert By Peabody Student

Peabody Conservatory student Stephen Turley performs a Classical Guitar Concert on Sunday, May 1, at 2 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

Sponsored by the Faculty Cultural Events Committee, the event is free and open to the public.

Turley, guitar student of Manuel Barrueco, made his European debut as a top place receiver in the 1991 Nicolo Paganini International Guitar Competition, held in Moneglia, Italy. Soon the local Italian newspaper printed of his "firm technique and artistic personality rich of expression and poetry." In doing so he was the first American ever to receive a top place in the competition.

A reception in the Guerrieri Center lounge immediately follows the concert. For more information please call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Hershey Park Discount Coupons

Hershey Park, Hershey Museum and Hershey Garden discount coupons for the 1994 summer season are available in the Personnel Office, Holloway Hall, Room 222. There are also coupons available for $150 in savings when making purchases at the V F Outlet Village complex in Reading, PA and 10 percent discount coupons on lodging near Hershey Park.

Winners Named In Chemcomp

The Chemistry Department congratulates the winners and all participants in the first annual Chemcomp, an innovative competition among high school chemistry students. The event, which was sponsored by the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. of Salisbury and the Henson School of Science and Technology, was held on campus recently.

The team champion in the Advanced Placement Division was James M. Bennett Senior High School. Team members were Aaron Tustin, Merissa Hack and Mike Gilchrist. Stephen Decatur High School, featuring teammates Chris Smith and Stephanie Price, took second and Parkside High School, with Jay Walker, Jaime Culver and Jennifer Von Paris, took third.

In the First Year Division, James M. Bennett also took first place honors with its team of Scott Rosenkranz, Doug Rudnick and Vinay Chandrasekhara. Second place went to Stephen Decatur's team made up of Kris Gibbons, Matt Anderson and Jennifer Knox. In third was the Pocomoke High School team of Robby Swift, Dan Dudis and Rachel Tittermary.

Chemcomp attracted six area schools and 27 total participants. For more information call Mary Antfinger-Norton of the Chemistry Department at 543-3572.

Campolo Is Prayer Breakfast Speaker

Tony Campolo, educator, motivational business consultant, pastor and author, gives the message at the 19th annual Salisbury Mayors' Prayer Breakfast, Thursday, May 12, at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center at 7:30 p.m.

Campolo is a professor of sociology at Eastern College in St. Davids, PA, where he also completed his undergraduate work. He is a graduate of Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary and earned his Ph.D. at Temple University.

Active in bringing his faith to bear on issues of social justice, Campolo is president and founder of the Evangelical Association for the Promotion of Education, an organization committed to ministry in social programs in "less developed countries" as well as with at-risk children in urban America. He is also an associate pastor of the Mt. Carmel Baptist Church in West Philadelphia and minister-at-large for World Concern, based in Seattle, WA.

He is the author of 23 books and numerous journal articles. His books include the best-sellers, Twenty Hot Potatoes Christians Are Afraid To Touch, The Kingdom of God Is a Party, A Reasonable Faith, Things We Wish We Had Said and Who Switched the Price Tags?

Tickets are $12 and must be purchased in advance. The general public is invited. Tables may be reserved for groups of 10. For tickets write the Salisbury Mayor's Prayer Breakfast Planning Committee at 3963 Alderney Mews, Salisbury, MD 21801-8202.

Gullapalooza II Concert Benefits Habitat

WSUR, SSU's student-run radio station, sponsors Gullapalooza II, a charity concert benefitting the SSU chapter of Habitat for Humanity.

The concert is on Saturday, April 30 (rain date May 7), from 11 a.m.-7 p.m. in front of the Powell Dining Hall in the center of the campus. Admission is free and the public is invited; however, donations to Habitat will be accepted.

Performers include Boondoggle, Anojoke, Laughing Colors, Bovox Clown, Gladbag, 18 Days, Lazy Susan and Skunks. Last year's Gullapalooza raised over $1,500 for Habitat.

Additional sponsors of the event are University Dining Services and Pepsi-Cola of Salisbury.

For more information call WSUR at 543-6195.

Attention May 1994 Graduates

Because of the increasing number of graduates, and the seating capacity of the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center, the University Graduation Committee issues tickets for guests attending each graduation ceremony. Tickets were first issued for the December 1992 graduation.

Each May graduate will be provided six guest tickets.

Please note the following dates and deadlines:

April 26-29 Pick up caps, gowns, announcements and tickets at the graduation center in the Book Rack. Students who are not able to pick up their graduation items because they are student teaching outside the area or otherwise not on campus may contact Nancy Watson or Lisa Gray at the Book Rack (543-6085) to make special arrangements. Please return any tickets not needed to the Guerrieri University Center information desk.

May 18-27 If extra guest tickets do become available they will be distributed at the Guerrieri Center information desk on a first come, first served basis. During this time do not anticipate more than one ticket per graduate.

May 28 Graduation exercises are at 10 a.m. at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

More information on the foregoing will be available throughout the semester. Check regularly in the newsletter, Flyer and MAX for details.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Sophanes Present Comedy, The Heidi Chronicles

The first original play written by a woman to win the Tony Award, Broadway's highest honor, closes the University's theatre season. Wendy Wasserstein's Pulitzer Prize-winning comedy, The Heidi Chronicles, opens Friday, May 6, in Fulton Hall Theatre and runs for two weekends.

Produced by Sophanes, the student theatre club, The Heidi Chronicles marks the players' 60th anniversary. Production of the season's closing play by the drama association, one of the oldest extant campus organizations, has become an annual tradition. The Heidi Chronicles is acted, directed and designed by students.

Opening on Broadway in 1989, Wasserstein's much-heralded comedy highlights "disillusioning moments in baby-boom history," according to Newsweek critic, Jack Kroll.

"The Heidi of the title is an art historian, an intelligent and sensitive woman who moves from 1965 to 1989," picking her way through the ideological thickets of those years, "only to find that the goal of her generation, to become an independent woman in a male world, brings emptiness with it," said critic Gerald Weales.

But "her message comes in a bright comic package, full of gags that skewer everything from consciousness-raising groups to power lunches to TV talk shows," added Kroll.

Leading the cast is Tricia Sherrer as Heidi, with her best female friend, Susan, played by Amy Black. The men in her life, Scoop, a philandering lawyer/editor/politician, is portrayed by John Warren, and Peter, a gay pediatrician, by Lee Stanford.

Cynthia Lasner directs. Set design is by Bill Magee, lighting design by Joe Hopkins.

Performances are Friday and Saturday, May 6-7, and Wednesday-Saturday, May 11-14, at 8 p.m., with a matinee Sunday, May 8, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $6 for adults, $4 for children and senior citizens, those with an SSU ID admitted free. For reservations contact the Box Office at 543-6228.

Folklore, Education Analyzed at Meeting

On the weekend of April 29-May 1, the Middle Atlantic Folklife Association holds its annual meeting at Salisbury State University. Folklorists from throughout the mid-Atlantic region will gather for presentations and information-sharing on "Folklore and Education," the theme for this year's meeting.

The Department of English and the Research Center for Delmarva History and Culture are co-sponsors of the event.

The main sessions, on Saturday, April 30, begin at 9:15 a.m. in the Guerrieri University Center and end at 3:15 p.m. A fee of $6 will be assessed; scholarships are, however, available.

For further information call Dr. Polly Stewart at 548-4241.

Literary 'Rogues' Topic of Discussion

The traditional function of fictional villains is to raise questions about the nature and origin of evil. Beginning May 18, the Worcester County Library hosts a "Let's Talk About It" reading and discussion series called "Rogues' Gallery: The Folks You Love To Hate."

Starting with Iago in Shakespeare's Othello, a panoply of villains will be considered in the series which meets bi-weekly for 10 weeks in the garden of the library in Snow Hill (307 N. Washington St.). The reading and discussion program begin at noon. Copies of the books are available by contacting the library. There is no charge.

Scholars introduce each work, giving a short presentation about the author and how the readings relate to the overall theme. Following the scholar's lecture, the participants may ask questions, offer their comments and critiques and respond to each other. Scholars participating in this series and the works they will discuss are as follows: Othello, Keith Hudson, independent scholar; Frankenstein, Dr. James Hatley, SSU; Stories of Edgar Allan Poe, Nan Hayes, SSU; Hedda Gabler, Dr. Richard Keenan, UMES; and The Silence of the Lambs, Dr. Susan Cabral, SSU.

Rogues Gallery is sponsored by the Delaware Library Association with funding from the National Endowment for the Humanities. To register or for more information contact Louise Ash 632-2600.

SPRING DANCE CONCERT-Styles of dance from classicism to urban hip hop are featured in the Spring Dance Concert. Pictured, left to right, are Heather Curran, Jennifer Ruff and Kristy Ena. Performances of the one-hour concert are Wednesday, April 27, and Friday and Saturday, April 29-30, at 8 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Tickets are available at the door. The performance is free for SSU faculty, students and staff with ID.

PSAC Update: Administrator Pay Raises

The President's Staff Advisory Council (PSAC) met recently with Dr. Bellavance and Richard Pusey, director of business and finance, to discuss concerns or questions raised by staff. Highlights of these discussions are published in the SSU News to keep staff informed. The full minutes of the meetings are on reserve at Blackwell Library.

Some administrators received raises greater than the $500 which most received this year. It appears that those who received adjustments did not have unusual increases in job responsibilities. This raises concern about the connection between job performance and compensation. Most staff have felt over the past three years that "we were all in the same boat" on this issue, but since some staff were recognized this year without clear cause, resentment and confusion have resulted.

Pusey explained that administrators who received more than $500 received it because of one of three reasons—reorganization, additional duties or prior commitments. There is not a clear method for supervisors to request salary adjustments. Pusey is currently in the process of documenting the process. Supervisors requesting salary adjustments should make requests to their dean or supervisor by June 1.

Members of the PSAC are Linda Abresch, Dennis Bradford, Lesley Dayton, Jackie Eberts, Bob Meigel, Jerry Waldron and Jeanette Wolinski. Abresch and Waldron also represent SSU on the Council of University System Staff. Staff who have questions or concerns related to either campus or system policies may contact any PSAC member.

Attention Graduating Loan Borrowers

All students graduating in May who borrowed under the Federal Stafford/SLS loan program are required to attend an exit interview with financial aid personnel. It is mandatory that those students attend one of the following sessions: May 9, May 10, May 11 or May 12 at 4:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

For those who do not attend, their school records and diploma will be held. Students on internship, working, student teaching, team practice, etc., must make arrangements to attend.

Campus Greenhouse Sale Is Upcoming

A campus greenhouse sale is scheduled for April 27, 28, 29 and May 4, 5 and 6 from 11 a.m.-1 p.m. each day.

Featured in the sale are annuals (salvia, vinca, impatiens, petunia, ageratum, celosia), herbs (sage, thyme, catnip, oregano, basil, parsley), veggies (tomatoes, lettuce, peppers, broccoli, eggplant) and containers (baskets, window boxes, terra bowls, garden bowls, patio containers).

Wellness Day May 4

The ninth annual Wellness Day is on May 4, from 11 a.m.-3 p.m. This year's theme is "Risky Business, Protect Yourself." Everyone is invited to an entertaining program.

Maintenance Mechanic Senior

The Physical Plant is seeking to fill a maintenance mechanic senior position from in-house permanent or contractual personnel. This is a full-time state position, with benefits, for a semi-skilled worker in general building maintenance and equipment monitoring.

Minimum qualifications include four years of recent full-time paid employment in any combination of the maintenance trades provided that at least three years of such experience shall have been concerned primarily with the trades of electricity, plumbing, steamfitting, refrigeration or air-conditioning.

Salary range is $16,735-$19,851. The five day/40 hour work week includes weekends as dictated by rotating shift schedule. The employee will perform routine preventive maintenance and repair work on mechanical equipment, fixtures and various building components. The ability to read and interpret pressure and temperature gauges and maintain written log of activities is required. Knowledge of hot water boilers is desired. Apply to the Personnel Office, Holloway Hall, Room 222 no later than April 29.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Chemistry

The Department of Chemistry invites applications for visiting assistant professor positions. The initial contract period is for one year, but is renewable by mutual consent to a total of three years.

A Ph.D. in chemistry and a strong commitment to teaching at the undergraduate level are required. Teaching duties include general chemistry and/or organic chemistry lectures and labs, selected upper division courses, and General Education courses. Salary is commensurate with qualifications.

Send resume and a description of teaching goals to Dr. John Tyvoll, Chemistry Search Committee, Department of Chemistry, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Personnel Office Needs Address Updates

University employees who have not already done so, please notify the Personnel Office (Holloway Hall, Room 222, 543-6035 or 548-4755) of any changes to your home mailing address. Don't put it off—get your notification forms now so they may be completed and processed prior to the end of this school year.

Many homes had address changes due to the implementation of 911 services. It is important to keep the Personnel Office up-to-date with address changes—telling the clerk or secretary in the office where you work is not sufficient.

There are three separate forms to be completed. All are returned to the Personnel Office for mailing/forwarding to Baltimore, Annapolis and the on-campus computer file.

Rally Supports Cultural Diversity

A "Unity Rally" to show support for cultural diversity on campus is scheduled for Wednesday, April 27, at 6 p.m. in front of the Powell Dining Hall. Sponsored by the Human Relations Committee, everyone is invited to attend.

UAS Forum Scheduled for April 28

A forum, "Union of African-American Students: It's A Black Thing. But, Do You Understand?" takes place on Thursday, April 28, at 7 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. The purpose of the forum is to educate the campus on the purpose and history of the Union of African-American Students. Any questions, comments or concerns about the UAS will be addressed.

Cultural Diversity Art Exhibit

Attention all artists and art lovers. The Human Relations Committee is sponsoring an art exhibit featuring works with the theme of "Cultural Diversity."

All contributions will be presented on campus during the summer session and fall semester, exact location to be announced. Please submit works to the Dean of Student's Office (second floor of the Guerrieri University Center) by Friday, May 6. Along with the artwork, please attach your name, year and major. All works will be returned upon request. All are encouraged to enter more than one submission.

Applications may be picked up in the Dean of Students Office. No work will be exhibited without a completed application form.

Attention Seniors, Mailing of Yearbooks

The 1994 Evergreen yearbook will be shipped to all seniors featured in the book. Those who purchased an Evergreen will also receive a book in the mail in September.

Unfortunately, the post office does not forward book rate mailings; therefore, it is imperative that the Evergreen staff has a valid mailing address the first time it mails someone's book. Please contact the Evergreen in writing if the address you gave at the sitting may not be valid in September (SSU Box 3061). Students may want to send yearbooks to parents or a relative.

Baby Photo Contest In Guerrieri Center

The photos featuring the "ancient cherubs" are being placed in the glass case on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center (GUC). The contest is open to all students, excluding student staff of the Dean of Students Office.

Entry forms are available in the Dean of Students Office, GUC, Room 212. Deadline for entry is Friday, May 13 (one entry per person). Prizes will be awarded. Winner(s) will be randomly drawn from all correct entries.

Neuman Club Hosts 'Sexuality' Discussion

AIDS and condoms have become household words. Sexually transmitted diseases are at an all-time high. How do these facts affect teens and young adults? Is the sexual revolution of the '60s spinning out of control?

On Saturday, April 30, at 7 p.m., an in-depth look at these issues takes place in Caruthers Hall Auditorium. Discussion topics include the AIDS epidemic, condom effectiveness and how a sexually permissive society impacts children, families and the future.

Hosted by the Neuman Club, the symposium "Public Health Issues: Sexuality and Social Impact" features nationally-known speakers Dr. Wade F. Horn, Paul C. Webster and Kathy Kay, R.N. The symposium format allows for an open exchange of ideas and comments at its conclusion.

Kay, who is motivated by a deep concern for family and community, has used her experiences and background as a nurse to make a difference in the war against "poor legislation in local government." Her most notable media experiences include appearances on "Larry King Live," "Straight Talk" on CBN and "Channel 9 Live" in Los Angeles where she debated Dr. Jack Kevorkian. Her video, "No Second Chance," was recently featured on "20/20."

Horn, who holds a Ph.D. in child psychology, is director of the National Fatherhood Initiative whose goal is to address the issue of fatherlessness in America and its impact on children by reconnecting men to fatherhood and male responsibility. From 1989-1993, Horn served on the Commission for Children, Youth and Families and was chief of the Children's Bureau within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. He was also a presidential appointee from 1990-1993 to the National Commission on Children. Prior to that Horn served as director of outpatient psychological services at Children's Hospital at the National Medical Center in Washington, D.C. and associate professor of psychiatry and behavioral sciences at George Washington University.

Webster holds a master's degree in public administration from the University of Southern California and currently serves as executive director of the Chesapeake Research Institute, a non-profit research and education organization based in the Baltimore area. In addition, Webster has experience and done research in health care, privatization and family and community empowerment. Webster feels it is important to get the medical facts out into the public area. "Afterall," he said, "these are public health and safety issues that have deadly consequences."

The Neuman Club encourages the community to attend; there is no charge. For more information contact Dr. Tim Miller in the History Department at 543-6245.

Toi Derricotte

Poet Toi Derricotte Reads from Work

The Department of English, the Cultural Affairs Board and the Office of Minority Affairs present poet Toi Derricotte reading from her work at 8 p.m. on Thursday, May 5, in Fulton Hall, Room 111.

Derricotte has published three volumes: The Empress In The Death House (Lotus Press, 1978), Natural Birth (Crossing Press, 1983) and Captivity (University of Pittsburgh Press, 1989). Captivity was the recipient of the Folger Shakespeare Library Poetry Committee Book Award.

Among her other awards are two Fellowships in Creative Writing from the National Endowment for the Arts (1985 and 1990), the Lucille Medwick Memorial Award from the Poetry Society of America (1985) and a Pushcart Prize (1989). In 1993 she received the Distinguished Pioneering of the Arts Award from United Black Artists, Inc.

Her work has appeared in The American Poetry Review, The Kenyon Review, The Paris Review, Callaloo and numerous other journals and anthologies and has been praised by Adrienne Rich, who described her poems as "strong, sensuous, original, courageous."

The reading is free and open to the public. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Math Club Has Spring Picnic

The Math Club's spring picnic is on Saturday, May 7. A van leaves at 12:15 p.m. to Mary Lou Malone's house where the picnic will be held. To reserve a seat on the van or to get directions, contact Dr. Kathleen Shannon at 543-6476. There will be canoeing and volleyball. The van returns by 5 p.m.

An upcoming T-shirt sale will be in the Guerrieri University Center featuring reduced prices.

The Math Club meets every second and fourth Tuesday at 3:45 p.m. in the Power Professional Building, Room 117.

Alum Top Teacher In Worcester County

Jamie Griswold, Class of 1988, a teacher at Pocumoke Elementary School, was named the 1994 Worcester County School Teacher of the Year at a recent awards ceremony.

Characterized by colleagues and students as "...zany, creative, funloving, dynamic, capable and giving," she is a member of numerous school committees. She is a classroom management coach for new teachers, and tutors children after school and is a mentor to disadvantaged children.

One of her students wrote: "She is never boring; she never loses her temper or yells; she never makes the work too easy; she cheers us up when we don't feel good."

A parent wrote: "It was a special treat to be able to see my son through her eyes. She brought out qualities in him that were unknown to us."

Small Active With Honor Societies

Dr. Clara L. Small, assistant professor of history, is serving on the governing bodies of two international honor societies, Pi Gamma Mu and Phi Alpha Theta.

Pi Gamma Mu is the international honor society for the social sciences. Founded in 1924, the primary objectives of the organization are to encourage the study of the social sciences among graduate and undergraduate students and faculty members in colleges and universities throughout the world, to recognize outstanding achievement in the area and to present various awards for distinguished achievement.

Maryland Gamma, SSU's chapter of Pi Gamma Mu, was organized in 1983 by Small. Since its inception she has served as one of its co-advisors with Dr. G. Ray Thompson and Dr. Greg Ference. Since 1991 Small has served as a member of the board of trustees and as the chancellor of the North East Region for Pi Gamma Mu. Her responsibilities include the overseeing of initiations, the resolution of conflicts and the certification of prospective chapters for membership. Just prior to Pi Gamma Mu's international conference in Omaha, NE, Small was elected to a second term as chancellor of the North East Region.

The second honor society, Phi Alpha Theta, is the international honor society in history. Founded in 1921, it has as its goal the promotion of the study of history through the encouragement of research, good teaching, publication and the exchange of learning and ideas among historians. It seeks to bring students, teachers and writers of history together both intellectually and socially. It encourages and assists, in a variety of ways, including historical research and publication by its members.

Since coming to SSU in 1977, Small has served as co-advisor to Phi Alpha Theta also with Thompson, Ference and Dr. Jeanne Whitney. At the recent biennial convention of Phi Alpha Theta in Allentown, PA, Small was appointed to the National Paper Prize Committee and is slated to serve for a six-year term, expiring in 1999. The committee reviews the undergraduate and graduate papers entered each year for scholarships and awards.

Archaeology Week Program in Snow Hill

A program celebrating Maryland Archaeology Week (April 23-May 1) is at the Worcester County library on Friday, April 29, at 7:30 p.m.

"Archaeology at home: Finding history all around you" will be presented by Edward F. Heite of Heite Consulting, Camden, DE. Heite will discuss the techniques for tracing the history of an individual property, both in the records and in the physical remains. A slide presentation on the William D. Pitts Collection of Land Survey Records will also be offered by Louise Ash, coordinator of community services for the library.

The library is located in Snow Hill at 307 N. Washington St. There is no admission charge. For more information, call Ash at 632-2600.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

Last Friday's men's tennis victory over Rowan College marked the end of an era in SSU athletics as Head Coach Dean Burroughs officially capped his 21-year career. Burroughs, who had announced his retirement prior to the 1994 season, walks away with a stellar 289-108 record, including 11-4 this season. Under his tutelage, the Sea Gulls have won over 70 percent of their matches and posted winning records in 15 of the last 16 seasons. His accomplishments also include six NCAA tournament appearances and five conference championships.

"It's been a wonderful experience and I wouldn't trade the last 21 years for anything in the world," said Burroughs. "It's just time for a new venture and the time is right to turn over the program to a new person."

While the men's tennis team closed down its season, the men's lacrosse team seems to be peaking as the NCAA Tournament approaches. Coming off back-to-back wins against then-number one Nazareth (21-2) and fifth ranked Washington (13-8), the Sea Gulls have moved into the number one spot in this week's USILA Division III poll.

SSU, 12-0 overall, will try to complete its second straight undefeated regular season when it visits West Chester on Saturday. Noting an individual milestone, sophomore Jason Coffman scored two goals against Washington to become the ninth SSU player ever to register 100 career goals.

With a 7-3 record and number seven ranking in the most recent BRINE poll, the women's lacrosse team is also still in the hunt for a berth in the NCAA Tournament. The Gulls cap the regular season with visits to St. Mary's and Washington this week.

The men's and women's track teams enjoyed productive days at the annual SSU Invitational Meet last Saturday. The men's team scored 178 points to outdistance the nine-team field and capture top honors, while the women's team finished second to Christopher Newport. Senior Dan Quinn became the third Sea Gull to qualify for the NCAA Outdoor Championships with a throw of 167'2" in the hammer.

Graduating seniors of the Department of Art show off their finest works in a farewell exhibit opening Saturday, April 30, in the University Gallery. A public reception honoring the 33 young artists is from 7-9 p.m. This, the 21st Senior Art Exhibit, continues through May 20 in Fulton Hall. Two and three dimensional pieces, from photography to sculpture, will be on display. For more information call 543-6270.

Wheelchair Games Has Rugby Match

The Maryland Wheelchair Athletic Games are on the campus Friday, April 29-Sunday, May 1. There will be about 120 athletes with that number split evenly between adults and juniors.

A special event for the games is Friday at 8 p.m.—a quad rugby demonstration in Maggs Gym. SSU's rugby team, also in wheelchairs, will play the quads.

Schedule of Events:
Friday, April 29

MAY 1994 COMMENCEMENT INFORMATION

(Please read carefully!)

1. Commencement will be held at 10 a.m., Saturday, May 28, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. ADMISSION WILL BE BY TICKET ONLY. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 9 a.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center (see Nos. 15-19 for location).
2. The commencement speaker will be Dr. Vera King Farris, president, The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey.
3. Physically Disabled Guests - Accessible seating is provided on the main floor of the arena. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.
4. Hearing Impaired Guests - Signers are present for the entire graduation ceremony. Seating for an optimum view of the individual(s) signing is in the first level of the grandstands close to and on either side of the stage. Seating is not reserved, therefore, early arrival is suggested. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.
5. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.
6. Caps, gowns, master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through the Book Rack beginning Tuesday, April 26, until Friday, April 29. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours are Monday-Thursday, 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. GRADUATES MUST PICK UP THE NECESSARY ITEMS ON OR BEFORE 2 P.M. ON FRIDAY, MAY 27.
- TICKETS FOR GRADUATION WILL BE DISTRIBUTED BY THE BOOK RACK UNTIL MAY 18, 1994. EACH STUDENT WILL BE LIMITED TO SIX TICKETS EACH. IF YOU DO NOT NEED ALL SIX TICKETS YOU SHOULD RETURN THE EXTRAS TO THE GUERRIERI UNIVERSITY CENTER INFORMATION DESK. GUESTS ARE REQUIRED TO BE SEATED BY 9:45 A.M.**
- ANY STUDENT WHO PICKS UP HIS OR HER CAP AND GOWN AFTER MAY 18 WILL NOT BE GUARANTEED SIX TICKETS FOR GRADUATION.**
- Students may leave personal property in Flanders Room No. 1 during the graduation ceremony when the room will be locked. It will be unlocked when the ceremony is over and students may pick up their possessions at that time. SSU will not be responsible for these items; students are therefore encouraged to leave valuables with family or friends.
7. Students will first be awarded degrees by school (e.g., School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Dr. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.
8. Then students will individually be awarded their diploma. The faculty marshals will have given each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be handed to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name to Dr. Butler, who will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. THE NAME ON THE CARD MUST NOT BE CHANGED FOR ANY REASON.
9. GRADUATES AND FACULTY ARE TO RETURN TO THE AREA WHERE THEY ASSEMBLED PRIOR TO THE CEREMONY. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.
10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the SSU Alumni Association, and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State.
11. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the commencement exercises MUST notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6158 no later than Monday, May 23. All graduates will receive a blank folder at commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.
12. The Department of Nursing will hold its Nursing Convocation on Friday, May 27, at 7 p.m. in Holloway

Hall Auditorium with a reception following the ceremony in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

13. The ROTC Commissioning Ceremony will take place at 2:30 p.m. in the Great Hall in Holloway Hall on Saturday, May 28, with a reception following in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

14. Faculty and staff should enter through the Midway Room entrance and line up for the processional at 9:15 a.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should inform their respective school dean.

15. BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through the letter G, report to DR. JOHN TYVOLL AND MS. LISA SELDOMBRIDGE. When entering the main entrance of the Civic Center, go to the left corridor at the rear and line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). Sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the side aisle.

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates beginning with the letter H through the letter O report to DRS. BEN GREENE AND MIKE GARNER. When entering the main entrance of the Civic Center, go to the left corridor and enter one of the doors labeled "Flanders, Rooms 2 through 6." DRS. GREENE AND GARNER will line you up alphabetically in the Flanders area. Sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the side aisle.

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates beginning with the letter P through Z go to the left corridor after entering the main entrance of the Civic Center and report to DR. CAROLYN BOWDEN AND MRS. JO LAIRD. Line up alphabetically along the windows facing the front of the building. Sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seat via the side aisle.

16. BACHELOR OF ARTS candidates assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after entering the front doors, on the side nearest the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through the letter M report to DRS. HOMER AUSTIN AND LEE MAY at the rear of the corridor and line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). Sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

BACHELOR OF ARTS candidates with last names beginning with the letter N through the letter Z also go to the right after entering the front doors of the Civic Center, but go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to DRS. FRANCES KENDALL AND GERALD ST. MARTIN. Line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. Sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

17. BACHELOR OF FINE ARTS (B.F.A.) candidates also go to the right after entering the front doors of the Civic Center. Proceed to the rear of the corridor facing toward the back of the building and report to DR. LEE MAY. Line up according to DR. MAY's direction and sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seat via the center aisle.

18. BACHELOR OF ARTS IN SOCIAL WORK (B.A.S.W.) candidates also go to the right after entering the front doors of the Civic Center. Proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to DR. MARY ELLEN ELWELL. Line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. Sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

19. ALL MASTER'S DEGREE candidates (M.A., M.S., M.B.A. and M.Ed.) enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park) and report to a faculty marshal in that corridor.

M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates report to DR. STEVE GEHRICH. Line up according to his direction, alphabetically by degree, and sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

M.Ed. candidates report to DR. JACK WULFF

and line up alphabetically at his direction. Sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

20. DRESS CODE

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

- A. Women
 1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color)—no white or other light color.
 2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
 3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such. Kente cloths are permissible as well.

5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

- B. Men
 1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color)—no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
 2. Dark color socks—no white athletic socks.
 3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
 4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
 5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot).

(Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)

6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such. Kente cloths are permissible as well.

- C. Both
 1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) NO DECORATION OF ANY KIND IS TO BE PLACED ON THE MORTARBOARD.
 2. Honors students will have a gold and white hood. It is to be worn with the gold side out and the white inner lining turned out at the top, over the gold (like a collar). Gold cords would be worn under the honors hood.

3. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the Dr. Bellavance (and/or your faculty marshal).
4. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
5. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate who should face the audience and bend down a little. Faculty marshals will give you more specific information.

6. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Chappell Studio, Inc. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.
7. Candidates should not chew gum or tobacco.

21. GRADUATION DECORUM
Graduation ceremonies are, by their very nature, festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g. B.S., B.A., etc.).

Blackwell Library Receives $1,000 Gift From Safety Engineers Organization

The American Society of Safety Engineers (ASSE) recently donated $1,000 to Salisbury State for the purchase of books dealing with health and safety in the workplace.

In addition to the monetary gift, ASSE donated 30 books about occupational health and safety to Blackwell Library.

According to Robert E. Miller, safety officer at Horn Point Environmental Laboratories in Cambridge and chair of the Library Committee for ASSE, the gift was made to Salisbury State so that ASSE might "make current occupational health and safety literature available to safety professionals on the Eastern Shore and to students in SSU's new environmental health degree program."

"We expect this to be the beginning of on-going support for Salisbury State by ASSE," said Tom Culross, chairman of ASSE's Eastern Shore Section of the Chesapeake Chapter.

"This is a very valuable gift that students studying environmental health will find especially useful," said Dr. Elchia Venso, an environmental health faculty member at SSU.

Founded in 1911, the American Society of Safety Engineers is the world's oldest and largest professional safety organization. Its 30,300 members manage, supervise and consult on safety, health and environmental issues in industry, insurance, government and education. ASSE has 133 chapters and eight divisions in the United States and abroad.

The Eastern Shore Section of ASSE was founded in 1986 by Maryland Occupational Safety and Health Administration Regional Director Robert Short. The section is a part of the Chesapeake Chapter, based in Baltimore. The section has 35 members employed on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and lower Delaware.

The Eastern Shore Section provides safety expertise at the local level in three ways. First, the section offers a monthly activity each month from September to May. Most of these are luncheon meetings, but some years the May activity is a field trip. Field trips have included the DuPont plant in Seaford, the NASA base at Wallops Island and the Indian River Delmarva Power Plant.

Second the section offers safety training. The section sponsors a professional development conference each year.

Past seminars have included ergonomics, machine guarding and accident investigation.

Third, the section offers the chance to network among members. There is a lot of safety expertise within the section, and many problems are solved by finding a member who has the necessary information. If no one in the section can solve the problem, there is probably a member in the parent Chesapeake Chapter that can.

For more information about the section or its activities contact Culross at 860-4110.

Kraft, Benderly Give Views on Bosnia, Serbia, Croatia, Slovenia

Dr. Evan Kraft, assistant professor of economics in the Perdue School of Business, and Jill Benderly, independent scholar and activist, have been in wide demand for their work on ex-Yugoslavia. In February Kraft and Benderly gave joint lectures on the theme "What the daily newspapers don't tell you about the war in Bosnia." The two speakers were featured at the State University of New York at Purchase on February 18 and the Kehila Chadasha congregation in Washington, D.C. on February 27.

Kraft and Benderly argued that the conflict in Bosnia is not the result of "ancient ethnic hatreds," as the media claims. Explaining the history of external conflict and imperial rule in the Balkans, Kraft and Benderly examined the social and political origins of the conflict. Most tensions, they pointed out, stem from events within the current century. The disintegration of Yugoslavia in the 1980s and 1990s also has to do with different visions of political and economic development that emerged and might have been solved peacefully by transforming the Yugoslav federation into a loose confederation that allowed for high levels of autonomy for member republics. Not only did the centralist authorities in the Communist Party and the army oppose this, but the U.S. and West European powers found it more convenient to deal with one Yugoslavia than many states, Kraft and Benderly said.

In explaining the national conflicts in ex-Yugoslavia, Kraft and Benderly reminded audiences that the province of Kosovo, which is 90 percent ethnic Albanian, has been under Serbian martial law for four years. The Kosova Albanians have resisted with civil disobedience, but this region could become the next war zone.

Kraft and Benderly also described the widespread, but underreported, opposition to war. Bosnia is not about three ethnic or religious groups in conflict, but about Serbian and Croatian attempts to destroy the multiethnic fabric of Bosnian society. Serbs and Croats and Bosnians of mixed ethnicity are fighting together to save Sarajevo and other areas.

Peace movements in Serbia, Croatia, Slovenia and elsewhere continue to cooperate with one another, often using electronic mail to keep in contact. Draft desertion from the Serbian army is high among young men. Benderly described her experiences working with antiwar groups in Croatia and Serbia last summer, especially her work with feminist groups who have organized self-help projects for survivors of rape and other war violence. Refugees now need to improve their self-esteem and economic situation; to help meet that need, Benderly is a founder of Balkan Hands, a non-profit organization helping to develop handicraft projects among refugees, principally the weaving of traditional flat rugs or kilims.

Kraft and Benderly have recently completed writing and editing the manuscripts for the book Independent Slovenia: Origins, Movements, Prospects, of which they are co-editors. This volume of essays, which will be available from St. Martin's Press in August, explores the historical, cultural, political and economic origins of the drive for Slovene independence; the intellectuals, pacifists, punk rockers, feminists and trade unionist who created the social movements of the Slovene Spring; and the prospects for this new nation in Central Europe.

Kraft and Benderly's work on ex-Yugoslavia means frequent travel for their household. Kraft ventured to Slovenia last summer under a Fulbright grant, doing research at the Institute for Economic Research in Ljubljana. Benderly went to Montezuma, NM in February to facilitate a workshop on conflict resolution and organization development for women leaders from ethnic conflict zones in southeastern Europe. In April she will deliver a keynote speech at "Inciting Visions," the 13th annual gender studies symposium of Lewis & Clark College in Portland, OR. She has also written articles on Yugoslav feminism for two upcoming books: Feminist Nationalism, edited by Lois A. West, and From Partisans to Patriots: State-Society Relations in Yugoslavia, 1945-1992.

COOL Clearinghouse

COOL Clearinghouse serves as an information network to help individuals and groups interested in community service opportunities match themselves with community organizations which use volunteers. This project is sponsored by COOL-SSU, a student organization affiliated with the Campus Outreach Opportunity League. Organizations using this service are solely responsible for the conduct of sponsored service activities, including training and supervision. Volunteers assume sole responsibility for their conduct and for any risks associated with service activities. COOL Clearinghouse (410)543-6080.

DiGiovanna Attends Gerontology Meeting

Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna, associate professor of biology in the Henson School of Science and Technology, recently attended the annual meeting of the Association for Gerontology in Higher Education (AGHE) in Cleveland, OH.

Information and ideas encountered in the numerous presentations about gerontology and educational techniques and form exchanges with colleagues will help improve his course on human aging. DiGiovanna was appointed to and began participation in the AGHE Faculty Development Committee.

An additional outcome from attendance at this meeting is an increase in collaboration in the development of the gerontology programs at SSU and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

of its primary mirror. The HST's new optics now produce images of spectacular quality and with a high degree of quantitative accuracy, allowing the realization of the scientific performance originally expected when the HST was launched.

According to Weiler, "The goal of the Hubble Space Telescope is to extend our knowledge of the universe. A space-based telescope has the advantage of being in an environment free of the turbulence and absorption of the Earth's atmosphere."

"Prior to this mission," said Weiler, "astronomical telescopes in space had been designed to explore new wavelength bands not transmitted through the atmosphere. The HST was the first space telescope designed to overcome the blurring images caused by the atmosphere." The HST provides images 10 times sharper than the best images from the ground.

In addition to his role as program scientist for the HST, Weiler is the chief of ultraviolet/visible and gravitational astrophysics at NASA Headquarters in Washington, D.C. He joined NASA in 1978 and has held his current positions since 1979.

Weiler received his Ph.D. in astrophysics from Northwestern University in 1976. Prior to joining NASA he was a member of the Princeton University research team, based at the Goddard Space Flight Center where he was director of science operations of the Orbiting Astronomical Observatory (COPERNICUS).

In his role as program scientist, Weiler has acted as the chief scientific spokesperson for the Hubble Space Telescope and has appeared on a number of national TV programs including Nightline, Today and Good Morning America.

For more information about Weiler's presentation contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Orchestra's Spring Concert Has Shakespearean Roots

From a musical celebration of history to a glimpse of the area's cultural future, the Spring Concert by the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU offers a program sure to enlighten its audience.

The concert is set for Friday, May 21, at 8 p.m. and Saturday, May 22, at 2 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

History's best-known and best-loved playwright provided the inspiration for the music that opens the spring concert program. The SSO will perform Mendelssohn's "Overture" from A Midsummer Night's Dream, the bard's light comedy/fantasy.

A look ahead to our cultural future comes courtesy of the SSO's featured soloists: two young violinists from the Greater Salisbury Youth Symphony Orchestra, also directed by Dr. Thomas Elliot, musical director of the SSO. Rebecca Ruby and Suzanne Luscher will join the Orchestra to perform Bach's "Double Concerto for Two Violins and Orchestra." Both young women are familiar faces to fans of the Youth Orchestra. Luscher's name may also ring a bell with the SSO audience: her sister Alexia soloed last year and is a regular member of the Orchestra.

Those who brought their families to the SSO's "Contact 2001: The Symphony and Science in the 21st Century" in February got a bit of a preview of the performance. In that concert, the SSO performed the fourth movement of Dvorak's "Symphony No. 9 in e minor, Op. 95," his "New World" symphony. The Orchestra will perform the entire work at the spring concert.

In introducing the piece to his young audience, Elliot extended an invitation that is the hallmark of SSO concerts. "I've played your music for you," he told the crowd. "Now I want you to listen to a little of ours." The spring concert follows this pattern. Many of the selections will be familiar to music lovers of all tastes.

Elliot says that the popularity of Contact 2001 has led the SSO to plan more events for families. Plans are in the early stages for a possible performance of Peter and the Wolf in the '94-'95 season. Inspired by history, Aaron Copland's "Fanfare for the Common Man" and his "A Lincoln Portrait" will be performed in observance of Memorial Day. Both are popular favorites. The Lincoln piece, which will feature SSU's President Bellavance, as narrator, describes not only the life of Abraham Lincoln, but also Lincoln's feelings about preserving democracy, and the price paid by fallen soldiers.

Tickets for the concert are now available at all Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council outlets. Adults are admitted for $10; students and seniors pay $6. SSU faculty, staff and students are admitted free with ID. For more information about the SSO and its spring concert call 548-5587 or 543-ARTS.

Heidi Holland (Tricia Sherrer, right) finds being an independent woman in a male world (represented by Scoop, John Warren, left) carries a price. Wendy Wasserstein's thoughtful comedy, The Heidi Chronicles, plays May 6-7 and 11-14 in Fulton Hall Theatre. For reservations call the theatre box office at 543-6228.

Game, Set and Match
SSU's Burroughs Calls It a Career

By Bruce Bennett, Daily Times Writer

Dean Burroughs walked away from tennis recently. After serving as Salisbury State's head tennis coach for 21 years, Burroughs is stepping down.

Let the record show that Burroughs stepped down after defeating rival Rowan College 7-2, completing an 11-4 season with a team that graduated four of its top six players from the season before. Burroughs has had a winning season 14 of the last 15 years, winning 70 percent of his matches. The Sea Gulls have been to the NCAA national tournament six times and won the Eastern States Athletic Conference (ESAC) five straight years before switching to the Capital Athletic Conference this year (SSU finished second).

Burroughs, recently in charge of the men but in past years the head coach for both the men and the women, leaves with a career record of 289-108.

Coaching players that were born after he took the job at SSU, Burroughs now turns over the reins on a job that has had more than 40 applicants, including six former players.

"I have mixed emotions about it," Burroughs said. "I'm happy for the change. It's time to make the change for a lot of personal and professional reasons but I'm going to miss the guys, the team and the trips and all."

Burroughs told his team of his decision to step down at the fall meeting. He will continue at the University as the acting chair of the Physical Education Department.

"I thought about (leaving) when I made the decision and you think about it on that level, away from the courts and away from the team and its different," said Burroughs. "Now I've thought about it a lot more, and it's kind of hit me."

The decision to change a springtime ritual got mixed responses from home. "My 13-year-old (Michael) said, 'No way, You mean no more spring trips, no more tennis, no more hitting with the guys?' He didn't like it at all," Burroughs said.

His wife Roseanne was on the other side of the net. "Roseanne celebrated the minute I made the decision. A little short of putting candles on the cake and buying a new dress and all that, but it was close to it."

"For all these years she's been so very supportive and a coach needs that from his wife. Through all these years she's always been there and I couldn't have done it without her."

"I wouldn't trade the last 21 years for anything in the world. There have been so many good experiences for me and my family over the years."

What Burroughs may miss the most is not what he gives to his players and the

NASA Scientist Here To Discuss Hubble Space Telescope

Dr. Edward Weiler, program scientist for the Hubble Space Telescope (HST), visits SSU in May to discuss one of NASA's most historic projects including the HST's first servicing mission and early science images.

Weiler's presentation features dramatic in-orbit images of the astronauts repairing the Hubble Telescope. He will also share some of the Hubble's initial science images and discuss several "before and after" comparisons.

Weiler presents his program on Thursday, May 5, at 8 p.m. in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center. It is free and open to the public. The lecture is jointly sponsored by the Lower Eastern Shore Regional Technology Council and SSU's Henson School of Science and Technology. In his role as program scientist, Weiler has acted as the chief scientific spokesperson for the Hubble Space Telescope and has appeared on a number of national TV programs including Nightline, Today and Good Morning America.

For more information about Weiler's presentation contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Personnel Office Needs Address Updates

University employees who have not already done so, please notify the Personnel Office (Holloway Hall, Room 222, 543-6035 or 548-4755) of any changes to your home mailing address. Don't put it off—get your notification forms now so they may be completed and processed prior to the end of this school year.

Many homes had address changes due to the implementation of 911 services. It is important to keep the Personnel Office up-to-date with address changes—telling the clerk or secretary in the office where you work is not sufficient.

There are three separate forms to be completed. All are returned to the Personnel Office for mailing/forwarding to Baltimore, Annapolis and the on-campus computer file.

Poet Toi Derricotte Reads from Work

The Department of English, the Cultural Affairs Board and the Office of Minority Affairs present poet Toi Derricotte reading from her work at 8 p.m. on Thursday, May 5, in Fulton Hall, Room 111.

Derricotte has published three volumes: The Empress In The Death House (Lotus Press, 1978), Natural Birth (Crossing Press, 1983) and Captivity (University of Pittsburgh Press, 1989). Captivity was the recipient of the Folger Shakespeare Library Poetry Committee Book Award.

The reading is free and open to the public. For more information call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Sophanes Present Comedy, The Heidi Chronicles

The first original play written by a woman to win the Tony Award, Broadway's highest honor, closes the University's theatre season. Wendy Wasserstein's Pulitzer Prize-winning comedy, The Heidi Chronicles, opens Friday, May 6, in Fulton Hall Theatre and runs for two weekends.

Produced by Sophanes, the student theatre club, The Heidi Chronicles marks the players' 60th anniversary. Production of the season's closing play by the drama association, one of the oldest extant campus organizations, has become an annual tradition. The Heidi Chronicles is acted, directed and designed by students.

Performances are Friday and Saturday, May 6-7, and Wednesday-Saturday, May 11-14, at 8 p.m., with a matinee Sunday, May 8, at 2 p.m. Tickets are $6 for adults, $4 for children and senior citizens, those with an SSU ID admitted free. For reservations contact the Box Office at 543-6228.

Attention Graduating Loan Borrowers

All students graduating in May who borrowed under the Federal Stafford/SLS loan program are required to attend an exit interview with financial aid personnel. It is mandatory that those students attend one of the following sessions: May 9, May 10, May 11 or May 12 at 4:30 p.m. in the Nanticoke Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

For those who do not attend, their school records and diploma will be held. Students on internship, working, student teaching, team practice, etc., must make arrangements to attend.

The photos featuring the "ancient cherubs" are being placed in the glass case on the second floor of the Guerrieri University Center (GUC). The contest is open to all students, excluding student staff of the Dean of Students Office.

Entry forms are available in the Dean of Students Office, GUC, Room 212. Deadline for entry is Friday, May 13 (one entry per person). Prizes will be awarded. Winner(s) will be randomly drawn from all correct entries.

Math Club Has Spring Picnic

The Math Club's spring picnic is on Saturday, May 7. A van leaves at 12:15 p.m. to Mary Lou Malone's house where the picnic will be held. To reserve a seat on the van or to get directions, contact Dr. Kathleen Shannon at 543-6476. There will be canoeing and volleyball. The van returns by 5 p.m.

An upcoming T-shirt sale will be in the Guerrieri University Center featuring reduced prices.

The Math Club meets every second and fourth Tuesday at 3:45 p.m. in the Power Professional Building, Room 117.

Attention Seniors, Mailing of Yearbooks

The 1994 The Evergreen yearbook will be shipped to all seniors featured in the book. Those who purchased an Evergreen will also receive a book in the mail in September.

Unfortunately, the post office does not forward book rate mailings; therefore, it is imperative that The Evergreen staff has a valid mailing address the first time it mails someone's book. Please contact The Evergreen in writing if the address you gave at the sitting may not be valid in September (SSU Box 3061). Students may want to send yearbooks to parents or a relative.

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

World Population Expert Lectures Here May 18

Werner Fornos

Werner Fornos, president of The Population Institute and one of the foremost experts on global population issues, discusses "Gaining People, Losing Ground" on Wednesday, May 18, at 7:30 p.m.

His presentation, free and open to the public, is in Caruthers Auditorium.

Fornos has been at the forefront of the struggle to balance the world's population with the world's resources for more than 18 years. As Congressman Robert Torricelli (D-NJ), a member of the House of Representatives' Foreign Affairs Committee, has pointed out, "It would be wrong to say that Werner was part of a large apparatus of people fighting for population control in the world. There are many days when he looks like the entire fight himself."

Fornos' dedication to the issue of population growth has made him an internationally recognized leader in the field. He received Population Dynamics' 1980 Distinguished Population Service Award and was nominated for the 1993 United Nations Population Award. In 1991 he was made a Paul Harris Fellow by Rotary International and the American Humanist Association named him Humanist of the Year.

As head of The Population Institute, a Washington, D.C. based non-profit public interest group, Fornos devotes his time both to convincing leaders of poorer countries that reducing population growth is a key to development and to encouraging leaders of industrialized countries to help poorer countries achieve their demographic objectives. Since 1974 when he spoke to the World Population Conference in Bucharest, Romania, Fornos has taken his message to virtually every major forum involving global population problems and their solutions.

Fornos makes frequent national television and radio appearances and contributes newspaper and magazine articles which appear in such publications as The Washington Post, The New York Times Magazine and The Baltimore Sun. His book, Gaining People, Losing Ground, was published in 1990 by Science Press.

Fornos joined The Population Institute in 1978, becoming president in 1982. Prior to that he headed George Washington University's Population Information Program. A Maryland state legislator from 1966-70, he has also served as Maryland's Manpower Administrator and as U.S. Deputy Assistant Manpower Administrator.

For more information about Fornos' presentation call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Choral Concert Features Works of Percy Grainger

A "Percy Grainger Celebration" is on Sunday, May 15, at 2 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. The concert is presented by the Salisbury Choral Society and is in part sponsored by the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council and the Department of Music at SSU.

A collaborative effort between the Salisbury Choral Society, the SSU Chamber Choir and the SSU Wind Sinfonia, the performance features choral works by Grainger, accompanied by full concert band, wind ensemble and brass ensemble. Sea Chanty melodies ("What shall we do with the drunken sailor?") and such recognizable melodies like "Oh Danny Boy" are included with other compositions by the composer that are rarely performed. Conductors from the concert include Dr. Richard L. Johnson (SSU Wind Sinfonia), Dr. Duane R. Karna (Salisbury Choral Society) and senior SSU music major Niko Iampieri.

Tickets for the performance are $8 for adults, and $6 for senior citizens and students, free for SSU faculty, staff and students with ID. For more information call the Music Department at 543-6385.

Intramural Golf Tournament Is May 11

There is an intramural golf tournament on Wednesday, May 11, at Nutter's Crossing Golf Course. The cost is $12 per person for nine holes, including a cart. For information contact the Campus Recreation Office in the Maggs Activities Center.

Nursing Department Appreciates Donation

The Department of Nursing wishes to extend its gratitude to Hank May, college specialist for the Josten Company, for his generous donation of invitations for the Nursing Convocation.

Performance Today Begins on WSCL

Are you befuddled about how to upgrade your existing hi-fi system, confused by CD madness, or seeking advice on how to turn your car into a sound studio on wheels?

If you love music, but are unsure of the best way to listen to recordings of it, WSCL (89.5 FM) invites you to tune in this summer to its daily classical music magazine Performance Today. In eight Friday sessions, beginning June 3, audio expert Skip Pizzi will offer tips on how to get a better grasp on your personal listening environment. He'll also help assess audio equipment needs.

Performance Today is broadcast from 9-11 a.m. weekdays. "Like many listeners, I love music but have always felt technically challenged," said Performance Today host Martin Goldsmith. "I'm looking forward to Skip easing some of my 'technical' fear of flying."

"I'll discuss technology as a means to an artistically enjoyable end," said Pizzi, who promises an approach that will be decidedly mainstream.

SSU Student Qualifies For Powerlifting Championship

SSU undergraduate Michael Watson was recently selected as a member of Team USA for the 1994 World Powerlifting Championships. Watson and his teammates will be competing against athletes from the world in Bali, Indonesia from June 21-28.

Watson, a founding member of SSU's Powerlifting Club Team, qualified for Team USA as a result of his performances in drug-free competitions, his good sportsmanship and his Olympics potential. The Cinnaminson, NJ native has an impressive competitive background, including titles in the New Jersey State Championships, the East Coast Championships and the Junior National Championships in the last three years. Watson currently holds four national records in his weight class.

In order to represent his country, Watson needs sponsor support to help offset $7,000 in expenses. Those interested in providing financial assistance can send donations to USPF/IPF in care of Michael Watson, P.O. Box 114, University Square, 1147 S. Salisbury Blvd. Suite 8, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Students Read Works In Literary Festival

The Writers-on-the-Shore 1994 spring literary festival features several distinguished writers reading from their works. Students read from the SSU student publication The Scarab on Thursday, May 19, at 8 p.m. in Fulton Hall, Room 111. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Management

Nominations and applications are invited at the assistant and associate level for a management faculty position for fall in the Department of Management and Marketing in the Perdue School of Business (AACSB accredited).

Candidates will be expected to have earned doctorates in management from a business school and strong records in both teaching and research. The optimal candidate will be prepared to teach in two of the following areas: human resource management, labor relations, or business and society. Rank and salary, which are AACSB competitive, are open and commensurate with experience and record of scholarship.

The principal programs of the Perdue School include an M.B.A. program of approximately 100 students and an undergraduate student body of approximately 1,200 students pursuing degrees in accounting, business administration, economics and management information systems. The faculty of the Management and Marketing Department teach approximately 200 undergraduate students with declared concentrations in management and marketing.

Nominations and applications should include evidence of teaching excellence, three letters of recommendation and official transcripts of formal education and be forwarded by May 31 to Dr. George C. Rubenson, Search Committee Chair, Department of Management and Marketing, Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Social Work

The Social Work Department invites applicants for a tenure-track position in its social work/sociology dual degree program with the University of Maryland Eastern Shore.

Duties include coordination of the practice sequence, teaching practice courses and advisement. An earned doctorate in social work, a minimum of three years post M.S.W. direct practice experience and teaching experience at undergraduate level is required. Salary is commensurate with experience and education. Review of candidates' files begins May 23 and continues until the position is filled.

Send vitae and list of references to Dr. Mary Ellen Elwell, Chair, Search Committee, Social Work Department, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Cashier

Salisbury State has an immediate opening for a cashier in the University bookstore. Duties include cashiering, providing customer service and assisting with the receipt of merchandise as needed.

This is a 40-hour per week contractual position (no paid benefits) paying $5.80/hr. A high school education is required; previous experience in cashiering and customer service, preferably in a University setting is desirable. Knowledge of computers, data entry and receiving would be a plus.

Applications will be accepted in the Personnel Office, Room 222, Holloway Hall, until May 20.

Mathematical Sciences

The Department of Mathematics and Computer Science has a 10-month position starting August 15.

The successful candidate will have a master's degree, good teaching recommendations and a strong commitment to the blending of mathematics, statistics and computer science. Candidates must be able to communicate effectively in spoken and written English, and teach introductory mathematics courses for business and education majors.

Screening of applications begins June 1 and continues until the position is filled. In making a final decision, the department will consider the foregoing requirements, personal interviews with the candidate and a formal lecture on a topic of the candidate's choice.

Send a letter of application, resume and three letters of recommendation to Search Committee, Department of Mathematics and Computer Science, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

SSU Graduation Rates Of Degree-Seeking Undergrads Reported

The federal student Right to Know and Campus Security Act of 1990 (Public Law 101-542, as amended by Pub. L. 102-26, 1991) specifies that all colleges and universities disclose annually by July 1 the graduation rates of degree-seeking undergraduate students.

In accordance with provisions of that legislation, the graduation rate of SSU's first-time, full-time freshmen who entered in the fall 1987 semester and graduated by June 30, was 59.7 percent. (This rate is also known as a six-year graduation rate.) This rate compares favorably to a national average of 43 percent for public four-year institutions as reported in the introduction to the legislation.

The graduation rate does not take into account SSU freshmen who have transferred to, and possibly graduated from, other institutions of higher education since these data are unavailable. It is noteworthy that the four-year graduation rate of the 1987 SSU cohort was the highest in the University of Maryland System (the most recent comparative data available).

SSU's implementation of the campus security section of this legislation is described in a separate brochure available upon request from the Office of Public Safety. For further information about the graduation rates, contact the Office of Institutional Research, Holloway Hall, Room 135. As of this date, final regulations regarding this legislation have not been issued, so that the data and interpretations employed here are subject to change.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Ulm Presents Philadelphia Paper

Dr. Ronald Ulm of the Psychology Department will present a paper at the 150th annual convention of the American Psychiatric Association on May 24 in Philadelphia. Ulm's presentation will be the first in a series of five in a symposium titled "Opioid Involvement in Alcohol Dependence."

The three-hour symposium will detail the recent findings concerning the relationship between alcohol drinking and opiates, with special consideration to brain endorphins. Ulm's paper is titled "Opioids and Alcohol self-administration in animals." He will provide an overview of the history of research relating alcohol drinking and endorphin system of the brain and will also provide a context for the subsequent papers.

In the second paper, Dr. Janice Froehlich of the Indiana University School of Medicine will present research on genetic factors relating to alcohol drinking and opiates. Dr. Robert Swift of Brown University will present the effect of naltrexone (an opioid blocking agent) on human alcohol intoxication, and Dr. Stephanie O'Malley of Yale University will present a six month follow-up on naltrexone therapy for alcoholism. Finally, Dr. Joseph Volpicelli of the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine will provide recent findings using naltrexone with non-alcoholic drinkers.

The 150th anniversary of the American Psychiatric Association is being held in Philadelphia because it was at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia where Benjamin Rush first started the field that we know today as psychiatry.

Bus Trip Set To NYC Ballet

On Saturday, May 14, the SSU Dance Company is sponsoring a trip to see a matinee performance of the New York City Ballet at Lincoln Center. The bus leaves the Maggs Gym parking lot at 5:30 a.m. and returns at midnight. Cost for the bus is $20; tickets are extra and vary in price. Deadline for bus reservations is Monday, May 9. Call Dance Company Director Victoria Hutchinson at 543-6353 for more information including reservations.

Eastern Shore Tuition Assistance

Applications for the Eastern Shore Tuition Assistance Program are in the Financial Aid Office (Holloway Hall, Room 243). Applicants must be a junior or senior in the fall, commuting from home at least half time and residents of Northampton or Accomack county in Virginia. Deadline is July 1.

Faculty Symposium on Technology Center

A group of faculty from SSU presented a symposium at the annual meeting of the Eastern Educational Research Association recently. The title was "School-Community-University Partnerships: Steps to Support a Center for Technology in Education."

Initiated by Dr. John Bing of the Department of Education, the symposium included presentations by key players in the development of the SSU Center for Technology in Education. They included Wanda Wagner, director of the center, Merle Marsh, member of the planning committee for establishing the center, Sally Bing, a faculty member from UMES who is also involved in the establishment of the center, and Dr. Doran Christensen, dean of SSU's School of Education and Professional Studies.

The presentation included descriptions of the community role, the area school's role and the various universities' role in the center development. The vision and plans for the future of the "center" presented by Wagner was of particular interest. The range of potential services and benefits to the schools and the universities made clear the need for the center.

"The well attended session was received with enthusiasm and provided and opportunity for CTE persons to connect with professionals in other settings who were equally interested in educational technology," said Christensen.

MAY 1994 COMMENCEMENT INFORMATION

(Please read carefully!)

1. Commencement will be held at 10 a.m., Saturday, May 28, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. ADMISSION WILL BE BY TICKET ONLY. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 9 a.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center (see Nos. 15-19 for location).
2. The commencement speaker will be Dr. Vera King Farris, president, The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey.
3. Physically Disabled Guests - Accessible seating is provided on the main floor of the arena. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.
4. Hearing Impaired Guests - Signers are present for the entire graduation ceremony. Seating for an optimum view of the individual(s) signing is in the first level of the grandstands close to and on either side of the stage. Seating is not reserved, therefore, early arrival is suggested. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.
5. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.
6. Caps, gowns, master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through the Book Rack beginning Tuesday, April 26, until Friday, April 29. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours are Monday-Thursday, 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. GRADUATES MUST PICK UP THE NECESSARY ITEMS ON OR BEFORE 2 P.M. ON FRIDAY, MAY 27.
TICKETS FOR GRADUATION WILL BE DISTRIBUTED BY THE BOOK RACK UNTIL MAY 18, 1994. EACH STUDENT WILL BE LIMITED TO SIX TICKETS EACH. IF YOU DO NOT NEED ALL SIX TICKETS YOU SHOULD RETURN THE EXTRAS TO THE GUERRIERI UNIVERSITY CENTER INFORMATION DESK. GUESTS ARE REQUIRED TO BE SEATED BY 9:45 A.M.**
ANY STUDENT WHO PICKS UP HIS OR HER CAP AND GOWN AFTER MAY 18 WILL NOT BE GUARANTEED SIX TICKETS FOR GRADUATION.***
 Students may leave personal property in Flanders Room No. 1 during the graduation ceremony when the room will be locked. It will be unlocked when the ceremony is over and students may pick up their possessions at that time. SSU will not be responsible for these items; students are therefore encouraged to leave valuables with family or friends.
7. Students will first be awarded degrees by school (e.g., School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Dr. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.
8. Then students will individually be awarded their diploma. The faculty marshals will have given each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school (e.g., Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be handed to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name to Dr. Butler, who will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. THE NAME ON THE CARD MUST NOT BE CHANGED FOR ANY REASON.
9. GRADUATES AND FACULTY ARE TO RETURN TO THE AREA WHERE THEY ASSEMBLED PRIOR TO THE CEREMONY. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.
10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the SSU Alumni Association, and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State.
11. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the commencement exercises MUST notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6158 no later than Monday, May 23. All graduates will receive a blank folder at commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.
12. The Department of Nursing will hold its Nursing Convocation on Friday, May 27, at 7 p.m. in Holloway

Hall Auditorium with a reception following the ceremony in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

13. The ROTC Commissioning Ceremony will take place at 2:30 p.m. in the Great Hall in Holloway Hall on Saturday, May 28, with a reception following in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

14. Faculty and staff should enter through the Midway Room entrance and line up for the processional at 9:15 a.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should inform their respective school dean.

15. BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through the letter G, report to DR. JOHN TVVOLLAND and MS. LISA SELDOMRIDGE. When entering the main entrance of the Civic Center, go to the left corridor at the rear and line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). Sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the side aisle.

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates beginning with the letter H through the letter O report to DRS. BEN GREENE AND MIKE GARNER. When entering the main entrance of the Civic Center, go to the left corridor and enter one of the doors labeled "Flanders, Rooms 2 through 6." DRS. GREENE AND GARNER will line you up alphabetically in the Flanders area. Sit in Section 5 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the side aisle.

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates beginning with the letter P through Z go to the left corridor after entering the main entrance of the Civic Center and report to DR. CAROLYN BOWDEN AND MRS. JO LAIRD. Line up alphabetically along the windows facing the front of the building. Sit in Section 7 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seat via the side aisle.

16. BACHELOR OF ARTS candidates assemble in the south corridor of the Civic Center (to the right after entering the front doors, on the side nearest the park). Candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through the letter M report to DRS. HOMER AUSTIN AND LEE MAY at the rear of the corridor and line up alphabetically facing east (the rear of the building). Sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

BACHELOR OF ARTS candidates with last names beginning with the letter N through the letter Z also go to the right after entering the front doors of the Civic Center, but go to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to DRS. FRANCES KENDALL AND GERALD ST. MARTIN. Line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the rear of the building. Sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the section starting from the side aisle.

17. BACHELOR OF FINE ARTS (B.F.A.) candidates also go to the right after entering the front doors of the Civic Center. Proceed to the rear of the corridor facing toward the back of the building and report to DR. LEE MAY. Line up according to DR. MAY's direction and sit in Section 4 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seat via the center aisle.

18. BACHELOR OF ARTS IN SOCIAL WORK (B.A.S.W.) candidates also go to the right after entering the front doors of the Civic Center. Proceed to the cross corridor (leading to the Midway Room) and report to DR. MARY ELLEN ELWELL. Line up alphabetically in that corridor against the wall nearest the front of the building. Sit in Section 6 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

19. ALL MASTER'S DEGREE candidates (M.A., M.S., M.B.A. and M.Ed.) enter the Civic Center at the Midway Room front entrance (closest to the park) and report to a faculty marshal in that corridor.

M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates report to DR. STEVE GEHRICH. Line up according to his direction, alphabetically by degree, and sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

M.Ed. candidates report to DR. JACK WULFF

and line up alphabetically at his direction. Sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

20. DRESS CODE

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color)—no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such. Kente cloths are permissible as well.

5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) — no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.

2. Dark color socks — no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with Windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)

6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such. Kente cloths are permissible as well.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) NO DECORATION OF ANY KIND IS TO BE PLACED ON THE MORTARBOARD.

2. Honors students will have a gold and white hood. It is to be worn with the gold side out and the white inner lining turned out at the top, over the gold (like a collar). Gold cords would be worn under the honors hood.

3. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the Dr. Bellavance (and/or your faculty marshal).

4. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.

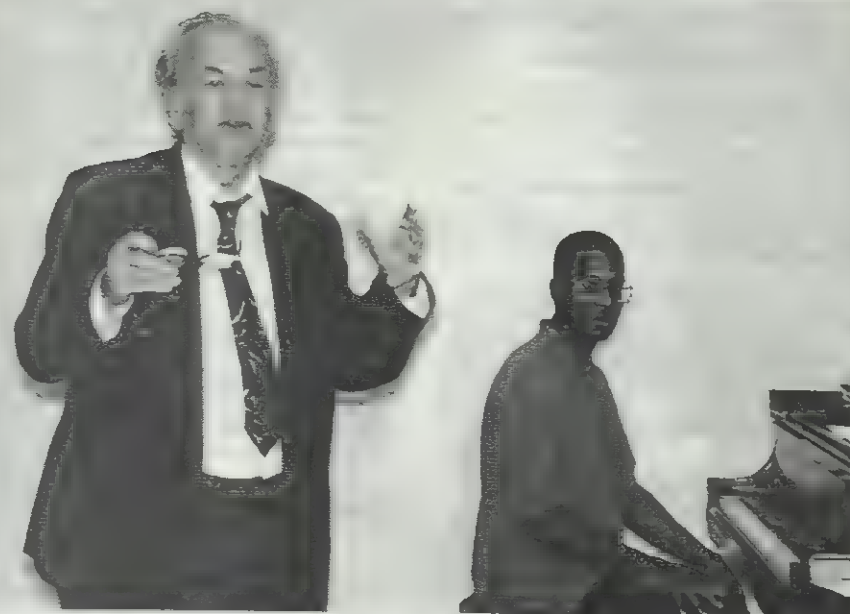

5. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate who should face the audience and bend down a little. Faculty marshals will give you more specific information.

6. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Chappell Studio, Inc. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

7. Candidates should not chew gum or tobacco.

21. GRADUATION DECORUM

Graduation ceremonies are, by their very nature, festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g. B.S., B.A., etc.).

Hungarian Conductor Visits Students Here

International composer Kamillo Lendvay of Hungary visited Salisbury recently to present two master classes/lectures with music and General Education students from SSU and UMES. Lendvay spoke on the music of Hungarian Bella Bartok (1881-1945) and lectured on contemporary Hungarian literature which included several examples of his own compositions.

Lendvay is traveling in the United States for 28 days with his wife and daughter under the sponsorship of the Hungarian government and contributions from the departments of Music of Salisbury State, Carroll College in Waukegan, WI, and Northern Iowa University.

Lendvay is a professor of music at the Liszt Academy of Music in Budapest, Hungary where he is head of the Department of Theory and teaches courses in music theory, composition, orchestration and Kodaly Solfeggio methods. Lendvay was elected chairman of the Hungarian composer's union in 1990 and has held the position of conductor and music director of the Operetta of Budapest, director of the Opera Chorus in Szeged, Hungary and director for the Ensemble of the Hungarian Army.

Lendvay was the guest of Dr. Richard L. Johnson, chair of the Department of Music, during his two-day stay in Maryland. Johnson, who had returned from the Liszt Academy in Budapest in January, was invited to lecture at the academy as the guest of Lazlo Marosi, professor of music at the Liszt Academy and conductor of the Central Wind Orchestra of the Hungarian Army. Johnson was continuing his research in 19th century wind literature at the Budapest Academy as well as in Italy as part of a 28 day research trip funded partially by the Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

Sea Gull Sports Roundup

For the second time in two weeks, the Sea Gull baseball team enjoyed a record-setting inning to propel it to a lopsided victory. On April 17, SSU scored a school-record 14 runs in the eighth inning against Frostburg State to win 15-2. Last Saturday, the Gulls broke the record again by scoring 17 runs in the sixth inning against Catholic to easily win the first game of a doubleheader 24-5.

SSU batted 20 men in last Saturday's historic inning, just four shy of the NCAA Division III single-inning record. The 17 runs was also just shy of the NCAA record of 20. The Gulls hit three home runs, three doubles and three singles in the inning, in addition to seven walks issued by Catholic pitchers.

SS Damon Garrison hit two homers in the sixth, connecting on a three-run shot as well as a two-run poke. Mike Brogden also batted a three-run homer, clearing the 400-foot center field fence with plenty to spare. Matt Merritt drove in four runs with a pair of doubles. Eight Sea Gulls scored twice each in the inning.

SSU, which lost the second game of the twinbill 7-1, is 15-15 overall with four games remaining. The Gulls play their final three games at home, beginning with a doubleheader against York on Saturday.

The men's lacrosse team completed its second straight undefeated regular season last Saturday by whipping West Chester 22-7. Sophomore Jason Coffman scored seven goals and added four assists to lead the barrage. Paul Smith notched five goals for the second consecutive game, and Sean Radebaugh tallied three as SSU (13-0) claimed its 36th straight regular season win. The Gulls begin play in the NCAA Division III Championship Tournament on Sunday, May 15. Opponent, site and time will be announced on May 8.

The women's lacrosse team completed its most successful regular season in recent years with a 16-6 win over Washington last week. SSU finished 8-4 overall, and is hopeful for a bid to the ECAC postseason tournament. Pairings for the tournament will be announced on May 9.

The men's and women's track teams compete in the final big meet of the season this weekend, the Mason-Dixon Conference Championship at Christopher Newport. The Gulls are still hoping to add a couple qualifiers for the NCAA Championships in late May. Three Sea Gulls are currently qualified—Kirsten Owings in the long jump, Stacie Gado in the javelin and Dan Quinn in the hammer.

Perdue Gives Business School $1 Million

A contribution of over $1 million aimed at the continued enhancement of the business school at Salisbury State was announced Wednesday by Franklin P. Perdue, founder of Perdue Farms Inc., and Dr. Bellavance. The gift to the Perdue School of Business is $1,050,000.

"Everyone associated with the University is deeply indebted to Mr. Perdue," said Bellavance, "not only for his generous financial support but his personal commitment to quality education in our region. Because of Frank Perdue, Salisbury State University's School of Business is playing a vital role within the Maryland higher education system."

"The University of Maryland System is very grateful to Frank Perdue for this wonderful gift to Salisbury State," said UMS Chancellor Donald N. Langenberg. "As a longtime supporter of higher education who also serves as a member of our Board of Regents, Frank gives generously in so many ways. We deeply appreciate his extraordinary commitment to the advancement of Salisbury State and indeed to all of the University of Maryland System institutions."

The Perdue School was recently accredited by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) in both its undergraduate and graduate divisions. Fewer than 25 percent of the business programs throughout the country have such accreditation, according to Dr. Richard F. Bebee, Perdue School dean.

"To earn accreditation of both undergraduate and graduate programs at the same time is a major accomplishment—and very difficult to do," said Bellavance. In Maryland only the University of Maryland College Park, the University of Baltimore and Loyola College have both accredited graduate and undergraduate programs.

Institutions outside of Maryland with AACSB accreditation include Harvard, Yale, the University of Delaware, the University of Chicago, Georgetown University, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the College of William and Mary.

"When we began this process eight years ago," said Perdue, who endowed the business school in 1986 with a gift in excess of $2.3 million, "we could only dream that we would have come so far so fast. Accreditation could not have happened without the hard work of so many people."

Students Seek Scientific Solutions in Henson School Research Symposium

Making music from math. Studying previously unseen life forms. Determining the politically correct attire. These are just a few of the examples of the diverse research projects that will be presented at the fourth annual Undergraduate Research Symposium on Friday, May 13.

An estimated 40-50 students in the Henson School of Science and Technology will report on their findings after a semester or more of research in disciplines such as biology, chemistry, mathematics, geography and regional planning, physics, nursing and health sciences.

Symposia like this are traditionally reserved for graduate students and established research scientists; but this unusual program gives SSU's own budding scientists the opportunity to try the future on for size, to see themselves as the professionals they are about to become.

Glenn Silbert is now an electrical engineer in research and development for K & L Microwave in Salisbury. But as a senior in 1991, his participation in the first

Stockton College President Is Commencement Speaker

Dr. Vera King Farris, president of The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey, is the commencement speaker at SSU's graduation ceremonies on Saturday, May 28, at 10 a.m. in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center.

Farris, president of Stockton College since 1983, was named New Jersey Woman of the Year by New Jersey Magazine in 1992. She has received numerous other awards and accolades for her work in higher education.

The president of the board of trustees of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools in 1992-1993, she was chair of the evaluation team which gave SSU its 10-year Middle States accreditation in 1985. In addition to being a member of Middle States evaluation teams for several colleges in New York, Pennsylvania, Washington and Maryland, she has evaluated colleges and universities in other regions and states on behalf of other accrediting agencies.

Some of the other boards and commissions she is currently active with include: American Council on Education, board of directors; Regents Commission on Higher Education, New York State Board of Regents; Commission for Advisory Council on Holocaust Education in New Jersey; National Conference of Christians and Jews, South Jersey Chapter, executive committee; National Advisory Group for Learning Matters, a Public Television series; Commission on Recognition of Postsecondary Accreditation; and American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

She has received honorary degrees from five colleges and the Chancellor's Medal for Exemplary and Extraordinary Service from the University of Massachusetts.

Some of the awards she has received include: Myrtle Wreath Award from the Southern New Jersey Region of Hadassah; Award from the United States Holocaust Memorial Council, an award previously only presented to heads of state; Woman of Achievement Award from the 1993 B'nai Brith Women's Regional Conference; and the Outstanding Leadership Award from the American Association of Minority Veterans Program Administration in recognition of her pioneering efforts in the field of higher education and commitment to expanding horizons of opportunities for all students.

She presented the "President-to-Presidents" lecture at the American Association of State Colleges and Universities 33rd annual meeting last fall. She has been the keynote speaker at numer-

History Symposium In Fulton May 14

The Department of History's third annual History Paper Symposium is Saturday, May 14, from 9:30 - noon in Fulton Hall.

At least 25 students will present their original research papers, which cover a wide variety of topics. Refreshments will be served in the Fulton Hall foyer, just outside of Room 111.

The symposium is designed to demonstrate the History department's support of students' scholarship. Program committee members Dr. Jeanne Whitney, Dr. Sarah Sharbach and Dr. Greg Ference welcome all faculty, students, staff and members of the community to attend.

Planning Meeting For Fall Homecoming

A Homecoming Committee meeting for anyone interested in planning this fall's Homecoming is Sunday, May 15, at 8:30 p.m. in the Program Board Office (after the Student Government Assembly meeting). Call the Student Activities Office at 543-6125 for more information.

Students Read Works In Literary Festival

The Writers-on-the-Shore 1994 spring literary festival features several distinguished writers reading from their works. Students read from the SSU student publication The Scarab on Thursday, May 19, at 8 p.m. in Fulton Hall, Room 111. For more information contact the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

World Population Expert Lectures Here May 18

Werner Fornos, president of The Population Institute and one of the foremost experts on global population issues, discusses "Gaining People, Losing Ground" on Wednesday, May 18, at 7:30 p.m.

His presentation, free and open to the public, is in Caruthers Auditorium.

Fornos has been at the forefront of the struggle to balance the world's population with the world's resources for more than 18 years. As Congressman Robert Torricelli (D-NJ), a member of the House of Representatives' Foreign Affairs Committee, has pointed out, "It would be wrong to say that Werner was part of a large apparatus of people fighting for population control in the world. There are many days when he looks like the entire fight himself."

For more information about Fornos' presentation call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Summer Book Sale At Blackwell Library

Are we ready for summer yet? Blackwell Library's second "Getting Ready For Summer" Book Sale is on Thursday, May 19, from 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. The sale is on the first floor of the library, near the elevator. Most items are "light," ideal for summer reading on the beach or in the backyard. They're also cheap; everything is a quarter. A good chance to stock up.

The Flying Tigers Recall WWII Exploits

Three veterans of The Flying Tigers, later part of the U.S. 14th Air Force, will present their remembrances and experiences of World War II in China.

These American volunteers flew combat missions against the Japanese inflicting severe damage and trained Chinese pilots in 1941 before the United States entered the war. After America's entry into the war The Flying Tigers, under the command of Capt. Claire Chennault, were reorganized as a regular part of the U.S. 14th Air Force with Chennault being promoted to general.

The talk and slide show takes place Thursday, May 12, in Caruthers Hall Auditorium at 7 p.m. and is sponsored by Dr. Greg Ference's modern China history class and the History Club. For more information call Ference at 543-6129.

NY Philharmonic Plays Beethoven's 5th

Beethoven's "Fifth Symphony" is the featured work in a Live From Lincoln Center broadcast simulcast Tuesday, May 17, at 8 p.m. on WSCL (89.5 FM) and Maryland Public Television.

Kurt Masur conducts the New York Philharmonic in what is generally regarded as the most famous piece of classical music ever written. The all-Beethoven program also includes the "Leonora Overture" and guest soloist pianist Emanuel Ax in the "Piano Concerto No. 1."

The program includes an intermission special on the "Fifth Symphony."

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Orchestra's Spring Concert Has Shakespearean Roots

From a musical celebration of history to a glimpse of the area's cultural future, the Spring Concert by the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU offers a program sure to enlighten its audience.

The concert is set for Saturday, May 21, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, May 22, at 2 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium.

History's best-known and best-loved playwright provided the inspiration for the music that opens the spring concert program. The SSO will perform Mendelssohn's "Overture" from A Midsummer Night's Dream, the bard's light comedy/fantasy.

Tickets for the concert are now available at all Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council outlets. Adults are admitted for $10; students and seniors pay $6. SSU faculty, staff and students are admitted free with ID. For more information about the SSO and its spring concert call 548-5587 or 543-ARTS.

Birdwalk Scheduled At Furnace Town

Furnace Town Historic Site in Snow Hill continues its guided nature walk series with a "Birdwalk" on Sunday, May 15. From 2-4 p.m. area bird enthusiasts Betty Pitney and Dr. Ellen Lawler (of the SSU biology faculty) will lead a walk along the Furnace Town/Nature Conservancy Trail.

The nature trail, which winds through the Pocomoke Forest and along the Cypress Swamp, is a joint effort of The Nature Conservancy and Furnace Town. It features signed areas; benches for listening and observation; and an easily-walkable path.

Walkers are encouraged to dress for the weather and for about two miles of leisurely walking. The Nature Walk is included in Furnace Town's regular site admission fee of $3 for adults and $1.50 for children. Members of either Furnace Town Foundation or the Nature Conservancy receive complimentary site admission.

Eastern Shore Tuition Assistance

Applications for the Eastern Shore Tuition Assistance Program are in the Financial Aid Office (Holloway Hall, Room 243). Applicants must be a junior or senior in the fall, commuting from home at least half time and residents of Northampton or Accomack county in Virginia. Deadline is July 1.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times. Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (HH 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Choral Society, Chamber Choir Wind Sinfonia Celebrate Composer Percy Grainger

He is one of the most fascinating composers of the 20th century. "Personally, I would rank him as one of the most innovative of his time," said Dr. Richard L. Johnson, chair of the Music Department.

On Sunday, May 15, the Salisbury Choral Society and the University's Chamber Choir and Wind Sinfonia present "A Percy Grainger Celebration" - the first joint collaboration by these three groups, as they pay homage to one of the great musical iconoclasts of our century.

Born in Australia in 1882, Grainger, who eventually became an American citizen, endured a reputation as a composer of "fripperies," genial compositions such as "Country Gardens," "Irish Tune from County Derry" (which includes "Danny Boy") and others.

But he brought a global perspective to music, doing much to preserve folk song from around the world, not only British, but Australian aboriginal and American spiritual, as well as supporting early jazz. He was the first "ethno-musicologist" to record these songs on Edison's wax cylinder.

His vision was also forward looking. Foreseeing the arrival of electronic synthesizers, he invented electric "free music machines" in his living room in White Plains, NY, and in 1937 wrote a quartet for electronic instruments.

Although a gifted concert pianist and teacher, he avoided composing in traditional forms; he never, for example, wrote a symphony. This may have led to his being overlooked by critics in his lifetime, said Johnson.

In the last dozen years, however, a Grainger revival has led to a reexamination of his works. It's also put the spotlight on his life which was as individual as his music.

An early environmentalist, vegetarian and athlete, he went to extremes to prove himself physically: When he would take a train to different cities to perform a concert, said Johnson, Grainger was known to get off one stop early, then walk or jog the last 10 or 15 miles to the concert hall, carrying his tuxedo in a knapsack. While a teacher at Interlochen music camp in Michigan, rumors arose of Grainger taking winter nighttime swims and sleeping nude on top of a grand piano while the snow blew through open windows and doorways.

Never a moderate, he married Ella Strom in 1928 in a spectacular ceremony staged at the Hollywood Bowl where he conducted "To a Nordic Princess," written for his bride.

"Like his contemporaries Igor Stravinsky and Arnold Schoenberg, he seemed to be reaching for the extremity of range in new musical form and instrument-and in life," said Johnson. Grainger died in 1961 of cancer.

"A Percy Grainger Celebration" will include five folk songs and five other works including his "Marching Song of Democracy," inspired by the writing of Walt Whitman, and "We Have Fed Our Seas for a Thousand Years" and "The Sea-Wife," with texts by Rudyard Kipling.

Conductors for the concert are Dr. Duane Karna, music director of the Salisbury Choral Society; Johnson, director of the SSU Wind Sinfonia; and Niko Lampieri, student conducting associate. The performance is at 2 p.m. in Holloway Hall Auditorium. Tickets are $8 general admission, $6 for students and senior citizens and free for SSU students, faculty and staff with an ID. For more information call 543-6385.

"A Percy Grainger Celebration" is made possible, in part, through the support of the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council and the University, including the Fulton School of Liberal Arts.

Gulls Host Washington In Lacrosse Playoffs

The men's lacrosse team begins play in the first round of the 1994 NCAA Division III Championship Tournament this Sunday, May 15, at home against Washington College. Game time at Sea Gull Stadium is 1 p.m.

Tickets are priced at $4.00 for adults, including SSU students and staff. Tickets for children 12 and under are $1.00. Advance sales are available at the Guerrieri University Center's Information Desk through 3 p.m. on Saturday, May 14. Game day sales begin at 11:30 a.m. at the Sea Gull Stadium ticket booth.

The Sea Gulls, who finished 13-0 in the regular season, are making their sixth straight NCAA Tournament appearance and 16th overall. This is the fifth straight year that SSU is hosting a first-round game.

SSU defeated Washington 13-8 in Chestertown just two weeks ago, but trails in the overall series against the Eastern Shore rivals, 15-6. Washington upset Salisbury 12-11 at Sea Gull Stadium in the opening round of last year's NCAA Tournament. Washington enters Sunday's game with a 10-4 overall record.

The winner of Sunday's game will advance to the semifinal round on May 22 and meet the winner of the quarterfinal contest between Denison (12-2) and Gettysburg (11-1). The Division III Championship Game is scheduled for Sunday, May 29 at the University of Maryland in College Park.

Dobyns, Students Read From Work

The Department of English and Scarab, the SSU student literary journal, announce the season's final event in the Writers-on-the-Shore series. On Thursday, May 19, at 8 p.m. in Fulton Hall, Room 111, the publication of Scarab is celebrated with a reading by students and special guest, poet and novelist Stephen Dobyns.

Dobyns has published eight volumes of poetry, including Concurring Beasts (Atheneum, 1971), winner of the Lamont Award of the Academy of American Poets; Black Dog, Red Dog (Holt Rinehart Winston, 1984), winner of the National Poetry Series competition; Cemetery Nights (Viking, 1987), winner of the Melville Cane Award of the Poetry Society of America; and, most recently, Velocities: New and Selected Poems 1966-1992 (Viking, 1994).

His poems appear frequently in The New Yorker, Poetry, The American Poetry Review and The Paris Review. He also reviews poetry and fiction for The New York Times Book Review.

In addition to his books of poetry, Dobyns has published 15 novels, including The Two Deaths of Senora Puccini (Viking, 1988), After Shocks/Near Escapes (Viking, 1991) and The Wrestler's Cruel Study (Norton, 1993). Several of his novels have been named Notable Books of the Year by The New York Times.

"Please don't miss this opportunity to hear not only one of America's most distinguished and highly-praised writers," said Dr. Michael Waters, professor of English, "but several of America's future distinguished and highly praised writers--our own SSU students."

Admission is free and the public is cordially invited to attend. A reception follows. For more information call the English Department at 543-6083.

Faculty members from SSU and UMES and a student enrolled in both institutions discussed the program consolidation agreements developed between the two universities at the annual meeting of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education in Chicago. Attending the conference were (left to right): Rhonda Jeter, a UMES faculty member; Lisa Smith a student attending both institutions; Dr. Karen Verbeke, UMES faculty member; and Dr. Gerry Rossi, SSU education faculty member.

SSU-UMES Agreements Gain National Exposure

The program consolidation agreements developed between the University of Maryland Eastern Shore and SSU are attracting considerable national attention. This was evident when a description of the teacher education program consolidation agreement was presented at the annual meeting of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education in Chicago.

Following a brief description of the University of Maryland System as well as the histories and distinctive identities of the two institutions, presenters chronicled the forces that drove the movement toward consolidation, the activities of key players, and the nature and results of the agreements developed. Of particular interest was the report of a survey of students and their reactions to the plan.

Featured on the program were faculty members from each institution and a student who is enrolled at both institutions. From UMES were Rhonda Jeter and Dr. Karen Verbeke. Appearing from SSU were Dr. Gerry Rossi and Dr. Doran Christensen. The presenter bringing the perspective of students was Lisa Smith, an elementary education major at SSU and special education major at UMES.

SSU JOB OPPORTUNITIES

SSU JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Management

Nominations and applications are invited at the assistant and associate level for a management faculty position for fall in the Department of Management and Marketing in the Perdue School of Business (AACSB accredited).

Candidates will be expected to have earned doctorates in management from a business school and strong records in both teaching and research. The optimal candidate will be prepared to teach in two of the following areas: human resource management, labor relations, or business and society. Rank and salary, which are AACSB competitive, are open and commensurate with experience and record of scholarship.

The principal programs of the Perdue School include an M.B.A. program of approximately 100 students and an undergraduate student body of approximately 1,200 students pursuing degrees in accounting, business administration, economics and management information systems. The faculty of the Management and Marketing Department teach approximately 200 undergraduate students with declared concentrations in management and marketing.

Nominations and applications should include evidence of teaching excellence, three letters of recommendation and official transcripts of formal education and be forwarded by May 31 to Dr. George C. Rubenson, Search Committee Chair, Department of Management and Marketing, Perdue School of Business, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Computer Services
Seeks Student Monitors

The Office of Computer Services is accepting applications for student monitors for the fall semester. Any student who has successfully completed either COSC 112, COSC 120 or ISMN 111 may apply.

The application procedure follows: all students must complete a job application with the Work Experience Office and receive a referral card; all students must complete the Office of Computer Services student monitor job application (These applications can be obtained at the student monitor's desk in Fulton Hall, Room 149, beginning Tuesday, May 3.); students should complete the application and attach the work experience referral card to the application (All applications must be returned to the Office of Computer Services, Fulton Hall, Room 280, to be dated.); and students will be contacted by the academic coordinator for interviews.

Students will not be considered if they have not completed the student monitor job application or do not have a referral card from the Work Experience Office.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Physician

Salisbury State is seeking a part-time staff physician to join its Student Health Services (SHS) team of three nurse practitioners, three registered nurses and administrative staff in providing medical care and wellness education to a diverse student population. Student Health Services provides acute and chronic care in an ambulatory setting.

The successful candidate must be a licensed M.D. in Maryland. Preferred qualifications include board certification in family practice or internal medicine. Other specialists should have general medicine background applicable to this age group. Daily hours are flexible. Salary is commensurate with experience and competitive with other college health service programs.

Interested applicants should submit a letter of application, resume and the names and addresses of three references to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Ave. Salisbury, MD 21801 not later than May 27.

Nurse Practitioner

Salisbury State currently has a need for a part-time nurse practitioner to join its team of three nurse practitioners, two registered nurses and a part-time physician within Student Health Services. Student Health Services provides holistic, proactive health care in an ambulatory setting.

The nurse practitioner is responsible for evaluation, diagnosis and treatment of college students' health needs. The successful candidate will have graduated from an accredited school of nursing and be licensed as a nurse practitioner in Maryland. Experience with adolescent/young adult ambulatory care is desirable. Previous GYN experience is helpful.

Salary is competitive with other student health care settings. While the hours are negotiable, a benefit package is only available for the individual who can work 20 hours/week. If the successful candidate is not interested in working that many hours, then a contractual arrangement would apply (no paid benefits).

Interested applicants should submit a letter of application, resume and the names and addresses of three references to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Ave, Salisbury, MD 21801 not later than May 27.

Mathematical Sciences

The Department of Mathematics and Computer Science has a 10-month position starting August 15.

The successful candidate will have a master's degree, good teaching recommendations and a strong commitment to the blending of mathematics, statistics and computer science. Candidates must be able to communicate effectively in spoken and written English, and teach introductory mathematics courses for business and education majors.

Screening of applications begins June 1 and continues until the position is filled. In making a final decision, the department will consider the foregoing requirements, personal interviews with the candidate and a formal lecture on a topic of the candidate's choice.

Send a letter of application, resume and three letters of recommendation to Search Committee, Department of Mathematics and Computer Science, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

TIAA-CREF
Representatives Here

Learn how to achieve your retirement planning goals with tax sheltered dollars.

Representatives from TIAA CREF will be on campus Tuesday, May 31, and Wednesday, June 1, from 11 a.m.-3:15 p.m. each day to explain their program. Call the Personnel Office at 543-6035 or 548-4755 to arrange a private counseling session (approximately 30 minutes in length).

Education Scholarship Offered by Honorary

Applications are being taken for the Cindy Beauchamp Scholarship given by the Tau chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa, a woman's educational honorary.

The $50 award will be given to an education major who will be a junior or senior during the '94-'95 school year and is a permanent resident of Wicomico County.

Applicants should send a brief biography along with GPA and reason for financial need to Monta Kutchen, Education Department, SSU by June 1. The award will be given in September.

13 Faculty Receive
Grants Totalling $16,200

Thirteen faculty were recently awarded $16,200 in summer stipends and small research grants to encourage and support their research and other scholarly endeavors.

Faculty receiving awards were: Ursula M. Ehrhardt, Art Department; Dr. Gary Harrington, English Department; Dr. James Hatley, Philosophy Department; Dr. Timothy Miller, History Department; Dr. Clara L. Small, History Department; Dr. Raymond W. Whall, Jr., English Department; Dr. Stephen Gehrnich, Biology Department; Dr. Pamela L. Alreck, Perdue School of Business; Dr. H.V. Ramakrishna, Perdue School of Business; Dr. Frank Shipper, Perdue School of Business; Dr. Keith Connors, Education Department; Dr. Debra H. Panian, Education Department; Dr. George Whitehead, Psychology Department; and Dr. Florence Pritchard, Office of Academic Affairs.

"All of the proposals were impressive this year making the decision-making process a difficult one for the Grants and Sponsored Research Advisory Committee," said Dr. Karin Johnson, director of the Office of Grants and Sponsored Research which coordinates the awarding of the grants.

The committee includes Dr. Steven Hetzler from the Henson School of Science and Technology, Dr. Memo Diriker from the Perdue School of Business, Dr. Adeline Tryon from the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, Dr. Ellen Whitford from the School of Education and Professional Studies and Dr. Sheila Rodgers from the Henson School.

"These individuals spent a great deal of time reviewing proposals and deserve much credit for their careful, objective reviews," said Johnson.

Adolescent Health Center Opens Here

The University recently held a reception to officially open the rural office of the Center for Adolescent Health, a collaborative project with the Johns Hopkins University School of Hygiene and Public Health. Dr. Karin Johnson will be the director of the center office at Salisbury State and Dr. Shilda Rodgers the project coordinator.

With funding from the National Center for Chronic Disease Prevention and Health Promotion at the Center for Disease Control (CDC), the Johns Hopkins Center for Adolescent Health is one of nine prevention centers in the country funded by the CDC and is the only center devoted to the health of adolescents and the only one to be funded as an urban/rural center. The mission of the center is to undertake research that focuses on the development and evaluation of programs and policies that promote health and prevent disease among adolescents, particularly inner city and rural youth.

Dr. Cheryl Alexander, the center director, said the center will focus research and educational programs in four key areas: developmental transitions which serve as opportunities for health promotion interventions; modification of risk-taking behaviors; interventions which involve the family, school and community; and academic-community partnerships.

According to Congressman Wayne Gilchrest (R-MD), "I am very pleased that this partnership will focus on the health of adolescents on the lower Shore. So often we overlook rural areas where there are real concerns about access to care and quality of care. Rural areas have long been neglected by such studies. I commend both the Johns Hopkins Center for Adolescent Health and Salisbury State University for their progressive approach to addressing the health needs of young people. I look forward to learning the results."

The initial project of the center at Salisbury State University, according to Johnson, is to collaborate with local health departments, boards of education, social service departments, community agencies and others concerned with the health of adolescents to utilize existing community data from the three counties of the lower Eastern Shore to develop a comprehensive health plan for adolescents in those counties. This plan will then be utilized to attract additional resources to address high priority health needs of adolescents identified in the plan. The center at SSU will also serve as an information resource center on adolescent health for the area and will coordinate with the center at Hopkins to offer a seminar series each year on topics related to adolescent health.

Individuals wanting further information about the center at SSU may call Johnson at 548-5395 or Rodgers at 543-6417.

SSU Graduation Rates
Of Degree-Seeking Undergrads Reported

The federal student Right to Know and Campus Security Act of 1990 (Public Law 101-542, as amended by Pub. L. 102-26, 1991) specifies that all colleges and universities disclose annually by July 1 the graduation rates of degree-seeking undergraduate students.

In accordance with provisions of that legislation, the graduation rate of SSU's first-time, full-time freshmen who entered in the fall 1987 semester and graduated by June 30, was 59.7 percent. (This rate is also known as a six-year graduation rate.) This rate compares favorably to a national average of 43 percent for public four-year institutions as reported in the introduction to the legislation.

The graduation rate does not take into account SSU freshmen who have transferred to, and possibly graduated from, other institutions of higher education since these data are unavailable. It is noteworthy that the four-year graduation rate of the 1987 SSU cohort was the highest in the University of Maryland System (the most recent comparative data available).

SSU's implementation of the campus security section of this legislation is described in a separate brochure available upon request from the Office of Public Safety. For further information about the graduation rates, contact the Office of Institutional Research, Holloway Hall, Room 135. As of this date, final regulations regarding this legislation have not been issued, so that the data and interpretations employed here are subject to change.

Greetings From Phil

I send warmest regards and best wishes to all of my colleagues at SSU. Many, many thanks to those of you who have communicated by FAX and E-mail. I like staying in close and constant touch. For those of you who would like to write my university address is Hiroshima Jogakuin University, 4-31-1 Ushita Higashi, Higashi-Ku, Hiroshima 732 JAPAN.

My FAX Number is 011-81-82-227-4502; E-Mail is SJK38410@MGW.SHJOKYO.OR.JP.

I look forward to seeing you all at Dr. Bellavance's September bash.

Farewell Reception
For Himes May 24

Students, faculty and staff are invited to join in honoring Dr. Louis Himes at a farewell reception on Tuesday, May 24, from 3-5 p.m. in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. Himes has been serving for the last 20 years as staff physician in Student Health Services. He is leaving to fulfill a full-time commitment at Peninsula Regional Medical Center as vice president for medical affairs. In order to accurately estimate attendance please respond to Student Health Services at 543-6263 by May 18.

Nursing Reception
For Departing Faculty

The Department of Nursing invites the University community to a reception in honor of Phyllis Banks, Dr. Edna Quinn and Dr. Edna Stilwell on Friday, May 20, at the Guerrieri University Center lounge from 2-4 p.m. Join in celebrating their outstanding contributions to SSU and help launch them in their next endeavors.

Harrington Published in ANQ, Mediaevalia

Dr. Gary Harrington, associate professor of English, has recently published two essays.

"Miss Lonelyhearts and Pylon: The Influence of Anxiety," which appeared in ANQ, speculates upon the relationship of Nathaniel West's grotesque urban novella to William Faulkner's disconcerting tale of barnstormers in 1930s Louisiana. In "Shakespeare and Hemingway's God Rest You Merry Gentlemen," published in The Explicator, Harrington explores the significance of Hemingway's allusion to Shakespeare's Shylock, suggesting a pervasive influence upon the story which, among other things, serves to counter the charges of anti-Semitism occasionally leveled against Hemingway.

Another essay, "The Dialogism of the Digby Mystery Play," has been accepted for publication in a special issue of Mediaevalia, due out in August. The special issue is devoted to new approaches to the medieval drama, and Harrington's essay examines the two very different episodes of the Digby play, maintaining that their being combined into a single work embodies the medieval author's recognition of ceremony and festival as the twin impulses underlying all theater.

MAY 1994 COMMENCEMENT INFORMATION

(Please read carefully!)

1. Commencement will be held at 10 a.m., Saturday, May 28, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. ADMISSION WILL BE BY TICKET ONLY. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 9 a.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center (see Nos. 15-19 for location).
2. The commencement speaker will be Dr. Vera King Farris, president, The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey.
3. Physically Disabled Guests - Accessible seating is provided on the main floor of the arena. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.
4. Hearing Impaired Guests - Signers are present for the entire graduation ceremony. Seating for an optimum view of the individual(s) signing is in the first level of the grandstands close to and on either side of the stage. Seating is not reserved, therefore, early arrival is suggested. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.
5. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.
6. Caps, gowns, master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through the Book Rack beginning Tuesday, April 26, until Friday, April 29. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours are Monday-Thursday, 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. GRADUATES MUST PICK UP THE NECESSARY ITEMS ON OR BEFORE 2 P.M. ON FRIDAY, MAY 27.
- TICKETS FOR GRADUATION WILL BE DISTRIBUTED BY THE BOOK RACK UNTIL MAY 18, 1994. EACH STUDENT WILL BE LIMITED TO SIX TICKETS EACH. IF YOU DO NOT NEED ALL SIX TICKETS YOU SHOULD RETURN THE EXTRAS TO THE GUERRIERI UNIVERSITY CENTER INFORMATION DESK. GUESTS ARE REQUIRED TO BE SEATED BY 9:45 A.M.
- ANY STUDENT WHO PICKS UP HIS OR HER CAP AND GOWN AFTER MAY 18 WILL NOT BE GUARANTEED SIX TICKETS FOR GRADUATION.
- Students may leave personal property in Flanders Room No. 1 during the graduation ceremony when the room will be locked. It will be unlocked when the ceremony is over and students may pick up their possessions at that time. SSU will not be responsible for these items; students are therefore encouraged to leave valuables with family or friends.
7. Students will first be awarded degrees by school (e.g., School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Dr. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.
8. Then students will individually be awarded their diploma. The faculty marshals will have given each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school (e.g., Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be handed to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name to Dr. Butler, who will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. THE NAME ON THE CARD MUST NOT BE CHANGED FOR ANY REASON.
9. GRADUATES AND FACULTY ARE TO RETURN TO THE AREA WHERE THEY ASSEMBLED PRIOR TO THE CEREMONY. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.
10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the SSU Alumni Association, and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State.
11. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the commencement exercises MUST notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6158 no later than Monday, May 23. All graduates will receive a blank folder at commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.
12. The Department of Nursing will hold its Nursing Convocation on Friday, May 27, at 7 p.m. in Holloway

Hall Auditorium with a reception following the ceremony in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

13. The ROTC Commissioning Ceremony will take place at 2:30 p.m. in the Great Hall in Holloway Hall on Saturday, May 28, with a reception following in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

14. Faculty and staff should enter through the Midway Room entrance and line up for the processional at 9:15 a.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should inform their respective school dean.

15. BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through the letter G, report to DR. JOHN TYVOLL AND MS. LISA SELDOMRIDGE. When entering the main entrance of the Civic Center, go to the left corridor at the rear and line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). Sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the side aisle.

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates beginning with the letter H through the letter O report to DRS. BEN GREENE AND MIKE GARNER. When entering the main entrance of the Civic Center, go to the left corridor and enter one of the doors labeled "Flanders, Rooms 2 through 6. DRS. M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates report to DR. STEVE GEHRICH. Line up according to his direction, alphabetically by degree, and sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

M.Ed. candidates report to DR. JACK WULF

and line up alphabetically at his direction. Sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

20. DRESS CODE

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color)—no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such. Kente cloths are permissible as well.
5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) — no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.
2. Dark color socks — no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with Windsor knot).

(Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)

6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such. Kente cloths are permissible as well.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) NO DECORATION OF ANY KIND IS TO BE PLACED ON THE MORTARBOARD.
2. Honors students will have a gold and white hood. It is to be worn with the gold side out and the white inner lining turned out at the top, over the gold (like a collar). Gold cords would be worn under the honors hood.

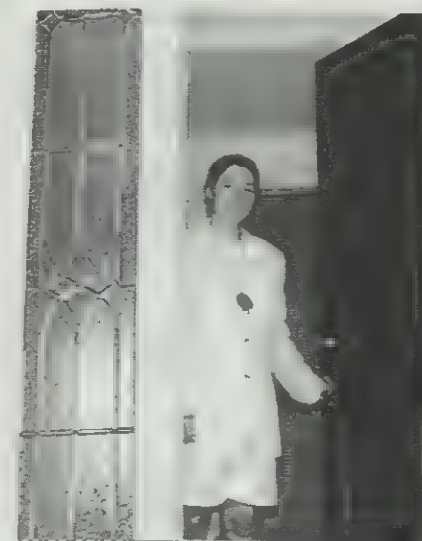

3. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the Dr. Bellavance (and/or your faculty marshal).

4. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.
5. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate who should face the audience and bend down a little. Faculty marshals will give you more specific information.

6. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Chappell Studio, Inc. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

7. Candidates should not chew gum or tobacco.
21. GRADUATION DECORUM

Graduation ceremonies are, by their very nature, festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g. B.S., B.A., etc.).

Mrs. Dorinda Fox awaits visitors for SSU's 15th annual Gala to be held on Saturday, June 4. This year's Gala will benefit the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State. For more information on the Gala or to purchase tickets call the Office of Institutional Advancement at 543-6175.

Foundation Gala Benefits Symphony Orchestra

The 1994 Salisbury State Foundation Gala will come as music to the ears of fans of the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU, the beneficiaries of this year's event. And, in an encore of last year's successful performance, some of the region's most contemporary and most historic homes will play host to "prelude" dinner parties on the evening of Saturday, June 4, before the gala's celebration of music in the Guerrieri University Center.

"The Symphony Gourmets" include some new faces this year, including Dr. and Mrs. Brent Fox. Dorinda Fox confesses she already has a full plate this spring: she has been training to compete in the Cancer Society's triathlon, run on Mother's Day; and, as a part-time student at SSU, is facing finals the week before the Gala. Still, as fans of the SSO and patrons of the performing arts, the Foxes couldn't pass up a chance to do their part.

"The money will go to a good cause, the Salisbury Symphony," she said. "Our daughters loved 'Contact 2001.' Most of the music was familiar enough to the children for them to enjoy it; but a lot of kids had never heard a synthesizer before. I think it definitely achieved its main goal: to get children interested in the symphony."

The Foxes' home, designed just two years ago by Salisbury architect Susan Wigley, will be ideal for the event. A successful combination of Dorinda's love of the traditional and Brent's desire for an open feeling, the house takes full advantage of its Wicomico waterfront. It's furnished with antiques culled from countless Eastern Shore auctions, set off with Native American artifacts collected by Brent's father.

As counter-point to contemporary host homes like the Foxes', Symphony Gourmets can also be found in historic houses in the region. Two of these are in Princess Anne: "Jones' Choice," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Mabe, and "Beverly," the home of Mrs. Ann Duncan Haffner, who will share hosting duties with Mr. and Mrs. John Haffner.

Like the Mabes and the Haffners, Ann and Randall Coates, of Snow Hill, are making their second appearance as gala gourmets. For Ann, this marks one more example of her support for the SSU Foundation. A board member for more than a dozen years, including a term as chair, she has chaired the Gala twice.

"I have strong sense of respect for and a depth of understanding of what the Foundation does for the community," she said. "As a fund raiser, the Gala gives us a way to support something so many people use and enjoy: the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra."

"I'm respectful of what (SSO Musical Director) Tom Elliot has accomplished," she added. "The SSO has done a super job of reaching out to adults and children."

Many of the Symphony Gourmets have made arrangements to have SSO members performing at their homes. From a jazz quintet to a solo violinist, the musicians will donate their time and talents for the evening. The big musical event will follow when the various dinner guests gather on campus to dance to the music of the Convertibles and the Jim Mitchell Trio.

Tickets for the Gala, priced at $100 per person, are still available from the Office of Institutional Advancement by calling 543-6175.

Challenge Exams For English 101, 102

Challenge exams for English 101 and 102 are Wednesday, September 7, from 4-7 p.m.

If interested in taking either of the exams, a $20 non-refundable fee must be paid to the Cashier's Office and the receipt delivered to Kathy Schafer, English Department, Holloway Hall, Room 333A, by Friday, July 1. In August a letter will be sent to test takers regarding the location of the exam and any other pertinent information. For more information contact the English Department at 548-7990 or 543-6445.

Cockey Judge At Piano Competition

Dr. Linda Cockey, assistant professor of music, recently adjudicated the South Delaware Music Teacher's Association Piano Festival and Competition in Milford.

Cockey and Benjamin Whitten (former chair of the Piano Department at West Chester State University) judged 50 piano students at the elementary through advanced levels in an all day affair that ended with a concert that evening. This was the second time Cockey was invited by the Delaware Piano Teachers to adjudicate this festival, having previously judged the event in 1991 with pianist Lee Mitchell.

Five Recognized For Service Work

The University's chapter of Campus Outreach Opportunity League (COOL) awarded plaques to five individuals and one student organization for outstanding community service activities during the 1993-94 academic year at a recognition reception on April 25.

Fifty-two individuals and student organizations from campus were recognized for service to the community. "These individuals and the organization were cited as outstanding because they serve as models for all who are involved in service," said Barry King, co-advisor to COOL.

SSU Helps Salisbury School Understand Poland

The Salisbury School recently celebrated its Global Awareness Day by focusing on the country of Poland, examining its history, culture and customs. Participating in the event were Dr. Robert Berry of the History Department, Dr. Dagmar Berry of the Modern Languages Department and Agata Liszkowska from the Student Activities Office.

Each year the Salisbury School focuses on a different country to make its students aware of the differences as well as the similarities of peoples around the globe. With this year's focus on Poland the school was able to draw upon the resources of SSU to provide direct input into the activities. Robert Berry, whose specialty is Polish history, provided background information through books, videos and audio tapes for the children and faculty of the school. Dagmar Berry, whose background is Czech, attend and, along with her husband, answered questions asked by the students about life and school in Poland. Their son Adam, also attended, dressed in an authentic Cracovian costume.

Liszkowska, a graduate of Salisbury State and a native of Warsaw, Poland, was instrumental in providing books, tapes and other objects of Polish culture for the school's display. She also provided some Polish food and talked to the older students about life as a teenager in Poland. Drawing on her background with the SSU Dance Company, she also helped to instruct the children in folk dances.

The day was filled with arts and crafts, from making T-shirts to doing Polish Easter eggs, from embroidery to hearing Polish legends and a lunch of typical Polish foods, from Kielbasa and ham to stuffed cabbage and chrusciki.

MPT Program Features UMS Institutions

What do computer imaging, African-Americans in 18th-century Annapolis and nurse practitioners in Baltimore's Pigtown have in common? They're all featured on Maryland State of Mind, a new television series that invites viewers to explore the frontiers of knowledge with the University of Maryland System as their guide.

Maryland State of Mind premieres at 8 p.m. on Thursday, May 19, with a repeat broadcast at 5:30 p.m. on Saturday, May 21, on Maryland Public Television (Channel 28). A quarterly series of hour-long programs, Maryland State of Mind is produced by Maryland Public Television (MPT) in association with the University of Maryland System (UMS). This innovative partnership combines the rich resources of UMS with the state-of-the-art production capabilities of MPT. The series will provide insights and information that viewers can use and enjoy.

This first program is made possible by a generous contribution from Investment Counselors of Maryland, additional support from the 13 UMS institutions and the University of Maryland System Administration, and in-kind support from MPT. Private funding will support ongoing production of the series.

Using a magazine format, the first program introduces viewers to a fascinating array of subjects in seven story segments.

"Imaging is Everything"—Scientists and artists in the Imaging Research Center at the University of Maryland Baltimore County vividly animate ideas and scientific information through computer imaging.

"Unearthing Annapolis"—The University of Maryland College Park archaeology in Annapolis program is bringing to light artifacts of 18th-century African-American Annapolitans, enriching our understanding of the past and present.

"Nurse in the House"—Students and faculty of the School of Nursing, University of Maryland at Baltimore, get right to the heart of the matter in Baltimore's Pigtown, where they provide free basic health services to a community that desperately needs them.

"To Teach a Teacher"—With the formidable challenges facing American education, how can we encourage more students to become teachers while ensuring their readiness for handling the job? A Bowie State University education professor offers answers.

"Fishing for Answers"—Not all the fish at Fells Point live in the Patapsco River. Quite a few are swimming around in an old warehouse, a computer-controlled aquaculture facility where the University of Maryland Biotechnology Institute, with the Columbus Center and National Aquarium, is putting biotechnology to work at this harborside "fish farm."

"From a Distance"—The University of Maryland System has broken down the walls and halls of traditional campuses by using its own interactive video network, virtually eliminating geographical barriers while providing more access than ever to its resources.

"Treasure Chest at UMS"—Take a tour of the country's second home of historical records—Archives II—on the campus of the University of Maryland College Park. This new state-of-the-art facility, complete with mobile shelves and strict climate control, houses a trove of American treasures, including the Nixon papers and tapes and Matthew Brady Civil War photographs.

Faculty Demonstrate Cooperative Learning

Four education faculty members recently attended workshops where they demonstrated how learning cooperatively in the classroom enhances academic achievement and helps build social skills. The faculty members were (left to right) Dr. John Wolinski, Dr. Charles Long, Dr. Doran Christensen and Dr. Ellen Whitford.

Learning cooperatively in the classroom has been demonstrated as effective in enhancing academic achievement as well as for building the social skills necessary for the work place and for life in general. That message was promoted in a workshop demonstrating cooperation conducted by four faculty members.

Initiated by Dr. John Wolinski, associate professor in the Department of Education, the seminar included presentations and "hands-on" activities by SSU representatives all of whom are successful practitioners of cooperative learning techniques. Wolinski was joined by SSU education faculty members Dr. Charles Long and Dr. Ellen Whitford, and Dr. Doran Christensen, dean of the School of Education and Professional Studies.

The workshops were presented at two national conferences: "Successful College Teaching" sponsored by the University of Miami and the seventh annual National Student Success Conference.

"On the one hand, cooperative learning techniques assure successful college teaching," said Christensen. "At the same time they promote academic and life success of students."

From HENSON RESEARCH SYMPOSIUM, page 1

Undergraduate Research Symposium significantly enhanced his resume.

"(My participation in the symposium) showed prospective employers that I could apply the knowledge I'd gained in the college classroom and use it in the work place," said Silbert. "I received job offers that spring and summer that I wouldn't have gotten without my documented research experience."

Silbert, who works in new product development at K & L, developed a method using a pendulum and computer to determine the center of gravity for an object with an unusual shape, such as an airplane or a bridge.

"When you construct a bridge that is 60 feet high," said Silbert, "you need to know how it is going to react with a lot of cars at the top of the span. You need to know if it will be balanced."

Like students who will be sharing their research this year, Silbert applauded SSU's Undergraduate Research Symposium because it allows the participants to select their own research projects.

Senior mathematics major Mike Long "knew that mathematics and music had a relationship, but not the depth I've realized after doing my research. This project has allowed me a chance to explore an interest of mine that was unavailable in the classroom."

His research project, titled "Numbers of Rhythm and Sound," demonstrates how math and music are interrelated. He has written musical scores based on mathematical equations and performed that music on a synthesizer. He'll play tape recordings of those compositions at the Symposium.

The research Mary Wild and Kim Trafford will present will be equally noteworthy although somewhat surprising to the soon-to-graduate nursing students. "Perceptions of Nurses on the Eastern Shore" reports on the results of a survey of nurses, hospital administrators and the general public concerning appropriate attire for nurses: all white or multicolored uniforms.

Nurses voted overwhelmingly for many hued attire. The public and administrators opted for plain white.

"We were surprised by the results," said Wild. "People have an image of nurses based on what they wear, attitudes that seem to be influenced by the media."

According to Wild, unbeknownst to the student researchers, uniform color was a heated issue at Peninsula Regional Medical Center. The hospital was in the process of changing to an all-white uniform policy. PRMC administrators used the students' survey as evidence for the change.

Wild and Trafford "really brainstormed over how to visually present their findings" at the Symposium. They will use a slide show to relate the choices the survey respondents viewed.

What they will take away from the experience, said Trafford, "is the opportunity to get out of the classroom and apply our learning skills."

Lisa Seldomridge of the nursing faculty agrees and is excited that students in nursing, medical technology and respiratory therapy are getting the opportunity to participate in the symposium this year for the first time. (The School of Nursing and Health Sciences merged with the Henson School of Science and Technology last summer.)

"The symposium makes the research process come alive for our students," said Seldomridge. "It takes the learning process out of the lab and into a real life setting."

Chemistry major David Elliot's research is a bit more abstract, but he has been equally energized by the hands-on opportunity.

Studying molecules that "no one knows what they look like" has rekindled his interest in chemistry. "It's one of the most important things I've done while at SSU," said Elliot. "My research advisor has done a lot to clarify some things for me, but the project is really my baby—I don't want too much assistance."

"If I run into problems, I'm going to resolve them on my own," said Elliot. "This is preparing me for graduate school."

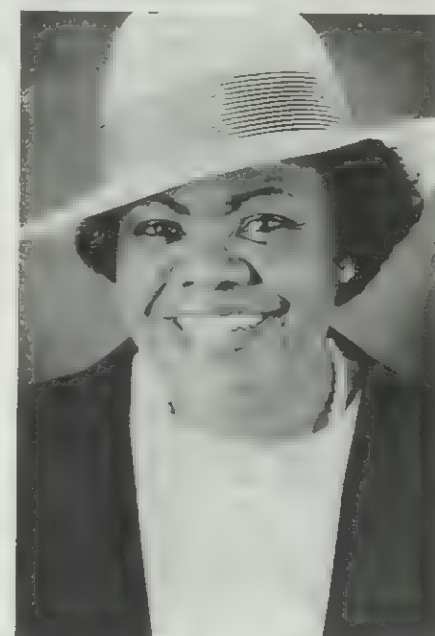

The Science Symposium begins at 3:30 p.m. in Devilbiss Hall, Room 149, with opening remarks by Dr. Phil Creighton, dean of the Henson School, and Dr. Kathleen Shannon, chair of the committee coordinating the symposium.

Concurrent sessions featuring student research are from 4:50 p.m. and 5:30-7:10 p.m. in the Nanticoke and Pocomoke rooms in the Guerrieri University Center. A poster session and reception in the Guerrieri Center's first floor lounge is from 7-8:30 p.m.

Waters Short Story, Poems Published

Dr. Michael Waters, professor of English, has had a short story, "Yellowstone," accepted for publication by North Atlantic Review.

Poems from his manuscript-in-progress are forthcoming in Mississippi Review, The American Voice, The Illinois Review and Crazyhorse. Two new anthologies will reprint his work: Sweet Nothings: Rock 'N' Roll in Contemporary American Poetry, edited by Jim Elledge (Indiana University Press, 1994) and Writing Poems, fourth edition, edited by Robert Wallace (Harper Collins).

ous other conferences and graduation ceremonies. Additionally, her publication record is extensive.

She earned her B.A. (magna cum laude) in biology from Tuskegee Institute and her M.S. and Ph.D. in zoology from the University of Massachusetts.

Among this year's graduating class of 973 is Michael Edward Hall, of Laurel, DE, the first University student to graduate with a major in environmental health. The environmental health program began accepting students in fall 1992.

At Salisbury State's commencement ceremony the following undergraduate degrees will be awarded: 569 will receive the Bachelor of Science; 287 the Bachelor of Arts; 44 the Bachelor of Social Work; and two the Bachelor of Fine Arts.

Seventy-one students will receive master's degrees: 38 the Master of Education; 19 the Master of Business Administration; 11 the Master of Arts; and three the Master of Science.

For more information about commencement call the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Mathematics major Mike Long uses a synthesizer to play original musical scores he wrote based on mathematical equations. He'll play a recording of that music at the Undergraduate Research Symposium on Friday, May 13.

Fusaro Workshops Aimed at Teachers

Dr. Ben Fusaro, professor of mathematics, recently conducted a workshop at the annual meeting of the Mathematics Association of America. The meeting was held in Cincinnati.

"Functioning in the Real World," aimed at teachers interested in or teaching pre-calculus, emphasized applications and the use of inexpensive technology such as graphing calculators.

Fusaro also made a pair of presentations on "Environmental Mathematics" recently, one at the National Council of Teachers of Math Conference in San Francisco and the other for math and science teachers at Mt. St. Mary's (MD) College.

Fusaro's research has been supported the past two years by a National Science Foundation grant.

WSUR Elects New General Manager

J. Alexander Varson, production manager for WSUR, SSU's student run radio station, was elected its new general manager at its bimonthly meeting.

Varson, who will be a senior communication arts major next year, has worked at WSUR for two years.

He was named D.J. of the month for May 1993 and hired as production manager a month later.

He has also worked at 91.7 FM, WFWM, Frostburg State University's radio station doing news broadcasts.

Andrew Mitchell, current general manager at WSUR, said he wishes the new GM the best of luck.

"Being general manager is a tough job," said Mitchell, "but I know that Alex will be able to handle it."

Varson also worked on both of the successful Gallupalooza concerts which benefitted Habitat for Humanity.

"I hope that with everyone's support, said Varson, "we can make WSUR not only the largest organization on campus, but also the best."

Volunteer Awards to COOL Students

The University's chapter of the Campus Outreach Opportunity League (COOL) received the Governor's Volunteer Service Award on April 25 for its community service activities.

Although the chapter is only two years old, it has completed service activities in support of the M.S. Society, the Arthritis Foundation, the American Heart Association, Joseph House Village and Peninsula Regional Medical Center. It also sponsors several annual campuswide projects which promote involvement by individuals and organizations from the University community in service. These include COOL CONNECTIONS community service fair, COOL Clearinghouse and the Campus Outreach Recognition Program.

David Minges, director of the Governor's Office on Volunteerism, presented the award. Barry King, co-advisor to COOL, said, "The students of COOL have brought remarkable energy and creativity to addressing the needs of our community and engaging others from campus in service."

"Thom Bellavance's vision made this day possible," said Perdue. "Rich Bebee's extraordinary efforts—combined with faculty teamwork—made this day happen."

"I am proud to have my name associated with this fine school."

Perdue's initial endowment of the business school "provided the resources needed to compete, expand programs and qualify for accreditation," said Bellavance. His total contributions to the business school now exceed $3.36 million.

The Perdue School of Business has some 1,000 students studying for bachelor's degrees in accounting, business administration, economics and information systems management. Over 100 students study in the Master of Business Administration program.

The business school's physical plant, which underwent a multimillion dollar renovation in 1990, is housed in the north and east wings of Holloway Hall, a campus landmark.

Exhibit in Fulton Gallery Based On Thoreau Essay

From May 27-August 19 the Salisbury State University Gallery at Fulton Hall presents the exhibition "Walking." Based on the essay "Walking" by Henry David Thoreau, the show features dye transfer photographs by John Wawrzonek, sculpture of Thoreau, and original manuscripts and writings by Thoreau.

The photographs are from Wawrzonek's book Walking. Published by the Nature Company, the book is one of the best-selling photographic books, presently in its sixth printing.

Wawrzonek says there was a special joy for him in finding photographs in unexpected places, often near his home or along ordinary roadsides. Much of the beauty in the landscapes resides in textures inherent in foliage, branches, buds and grasses that are not easily captured. Sometimes the limitation is technical: the fine details are too small, and subtle color differences are difficult to reproduce with conventional color printing. Wawrzonek has tried to overcome these limitations with his equipment, his photographic technique and with the dye transfer process. Mastering the difficult process has been immeasurably helpful in allowing him to use color and texture as he wishes.

His fascination with texture often leads to complex images where the interplay of texture, form and color takes some time to comprehend. This complexity also demands that the prints be large so that subtle details and colors are revealed. His hope is to stimulate in the viewer an increased appreciation of beauty, especially in the easily overlooked nearby landscape and also to invoke a desire to preserve it.

On Friday, May 27, starting at 4:30 p.m., a lecture program funded in part by the Maryland Committee for the Humanities will be presented on "Thoreau and the 21st Century." Wawrzonek will speak on Thoreau's influence on him and the making of this group of photographs. Joseph Gilbert, vice president of administration at SSU, will speak about Thoreau and his writings.

A walk into the exhibit gives the visitor the feeling of a trip to Walden Pond. The intensely colored dye transfer photographs by Wawrzonek capture the fields, marshes, trees and blueberry barrens that are always visible as one drives through the area.

SSU Offers M.Ed. In School Administration

For the first time Eastern Shore teachers can complete a master's degree in school administration without having to cross the Bay.

Salisbury State has earned approval from the Maryland Higher Education Commission (MHEC) for this new Master of Education. The only such program on Delmarva, it comes not a minute too soon.

According to a recent survey, 403 administrative school positions exist on the Eastern Shores of Maryland, Delaware and Virginia. Some 26 percent or 103 of these positions will become vacant in the next five years. In addition, 27 new ones are expected to be created in the same period. These percentages are even higher nationwide.

Said William R. Ecker, director of the Eastern Shore of Maryland Educational Consortium, "Sometimes the pool of applicants (for administrative positions) is so small that choices are limited. I've talked to people with administrative openings in their system who've had only one or two apply."

He and program developers hope the new Eastern Shore-based degree will change things. "I've wanted to see this happen for a long, long time," said Joanne Jackson, supervisor of personnel for the Board of Education of Wicomico County who served on an advisory council for the M.Ed. She thinks the Salisbury State program has some distinct advantages:

Drs. Ellen Whitford and James Replogle, professors in the University's Department of Education and formerly administrators themselves, have designed the degree with working teachers in mind. By attending evening classes and summer sessions, students can complete the 33-credit program in three years.

New courses, from "Leadership and Change" to a required internship, spotlight the special needs of the school

SSU To Host Gettysburg In NCAA Lacrosse Semifinal Saturday

Sophomore defender Chris McQueeney (No. 38) and the rest of the Sea Gulls host Gettysburg College in the NCAA Division III semifinals, this Saturday at 1 p.m. at Sea Gull Stadium. Tickets are $4 and available in advance at the Guerrieri University Center information desk. The Gulls advanced to the semifinal round with a 24-6 win over Washington in last Sunday's quarterfinals.

The men's lacrosse team (14-0) advanced to the national semifinals of the NCAA Division III men's lacrosse tournament with a 24-6 win over Washington College last Sunday. SSU hosts Gettysburg College this Saturday, May 21 at 1 p.m., with the winner advancing to the national championship game on May 29.

Tickets for Saturday's game are $4.00 for adults, including SSU students and staff. Tickets for children 12 and under are $1.00. Advance sales are available at the Guerrieri University Center, Information Desk through 11 a.m. on Saturday, May 21. Game day sales begin at 11:30 a.m. at the Sea Gull Stadium ticket booth.

Salisbury is 1-6 alltime in national semifinal games, but posted its single victory the last time it appeared in the round of four, in 1991. The Sea Gulls are 2-0 alltime against Gettysburg, with regular season wins over the Bullets in 1992 and 1993.

Salisbury's domination of the second half against Washington propelled the Gulls into the semifinals. Leading 8-4 at halftime of last Sunday's game, SSU outscored Washington 7-0 during the

Personal Safety Tips

These personal safety tips, compiled by the Office of Public Safety, apply when on campus as well as in the Salisbury area or wherever one resides. The precautions may lessen the likelihood of becoming a victim. Increasing awareness of crime prevention techniques may decrease the opportunity for a person to commit a criminal offense.

1. You are your own best protection.
2. Keep your door locked at all times. Don't unlock the door for strangers. Keep first floor windows locked.
3. Walk in well-lit areas and stay near the curb, away from alleys, entry ways and bushes where someone could be hiding.
4. Do not walk or jog alone after dark.
5. Avoid short cuts. Walk where there are other people present.
6. Do not hitchhike or accept rides from strangers. If a driver asks you for directions, stay far enough away so that you cannot be pulled into the car. Do not pick up strangers.
7. If you are being followed when walking, change directions, cross the street and vary your speed. Go to a well-lit place where there are other people. If followed by someone in a car, turn and walk in the other direction. Record the license number.
8. Park your car in a well-lit area and lock the doors.
9. If you need an escort to or from your car, call the Office of Public Safety, 543-6222.
10. Report any suspicious activity or crimes to the Public Safety Office, located in the Administrative Services Building, 543-6222.

Dobyns, Students Read from Work

The Department of English and Scarab, the SSU student literary journal, announce the season's final event in the Writers-on-the-Shore series. On Thursday, May 19, at 8 p.m. in Fulton Hall, Room 111, the publication of Scarab is celebrated with a reading by students and special guest, poet and novelist Stephen Dobyns.

Admission is free and the public is cordially invited to attend. A reception follows. For more information call the English Department at 543-6083.

SSU Newsletter Guidelines

The SSU News is a newsletter for the campus community published each Thursday during fall and spring semesters, unless noted. The deadline is noon on Friday.

Any story relating to the life of the campus is welcomed. Newsletter items should be typed and double spaced. Articles will run a maximum of two times.

Because stories are proofed and typeset on a first-come, first-served basis, don't feel you have to wait until Friday to get your article to public relations (H11 264).

For more information call 543-6030.

Cutting the ribbon to open the newly remodeled Salisbury office of the State Employees Credit Union (SECU) are (left to right): Terry Vogel, SECU field representative; Shirley King, SSU; Marty Smith, UMES; Zina Seldon, Deer's Head Center; Connie Klaverweiden, Salisbury branch manager; Cathy Idoni, assistant branch manager; Sharon Goszcynski, SSU; and Anna Grace Thomas and Sam Marks, Department of Assessments and Taxation.

Construction began last fall on the branch's 2,100 square foot addition which doubled the office space and included a new drive-through area. The remodeling was executed in phases so that member service was not interrupted. SECU even opened a temporary drive-through building while the new drive-through was built. For more information about SECU membership or its wide range of financial services, please call 1-800-TRY-SECU.

Moody Blues To Play With Orchestra

By Susan Canfora, Daily Times Staff Writer

The Moody Blues, who released the haunting song "Nights in White Satin" in 1972, will perform with the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU on June 30.

The 8 p.m. show will be held at the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. Tickets cost $35, $28.50 and $22.50 and are available at the civic center box office, Shore Music in Seaford and T's Corner in Oak Hall. About 4,000 tickets will be sold.

"This is very special for us," said Dr. Thomas Elliot, conductor of the orchestra. "To have an opportunity to perform with The Moody Blues is an outstanding event for us. We know we can play music they're going to need."

Larry Bairs, who has been the Moody Blues' conductor for years, will direct the orchestra and Elliot will play in the horn section.

Radio station WQHQ will be the welcoming station for the concert. The night of the show, there will be a drawing for a new Toyota Camry, courtesy of Eastern Shore Toyota dealers.

Members of The Moody Blues—Justin Hayward, John Lodge, Graeme Edge, Ray Thomas and "Mellotron Master" Mike Pinder—were accompanied by the London Festival Orchestra on their first album, "Days of Future Passed," released in 1967.

In September 1992, 25 years later, the band, wanting to blend its rock sound with orchestra music, played in Denver and was accompanied by the Colorado Symphony Orchestra. The show was presented to the public as a live recording, "A Night At Red Rocks With The Colorado Symphony Orchestra."

"The Red Rocks tape is such a beautiful example of how a symphony orchestra can perform with a group like this," Elliot said.

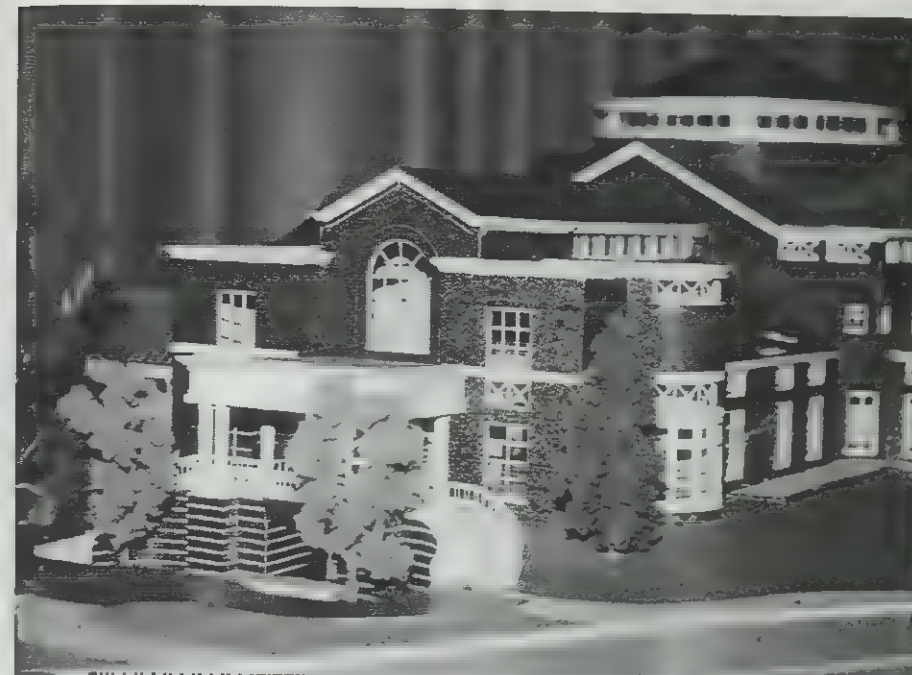

The Moody Blues waited 25 years to again play with an orchestra because of fear of bad luck. "We'd had so much success with 'Nights in White Satin' that we were very paranoid about following it," Hayward said.

In 1988, the band released "Your Wildest Dreams," the first Top 10 hit since "Nights in White Satin." Now they're playing with orchestras again and drawing attention from generations of listeners.

Model of New 'Commons' Building On Display in Guerrieri Center

Through the eyes of a child the architectural model of SSU's future "Commons" building seems as magical as a C.S. Lewis wardrobe. Even if the child happens to be fortysomething.

Now on display in the main room of the Guerrieri University Center, this fabulous miniature is turning heads. "We've never had a model of a campus building quite like this before," said Joseph Gilbert, vice president of administration. (The Commons will hold a variety of student services.)

The scale-size replica has everything but a Lionel train tooting around its perimeter. But who's noticing where there are 20 cars, a couple of trucks, a forest of trees and illumination from 100 electric hobby lights glowing through 700 hand-cut windowpanes?

Obviously a labor of love, "When I first saw the plans and elevations (for the Commons) I wanted to do this model," said 42-year-old Joe Wendling of Pittsburgh. He had been approached by longtime friend and building architect, John Grant. Also an architect, Wendling specializes in architectural modeling.

To capture the feel and placement of the building, Wendling practically recreated the southwest corner of the campus. Included are the Guerrieri Center and University pergola. He consulted with the Commons' landscape designer on the placement of trees and shrubs, and traveled from Pittsburgh to check out the site personally.

The replica's construction, which measures 35 by 70 by 10 inches high, required building everything from scratch. He used 20 sheets of 30 by 80-inch styrene and 10 one-ounce bottles of superglue. All was hand painted. The model's central drum was molded around a Chase and Sandborn coffee can whose proportions perfectly fit the 3/32-inch scale.

The most difficult aspect for Wendling was building a stairway railing with a double curve. "I worried about it for months," he said. His solution: bronze locomotive railing that was soldered together then shaped.

He estimates some 15 people—including his friends and pastor, put an estimated 800 hours on the project, much done in his basement. "The real hero is my wife," he added.

Groundbreaking for the $15 million Commons is August and students are expected to walk through its doors in September 1996. Until then its spirit resides in Wendling's elegant model and the eyes of a child.

Hutchinson Earns Education Doctorate

Victoria Hutchinson, director of the dance program and instructor in the Department of Physical Education, has successfully defended her doctoral dissertation titled "A Reformative Foundation for an Age-Appropriate Multicultural Perspective for Teaching Children's Dance."

In August she will receive her Doctorate of Education from Temple University's Department of Dance. She is completing her fourth year as Dance Company director.

Brown Presentation At Ohio State

Vonnie Brown, assistant professor in the Department of Nursing, presented "The Psychiatric Clinical Nurse Specialist as a Consultant in a Rural Area" at Ohio State University's Psychiatric Nursing: State of the Art Conference in Columbus.

The presentation reflected her consultation at McCready Hospital's geropsychiatric unit. Her travel was supported by a Henson Faculty Enhancement Grant.

SSU JOB OPPORTUNITIES

SSU JOB OPPORTUNITIES

Physician

Salisbury State is seeking a part-time staff physician to join its Student Health Services (SHS) team of three nurse practitioners, three registered nurses and administrative staff in providing medical care and wellness education to a diverse student population. Student Health Services provides acute and chronic care in an ambulatory setting.

The successful candidate must be a licensed M.D. in Maryland. Preferred qualifications include board certification in family practice or internal medicine. Other specialists should have general medicine background applicable to this age group. Daily hours are flexible. Salary is commensurate with experience and competitive with other college health service programs.

Interested applicants should submit a letter of application, resume and the names and addresses of three references to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Ave. Salisbury, MD 21801 not later than May 27.

Nurse Practitioner

Salisbury State currently has a need for a part-time nurse practitioner to join its team of three nurse practitioners, two registered nurses and a part-time physician within Student Health Services. Student Health Services provides holistic, proactive health care in an ambulatory setting.

The nurse practitioner is responsible for evaluation, diagnosis and treatment of college students' health needs. The successful candidate will have graduated from an accredited school of nursing and be licensed as a nurse practitioner in Maryland. Experience with adolescent/young adult ambulatory care is desirable. Previous GYN experience is helpful.

Salary is competitive with other student health care settings. While the hours are negotiable, a benefit package is only available for the individual who can work 20 hours/week. If the successful candidate is not interested in working that many hours, then a contractual arrangement would apply (no paid benefits).

Interested applicants should submit a letter of application, resume and the names and addresses of three references to the Personnel Office, Salisbury State University, 1101 Camden Ave. Salisbury, MD 21801 not later than May 27.

Nursing Reception For Departing Faculty

The Department of Nursing invites the University community to a reception in honor of Phyllis Banks, Dr. Edna Quinn and Dr. Edna Stilwell on Friday, May 20, at the Guerrieri University Center lounge from 2-4 p.m. Join in celebrating their outstanding contributions to SSU and help launch them in their next endeavors.

Salisbury State University is an affirmative action/equal opportunity employer. Qualified women, minorities and disabled persons are encouraged to apply.

Mathematical Sciences

The Department of Mathematics and Computer Science has a 10-month position starting August 15.

The successful candidate will have a master's degree, good teaching recommendations and a strong commitment to the blending of mathematics, statistics and computer science. Candidates must be able to communicate effectively in spoken and written English, and teach introductory mathematics courses for business and education majors.

Screening of applications begins June 1 and continues until the position is filled. In making a final decision, the department will consider the foregoing requirements, personal interviews with the candidate and a formal lecture on a topic of the candidate's choice.

Send a letter of application, resume and three letters of recommendation to Search Committee, Department of Mathematics and Computer Science, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801.

Politics of Bay Instructor Sought

The Political Science Department is looking for an instructor to teach a political science course titled "The Politics of the Chesapeake Bay" for the fall semester, scheduled for Mondays and Wednesdays, 7-8:15 p.m.

The course is intended to focus on the national and regional politics that surround the use and the abuse of the Bay, including environmental laws and regulations. Acceptable applicants must have a master's degree and policy experience relevant to the Chesapeake Bay. Remuneration for the course is $2,000.

Please send resume and letter of interest to Michael O'Loughlin, Chair, Department of Political Science, Salisbury State University, Salisbury, MD 21801. Application deadline is June 3.

IRS Holds Mini Job Fair

Youthful Violinists In Orchestra Concert

With the introduction of two young violinists as soloists in their spring concert, Musical Director Thomas Elliot and the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at SSU are continuing their mission of bringing the symphony to young people.

Suzanna Luscher, 12, and Becky Ruby, 14, will perform Bach's "Concerto for Two Violins and Orchestra" when the SSO performs in concert Saturday, May 21, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, May 22, at 2 p.m. The two young women, whom Elliot describes as "promising musicians," are members of the Greater Salisbury Youth Symphony Orchestra, as well as the SSO.

Luscher is the second violinist in her family to solo with the SSO. Her older sister Alexia, like Suzanna, a member of the Symphony, made her solo appearance last spring. Both young women started their musical careers early. Suzanna says that at age 3 she couldn't leave Alexia's violin alone. Her sister was enrolled in a Suzuki course at the time and Suzanna herself began classes. When David Luscher moved his family here from Salt Lake City three years ago, both girls continued to study music. Today Suzanna, a student at Westside Intermediate, travels weekly to Silver Spring, MD, for lessons with Cathy Stewart.

Becky Ruby was introduced to the violin in kindergarten when her family was living in Lansdale, PA. She has enjoyed playing ever since signing up for the school orchestra that year. Today Ruby confesses that she's "never home," keeping busy with not only music lessons, but also sports: basketball, volleyball, soccer and tennis. Ruby has been a student at Bennett Middle School since she and her family moved to Salisbury last September. Her violin teacher is SSO concertmistress Luisa Winters.

As busy as they like to be, both Luscher and Ruby have been focused on their SSO solo for several weeks. In addition to their independent practice and lessons, the two get together about twice a week to rehearse. The young violinists were able to clear one set of rehearsals from their calendars when the Youth Orchestra gave its concert earlier this month.

The SSO's spring concert will be performed on the stage in Holloway Hall Auditorium on the campus of Salisbury State University. Tickets are now available from any of the Salisbury Wicomico Arts Council outlets—Peninsula Bank or Bank of Delmar (during regular lobby hours), or may purchased at the door. Adults are admitted for $10; students and seniors pay $6. For more information about the SSO and its spring concert, call 548-5587 or 543-ARTS.

Business Honorary Gets Charter, Initiates Members

The new Epsilon Pi Chapter of Sigma Iota Epsilon in the Perdue School of Business was installed recently at the Sheraton Inn in Salisbury.

Installation was the culmination of over a year of hard work by the officers and members of the new management association. Initially the idea to form a student management club followed a discussion of careers in a management principles class. The class's instructor, Carol Kaufman, helped the students get in touch with the national officers of Sigma Iota Epsilon and the students took over from there.

The Greek letters Sigma, Iota and Epsilon signify the Greek words earnestness, knowledge and excellence. The letters are prominently displayed on the key that the new members each received from Mike Hankin, Sigma's national administrator. Hankin traveled from national headquarters at Florida State University to present the new chapter with its charter and welcome the new members to 61 others in the United States. With 2,500 active members and 45,000 alumni members, SIE's influence pervades management thought and practice in every region.

Membership includes outstanding undergraduate and graduate students enrolled in a management curriculum, management faculty and management practitioners in the nation's leading business, public service and government organizations. Founded in 1926 by Arthur G. Anderson, a professor of industrial management at the University of Illinois, SIE grew out of the belief that industrial management was destined to become a field of increasing importance.

The program included opening remarks from the president of Epsilon Pi, David Matthew Lawrence. He presented plaques of appreciation to the speaker, Martin Neat, faculty advisor, Dr. Jean Hanebury, and SIE's local sponsor, Little Caesars Pizza. Lawrence and Hanebury then received the charter from Hankin.

Hankin's theme centered around his comment: "The relationship among learning, thinking and ultimately doing is what Sigma Iota Epsilon is all about. By whatever criterion applied—classroom excellence, business success, public service—SIE members truly reflect the very best of what we expect from our young people in the classroom and from our managers in the corporate boardroom."

Dr. Richard Bebee, dean of the Perdue School, followed with welcoming remarks which highlighted the recent accreditation of the business school by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business. After congratulating the students for their hard work, he introduced the evening's speaker, Neat, president and chief executive officer of First Shore Savings and Loan Association. Neat spoke on "The Manager and Social Responsibility," urging students to realize that people in business have a commitment to fulfill outside the workplace by engaging in community service projects like Habitat for Humanity.

After calling the 24 new members to the front of the room, president Lawrence, vice president H.A. Ray Carter, secretary Tina Miceli and treasurer Diana K. Wingle conducted the ritual for initiation. In addition to the officers other charter members included Christine Alarcon, Karen Cline, Stephen Deacon, Michael Elliott, Hanebury, Scott Holt, Nancy Huff, Matthew Hughes, Debbie Luby, Donna Lusby, Charles Martin, Jr., Stephen Mather, Kelly Ann Neal, Scott Noe, Daniel O'Connor, Kelly O'Connor, Dana Seville, Beth Anna Speckard, Melinda Thompson and Tyra West. Hanebury closed the ceremony by reinforcing the ideals of SIE and alerting the students to the many positive opportunities joining the club offered, not the least of which were the life long friendships they were forging.

DiGiovanna Discusses Aging on Radio

The spotlight continues to focus on aging as evidenced by more frequent calls on the expertise of Dr. Augustine DiGiovanna, associate professor of biology.

In addition to serving as a consultant for articles on aging in popular periodicals, DiGiovanna was featured recently on Wendy Thompson's radio program which is broadcast on National Public Radio from Princess Anne on WESM. One of the main topics he addressed was the numerous theories about causes of aging. Some of the more current and popular theories include various specific genetic mechanisms and genetic errors, damage to body components by free radicals derived from bodily reactions and environmental pollutants, and deterioration of the immune system. DiGiovanna pointed out that each theory has some scientific evidence to support it, but that aging is probably caused by several factors and that different ones may be more important in different people.

A few days after his radio interview, DiGiovanna was the invited guest speaker at a meeting of the Order of the Sons of Italy in Ocean City. One of the topics related to aging and became the subject of a lively discussion was the effects of nutrition. A major aspect that was highlighted was taking vitamin supplements. DiGiovanna recommended that vitamin supplements not be taken unless a person has been diagnosed as having specific vitamin deficiency that cannot be alleviated by improving one's diet. This is especially important for older individuals since vitamin absorption, storage and elimination change with aging and because many of the medications taken by older people can interfere with normal vitamin utilization and elimination. Therefore, taking certain vitamins may be useless while taking others might actually be harmful.

More information about aging can be found in DiGiovanna's recently published book Human Aging: Biological Perspectives, or by contacting the Speakers Bureau at the Public Relations Office at 543-6030.

Farewell Reception For Himes May 24

Students, faculty and staff are invited to join in honoring Dr. Louis Himes at a farewell reception on Tuesday, May 24, from 3-5 p.m. in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. Himes has been serving for the last 20 years as staff physician in Student Health Services. He is leaving to fulfill a full-time commitment at Peninsula Regional Medical Center as vice president for medical affairs. In order to accurately estimate attendance please respond to Student Health Services at 543-6263 by May 18.

MAY 1994 COMMENCEMENT INFORMATION

(Please read carefully!)

1. Commencement will be held at 10 a.m., Saturday, May 28, in the Wicomico Youth and Civic Center. ADMISSION WILL BE BY TICKET ONLY. All graduates are requested to form for processional at 9 a.m. in the side corridors adjacent to the main arena on the first floor of the Civic Center (see Nos. 15-19 for location).
2. The commencement speaker will be Dr. Vera King Farris, president, The Richard Stockton College of New Jersey.
3. Physically Disabled Guests - Accessible seating is provided on the main floor of the arena. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.
4. Hearing Impaired Guests - Signers are present for the entire graduation ceremony. Seating for an optimum view of the individual(s) signing is in the first level of the grandstands close to and on either side of the stage. Seating is not reserved, therefore, early arrival is suggested. Ask an usher for the location as you enter the Civic Center.
5. The first aid staff of the Civic Center will be on duty in the office on the right side of the foyer entrance just outside the main arena.
6. Caps, gowns, master's hoods and announcements (quantities are limited) will be distributed through the Book Rack beginning Tuesday, April 26, until Friday, April 29. These may be retained by the graduates and need not be returned following the ceremony. Problems with caps and gowns will be corrected prior to the ceremony by the bookstore employees at the Civic Center, in Flanders Room No. 1 near the snack bar to the left of the arena entrances. Bookstore hours are Monday-Thursday, 8:30 a.m.-6 p.m. Bookstore hours on Friday are 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. GRADUATES MUST PICK UP THE NECESSARY ITEMS ON OR BEFORE 2 P.M. ON FRIDAY, MAY 27.
- TICKETS FOR GRADUATION WILL BE DISTRIBUTED BY THE BOOK RACK UNTIL MAY 18, 1994. EACH STUDENT WILL BE LIMITED TO SIX TICKETS EACH. IF YOU DO NOT NEED ALL SIX TICKETS YOU SHOULD RETURN THE EXTRAS TO THE GUERRIERI UNIVERSITY CENTER INFORMATION DESK. GUESTS ARE REQUIRED TO BE SEATED BY 9:45 A.M.**
- ANY STUDENT WHO PICKS UP HIS OR HER CAP AND GOWN AFTER MAY 18 WILL NOT BE GUARANTEED SIX TICKETS FOR GRADUATION.**
- Students may leave personal property in Flanders Room No. 1 during the graduation ceremony when the room will be locked. It will be unlocked when the ceremony is over and students may pick up their possessions at that time. SSU will not be responsible for these items; students are therefore encouraged to leave valuables with family or friends.
7. Students will first be awarded degrees by school (e.g., School of Liberal Arts), and will be asked, by President Bellavance, to stand and remain standing until all degrees have been awarded for that school. Dr. Bellavance will then signal graduates to move the tassel from the right side to the left side of the mortarboard, and then to be seated.
8. Then students will individually be awarded their diploma. The faculty marshals will have given each graduate a 3x5 card containing his/her name and the school (e.g. Perdue School of Business). The card then is to be handed to Dr. Nelson Butler when the graduate reaches the stage, and at the same time, the graduate is to announce his/her name to Dr. Butler, who will then know who the person is and how to pronounce the name correctly. THE NAME ON THE CARD MUST NOT BE CHANGED FOR ANY REASON.
9. GRADUATES AND FACULTY ARE TO RETURN TO THE AREA WHERE THEY ASSEMBLED PRIOR TO THE CEREMONY. They should not stop or congregate in the lobby.
10. A brief reception for graduates and their guests will be held immediately following commencement in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. The reception is being sponsored by the SSU Alumni Association, and at the conclusion of the ceremony graduates will be official alumni of Salisbury State.
11. Degree candidates who do not plan to participate in the commencement exercises MUST notify the Registrar's Office by calling 543-6158 no later than Monday, May 23. All graduates will receive a blank folder at commencement, and all diplomas will be mailed approximately six weeks after the ceremony.
12. The Department of Nursing will hold its Nursing Convocation on Friday, May 27, at 7 p.m. in Holloway

Hall Auditorium with a reception following the ceremony in the Wicomico Room of the Guerrieri University Center.

13. The ROTC Commissioning Ceremony will take place at 2:30 p.m. in the Great Hall in Holloway Hall on Saturday, May 28, with a reception following in the Social Room in Holloway Hall. The University community is cordially invited to attend.

14. Faculty and staff should enter through the Midway Room entrance and line up for the processional at 9:15 a.m. in the Midway Room of the Civic Center. Faculty members are required to attend; those who are unable to do so should inform their respective school dean.

15. BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates with last names beginning with the letter A through the letter G, report to DR. JOHN TYVOLL AND MS. LISA SELDOMRIDGE. When entering the main entrance of the Civic Center, go to the left corridor at the rear and line up alphabetically along the inside wall, facing east (the rear of the building). Sit in Section 3 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the side aisle.

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE candidates beginning with the letter H through the letter O report to DRS. BEN GREENE AND MIKE GARNER. When entering the main entrance of the Civic Center, go to the left corridor and enter one of the doors labeled "Flanders, Rooms 2 through 6. DRS. M.A., M.S. and M.B.A. candidates report to DR. STEVE GEHRICH. Line up according to his direction, alphabetically by degree, and sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

M.Ed. candidates report to DR. JACK WULFF

and line up alphabetically at his direction. Sit in Section 8 on the seating chart. After walking across the stage, return to your seats via the center aisle and fill in the rows starting from the side aisle.

20. DRESS CODE

This is a formal academic occasion and should be viewed as such in dress and demeanor.

The academic robe is black and the recommended dress, therefore, is:

A. Women

1. Black dress shoes (or some other dark color)—no white or other light color.
2. Dress hose, preferably not white or a light color.
3. A dress which does not have a high neckline or stand-up collar. It should not show above the V-neckline on the robe.

Since the academic robe has a zipper front closing, the dress will show only near the lower hem and, therefore, preferably should be a dark color, rather than white or very light.

4. No visible jewelry. Fraternity or sorority pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such. Kente cloths are permissible as well.

5. No flowers on the academic robe, and no flowers are to be carried to the stage.

B. Men

1. Black dress shoes (or some dark color) — no sneakers or light color sport shoes with thick rubber soles.

2. Dark color socks — no white athletic socks.
3. Dress slacks, preferably a dark or neutral color.
4. Dress shirt, preferably white, or a light color.
5. Dress tie (four-in-hand tie with windsor knot). (Shirt collar and tie will show above the V-neckline of the academic robe.)

6. Suit coat or sport coat will not be seen under the robe and is, therefore, optional.
7. No visible jewelry. Fraternity pins/ribbons may be worn; these are academic emblems and are not considered jewelry as such. Kente cloths are permissible as well.

C. Both

1. The mortarboard (academic hat) is to be worn with the front point over the forehead below the front hairline, so the flat board is parallel to the floor. (Not worn on the back of the head with the board pointing upward.) NO DECORATION OF ANY KIND IS TO BE PLACED ON THE MORTARBOARD.

2. Honors students will have a gold and white hood. It is to be worn with the gold side out and the white inner lining turned out at the top, over the gold (like a collar). Gold cords would be worn under the honors hood.

3. Candidates for the bachelor's degree should come into the auditorium with the tassel on the right, hanging near the right eye. After the degrees are conferred, the tassel is shifted to the left side. The signal for shifting the tassel will be given by the Dr. Bellavance (and/or your faculty marshal).

4. Candidates for the master's degree should place the tassel at the left front of the mortarboard prior to entering the auditorium and should not shift it.

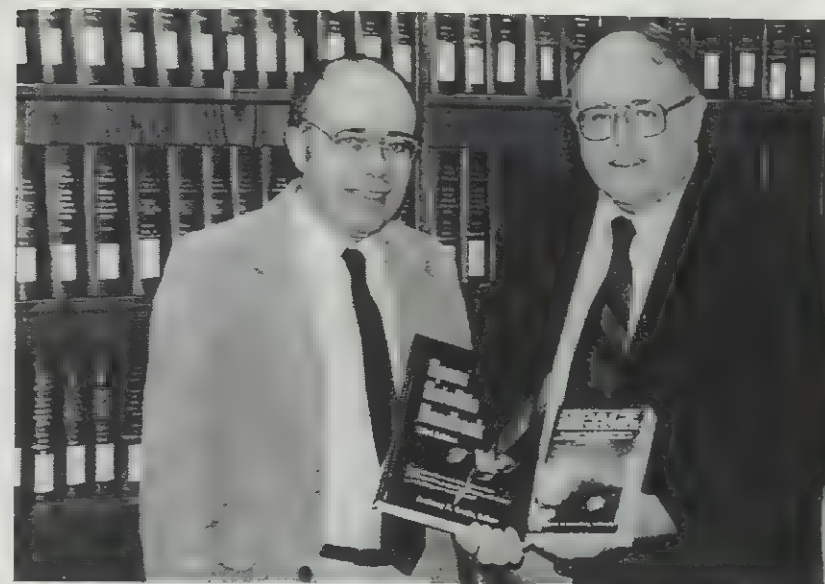

5. Master's degree candidates will wear the robe, but will carry the hood over the left arm until they reach the stage, where it will be placed on the candidate who should face the audience and bend down a little. Faculty marshals will give you more specific information.

6. Graduates will receive graduation picture information from Chappell Studio, Inc. This information will arrive at your permanent address in the near future.

7. Candidates should not chew gum or tobacco.

21. GRADUATION DECORUM

Graduation ceremonies are, by their very nature, festive occasions. The festivity manifests itself in many ways including the dress of the students and faculty adorned in academic regalia and the warmth, joy and satisfaction of accomplishment. The ceremonies are also marked by seriousness where the actual conferring of degrees signifies long hard work on the part of everyone involved: students, faculty, administrators, parents and spouses. As a consequence of the serious nature of the ceremony, students are expected to maintain a measure of decorum consonant with the occasion. Applause and other recognition of the conferring of degrees should be limited to a joint effort at the conclusion of each graduation group, (e.g. B.S., B.A., etc.).

Curtis (right) of the communication arts faculty donates copies of his two reference books about space exploration to Keith Vail of Blackwell Library on campus. Space Almanac, now in its second edition, was named one of the outstanding Academic Books of 1989-90 by the American Library Association. It is published by Gulf Publishing Company of Houston. The third edition of the Space Satellite Handbook, also published by Gulf, is a hardcover volume which documents the details of all 2,000 satellites ever sent into orbit.

President To Hold Summer Staff Meeting

The President's Staff Advisory Council (PSAC) has asked Dr. Bellavance to hold a general staff meeting prior to the start of the fall semester. Bellavance was supportive of the idea and has tentatively scheduled the meeting for Wednesday, August 10.

The meeting will allow Bellavance to discuss long- and short-term plans for the University. Other administrators will also be available to discuss related issues and to answer questions. The PSAC will also discuss its role on campus and its relationship to the Chancellor's Council for University System Staff.

The meeting is intended to inform staff of campus developments and to serve as a "kick off" to the fall semester. The exact time and location of the meeting will be shared as soon as possible.

Any staff member with questions or concerns about these or other staff issues are welcome to contact any PSAC member. The council meets monthly and serves as a conduit between staff and the president or other University offices and departments. Council members are Linda Abresch, Mathematics Department; Dennis Bradford, Public Safety Office; Lesley Dayton, Blackwell Library; Jackie Eberts, Financial Services Office; Barry King, Dean of Students Office; Bob Meigel, Physical Plant; Jerry Waldron, Registrar's Office; and Jeanette Wolinski, Computer Services Office.

Children's Classics To Air on WSCL

Rabbit Ears Radio, a weekly family radio program that features literature's best loved stories, is on Saturdays at 5:30 p.m. on WSCL (89.5 FM) beginning June 4.

The half-hour programs include classic stories from a wide range of traditions. It includes: John Henry told by Denzel Washington, with music by B.B. King; The Velveteen Rabbit, told by Meryl Streep, with music by George Winston; and Grammy Award winners (Best Recording for Children) The Elephant's Child, told by Jack Nicholson, with music by Bobby McFerrin, and Pecos Bill, hilariously told by Robin Williams with music by Ry Cooder. The series includes other stories that have received Grammy Award nominations for Rabbit Ears.

As host, Mel Gibson introduces each program and spends a few minutes sharing anecdotal information about the origin of the story, the narrator, the musical talent and also offers insights on morals and lessons contained in the tales. Gibson himself reads David and Goliath which is accompanied musically by Branford Marsalis.

Included in the Rabbit Ears Radio series are the stories of Johnny Appleseed, read by Garrison Keillor, with music by Mark O'Connor; The Emperor's New Clothes told by Sir John Gielgud with music by Mark Isham; and King Midas and the Golden Touch told by Michael Caine with music by Ellis Marsalis and Yo-Yo Ma.

WSCL broadcasts classical music and news from SSU to Delaware and Maryland's Eastern Shore 24 hours a day.

Phi Kappa Phi Initiates 49 New Members

SSU's chapter of the Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society welcomed its newest members on Sunday, May 8, during the society's annual initiation and banquet. Phi Kappa Phi recognizes outstanding academic achievement by students of junior and senior standing, typically with grade-point averages of at least 3.6 and ranking in the top 5 percent of their class. The SSU chapter welcomed 49 new initiates, while also celebrating its 20th anniversary at Salisbury State.

Dr. Ronald Dotterer, dean of the Fulton School of Liberal Arts, gave the keynote address during the initiation ceremony. Chapter president, Dr. George Whitehead, presided during the installation, while SSU's vice president of academic affairs, Dr. Nelson Butler, also congratulated each of the initiates.

In recognition of the chapter's 20th anniversary, a special display chronicling 20 years of Phi Kappa Phi at SSU was erected. The banquet menu also included a decorated anniversary cake.

Waters in Summer Writer's Center

Dr. Michael Waters, professor of English in the Fulton School, will be joining the faculty of The Writers' Center at Chautauqua, NY, this summer as a Writer-in-Residence.

During his residency Waters will read from his work in the Voices and Visions Series, offer poetry workshops and lecture on poetics.

At the May meeting of the University Forum, special service awards were presented to Jennifer Berkman, Carmen DiSylvestro Carlton (Toby) Tobias and Elaine Patterson for their combined 62 years of service to SSU's New Student Orientation Program. The awards were presented by Dr. James C. Lackie, on behalf of the New Student Experience Leadership Team.

Computers In Education Workshop June 1

Want to learn more about computers in the classroom but don't know whom to ask? Want to find out what other teachers are doing with computers?

The first meeting of the Computers in the Classroom Support Group meets Wednesday, June 1, from 3:30-6 p.m. in Fulton Hall, Room 111.

Coordinated by the Center for Technology in Education (CTE), the meeting is designed for all teachers (from pre-kindergarten through higher education), administrators, staff and technology coordinators.

The cost to attend is $3. To register contact Wanda Wagner at 548-4501.

administrator.

Perhaps most striking, however, is introduction of the "cohort" concept, increasingly used in business and other professions. Students accepted into the new M.Ed. program become part of a "cohort" or group with whom they will take all classes. Target size of the cohort is 20 students. The classes are in a fixed progression, each laying the groundwork for the next. Ideally, cohort members have the same classmates for all three years.

This tightly-knit structure is designed "to build relationships so students learn from each other, help each other and become professional friends," Replogle said, both during and after the program ends. The goal: to counter the professional isolation that the future administrators, especially those who become school principals, will be subjected to.

"Principals are truly isolated. They often have to make unilateral decisions," said Whitford. "Yet how often do principals get together (to discuss their work)?"

It has taken the SSU professors "four arduous years" to develop and earn approval for the new degree. (Change doesn't come easily in a recession.) Sustaining them during that time was belief in the power of change.

"Administrators can make a difference," Whitford said. "The truth is the principal is the primary agent of change in a school. Research supports that. We want administrators to think of themselves as leaders of change. Then change will happen."

The first class for the M.Ed. in School Administration is being organized for this fall. Deadline for application is July 15. Contact Whitford or Replogle at the Department of Education at 543-6281 for more information.

Wawrzonek recreates these natural moments in an art form. His large color saturated prints look and feel more like paintings than photographs. He deals with color and its direct impact on his vision and his audience. For those used to thinking about other things while driving on the highway, the exhibit offers the chance to see what was missed at the side on the road.

Color is used as Wawrzonek's subject matter, form and composition. The focus on color stimulates the viewer to respond directly and emotionally to the feelings these colors elicit: serenity, attention, heightened awareness, nostalgia, awe. The color draws one into the picture as if in another place.

Included in the exhibition are quotes from Thoreau's writings along with the photographs in an attempt to give the viewer a better understanding of Henry Thoreau's ideas and experiences as he would make his daily walks through the Concord, MA countryside.

Along with his writings is a sculpture of Thoreau walking. Made by the famous sculptor Jo Davidson in 1945, this is one of very few likenesses of the writer ever produced.

All of the writings, photographs, sculpture and pages from his journal give the visitor a better understanding of Thoreau's writings and their importance to the world in the "21st Century."

The Fulton Hall Gallery is open Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Tuesdays, 10 a.m.-8 p.m. and weekends from noon-6 p.m.

third period to take a commanding 15-4 lead into the final quarter. Jason Coffman, Paul Smith and Sean Radebaugh each scored twice during the decisive third period.

Led by Tom McAuliffe, Rob Schmitt and Chris McQueeney, the Gull defense stifled Washington's top scorers throughout the contest. Erik Miller made 11 saves in the SSU nets.

Gettysburg (12-1) advanced to the semifinal game with an 11-10 triple overtime win over Denison. Attackman Tim DeMore's third goal of the game, 38 seconds into the third OT, was the clincher.

The winner of the Salisbury State-Gettysburg game will meet the winner of the Nazareth-Hobart semifinal in College Park, MD on Sunday, May 29 for the NCAA Division III national championship.

SSU and UMES Together Forge Cooperative Spirit

By Tracy Sahler
The Daily Times Staff Writer

They're two separate campuses situated 12 miles apart, but Salisbury State University and the University of Maryland Eastern Shore are moving closer together all the time.

The collaboration that has gone on between the two campuses for the past 12 years accelerated spring '93 when SSU and UMES teamed to appeal the University of Maryland System Board of Regents' proposals for cutting majors. Their joint effort was largely successful, and today they're exploring more ways to collaborate.

"Together we do things that alone we could not do," SSU President Thomas Bellavance told the Daily Times.

The two universities will start the fall 1994 semester on a common calendar, eliminating many scheduling problems for students attending both institutions. A shuttle bus system between the two campuses will make it easier for students to travel. Future projects include standardizing course descriptions in the two catalogs, and making it possible to move records between the two universities by computer instead of car.

They're serving on each other's faculty search committees, writing a joint proposal for funds saved in the board of regents' cutback, and looking at ways to use technology to increase course offerings. Their collaboration may become a state and national model, UMES President William P. Hytche said.

"Our being brought together last spring to look at a fairly significant issue forced us in a short amount of time to really work together toward a common goal. That spring experience sort of opened the door to a lot more possibilities," said Karen Verbeke, coordinator of special education at UMES.

Studying on Two Campuses

Cooperation between the two universities takes place in several ways. Students attending one university may take any course at the other for credit without paying extra. Some students do this when required courses at their home schools are full. The informal arrangement has existed for years.

Cycling to Recycling, University Environmental Effort Evident Everywhere

In response to rapidly growing student interest, many colleges and universities are adding courses in environmental studies to their catalogs. At Salisbury State University, they've been teaching lessons in the environment--in and out of the classroom for more than 20 years.

From Introduction to Environmental Health to Public Policy Analysis, from Wilderness Experience to Environmental Mathematics, SSU offers 16 courses to students interested in the subject. Perhaps more important, however, are the lessons being taught by example.

"There is a manual now available to college students for them to assess the energy management and environmental awareness of their institutions," says SSU Vice President for Administration Joseph

K. Gilbert. "I hope our students will use it. They'll find SSU is way ahead." And that there is much more going on than meets the eye.

This past March, for example, one of the busiest months on campus, the University recycled nearly half its total waste: 47 percent of the tin and aluminum cans, newspapers, cardboard, white office paper, yard and food waste, glass and plastic that would otherwise have been headed for the landfill. Uneaten food from the students' plates now goes to compost at an area farm. Unserved food is recycled as leftovers, then turned over to be distributed to the needy.

Recycling is long-standing tradition at SSU. A program to collect and recycle

University Gallery Photography Exhibit Dedicated to Thoreau

The Salisbury State University Gallery at Fulton Hall presents the exhibition "Walking" through August 19. Based on the essay "Walking" by Henry David Thoreau, the show features dye transfer photographs by John Wawrzonek, sculpture of Thoreau, and original manuscripts and writings by Thoreau.

The photographs are from Wawrzonek's book Walking. Published by the Nature Company, the book is one of the best-selling photographic books, presently in its sixth printing.

Wawrzonek says there was a special joy for him in finding photographs in unexpected places, often near his home or along ordinary roadsides. Much of the beauty in the landscapes resides in textures inherent in foliage, branches, buds and grasses that are not easily captured. Sometimes the limitation is technical: the fine details are too small, and subtle color differences are difficult to reproduce with conventional color printing. Wawrzonek has tried to overcome these limitations with his equipment, his photographic technique and with the dye transfer process. Mastering the difficult

Kids Learn Conflict Resolution; Center, Housed at SSU, Offers Children Alternatives to Violence

By Janice Murphy, Special to The Daily Times

Public concerns about violence in the schools is increasing with each new incident. Teachers, parents and students are worried about the number of angry, combative children in the classroom.

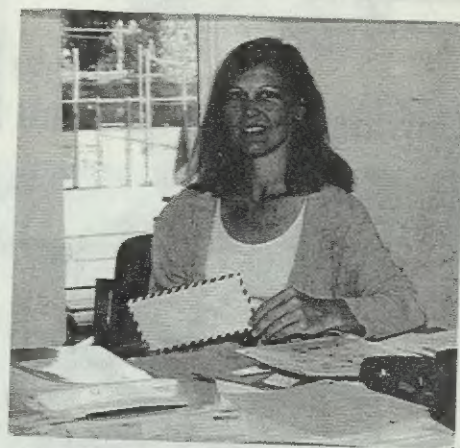

But in Wicomico County schools, interns from the Center for Conflict Resolution are working with children to offer alternatives to violence.

"Everybody has conflicts. We have them every day, maybe every hour. But we haven't been taught skills to resolve them," said Joan Maloof, assistant director of the center.

Interns try to affect the attitudes of children, so that "they see a conflict as a problem to be solved, rather than a contest to be won," Maloof said. People often handle conflicts by running from them or responding aggressively. Maloof suggested a third way, calling on problem solving approaches, including anger control and empathy.

The community has responded with interest and support. "The Center is young, but from the start the community came to us for assistance," Maloof said. Helen Schmidt, principal of Chipman Elementary School, a first grade center, contacted Maloof last year out of concern for her 4- to 6-year-old students.

"We were seeing so many serious types of behavior with many of our children, whose first response to a problem is to strike back with very aggressive, inappropriate behavior," Schmidt said.

Joan Maloof, assistant director, Center for Conflict Resolution

Schmidt explained, "we are seeing, at a much earlier age, behaviors that we would associate with middle school or high school students. We were looking for ways to meet these children's needs and reached out to the Center."

With the help of a grant from the Community Foundation of the Eastern Shore, matched by the Chipman PTA, the Center is returning to Chipman this year to work with all first graders.

Interns are first trained by Maloof and then sent into the classroom to observe the dynamics of the class. Actual sessions are conducted one hour a week for eight weeks.

The interns, often education majors, use a combination of discussion, activities and written tasks to teach concepts and skills that can be incorporated into the child's activities at home and in school.

They work with the children in expressing feelings and developing listening skills. For instance, children are encouraged to identify and cope with their feelings.

The classroom teachers, who are provided with resource materials by the Center, carry on the principles after the intern leaves.

With 25 years of experience in teaching, Schmidt believes that the problems confronting educators are worsening.

"We are dealing with so many health and emotional concerns. Children come to school with this baggage. We are dealing now with fetal alcohol syndrome, children whose mothers were on drugs or alcohol while they were pregnant. These are not significant numbers but all it takes is one child in one class who is not able to control him or herself. It poses special concerns for us."

"We see so much violence, not just on the playground but on television. We have become immune to it. We should not tolerate this as a society."

Similar programs started in the 1970s in crime ridden cities, but now, said Maloof, "we are providing a role model for the bigger cities." She believes her program to be the only one of its kind where student interns teach fundamental skills to elementary school children.

University Community Funds, Builds Habitat Home for Low Income Family

For Betty Johnson, the chance to own her own home is clearly the dream of a lifetime. It also offers the opportunity to escape the nightmare of reality.

"Owning our own home means freedom from having our clothes stolen off the clothes line, having flowers uprooted, having the kids toys stolen out of the yard," said Johnson. "It's an exciting time for me and my children."

In June, Johnson, who works full time at Wesley Temple Day Care Center, and her children, Terrence Johnson, 19, and Vernique Donaldson, 14, moved into their new home built and financed through contributions from the Salisbury State University community.

SSU is the first college or university to both raise the funds and build a Habitat home in one year. The project, coordinated by Richard Yobst, director of administrative services at SSU, Tom Landry, a local building contractor, and the campus chapter of Habitat for Humanity, featured a variety of fund raisers and sweat raisers.

A "Challenge Fund Drive" raised $7,471 last spring; student organizations donated $4,580 during the year; a gourmet prepared luncheon featuring shrimp jambalaya netted $1,800; a cookbook sale generated $945; miscellaneous contributions added $2,616; and a pair of auctions this spring brought in $9,219. That total of $26,631 in funds was supplemented by in-kind gifts of both building materials and expert labor (plumbing, electrical work).

"All of us associated with the building of the Johnson's home are enormously appreciative of the generous support we have received from both the campus community and the community-at-large," said Yobst, who received the Wicomico Rotary Club's 1994 Unsung Hero Award for his leadership role with the project.

In addition to the financial support, some 10,000 volunteer hours were donated by students, faculty, staff, alumni and friends of the University during the construction phase. Volunteers worked in four-hour shifts most Saturdays during the fall and spring semester.

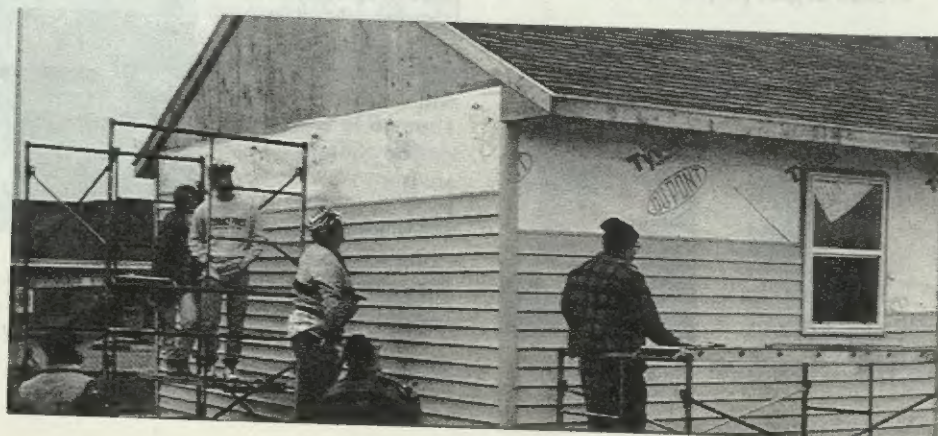

Betty Johnson put in over 400 hours of so-called sweat equity helping build the home of her dreams. Families are required to spend at least 250 hours working on Habitat homes before moving into their own home.

"I've had fun putting in my sweat equity, helping others build their homes," said Johnson. "I came home all dirty, but it was fun—sanding walls all day, sneezing all night, but a thoroughly enjoyable experience."

"Other people whose (Habitat) homes are finished told me how happy I'd be when I moved into my own home. Now I believe them!"

Johnson's resolve to actively work to improve her family's living conditions is matched by her appreciation of the University community in raising money to build her home, then assisting with the construction.

"I didn't know that other people cared enough to help," said Johnson. "To help someone achieve something they never thought would be possible to achieve is a wonderful thing—overwhelming really."

Frank Perdue Makes $1 Million Gift to Newly Accredited Business School

A contribution of over $1 million aimed at the continued enhancement of the business school at Salisbury State University was announced this spring by Franklin P. Perdue, founder of Perdue Farms Inc.

"Everyone associated with the University is deeply indebted to Mr. Perdue," said Dr. Thomas Bellavance, president of SSU, "not only for his generous financial support but his personal commitment to quality education in our region. Because of Frank Perdue, Salisbury State University's School of Business is playing a vital role within the Maryland higher education system."

"The University of Maryland System is very grateful to Frank Perdue for this wonderful gift to Salisbury State," said UMS Chancellor Donald N. Langenberg. "As a longtime supporter of higher education who also serves as a member of our Board of Regents, Frank gives generously in so many ways. We deeply appreciate his extraordinary commitment to the advancement of Salisbury State and indeed to all of the University of Maryland System institutions."

The Perdue School was recently accredited by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB) in both its undergraduate and graduate divisions. Fewer than 25 percent of the business programs throughout the country have such accreditation, according to Dr. Richard F. Bebee, Perdue School dean.

"To earn accreditation of both undergraduate and graduate programs at the same time is a major accomplishment—and very difficult to do," said Bellavance. In Maryland only the University of Maryland College Park, the University of Baltimore and Loyola College have both accredited graduate and undergraduate programs.

Institutions outside of Maryland with AACSB accreditation include Harvard, Yale, the University of Delaware, the University of Chicago, Georgetown University, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the College of William and Mary.

"When we began this process eight years ago," said Perdue, who endowed the business school in 1986 with a gift in excess of $2.3 million, "we could only dream that we would have come so far so fast. Accreditation could not have happened without the hard work of so many people."

"Thom Bellavance's vision made this day possible," said Perdue. "Rich Bebee's extraordinary efforts—combined with faculty teamwork—made this day happen."

"I am proud to have my name associated with this fine school."

Perdue's initial endowment of the business school "provided the resources needed to compete, expand programs and qualify for accreditation," said Bellavance. His total contributions to the business school now exceed $3.36 million.

The Perdue School of Business has some 1,000 students studying for bachelor's degrees in accounting, business administration, economics and information systems management. Over 100 students study in the Master of Business Administration program.

The business school's physical plant, which underwent a multimillion dollar renovation in 1990, is housed in the north and east wings of Holloway Hall, a campus landmark.

University To Coach Teachers on Latest in Computer Technology

By Keith Paul, The Daily Times Staff Writer

The hand of 8-year-old Marquitta Waters points to Tasmania on a map on a computer screen set up at Salisbury State University and proudly states, with a toothy smile, her friend lives there.

"You get to talk to people in other places and it comes through the telephone poles," said the third-grader at East Salisbury Elementary School, who uses electronic mail at her school to talk to students and learn about other countries.

Marquitta's teacher, Patti Weeg, was on hand recently at the unveiling of a new partnership between SSU, the University of Maryland Eastern Shore, the Shore's Education Consortium and the Greater Salisbury Committee to expose Eastern Shore teachers to computers and benefits of using them in instruction.

"Some teachers are very cautious when it comes to using new technology, but the students grew up pushing buttons and playing with computers," said Gerry Rossi, chair of the Education Department at SSU.

The program allows teachers from the nine Eastern Shore counties to use the new Center for Technology in Education in Caruthers Hall on the Salisbury campus to learn about new software and computers, said Wanda Wagner, the center director.

The University's faculty will help introduce the teachers to new software and reduce "computer anxiety," Wagner said.

"The kids have computers at home and play with them all the time, but some of the teachers just haven't been exposed to them and may not be comfortable with computers yet," she said.

The students using the computers at the press conference didn't seem to care about the adults shaking hands and talking about the effort and logistics involved. They seemed interested in using the computers.

"You actually get to control what's going to happen," said Kevin Williams, an eighth-grader at Bennett Middle School, who was using a program that manipulates the Greenhouse Effect, rainfall and other environmental conditions on the planet.

"We're all learning the same things, but different things. You can change things and go at your own pace," he said of using the computers in science class.

The computers and software allow the students to learn about different places, but in a way that keeps them interested, said Weeg, who also teaches at Delmar Elementary School.

She has her students talking with students in other countries using electronic mail.

"We have them giving us tours through their countries describing where they would take us and what it's like. It's up-to-the-minute information," Weeg said. "You don't get that in a book."

"They don't have Thanksgiving," Marquitta said, holding Weeg's hand.

"They have been talking with students in England and they don't have Thanksgiving there," Weeg said. Many times a teacher will find five students huddled around a computer, but seldom around a book.

SSU Chemistry Professor Seeks To Make Nylon from Soybeans

Dr. Fred Kundell

There's an old saying: "You can't get a silk purse from a sow's ear." A chemist on Maryland's Eastern Shore, however, is convinced he can get nylon from soybeans.

Dr. Fred Kundell, the Chemistry Department chair, says he's been bombarding edible soybean oil with oxygen molecules—a process called "catalytic oxidation"—in an effort to produce "nonanedioic acid," a basic component of nylon.

For much of 1993, Kundell and a senior undergraduate student, Keith Helinsky, has run some basic tests which indicated to them that the reaction would work. Now they're testing which temperatures and pressures produce the best results.

A $3,000 grant of checkoff funds from the Maryland Soybean Board is helping Kundell continue his work. Other support for his research—in the form of equipment and supplies—has come from Perdue Farms Inc.'s local soybean oil refinery and DuPont, he said. While he's grateful to them for their support, he needed cash to continue his work.

"We were literally running out of money," Kundell said, "so we're very grateful for the checkoff funds. This is not a terribly expensive project, but the money will be used for chemicals and analyses."

His project will be re-evaluated by the Soybean Board by February to determine if his progress merits further funding.

"The key criteria for using soybean oil for the production of nylon is price," he said. "We have to make it competitive."

If Kundell's experiments are workable at industrial levels, the payoff could be realized by more than soybean growers.

Today, most commercial nylon is made from petroleum products. Soybean-based nylon, because it's made from a renewable resource, would be more environmentally sound, he explained.

The soybean-based nylon will have different properties from today's petroleum-based nylon as well. "For example, it will be more stain resistant and it will have a lower melting point—which may or may not be an advantage," Kundell pointed out. "It will also be more elastic. The different characteristics mean, under different situations, the new nylon may have different applications."

There's no way of telling how much this technology can increase demand for soybeans this early in the game, he noted.

Sailing Out of Obscurity, SSU Club Sport Is Thriving

By Dave Prusak, The Daily Times Sports Writer

Two-day travel weekends, water as a field of play and book work combine to make sailing an unusual and obscure club sport at Salisbury State. But it's surprisingly successful.

"There are 42 schools in our region from Long Island to Virginia," said volunteer coach Del Walter, who stores the team boats in his Tyaskin yard near the Nanticoke River. "There's a strong interest in the sport among our students. We teach students to sail, then race."

Sailing as a club sport started three years at SSU with two boats. The Sea Gulls currently have six boats. They plan to have nine boats in the fall. There are 40 students on the roster, including 20 who are active and 12 who are truly competitive, according to Walter.

"This is the first year we've had a women's team," said Walter. "Women have an advantage in that a lighter two-person boat is a faster two-person boat. But women are at a disadvantage when strength comes into play on windy days."

The SSU team competes throughout the school year. They face some of the best competition in the country, including Navy, Old Dominion and Walter's alma mater, St. Mary's. Other strong programs include Christopher Newport, Virginia, George Washington, Loyola, Washington College and Delaware.

"It's a different sport in that it involves a whole weekend of travel almost every weekend during the fall and spring," said Walter. "We leave at 4 a.m. on Saturday and return to campus late Sunday night. Not a lot of students can consistently fit this competition into their schedules."

Flying Juniors, a 14-foot, two-person boat, is the vehicle of choice in this sport. The competition involves a lot of athleticism and teamwork. SSU's standout sailors include Greg Barow, Derek Merz, Michelle Combs and Tracy Conway.

"The difference between a Navy and us is that Navy sailors have been sailing all their lives," said Walter. "At places like Navy and St. Mary's, sailing is considered a major sport. But we're doing a great job of catching up to the established powers. We even have guest speakers conduct seminars, and book work. It only takes two or three exceptional sailors to gain recognition for a school."

"The real secret for a sailor is to be able to do everything pretty well," said Walter. "Each leg of the triangle race has particular skills involved in maneuvering around buoys. A race can last anywhere from 15 to 40 minutes. Finesse and control are keys."

Walter said he puts in 1,500 hours a year as a volunteer coach for the team.

"I bring organization and over 20 years of sailing experience as a coach for the team," said Walter. "We drill students on boat handling and speed. Teamwork is the most difficult aspect of sailing to coordinate. At least a dozen physical details need to come together."

Walter's goal for the team is to be ranked in the Top 10 in the country one day. Individually, SSU sailors are given the opportunity to be as good as they can be through development.

"The SSU administration has been extremely supportive of the sport," said Walter. "It takes a lot of money to send five to nine sailors and a coach on a two-day weekend every weekend. It can get expensive. We're accepting boat donations. 'We'll sell the boat to get income for the program. We give students the opportunity to leave school with a lifetime sport."

Orientation Options Aplenty for Incoming Students at SSU

To say that new students need help adjusting to university life would be an understatement. Almost as much of an understatement as it would be to say that at Salisbury State, new students have a variety of orientation alternatives.

This year, SSU offers a dozen orientation options in addition to the traditional five-week class. Interested in community service? The STARS program, for Students Taking Action and Responsibility on the Shore, has expanded to five different groups. In addition to the fall and summer Habitat programs and the head start offered to nursing students, STARS: TEACH pairs education majors with mentor teachers and brings them into elementary school classrooms during their first semester at SSU. This new program draws its name from its mission: Tomorrow's Educators Assisting Children.

All new student orientation options take up the subject of cultural and ethnic differences and appreciation; but students who opted for STARS: Cultural Diversity got a closer look—at other races and at themselves. Each day, the group of students, representing a rainbow of ethnic backgrounds themselves, was immersed in the contributions of a different culture.

The 13 students visited the Native American Museum in Millsboro, DE, and the Blacks in Wax Museum in Baltimore. They learned about Hispanic culture and history. They prepared foods they'd probably never tasted before: buffalo stew, sopapillas, chitlins, pig's feet.

The students weren't the only ones to learn something, either. "It confirmed our belief that most students know very little about the contributions African Americans, for example, have made to American history," said coordinator John Fields. Fields is SSU's associate dean for minority affairs and, like the students who participated, he believes that the program should be continued next year.

In the introductory session, one student spoke candidly about the racist attitudes that were part of his upbringing. For him, STARS: Cultural Diversity offered a way to begin to remove blinders that made him uncomfortable with who he was becoming.

But the most eye-opening experience for this group was the day they spent working in the community: at either the Maryland Food Bank, Joseph House Village or the Joseph House Food Center. "Most of these student had never been face-to-face with someone who lived in poverty," Fields said. In their evaluations of the program, according to Fields, all 13 students gave the experience high marks.

The additions to STARS are just of few of the new orientation options that began this year. Five of the choices are academic, focusing on the arts, Eastern Shore ecology, "Natures' Design," wildlife biology and one that offers new students a chance to join the small, close-knit "Learning Community." The group of 25 freshmen and three faculty will work together closely through the semester, especially on three General Education courses: English composition, world civilization and interpersonal communication.

The Learning Community may develop into a support system for the new students who join. That was one goal of the Algonquin canoeing trips: one that students say they've realized. After 11 years, the wilderness options—a cycling trip to Maine's Acadia National Park and the canoe trip to Algonquin Provincial Park in Ontario—are more popular than ever. A second Algonquin trip was added to accommodate the 68 students who signed up this year.

Peer Counselor Claudine Roussel isn't surprised. Roussel had never slept in a tent before and may not have signed up three years ago, had a close friend not recommended it so highly. "I had heard that I'd make a lot of friends that it would make the transition into college easier," she said. "But I didn't expect that I would form such close relationships." Now a junior, Roussel has just returned from her third trip, her second as a peer counselor. "The people from my Algonquin orientation are still my closest friends."

Senior Mike Baker agreed. An avid camper, he chose this option because he expected he would like it. "But I didn't expect that I'd have such a head start the first week of classes," he said. "I already had 50 friends, knew 16 upperclassmen and 10 or more professors and administrators. I think I probably went through every problem freshmen go through, and I knew I could go to my peer counselor, or (Algonquin coordinator and Guerrieri University Center Director) Dave Ganoe or my faculty advisor for help."

While orientation programs are nothing new, there is little doubt that SSU's many options put the University at the head of the class. "I think we are the cutting edge," said orientation co-chair Dr. Gene White. A member of the psychology faculty, White represents SSU at several national conferences on new student orientation. "I don't know of any other school that devotes this much energy to providing so many different programs," he said.

Sea Gull Century Rated One of Nation's Best By Bicycling Magazine

The Sea Gull Century, rated one of the "America's Best Centuries" by Bicycling Magazine last year, will be held on Saturday, October 8.

Sponsored by the Salisbury State University Bicycle Club, last year's century and metric century rides attracted 3,350 cyclists from 29 states, the District of Columbia and two Canadian provinces.

According to Bicycling Magazine: "This ride on Maryland's delightful Eastern Shore is proof that dead flat doesn't have to mean lethally boring. After leaving Salisbury...you head to the first of three watery rest stops, a state park on the Pocomoke River where a string quartet plays (naturally) Handel's "Water Music." Stop No. 2 is on Assateague Island where a bluegrass fiddler and banjo player jam while you check out the famous (Chincoteague) ponies and dunes. Stop No. 3 is a freshwater pond lined with cedar and cypress, where you're serenaded by a brass quintet."

The Sea Gull Century is the focal point of a weekend that introduces cyclists from across the country to the natural and manmade wonders of the Eastern Shore.

Shorter rides on Friday, October 7, and Sunday, October 9, take in the Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art, the historic Nassawango Iron Furnace and an old-fashioned crab feast.

For registration materials and other information, please call the SSU Bicycle Club at 548-2772. Hotels in Salisbury and the surrounding area fill up quickly, so participants are urged to make overnight accommodations well in advance of the event.

Strike Up The Band! Salisbury Symphony Orchestra Chosen To Open Baltimore's ArtSalute '93

By Susan Canfora The Daily Times Staff Writer

When the curtain rose at Meyerhoff Symphony Hall in Baltimore last fall the Salisbury Symphony Orchestra at Salisbury State University realized a dream.

Formally dressed, proud and excited, the musicians opened ArtSalute '93, an evening celebrating Maryland's cultural heritage, by playing "The King Stephan Overture" by Beethoven and "Yorkshire Ballad" by American composer James Barnes. "All musicians, if you ever ask them, will say their dream is to play Carnegie Hall. Meyerhoff is Maryland's Carnegie Hall," said Dr. Thomas Elliot, conductor of the orchestra.

"We chose Beethoven because he is the finest composer who ever lived. 'The Yorkshire Ballad' is a very beautiful textured piece that shows the orchestra with all of its full power. It's kind of Americana sounding," Elliot said.

The quest for Meyerhoff began when the orchestra submitted a tape and asked to be considered for the show. "We waited all winter and spring. There has never been representation from the Eastern Shore and there was not expectation that a symphony orchestra would emerge from here to be considered," he said.

There are 88 orchestras in the state and SSU wasn't well known. But the state's art council knew about it, since the council gives the orchestra a small donation every year.

"We qualified as a performing group because we were a state arts council receiver of funds. That allowed us to be considered," Elliot explained.

When Elliot got the letter inviting the orchestra to Meyerhoff, "I was nervous about opening it," he said. "We got a hint we were being seriously considered. I was tentative about it. When I read the letter, I wanted to go see Tom Bellavance (president of SSU) right away."

Indeed, the orchestra has made great strides.

Formed in the spring of 1986, it originally had just 25 members. Now in its ninth full season, there are 63 members.

"Now we have a fully instrumented symphony orchestra," Elliot said. "In 1986, no one would consider coming to Salisbury State University if they played strings because there was nothing for them to do. But that has changed. This year alone we brought into the symphony four new string players, a cello and a viola, and two new violinists came in with the freshman class. They're in the symphony orchestra joining five other string players and five brass players," he said.

Bellavance wrote an open letter to the community, praising the orchestra and announcing its performance at Meyerhoff. "We've known for some time that one of the best kept cultural secrets in Maryland was our very own Salisbury Symphony Orchestra. Well, it's a secret no more," he wrote.

"Dr. Bellavance is right," Elliot said. "It's a secret no more because now students are coming here from other areas because they know they have some place to play. I had high hopes for an orchestra when I came here and they are being fulfilled magnificently."

Most of the symphony players are adults. "What delights me is the community membership is almost the same as it was when we started. They have stuck with the orchestra, they have stayed with it all these years. We have housewives, lawyers, doctors, we even have a physicist. They come to us from Easton and Cambridge, over from Delaware. They come from Seaford and Bethany Beach. They come up from Virginia and they're all loyal, dedicated members. They've been with us since we began."

"We will never lose that. For the most part, they're the same group and they're the backbone of the orchestra," he said.

Members range in age from 18 to older than 65, Elliot said, declining to give the oldest member's exact age. "She wouldn't like that," he said, laughing.

"They're very dedicated. They're very concerned about the orchestra. We have discussions about what direction we want to take. They have so many other responsibilities but they make room for the orchestra and they make it fit in their lives."

The musicians meet for three hours every Sunday night during the academic year. Each year, they play up to six concerts, usually two in the fall, two in the spring, one in another community and one special project.

Symphony orchestras have changed so much that Elliot said he couldn't define them without some thought. "We play traditional music but we also experiment," he said.

"To hear a live symphony performance, to see other human beings on stage performing, is very uplifting because people relate to other people. It's uplifting to see and hear and it's impressive, especially when it's beautiful."

attending one university can take more courses in their field of study at the other institution. If they take the prescribed number of credits and the right courses they qualify for a degree from each campus.

Last spring saw the first graduates from the dual-degree program in environmental science and biology, a program now in its fourth year. Three students received a biology degree at SSU, then walked across the stage at UMES for a second degree in environmental science with a concentration in marine biology.

With 115 students enrolled in the program, there should be 15 to 20 graduates a year for the next several years, said Dr. Tom Jones, chair of the Department of Biology at SSU and coordinator of the dual-degree program in environmental science.

Another dual-degree program in its fourth year is sociology and social work. Students take sociology courses at both universities and study for a bachelor's degree in social work at SSU. The program cuts two years from the education process, said Dr. Lamin Mbye, acting chair of the Department of Social Sciences at UMES, and it helps put more minorities in the social work profession. Faculty and administrators at the two institutions will be looking at ways to eliminate duplication in the two sociology curriculums, too.

Students in some majors earn a joint degree by taking courses in their concentration at both schools. Students at both universities take ROTC at SSU, for example. They receive a degree from their home school.

After the board of regents' decision last spring, committees were formed to coordinate physical education, chemistry and education majors at both institutions, with the goal of eliminating duplication. The work is continuing.

Elementary education students at SSU can get special education certification from UMES, while UMES students can get elementary education certification at SSU. The education task force is looking into establishing a joint early childhood education major. A master's degree in guidance and counseling is given only at UMES.

"It extends both of our programs. It makes both sets of students more marketable," said Dr. Gerry Rossi, chair of the Department of Education at SSU.

Verbeke said she's been thrilled to see the cooperation that has taken place since she arrived four years ago.

"I was sort of surprised we weren't doing more together because there are so many ways that we strengthen each other and complement each other, that we can share our resources," Verbeke said. "There are probably so many ways we can work together that we haven't even thought of yet."

Sharing Resources

New Department of Education faculty from both universities are going through orientation together so they'll know both campuses, Verbeke said. Dr. Nelson Butler, vice president for academic affairs at SSU, said he'd like to see students do the same thing.

The universities are developing a joint engineering major using a combination of courses at SSU and UMES and distance learning. Technology and cooperation may give students at the two universities an opportunity they've never had on the Shore.

Right now about 70 SSU students go to UMES to work on their majors; 52 UMES students study at SSU. The two presidents said they'd like the totals to be even, but they're pleased with the growing popularity of the dual programs.

"With this kind of cooperation we can provide a resource and an educational system that is second to none," Hytche said.

cans and bottles began in 1972—years before the national trend—as a joint effort by students from SSU and area high schools and the Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. in Salisbury. According to Dr. Fred Kundell, who has been instrumental in SSU's recycling and other programs since before that time, that first program was ultimately turned over to Wicomico County and continues as the longest-running recycling effort in the country.

SSU students may not be aware of all of the University's efforts, but they come into contact with the evidence nearly everywhere they go on campus, every day. And if it isn't there now, it soon will be, as the University pursues an aggressive program to replace old equipment with more energy-conscious gear.

For students living on campus, the morning shower is most likely taken using a water-saving shower-head. At breakfast, they find a weekly reminder to "eat what you take for Earth's sake." The disposable dishes they once ate from have been replaced with china plates, stainless steel flatware and cloth napkins.

As they cross campus, students are likely to meet up with SSU police officers on bicycle and in propane-powered campus vehicles. Both of these measures are paying off in savings to the environment and to the University budget. Only a year after their introduction, the propane-powered cargo vans and trucks, for example, already cost as little to operate as their gasoline-powered counterparts.

Police officers at SSU began patrolling the campus on bicycles for reasons that have little to do with engine emissions or pollution. According to SSU Public Safety Director Jim Phillips, the bicycle patrols began 12 years ago, when fitness was a higher national priority than environmental health. The officers who initiated the change soon discovered additional benefits: the campus was designed for walking and has no roads on its interior. Bicycles gave the officers better mobility and brought them closer to the students they protect.

Today, bicycling is the choice of more than half the officers on campus. Phillips adds that his department has instituted other energy-saving policies in recent years: all of their radios, flashlights and pagers are powered by rechargeable batteries, for example.

Behind the scenes, energy use on campus has gone high-tech. As new buildings are constructed, state-of-the-art cooling and heating systems are introduced. The best example of this can be found in Fulton Hall, where an ice thermal storage system provides heating and cooling that has proven most efficient not only for the building itself, but for the campus as a whole. Sam Kamand, director of project management, explains that during the night, the system builds ice which melts during the day, cooling the building. Because its greatest energy demand occurs in overnight, off-peak hours, the electricity used to power the system costs less. Kamand's estimates show the University saves approximately $18,000 each year on energy costs.

The savings from systems like these are used to benefit the older buildings on campus, as boilers are gradually being replaced and a computerized environmental system is phased in across campus. The computer system tracks and controls energy use in the buildings now on line, taking advantage of off-peak hour cooling and heating opportunities wherever possible.

Innovations like those in Fulton Hall pay for themselves within two years. And they don't end there. As the University makes plans for design and construction of "The Commons," a new dining facility, research continues to develop systems that will not only give the campus a new "energy efficient building" but will also improve energy use in the Guerrieri University Center next door.

Design work continues, but already plans call for abundant natural light, light sensors in offices so that they will be dark sensors in offices so that they will be dark when not in use and variable-drive air pumps that will be run when energy rates are at their lowest. Even the kitchen that serves the new dining facility will be put to work, its rejected heat used to warm the rest of the building.

Meanwhile, work to upgrade the University environment gains new energy daily. New courses are in development to educate SSU students in the best ways to conserve and protect the resources, including historic Holloway Hall, are being given new life, as old energy systems wear down and are replaced with new, more efficient ones.

process has been immeasurably helpful in allowing him to use color and texture as he wishes.

His fascination with texture often leads to complex images where the interplay of texture, form and color takes some time to comprehend. This complexity also demands that the prints be large so that subtle details and colors are revealed. His hope is to stimulate in the viewer an increased appreciation of beauty, especially in the easily overlooked nearby landscape and also to invoke a desire to preserve it.

A walk into the exhibit gives the visitor the feeling of a trip to Walden Pond. The intensely colored dye transfer photographs by Wawrzonek capture the fields, marshes, trees and blueberry barrens that are always visible as one drives through the area.

Wawrzonek recreates these natural moments in an art form. His large color saturated prints look and feel more like paintings than photographs. He deals with color and its direct impact on his vision and his audience. For those used to thinking about other things while driving on the highway, the exhibit offers the chance to see what was missed at the side on the road.

Color is used as Wawrzonek's subject matter, form and composition. The focus on color stimulates the viewer to respond directly and emotionally to the feelings these colors elicit: serenity, attention, heightened awareness, nostalgia, awe. The color draws one into the picture as if in another place.

Dreamed Brook

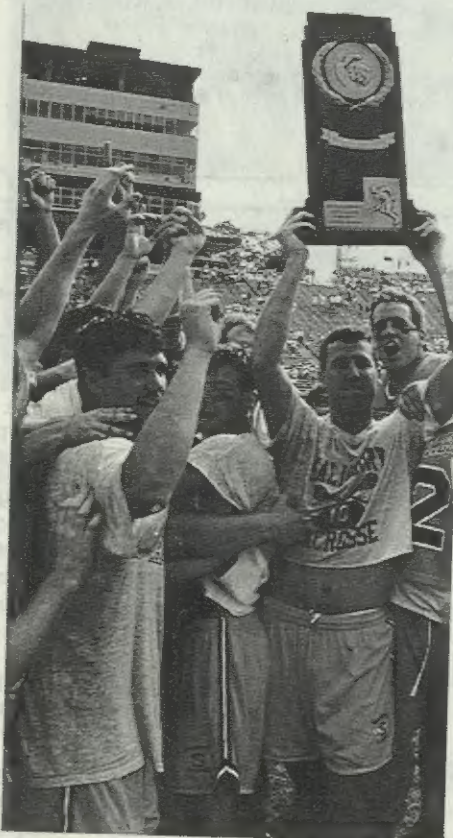

Included in the exhibition are quotes from Thoreau's writings along with the photographs in an attempt to give the viewer a better understanding of Henry Thoreau's ideas and experiences as he would make his daily walks through the Concord, MA countryside.

Along with his writings is a sculpture of Thoreau walking. Made by the famous sculptor Jo Davidson in 1945, this is one of very few likenesses of the writer ever produced.

All of the writings, photographs, sculpture and pages from his journal give the visitor a better understanding of Thoreau's writings and their importance to the world in the "21st Century."

The Fulton Hall Gallery is open Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Tuesdays, 10 a.m.-8 p.m. and weekends from noon-6 p.m.

The Sea Gulls captured the NCAA Division III National Championship in men's lacrosse with a 15-9 victory over Hobart on May 29. The win capped a 15-0 season and was SSU's second national championship. The women's field hockey team was the NCAA Division III National Champion in 1986.
